HAYWOOD'S LAWYERS ARE BADLY WORSTED.

Court Finds No Malice In Statements Made By and of Orchard.

Sherman Bell Openly Proclaims That Triumvirate of Unionists Should Be Tried for Many Murders in Colorado If They They Got Their Deserts for Notorious Crimes Outside of Idaho.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOISE (Idaho) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A decisive blow was delivered to the attorneys for the defense today when Charles F. Koelsch, County Attorney, made a report to the court on his investigations concerning the publications of interviews with Harry Orchard.

Yesterday an interview was published in the Statesman, also the views of several eastern newspaper men on Orchard as they saw him and the full story of the Associated Press representative's interview.

Attorneys for the defense in impassioned manner demanded that Gov. Gooding and the proprietors of the paper here, the Associated Press representatives and men who signed the articles be brought into court to answer to contempt, claiming the interview had been permitted by the Governor to poison the minds of prospective jurymen and to prepare their minds to give credence to the alleged confession of Orchard and to defeat the chance of the defense to get an impartial jury.

The court ordered Koelsch to make a thorough investigation and take any action he deemed permissible under the law if he found the allegations of the defense true.

Koelsch reported that he thoroughly investigated the matter. He said the publication was not actuated by improper motives; that it was a matter of news only, and there was nothing in the interviews which could possibly be construed as an attempt to influence the minds of the jurors or the prospective jurors against the defense.

Judge Wood accepted the report and ordered it to be placed on record.

There is absolutely no possible show to get a jury from the talesmen left in the special venire. There are twenty-three left of 100. The defence at the close of proceedings today had used four of its ten peremptory challenges and the State five. Eleven men are passed for cause by both sides, and all twelve by the State.

The State scored over the defense today in the case of one juror for the defense who was challenged for cause after he was passed by the State. The State denied the challenge, which was based on implied bias for the first time urged during the trial. The judge ruled that the challenge was not well taken.

The defense was therefore obliged to use one of its peremptory challenges to remove the man.

The court all along has been very liberal in allowing challenges on both sides, even when denied. Judge Wood seems bound to get a fair jury, if possible, and is not urging attorneys to fast work in the examination.

The new venire will probably be ordered about Tuesday.

BELL REVEALS OTHER CRIMES.

SAYS HAYWOOD AIDED MURDER OF MANY COLORADOANS.

He Demands Trial in Centennial State and Bitterly Arraigns Cowardice of Authorities Who Fear to Force These Leaders of Anarchy to Face Justice at Home.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER (Colo.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "That fight at Boise is not my fight and I have kept out of it so far.

"I shall not appear as a witness except of my own volition, and I cannot say now that I shall go in this way, but if any attempt is made to use me as a tool, I give notice now that I shall take a hand."

This is the declaration of Sherman Bell, Adjutant-General of Colorado during the Peabody administration, who was the most prominent person in the labor war.

"Why should they try those men in Idaho? During the trouble here, and before the murder of Steunenberg, there were seventy-five persons killed in Colorado; at least, they were dead.

"One man was killed in Idaho, and yet they take these men from Colorado to Idaho to try them for crimes committed in Colorado. Why don't they try them here? We have courts. Is it because they are afraid?

"I detest the principles of Moyer and Haywood, but I think they should get a square deal and if you take men from a State where the alleged crimes were committed to another State, I don't call it a square deal.

"I don't want to be placed in a light of being hostile to either side. What I did, I did in the open and I stand for it. Why, Moyer and Haywood owe their lives to me, if they only knew it, and they may have it proved to them later."

Gen. Bell says that he has not been approached by either the prosecution or defense with a view to ascertaining what he would testify to if called.

"It wouldn't do them any good," he said grimly. "A man who claimed to represent a magazine came to me at Crippde Creek a couple of weeks ago and offered me $500 to write a signed statement of 1500 words about the trial, from the position he naturally supposed as mine. I declined, for as I said before, it is not my fight until I see something wrong and then I'll jump in and as the saying is 'hew to the line,' and do some fine hewing, too, no matter where the chips fall. There would be a something stirring on both sides when I got through."

Of the men on trial and others connected with the case, Gen. Bell said:

"Of course, I never had friendly relations with Haywood and saw little of him, but I was intimately acquainted with Moyer. And I can say, and he will say, too, that all the time I had him in custody there never was an unkind word passed between us and we got along well together.

"You can say for Sherman Bell that those men are in reality being tried in Idaho, not for the murder of Steunenberg, but for murders in Colorado and that the place to try them is Colorado. But wherever they are tried I shall do all in my power to see that they get a square deal."

NO IMPROPRIETY IN INTERVIEW.

PROSECUTOR SUPPORTS ACT OF GOV. GOODING.

Attorney Koelsch Reports Absence of All Malice in Chief Executive of Idaho Allowing Newspaper Representatives Interview Harry Orchard—Asks Court for Rule to Guide Them in Matter.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BOISE (Idaho) May 18.—Prosecuting Attorney Koelsch has completed his investigation of the circumstances under which Harry Orchard, principal witness for the State in the Steunenberg murder case, was interviewed, and today presented the District Court with a report exonerating from the charge of improper motives, all persons connected with the incident. He found that the only motive that the newspapermen had in interviewing Orchard was to obtain news of him. In announcing the report Judge Wood said that it called for no action and directed that it be filed.

The report is in part as follows:

"I, of course, investigated the matter with the view solely of determining whether there had been any infraction of our penal laws or contempt upon the court. I take it for granted that with the question of the propriety or taste of the publications under consideration, I have nothing to do, at least not in an official way. In order to come within the purview of our statute defining and punishing improper attempts to influence a juror or person summoned as a juror such attempt must have been made intentionally and corruptly and if so done it is a felony. A publication during the course of a trial which reflects upon the court or assails the litigants or seeks to intimidate witnesses or spreads before the jury an opinion upon the merits of the controversy or threatens them with public odium or attempts to dictate their decision or in any improper way endeavors to influence their determination, is a contempt of court.

FINDS MOTIVE IS SINCERE.

"I am able to report that my investigation of the matter entirely disproves that any improper motive actuated any one connected with the publications under consideration. It was published purely as a matter of news which the correspondents had been eager to get for a long time, but had been denied the opportunity of getting. When this opportunity was finally given to them they seized it with avidity and with no other purpose than that it would be front-page scare-head matter. This was natural.

"Orchard, the chief actor in the tragedy that was perpetrated in the murder of former Gov. Steunenberg, had been denied from the newspapermen for months. No one had heard any authoritative statement about him. He became mysterious. Stories of his physical and mental breakdown circulated and found their way into the press. It is no wonder that newspapermen should want to see and interview him, nor any wonder that newspapers should overlook the impropriety of publishing such interviews at this time. The Associated Press men and others became so insistent to see him that their request was finally granted. I am able to state and do state this privilege was granted them solely because of their repeated requests—the slow yielding to their persistency.

"It never even entered into the minds of those who granted this privilege that there could be anything improper in their action and no improper motive actuated them.

ASKS RULE ON NEWS MATTER.

"I want to emphasize that my investigations absolutely disprove any improper motives on the part of any one who permitted these interviews. That the other statements contained in the publications under consideration were not made at this particular time with any improper intent is also further evidenced by the fact that various statements have repeatedly, for a long time prior thereto, appeared in the press. During the investigation my attention was directed to the fact that for a long time a certain paper had devoted itself almost exclusively to publishing matter tending to discredit persons likely to be called as witnesses in the pending case, and when I answered that two wrongs never could make one right; that because others had not been punished for contempt was not a defense, I was assured by both the Statesman and by the Capital News and by each correspondent of outside papers circulating in Ada county whom I was able to interview, that they would gladly obey and abide by such rule as your Honor might lay down forbidding any publication that would in the slightest degree tend to obstruct the proceedings of this court or give anything in the nature of an opinion as to the merits of the case on trial.

"I therefore request that your Honor make and promulgate an order along these lines as stringent as the law will permit, and I promise to make every effort within my power and authority toward a rigid enforcement of the same and bring before the court every infractor of the same law, regardless of whom the offender may be."

Up to adjournment this afternoon the State had consumed five of its ten challenges and the defense four of its challenges, so that there remain unexpended eleven challenges. The special venire of 100 talesmen that reported in court last Monday was at the close of today's session reduced to a file of twenty-six men, and it is predicted that another special venire must be called about Tuesday in order to complete the jury. Today's proceedings showed a sharpening of the contest between opposing counsel. There was an absence of yielding and differences were fought out and left to the court for decision. The ever-changing jury is now largely composed of men beyond the middle line of life, but the unexpended challenges may change it in any direction.

MRS. HOWARD GOULD SUES FOR DIVORCE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

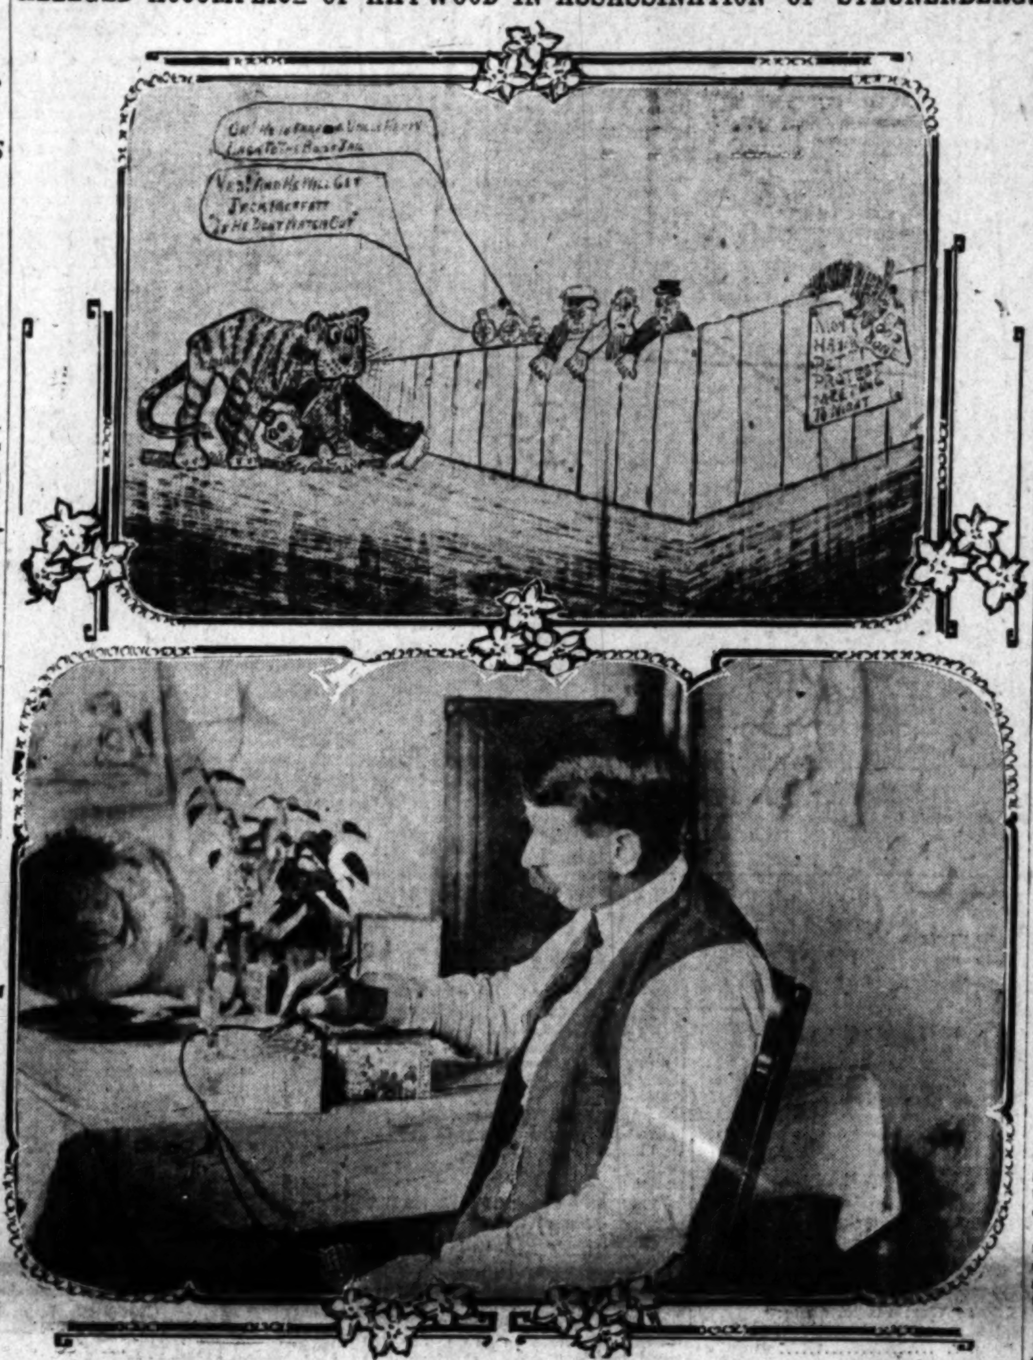
NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Differences of long standing between Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gould culminated on Friday in the service of a summons and complaint in a suit begun by Mrs. Gould in the Supreme Court, for a limited divorce. Clarence Shearn is Mrs. Gould's attorney in the suit. Delancey Nicoll, as Mr. Gould's representative, accepted service of the papers. Mrs. Gould seeks a decree of separation on the ground of abandonment and does not make any sensational allegations in her complaint.

It is probable that the main legal contest will be on the question of alimony. Since Mr. Gould has lived apart from his wife he has given her $5000 a month for her maintenance. She asserts that this sum is inadequate and that her husband's income is sufficient to justify him in paying her twice as much.

It is said that members of the Gould family held a council to discuss the question whether Howard Gould should pay her $100,000 or even $120,000 a year, and that their decision was that her demands were excessive.

In the litigation the first move will probably be a motion for alimony and counsel fees, and unless some agreement is reached in the meantime, this application will be sent to a referee, who will determine how much should be paid pending the final adjudication of the case.

ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE OF HAYWOOD IN ASSASSINATION OF STEUNENBERG.



George A. Pettibone is becoming an expert at pyrography. In his cell at the Idaho jail he has whiled away many hours at his work, and the walls of his cell are decorated with his handiwork. In addition to this, Pettibone is something of a cartoonist, and has combined the two arts by burning his cartoons into wood. A sample of this work is here given. Pettibone sees Happy Hooligan being brought to the Ada County Jail and warns Jack Simpkins (Moffot) that he better watch out.

YOUNG MILLIONAIRE SLAYS HIS HACKMAN.

Employer, Winding Up Debauch, Is Enraged Because Driver Refuses Drink to Mark End of Dispute Concerning Wages—He Is Well Known.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After a night of revelry in company with his hackman, Gaston Pearson Philip, millionaire whip of New York, early today shot and mortally wounded the "night hawk," Frank B. MacAboy, in the clubman's room in the Arlington Hotel on Lafayette Square.

The bullet penetrated MacAboy's liver and tonight he died at the Emergency Hospital. Philip, hysterical and still partly intoxicated, is in a police cell, held without bail on the charge of murder.

Philip, who is a brother of J. Van Ness Philip, Democratic leader of Columbia county, New York, and a personal friend of President Roosevelt, and also a brother of Hoffman Philip, secretary to the United States legation at Morocco, has made himself conspicuous lately in Washington by the reckless manner in which he drove his sixty horse-power automobile about the city.

WENT RAPID GAIT.

He has been arrested several times for overspeeding. Last week Judge Kimball fined his chauffeur $50. Philip thought the amount excessive and abused the officer, whereupon the judge fined him $20 extra for contempt of court.

Recently he has been recklessly giving money away. While driving down Pennsylvania avenue the other day his hat blew off. Detective Vermillion caught it and returned it.

"Thank you," said Philip, slipping a $100 bill in the detective's hand.

"What's this for?" asked Vermillion.

"For your trouble."

The detective returned the money.

QUARRELS WITH HACKMAN.

Philip has been occupying a room on the fifth floor of the Arlington Hotel for two weeks. During that time he has been with MacAboy on several occasions. Last night they started out early in Philip's touring car to make a night of it. Chauffeur Updyke was in charge of the machine. It has not been learned by the police where they spent the night, but at 4:30 a. m. they returned to the hotel.

According to the chauffeur, Philip and MacAboy had a quarrel just before reaching the hotel. MacAboy alleged his patron owed him $150 for past cab rides. Philip went up to his room first, and the cabman followed in a few minutes. The millionaire offered MacAboy a drink.

ENRAGED BY DRAM REFUSED.

"No, thanks," said the cabman.

"You won't, won't you; then I'll fix you," Philip is said to have retorted. With that he pulled his pistol and shot MacAboy, the bullet entering the left side and penetrating the stomach and liver.

When the police and hotel clerks reached Philip's room they found MacAboy on the floor in a pool of blood in torture and Philip on the bed in a stupor. On the way to the Emergency Hospital, MacAboy gasped out the story of the shooting and then relapsed into unconsciousness.

Meanwhile, the police, taking Philip's weapon away from him, partly roused him and took him to the Police Station in his automobile. There he was transferred to a patrol wagon and conveyed to court, arraigned, held without bail and returned to his cell.

MacAboy was operated on at the hospital and the bullet removed from the liver, but the wound was too desperate for him to rally.

His mother, whose main support he was, heard his story, sitting by his cot, and then he died. He was unmarried.

APACHE CHIEF GERONIMO MAD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LAWTON (Okla.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chief Geronimo, the great Apache warrior, who is said to have scalped more white people than any other living Indian and who for twenty years has been a prisoner of war on the Fort Sill military reservation, near here, is reported here today by an Apache Indian to have completely lost his mind and has to be guarded almost night and day by Apache scouts in the government service.

Yesterday afternoon he wandered away from home and was not seen until nightfall, being discovered about dark wandering carelessly near Fort Sill watching the highways and murmuring to himself.

A carriage approached and he galloped toward it with a ferocious grin that frightened the occupants. He was taken in charge by two scouts who came up and prevented him following the party.

CLASH OF BIG MEN.

Heney Losing Grip On Bay City.

Gov. Gillett Declares That Troops Will Be There If Needed.

Walking Delegates Still at the Business of Stirring Up Strife.

Skulking Laborites Have to Resort to Threats and Vociferation.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Political ward heelers went poking around today to all the saloons frequented by strikers, and assured the blue and discouraged men that "strong political pressure is being brought to bear" in their behalf.

This sounds like the threat of the formation of a new labor party. Another enormous editorial appeared tonight in the labor-union Bulletin, demanding that Rudolph Spreckels be vested with dictatorial power in this city—or, rather, allowed to remain in that power. In it appears the following statement: "Why should Rudolph Spreckels, who, like Hotspur, has fought the battle and won the victory, step aside at this moment and deliver to them (the Committee of Seven) the fruits of victory?"

Fruits of victory? Huh!

It is a strange situation.

This committee of seven business men from the various commercial organizations in the city are practically taking over the Mayor's job by consent of Schmitz.

Heney and Spreckels say that these men are the appointees of the allied corporations accused of bribery, and are seeking to sidetrack the prosecution.

CALHOUN EXPOSES SPRECKELS.

On the other hand, Patrick Calhoun claims that Heney and Spreckels are standing in with the labor unions, with the intention of establishing a dictatorship over San Francisco and ruining the United Railroads.

By the club they hold over the heads of the indicted Supervisors by the confession of Ruef, Heney and Spreckels have a rule that is almost absolute. It lacks only the submission of Schmitz, who now seems to have passed into the hands of this citizens' committee and so out of the power of Heney and Spreckels.

Schmitz's trial will begin Monday morning.

Through the Bulletin, the labor leaders tonight made a despicable attempt to misrepresent the Governor as saying that unless Spreckels "yields to the Committee of Seven, the militia will not be sent to San Francisco in the event of rioting, and blood will flow in the streets."

GOVERNOR STANDS FIRMLY.

The Governor promptly issued a statement saying that the militia will be brought to San Francisco whenever the situation gets beyond the control of the police.

To the utter astonishment of the men themselves, a walking delegate called at the barns of the United Railroads this morning and called out the electricians and linemen, numbering about sixty.

This was in the face of the fact that the Labor Council the night before absolutely refused to permit any sympathetic strikes to be declared.

At Gov. Gillett's headquarters the news was received with some concern. It is not believed, however, that the calling out of these men presages any sympathetic strike of importance. The labor leaders realize that such a strike would mean the declaration of civil war and the virtual annihilation of the unions.

The real cause of the walk-out is the action of the United Railroads in breaking in new men on the linemen's crews and at the electrical stations. The unions objected to the new men. The strike did not embarrass the company at all and the cars continued to run. The places of the strikers were at once taken by the new men. The strikers are liable to make endless trouble, however, by cutting wires and grounding currents.

EMMA GOLDMAN HELPS.

A big mass meeting of the car strikers was held tonight in the vacant lots opposite the Turk-street car barns for the evident purpose of making trouble. Emma Goldman, the notorious anarchist, was also to have addressed a sympathetic meeting. She was taken sick, however, and the night was rainy, so the affair was tame.

The lockout still continues among the iron men, every big foundry but one in the city being closed. The iron men are said to be much discouraged and twice have sent the members of the busybodies who call themselves the "Civic League" around to make overtures of peace. Nothing doing.

The usual amount of strike violence occurred. It has become uninteresting. On Mission street some labor union bums stood up in a bus and indecently exposed their persons as a car went by filled with women passengers. The matter was reported to Adjt.-Gen. Louck, who said they should have been thrown from the wagon.

The Haight-street track was greased today by strikers. By fate's cruel irony, the first wagon to get on track was a labor union bus which did not know about the greased track, and purposely got in the way. The motorman tried to stop, but the car slipped along with the brakes locked and knocked the bus galleywest. Hoist by their own petard!

LAUCK SHOWS ANARCHY'S END.

IN GENERAL STRIKE PEOPLE WOULD STARVE.

He Demands Police Protection for Cars and That Schmitz Be Compelled to Surrender so That Committee of Citizens Can Undertake Measures Necessary for Safety.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—"San Francisco is unhappy and her happiness must be restored. There must be a decided move towards law and order. Unless there is some sort of positive control, I see trouble ahead. Anarchy will reign in the streets and there will be bloodshed."

Adjt.-Gen. J. B. Lauck feelingly discussed the situation in San Francisco, today, and incorporated the foregoing remarks in his statement.

"The situation at the present time is bad enough, but in the event that there is a general strike, things will be terrible," he continued. "Business will be suspended, as contractors will be unable to obtain men to finish uncompleted work, and proprietors of establishments will be unable to operate.

"Then there will be no bread, and this will result in anarchy.

"Absence of a head to the government of San Francisco is the cause, in a great measure, of the existing conditions. It is a well-known fact that Schmitz is not efficient. There is an ulterior motive in every move he makes. A new head must be chosen. Why not a committee of prominent and responsible men, who will assume control and regulate affairs?

"We are here simply to preserve law and order, and are not desirous of mixing in the affair unless it is absolutely necessary. But the citizens of the city must be protected and their happiness must not be shattered completely. It is bad enough now and it must not grow worse. Many are discouraged, and it is no wonder.

"In my opinion there should be a policeman on every car. That would not necessarily indicate that the corporation was being protected especially; it would be a protection to the public, to which such protection is due."

LINEMEN LOAF IN SYMPATHY.

FIFTY ELECTRICAL WORKERS GO ON STRIKE.

Non-union Men Are Quickly Put to Work and Service Is Not Interrupted—United Railroads Will Resume Cross-town Lines and Night Schedules This Week.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The only new feature today in the street car strike was the sympathetic strike of about fifty linemen and stationmen of the United Railroads. Their places were filled with non-union men and there was no interruption of service. The United Railroads announced today that next week they will operate their cross-town lines and begin a restoration of their night schedules.

Between 600 and 700 brewery workmen went on strike today for a flat increase of $1 per day.

There is direct authority for the statement that the electricians employed by the San Francisco Gas and Electric Company will not strike, as to do so would be a breaking of the union's contract with that corporation.

The information of this new strike was conveyed at once to Gov. Gillett and his aides and a meeting of the military staff at headquarters in the Ferry Building followed. Subsequently, the Governor denied himself to newspaper men for the time being, but from Adjt.-Gen. Lauck the following statement was obtained:

"The strike of the electricians unquestionably complicates the situation. How grave a feature of the present labor disturbances it may prove to be cannot well be forecasted. It has resulted, however, in redoubled vigilance on the part of the United Railroads, who fear the cutting of their lines and the Governor is watching the situation very closely.

"I am informed that the Electricians' Union will not attempt to interfere with the serving of power of the United Railroads, and that Mr. Calhoun is able now to replace all of the electrical workers who have quit him. Further information is that a large number of secret service men have been engaged to watch the company's lines in so far as that is possible."

DEMAND DINAN'S RESIGNATION.

COMMITTEE OF SEVEN ALLEGES CHIEF IS FAILURE.

Those Chosen for Guidance of San Francisco During Is Stormiest Era Are Preparing Way to Redeem City from Evils of Unionite Anarchy Under Grafters.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The committee of seven, which has undertaken a plan of restoring confidence and reconstructing the city government, held a long session this morning. The meeting was executive and it was announced that a resolution had been agreed upon calling on Chief of Police Dinan to resign because of failure to properly protect the interests of the city during the car strike.

The committee is said to have secured from Mayor Schmitz the promise to execute any recommendations agreed upon, but Rudolph Spreckels and Francis J. Heney, who are directing the prosecution, refuse absolutely to have anything to do with it.

F. B. Anderson, president of the committee, after the meeting, made the following statement:

"The committee is composed of fair, strong men, and we have had but three days to get in touch with the situation. We wish to act fairly by all elements that go to make up this city. We feel that we have so great a responsibility that we cannot afford to be rushed into action for fear that we might make a mistake. When we are able to see what our duty is we are prepared to do it, no matter whose fingers are pinched. It is possible we may make a mistake in doing our duty. We are not going to do anything that will be in the nature of class legislation. The thing that impresses the committee most is that any and all actions on their part must be non-partisan. We realize that there are many elements in the city and that a community before being prosperous must be happy and there can be no happy community if but one class is happy.

"We are adopting the Constitution of the United States as the fundamental basis of what our action will. We are not going to attempt to settle any personal quarrel, but we are going to try to bring about clean conditions of things and try to make it safe to live and invest money here.

"We have given a great deal of time to the reports of the disturbances in the different parts of the city and to the proper disposal of the police force, recommending that in several exposed localities, increased numbers of plain clothes be put on."

"SIDEBURNS" CAUSE RIOT.

Charles Sanderson, a northwestern preparatory school student incited a riot of Northwestern University freshmen by appearing tonight at an entertainment wearing "sideburns." He was called out by the freshmen, who tied his hands and feet with a rope and dragged him to a secluded part of the campus, where they attempted to shave off the offending whiskers. The first swing of the razor, instead of shearing "sideburns" cut off the upper part of Sanderson's left ear. The second swing gashed the pinioned man's cheek. At this stage the freshmen became frightened and released their victim. An investigation will be started at once and a number of expulsions are practically certain.

WOMAN TO LEAD MOB.

Led by Mrs. Raymond Robins, a social settlement worker and president of the Women's Trades Union League, Socialists and the radical element of Union Labor will march tomorrow under the auspices of the Moyer-Haywood Conference in an effort to create sympathy for the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners now on trial for the murder of Governor Steunenberg of Idaho. Meantime the police will not be idle. No red flags or banners reflecting on the government will be permitted.

REMEMBER COREY MINISTER.

A sensation spread throughout the Englewood church circles toay when that neighborhood awakened to the fact that Rev. John L. Clark, the New York minister that married William E. Corey and Mabelle Gilman, is the preacher who served a brief but spectacular pastorate in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, at Sixty-sixth street and Stewart avenue. Clark's actions are recalled as eccentric. After handing his resignation to the trustees he gave them an interview, in which he referred to them as "a lot of farmers," and said they "didn't know how to run a church anyhow."

WIN RACE AGAINST DEATH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LAPORTE (Ind.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The 5-year-old son of George Miller, a farmer, was chewing a corn kernel, when it slipped into his windpipe. The child was choking and purple in the face when the father and mother rushed him frantically into town. The doctor could not reach the kernal and advised a trip to Chicago to see a specialist with a view to an operation. The father was hatless and coatless, having rushed from the field where working, but a train was taken at once for Chicago, the child being scarcely alive. It was a race for life against death, and death lost it by ten minutes. The child was operated on and will live if it survives the operation.

POLITICS TIRES HIM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Amazing developments resulting from the recent contest for John C. Spooner's seat in the United States Senate are being reported from all parts of Wisconsin Lieut.-Gov. W. D. Connor, who is also State Chairman of the Republican party, is quoted as saying that he was sick and tired of politics and ready to quit. This is the most surprising announcement of the day.

FIND PREHISTORIC AX.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MARQUETTE (Mich.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A highly tempered copper ax was found in Presque today by Robert Hume, a naturalist It is undoubtedly a pre-historic manufacture. Files have been applied to the ax but fail to scar it.

CABBAGES BRING $10,000.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JACKSON (Miss.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A cabbage patch of forty acres was sold here today to a Chicago produce firm for $10,000. The vegetables have to be moved within ten days.

SPEAKER CANNON "SUGGESTS."

Gov. Hughes Is a Good Man If He Will Stand Pat on His Duty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ALBANY (N. Y.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "Uncle Joe" Cannon, Speaker of the House of Representatives, breezily swept across the political situation here last nigth and today and gave as his impression that Gov. Hughes was pursuing the policy which would keep the State of New York on the Republican side of the fence.

Mr. Cannon said: "There is a heavier weight of party responsibility on Mr. Hughes at the minute than on any other individual in the United States. He has attracted attention outside, where they regard him as a man who is attending the work in hand, and standing very pat on what he deems his duty. They say he is not seeking any other office or a re-election to the office he holds. The less he thinks of these things the better job he will do for the citizens of the State and the better he will serve his party in the end."

BAPTIZE ROYAL BABE WITH IMPERIAL POMP.

Surrounded By Spanish Court, Envoys from World Powers and Host of Grandees, Alfonso, Prince of Asturias Is Christened.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MADRID, May 18.—Alfonso, Prince of the Asturias, was baptized at noon today in the private chapel of the royal palace in the presence of the royal family, the State and court officials, the representatives of foreign powers and a host of grandees.

The Pope was represented by Cardinal Rinaldini, King Edward by Prince Arthur of Connaught, Emperor William by Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern, Emperor Francis Joseph by Archduke Eugene of Austria and King Charles of Portugal by the Duke of Oporto.

The officials began gathering before noon and at that hour the reception halls were filled, while outside were large and enthusiastic crowds.

The greatest watchfulness has been observed over the baby Prince since the hour of his birth. Special guards have been stationed outside the bedchamber for Spanish custom does not permit any possibility of a change being foisted on the nation.

The task of the watchers was not over till this morning, when the infant became the central figure of the brilliant scene. In the chapel seats were allotted according to precedence to the personages invited.

In the center was a hassock on which had been arranged the famous baptismal font of Santo Domingo de Guzman, brought for the event from the monastery of Santo Domingo. Before the high altar were two benches covered with gold embroidered tapestries for the sponsors, while another was placed behind the lecturne for the officiating cardinal.

In the Queen's ante-chamber were exposed on seven golden salvers the ewers of holy water, and other appurtenances of the sacred rite. In this ante-chamber when the guests had assembled, the King, accompanied by the members of the royal family, the representative of the Pope, the sponsors and the royal child entered the apartment. Then, with slow steps the brilliantly arrayed company began its march along the galleries. The way to the chapel was led by two mace bearers, followed by gentlemen of the Chamber and Chamberlains.

After them came two more mace bearers, two kings-at-arms, the grandees of Spain, two more kings-at-arms and seven more gentlemen of the Chamber, bearing the golden salvers with the holy water and other necessaries for the rite.

Immediately afterward followed the royal babe in its nurse's arms, accompanied by the mistress of the robes and escorted on the right by Cardinal Rinaldini and the other godfather, His Royal Highness, Don Carlos de Bourbon, and on the left by the godmother, Queen Maria Christina and His Majesty Alfonso XIII. Then came the Lord High Chamberlain and the other Lords Chamberlain, various functionaries, members of the royal family and the Queen's ladies in waiting.

Next came the representatives of foreign powers, most of the Ambassadors and Ministers to the court of Spain, including the American Minister, Mr. Collier, with their wives, accompanied by the introducer of Ambassadors, and followed by the Cabinet, all with their wives.

The great functionaries came next, the principal personages noted being the Marquis del Campo, president of the Supreme Court of Judiciature; Don Marciano Catalina Cobo, president of the Commercial Tribune; Lieut.-Gen. Don Camillo Polaejiav, president of the Supreme Counsel of the Army and Navy; the Queen's physicians, the Mayor of Madrid, with the deputation of Municipal Councillors, two canons of the Madrid diocese and the palace attendants, the rear being brought up by the musicians of the halberdiers, and a detachment of the same corps.

At the entrance of the royal chapel the King was greeted by the superior clergy and the choristers, who preceded the cortege up the aisle. When all had reached their allotted places the halberdiers faced the walls of the edifice, the mace bearers took up their positions at the doors and the four Kings-at-arms stood one at each angle of the hassock.

The ceremony of giving the names to the royal child was only of short duration. He was christened Alfonso Pio Christino Eduardo Francisco Guillermo Carlos Enrique Fernando Antonio.

Immediately after the rite had been performed the nurse took her seat with the baby surrounded by the mistresses of the robes and the sponsors and Cardinal Sancho officiated at a Te Deum of rejoicing in which the brilliant orchestra of the royal chapel assisted.

Then, the usual prayers over, the procession formed in the same order in which it had entered, passing again into the reception halls, where King Alfonso, surrounded by the members of the royal family and foreign princes, shook hands with most of those present. The newly-named child was in the meanwhile taken back to the apartments of Queen Victoria.

HEAVY SHOWER FALLS.

SACRAMENTO, May 18.—For three-quarters of an hour tonight it rained steadily, but it is believed the shower was local. It is not believed the cherry crop will suffer. Considerable hay is down, but if no more showers follow, it probably will not be damaged.

SIXTY THOUSAND LOCKED OUT.

BERLIN, May 18.—A lockout in the building trades began here this afternoon. About 60,000 men are directly affected and 40,000 are affected indirectly. It is the most serious labor difficulty in Germany since the great coal strike of 1905.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DES MOINES (Iowa) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That State conventions of women's clubs have degenerated into mere spectacular exhibitions of feminine wearing apparel, is the conviction of Mrs. W. P. Mitchell, president of the Des Moines Women's Club and one of the most prominent clubwomen of the State. Mrs. Mitchell returned from Oskaloosa today, where she had been attending the State Federation of Women's Clubs. In giving her impression of the week's work Mrs. Mitchell tonight said:

"The shirtwaist woman, the woman of plain dress, was in the minority, and the whole convention suggested nothing more than dress parade. Our State conventions are constantly growing dressier. Women cannot give the time and thought to dress which they did at Oskaloosa and give proper thought and attention to the business of the convention.

"It isn't any more appropriate for a woman to appear on the platform at a morning session of a federation convention in an elaborate evening gown than it is for a man to go parading the streets at the same hour of the day in an opera hat and evening suit. Yet that is just what happened at the convention.

"I couldn't help thinking about the poor husbands at home and their inward groans as they contemplate the bills that all this dressing must bring."

SEES STRANGE WORLD.

After Forty Years in Abbey Monk Visits Chicago and Is Much Confused.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Brother Andrew, a Trappist monk, from New Malleray Abbey of Iowa, today lived forty years in one day. Obtaining a leave of absence to attend the burial of his sister, he stepped out into the world for the first time in forty years. During that time he had not seen a newspaper.

It was like stepping into a new world and the noise and confusion and hurry badly puzzled the old man. Here are some of the things he saw today for the first time:

Elevated trains, automobiles, electric street cars, telephones, electric lights, skyscraper buildings, roller-lift bridges, modern steamships, sleeping cars lighted by electricity.

His advent into Chicago was marked by a tremendous bang and clatter, the screechings of locomotives and factories, constant roar of traffic and the hastening, unfeeling, unseeing throngs of people whose dress must have seemed ridiculous to the aged recluse.

Yelling newsboys startled him, but most of all the clatter of overhead trains wore upon his nerves. He could not comprehend the telephone or electric light.

Brother Andrew will be glad to get back behind the safe gray walls of the abbey as the noisy world outside wearies him sorely.

ACQUITS TOLSTOI'S SON.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 18.—Count Leo Leonovitch Tolstoi, son of the famous author, who was arrested in February last, charged with high treason for publishing his father's latest political pamphlet, has been acquitted. AS TO ALKALINE WATER.

Power Companies' Organ Shows Owens River to Be Ten Times Better Than Aqueduct Engineers Ever Represented.

Analysis of Owens River water, twelve miles above the lake, made by Prof. Lange and cited by the Evening News as proof that the water is strongly alkaline and unfit for drink:

Insoluble matter (mud)	0.0720	gr. per liter
Total soluble matter	0.470	gr. per liter
Sodium carbonate	0.242	gr. per liter
Sodium sulphate	0.077	gr. per liter
Sodium chloride	0.034	gr. per liter

Total 1.71 grains of soda salts to the gallon.

Analysis by Prof. Stabler of Black Rock Springs, suppressed by the Evening News because it showed unusual purity:

Sodium chloride	0.75 gr. per gallon
Sodium carbonate	2.75 gr. per gallon
Sodium sulphate	1.84 gr. per gallon
Calcium carbonate	1.05 gr. per gallon
Magnesium	0.40 gr. per gallon
Iron and alumina	0.25 gr. per gallon
Silica	0.41 gr. per gallon
Total mineral per gallon	7.45 grains

Analysis of Los Angeles River water in 1893:

Sodium carbonate	5.40 gr. per gallon
Sodium chloride	2.42 gr. per gallon
Sodium sulphate	2.11 gr. per gallon
Lime sulph. and carb.	12.21 gr. per gallon
Magnesium carb.	2.98 gr. per gallon
Iron and silica	1.17 gr. per gallon
Total mineral matter	27.32 gr. per gallon

Government analyses of Owens River water show an average of 18 grains of mineral salts, mostly alkaline, to the gallon.

The aqueduct engineers expect to deliver to Los Angeles from Owens Valley water containing about 16 grains of alkali to the gallon. Los Angeles is now using water containing from 30 to 52 grains of alkali to the gallon. The Evening News says Owens River contains less than two grains of alkali to the gallon and is "unfit for domestic use."

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT TO VISIT RIVER.

Will Sail on Mississippi With Waterways Committee.

Sixteen Governors Extend Him Invitation.

In Letter He Lauds Wealth of Great Basin.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The President is planning a three or four-day's trip next fall down the Mississippi River from some point in middle Illinois, or Iowa, to Memphis. It will, if made, be with the members of the Inland Waterways Committee, who, like the President, will be guests of the Lakes and Gulf Association.

The President will leave Oyster Bay for Canton to attend the dedication of the McKinley monument September 30, and the voyage down the Mississippi River will, if nothing prevents, follow.

Recently he received an invitation to make the trip, from a number of Governors.

The President has sent to each State executive the following letter:

"WASHINGTON, May 16.—My Dear Governor:

"I have received the invitations kindly sent to me through the Governors of Arkansas, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and Wisconsin, asking me to accompany the Inland Waterways Commission for a trip on the Mississippi, so that I may familiarize myself with certain features of the situation which the commission has been appointed to consider. I deeply appreciate these invitations.

"Let me say a special word of appreciation of the invitations which come from the Governors of Maine, Florida and Oregon, all of whom, although the States of which they are Governors are not on the Mississippi River, show their realization of the enormous importance of improving this great national highway because of the benefits that easy and cheap transportation thereon will mean to all the union.

"Others of the Governors who have written me dwell upon the fact that the people of the West feel a peculiar interest in the prospect of the improvement of other navigable rivers because they think that such improvements will help the solution of many problems attaching to railway transportation.

"The basin of the Mississippi, taken as a whole, from the Gulf to the Great Lakes, and from the Alleghenies to the Rockies, constitutes the greatest agricultural empire that men have ever cultivated, and an equally great system of water highways is needed to supply any inadequacy of land carriage for the products of this region.

PAYS HIM TRIBUTE.

LAUDS ADMIRAL'S SERVICES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, May 18.—A remarkable tribute to the present efficiency and past services of a naval officer was today paid by Secretary Metcalf to Rear Admiral George Albert Converse, when upon the occasion of his relinquishment of the position of Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, which he has held since March 20, 1903, he appointed the admiral President of the Board of Construction.

This is a place practically created for the admiral, although he has discharged its duties, in fact, for several years.

Secretary Metcalf stated that he was impelled to make this appointment because he regarded the admiral's services as almost indispensable to the navy, in view of his detailed knowledge of almost every branch of the service and his devotion to the development of the navy.

Secretary Metcalf stated that the President had addressed to the admiral a letter expressing his deep regret at the necessity of relieving him of the duties of Chief of the Bureau of Navigation and paying him high tribute for his work.

Rear Admiral Brownson, late in command of the Asiatic fleet, today succeeded Admiral Converse in his last position.

The Board of Navigation today also obtained its new assistant by the relief of Capt. W. P. Potter by Capt. C. J. Badger, lately Chief of Staff of Rear Admiral Brownson on the Asiatic station. Capt. Potter has made an excellent record as Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Navigation in recognition of which he will be given command of one of the finest vessels in the navy, the battleship Vermont.

UNARMED MEN FACE MURDER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EVANSVILLE (Ind. May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The striking streetcarmen and their sympathizers were in practical control of the streets here, today, notwithstanding the fact that many extra policemen were sworn in and more than double the usual number were patrolling.

Street cars were stoned and the motormen and conductors driven from them under the very shadow of the Police Station, and so violent were the attacks on the cars that many of them were literally broken to pieces.

Mayor Boehne failed to redeem his promise to put police officers on the cars, and an order to arrest strikebreakers if they were armed added to the daring of the strikers and their defiance of law.

The change was most pronounced in the factory districts where many laboring men make their homes. Boxes, cordwood, stones and bricks were piled in front of the cars, wires were cut, and when thus forced to stop, the luckless strike-breaker was at the mercy of the mob. Three or four were badly beaten and a dozen or more were injured by stones and bricks hurled from crowded sidewalks. John Reed, the man who broke the Chicago street-car strike, came this morning and with him were some forty strikebreakers.

Reed will take charge of the situation for the company and promises to have cars running regularly tomorrow. The company remains firm in its determination not to arbitrate, and under no circumstances reinstate the strikers.

LABOR BRIEFS.

Morrissey Is Re-elected.

ATLANTA (Ga.) May 18.—The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen re-elected P. H. Morrissey grand master, without opposition, today. Samuel Gompers addressed the convention. Other officers were also re-elected.

TELEGRAPHERS TALK STRIKE.

ACCUSE WESTERN UNION OF UNFAIR TREATMENT.

Chicago Union Operators Hold Indignation Meeting Because Increase in Wages Did Not Come as Soon as They Expected—Company Refuses to Treat With Jawsmiths.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Western Union telegraphers threaten to strike—just when may be decided at an indignation meeting to be held tomorrow afternoon in Arlington Hall.

They have many grievances, the principal one of which is that the Western Union, they charge, has not kept its promise, made voluntarily to the public in a statement issued February 13, that it had decided to increase salaries of operators 10 per cent. on March 1. Only a few hundred of the 2000 employed in this city received the increase.

S. J. Small, president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, came from Chicago and has been here ever since trying to straighten out the situation. Mr. Small, it is said, found all his efforts blocked by the company.

A committee was finally appointed to bring the matter to the attention of the president and general manager, R. C. Clowry, who declined to see the committee, referring it to T. A. McCammon, chief operator at the main office. Mr. McCammon's reply held out no hope of relief.

"SOUR GRAPES," BROWN SAYS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOLEDO (O.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chairman Walter F. Brown would not in any way discuss the possible political effect of Senator Foraker's latest challenge and refused absolutely to say whether this would be considered as ground for calling a State convention, at which Taft would be indorsed. Mr. Brown would only say:

"Some time ago I defined a 'boss' to be one active in politics who fails to do that which he is directed by the person applying the term. I have nothing to add to that definition."

Brown's attitude seemed to be one of ignoring Foraker entirely, although it is intimated that he will probably have something to say as soon as he can have a talk with other members of the committee and with other State leaders who have openly expressed themselves with Brown.

The indications are that while he is silent now he will eventually have considerable to say. Brown intimated that he would like to see what effect the challenge would have.

FORAKER SCORES BROWN.

SAYS HE IS RANK DICTATOR.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Senator Foraker today issued the following spirited rejoinder to the statement made public at Columbus, O., yesterday by Chairman Brown of the Republican State Central Committee, embodying his views and those of Gov. Harris and other State officials respecting Ohio's choice of a candidate for President:

"The State officers have a right to their preferences and to declare it when they like, but such declarations do not dispose of the necessity for a convention nor a change in my opinion that the voters should be given a chance to be heard before final action has been taken.

"If the Republicans of Ohio are all overwhelmingly, or even by a bare majority, in favor of Secretary Taft, his friends need not either fear the primaries, or be in a hurry about holding them.

"No one need suffer, certainly not wrongfully, if we proceed in order instead of trying to rush conclusions by unofficial announcements and declarations.

"So far as the control of the State organization is concerned, I have never made any claim to that. I have always supposed that organizations were mere party machinery and not the personal property of any one, not even the Chairman of the State Central Committee.

"As to the rest of Mr. Brown's statement, it is difficult to make polite answer. For rank dictatorial and offensive bossism, it far exceeds anything I can recall. It amounts to a threat that unless I declare for Mr. Taft I shall lose the Senatorship. That may be, but if so, the prospect has no terrors for me."

FIT THE GROCER

Wife Made the Suggestion.

A grocer has excelent opportunity to know the effects of special foods on his customers. A Cleveland grocer has a long list of customers that have been helped in health by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee.

He says, regarding his own experience: "Two years ago I had been drinking coffee and must say that I was almost wrecked in my nerves.

"Particularly in the morning I was so irritable and upset that I could hardly wait until the coffee was served, and then I had no appetitie for breakfast and did not feel like attending to my store duties.

"One day my wife suggested that inasmuch as I was selling so much Postum there must be some merit in it and suggested that we try it. I took home a package and she prepared it according to directions. The result was a very happy one. My nervousness gradually disappeared and today I am all right. I would advise every one affected in any way with nervousness or stomach troubles, to leave off coffee and use Postum Food Coffee." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville, in pkgs.

GROWS, AND GROWS, AND GROWS!

REMARKABLE lead in advertising volume of The Times over New York, Brooklyn, St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia and other big newspapers for April, 1907.

During the month of April the advertising printed by the leading newspapers of the country totaled as follows:

Los Angeles Times	4954 columns
New York Herald	3645 "
New York World	3574 "
Brooklyn Eagle	3179 "
St. Louis Post-Dispatch	3032 "
Chicago Tribune	3009 "
Philadelphia Inquirer	2711 "
Detroit News and Sunday News Tribune	2470 "
Kansas City Star	2327 "
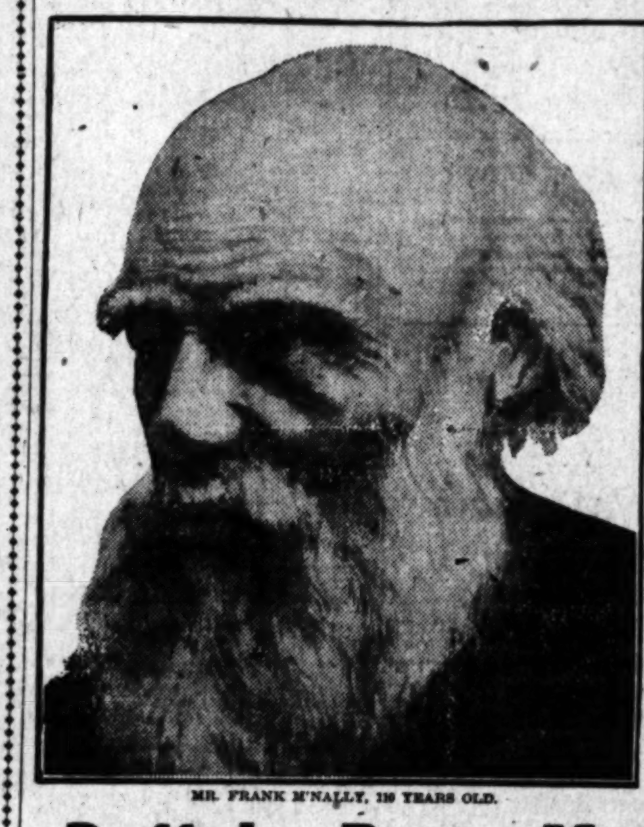
Baltimore American	2141 "

Marvelous, indeed, are the facts that the Los Angeles Times prints more paid advertising than any newspaper in the world; that it is a bigger paper, in point of size, than any New York, Brooklyn, St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia, or other metropolitan journal. These indisputable facts speak louder than mere words for the prosperity of the Southwest, the outlook for the future, and the energetic, up-to-date methods of the progressive business men of this section. It is food for earnest thought on the part of citizens who look beneath the surface, and the significance of it cannot but be appreciated by thinking persons living at a distance to whose attention it may be brought.

Oldest Man In America Praises Renewer of Youth



MR. FRANK M'NALLY, 110 YEARS OLD.

Mr. Frank McNally, of Clinton, Michigan, who is 110 years old, says that Duff's Pure Malt Whiskey has helped him right along and is the best tonic he has used in 80 years. Mr. McNally owes his long life and vigor to Duffy's Pure Malt whiskey, the Elixir of Life.

The records of the Roman Catholic Parish of Summerhill, Ireland, contain this entry: "Frank, son of Thomas and Jane McNally, baptized April 10th, 1797."

On March 7th, last, Mr. McNally wrote:

"There is no mistake about it, your Medicinal Malt Whiskey helped me right along, and has preserved my strength and vitality, and as long as I have the money to buy it I never will be without it. It is a Godsend to humanity, necessary to my well being, and the best Malt Whiskey I have tasted in the last 80 years."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is distilled wholly from malted grain by a most expensive method, which has never been made public. This private process insures quality and flavor. Its age, softness, palatability and freedom from those injurious substances found in other whiskies make it acceptable to the most sensitive stomach.

If you wish to keep young, strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions, and take no other medicine. It is dangerous to fill yourself with drugs; they poison the blood, while Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is recognized as a family medicine everywhere. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has stood many severe tests by skilled chemists during the past fifty years, and has alwas been found absolutely pure and to contain great medicinal properties.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer, or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00. Illustrated medical booklet and doctor's advice free. Sapo-Nol Tooth Brushes

35c In Antiseptic Cases

Here's a distinctly modern idea as applied to tooth brush buying. It is a thoroughly satisfactory tooth brush, put up in an individual, airtight, dust-proof, celluloid container. The case is not intended as a permanent container. We aim to have the tooth brush reach you without having been handled, and therefore in a thoroughly sanitary condition. The value is not in the case at all, but in the brush, which is high grade and warranted by The Owl Drug Company of California. See these Sapo-Nol Tooth Brushes. You'll find you never bought a tooth brush so good for 35c.

Sapo-Nol Tooth Powder

25c In Bottles or Tins

Here is a thoroughly antiseptic, satisfactory tooth powder—one of "The Owl" preparations—a powder that not only cleanses the teeth perfectly, but acts healthfully on the gums and membranes of the mouth. Comes in sprinkler top botles, or in cans with patent openers. The latter are very handy for the traveler.

STOCK BROKER TURNS BANDIT.

Cousin of Elihu Root Leads Forgers and Burglars.

He Is Captured in Retreat With Paraphernalia.

Beautiful Young Woman Is Member of Gang.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

CHICAGO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] William T. Root, 35 years old, said by the police to be a third cousin of Secretary Elihu Root, and a former well-known member of the Chicago Stock Exchange and Board of Trade, is a prisoner at the Sheffield-avenue police station, accused of being the leader of a band of forgers burglars and worthless-check passers.

Five persons, one known as "Jim the [illegible]," and another a beautiful young woman, are said to be members of the band whose operations, in the opinion of Capt. Kane, will amount to [illegible]. The woman in the case gave the name as Mrs. Glenn Root and posed as Root's wife. It is asserted she married William Bradley, her husband, in Marcellus, Mich., less than two years ago.

Root and his wife were captured in a house at No. 1531 Wrightwood avenue, where suits of clothes, cameras, phonographs, revolvers and forged checks valued at $1500 were recovered. [illegible] other alleged members of the band, who gave their names as James [illegible], John Colseth and Albert Carlson, 18, 17 and 19 years old, respectively, were arrested.

Root is the son of William Root, formerly rated as a millionaire and prominently connected with the United States secret service.

GAME STALKER TAKES POISON.

PREFERS DEATH TO PRISON.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

HELENA (Mont.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] State Game Warden [illegible] was notified today by Deputy [illegible] of Galatin county that he had placed Peter and Ulich Paul, brothers, under arrest for the alleged killing of elk out of season and that while en route to the county seat with them, Peter had committed suicide by swallowing strychnine rather than face a court of justice. Paul swallowed the poison while sleeping with the deputy at a country hotel.

The arrest of the brothers was effected in a sensational manner. They made threats that they would not be taken alive. The officers entered their cabin, while the brothers were absent, and upon their return disarmed them at the point of revolvers, just as they stepped inside the door.

The other brother is in jail.

JAIL DELIVERY IS STOPPED.

NITRO-GLYCERINE IS FOUND.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.)

CHICAGO, May 18.—A plot of prisoners confined in the county jail to blow a hole in the wall of the building, permitting the escape of many prisoners, which was scheduled to be carried out this afternoon, was frustrated by Jailer Whitman. The leader of the attempt was Charles Hansen, under sentence for life for the murder of [illegible] Fitzpatrick, a policeman. Several notes relating guardedly to the plot have been intercepted and today Hansen was brought into court and ordered immediately to the penitentiary at Joliet. He was not allowed to return to his cell. Finding he could not return to his cell, Hansen said to a guard: "Well, you'd better look out and be mighty careful. There's a lot of nitro-glycerine there."

The nitro-glycerine was found concealed in a fruit tin, a number of which had been delivered to Hansen.

"When I found you were going to take me to Joliet," said Hansen, "there was no use in leaving the stuff there where it might hurt some innocent persons."

PROSECUTION RESTS.

EYTINGE MOVED TO TEARS.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.)

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 18.—After another day of taking testimony in the Eytinge murder case, the prosecution rested at 8:30 o'clock this evening. The jury retired and Judge A. C. [illegible], for the defense, moved for an acquittal on the ground that the corpus delicti was not fully established. The body was identified, but no violent death was proven. In his argument he contended it might have been accident or suicide. He made a strong plea, moving the defendant to tears for a minute or so. The only notable demonstration of feeling he has made since his arrest. The motion was denied and the defense began taking testimony, first as to the health of John [illegible], the alleged victim. The prosecution had two expert physicians on the stand mainly to show the impossibility of a chemical analysis of the body and the probability of poison. An [illegible] for the defense was on the stand at 11 o'clock tonight when the court was adjourned to Monday.

HONORS HARVARD PROFESSOR.

BERLIN, May 18.—Emperor William conferred the Crown Order of the [illegible] Class on Dr. Francis Greenwood Peabody, professor of Christian [illegible] at Harvard University, who was selected by the University of Berlin as the first professor from Harvard in the international exchange of professors, which began in 1905.

CUBA'S TREASURER DIES.

HAVANA, May 18.—Gen. Carlos [illegible], Treasurer of Cuba, died today.

COLD STORAGE FOR VOICES.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

WASHINGTON, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A movement is on foot to install at the Congressional Library a department of phonographic records, containing the utterances of statesmen and other distinguished men from all parts of the world.

The idea started with the gift of a phonographic record of an address delivered by Kaiser Wilhelm. An attempt will be made to have the leading men of the country talk into the phonograph, and records thus made will be sent to the library.

No doubt the first record to be made will be by President Roosevelt.

TEXAS WANTS CAR REFUND

Asks Rebate on All Loads for Last Six Years.

Separates Demand from Rate Advance Claims.

Cattle Raisers' Association Prepares for Suit.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

FORT WORTH (Tex.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Texas Cattle Raisers' Association is preparing to file suit before the Interstate Commerce Commission against railways entering Chicago for the refund of $1 per car on every car of cattle shipped to that market since January 1, 1900.

General Manager Crowley is sending out the following circular letter to members: "You are entitled to have refunded to you $1 per car for all live stock shipped to Chicago since January 1, 1900, under the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Action is undertaken to collect for the members, who will furnish the secretary with the necessary data, and after deducting one-third for expenses and attorneys' fees, will pay you over the balance when collected.

"This is a separate matter from the claims for advances in rates."

TESTS SIXTEEN-HOUR LAW.

MONTANA SUES NORTHERN.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

HELENA (Mont.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The State of Montana today, through County Attorney Harvey at Livingston, instituted suit against the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, alleging a violation of the sixteen-hour law for trainmen. The complaint, prepared in the office of Atty.-Gen. Galen, alleges that Conductor M. E. Delavergne had been compelled to work twenty hours on May 10 in violation of the law, and that there was no such emergency as wrecks, snowslides or other of the saving clauses of the law.

The railroad notified the State Commission of its purpose to ignore the law, holding it to be unconstitutional because the national law does not become effective for a year, while the State enactment took effect in February. The State contends that the law is constitutional under its police rights. The case will doubtless go to the Supreme Court of the United States.

OUSTS SCHOOL FADDISTS.

Chicago's Mayor Redeems Public Instruction from Unionists and Long-haired Cranks.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

CHICAGO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At a hearing late last night, it is alleged that the school board was preparing to let all possible contracts and employ all the teachers it could. Mayor Busse called for the resignation of twelve members, sending notices to their homes at midnight by automobile to be certain of getting action upon them. Today two of the number resigned, two others said they would resign, but others will wait to be fired bodily, which will be their fate if they persist.

The antics of Chicago's "long-haired" school board, which crippled schools by fads, constant wrangling and practically turning the schools over to the domination of the labor unions, constituted one of the chief issues of the campaign and Mayor Busse is being warmly congratulated today by all friends of the public schools. His prompt action robs a defiant board of a quorum and it cannot tie his hands with a lot of contracts or undesirable teachers.

Two of the World's Best Suit Makers

Have Sent Us Some Wonderful Suit Values to Help Make One of the Season's Greatest Suit Sales for Women at $11.85

One of them has made up all the material he had left of the kind he generally puts in suits we sell at $16.50.

Another sends along his entire stock of suits that would be splendid values at $15.00.

Both came to the Broadway because of the alertness of Broadway buyers, the thorough, careful, energetic way in which they are always on the lookout for bargains, and their ability to pay cash.

Makers are eager to clear up their surplus quickly. The Broadway is eager to help them when their stocks are right and good, when their merchandise is as dependable and seasonable as these suits are.

From experience, we know how eager women will be when they learn that we put these suits on sale Monday morning for the first time at $11.85. Experience has taught hundreds the advantage of being on hand early when we announce an event as exceptionally unusual. We advise early buying Monday, for to complete certain lines and sizes, to add all the snap and ginger we possibly can to the event, we have added some fifty $15 and $16.50 suits from our own good regular stock, to sell at $11.85 Monday.

Suits of Panama cloth and mixed worsteds, dark and light effects, checks, plaids and stripes, plain brown, black, blue, and tan. Eton and tight fitting jacket models. There's a large assortment to select from. We will have them spread out in a specially big way so that you may select and buy easily. Sale starts at 8 o'clock Monday morning, second floor.

RUSSIA.

POLES BECOME HOME RULERS.

Deputies in Douma Adopt New Tactics.

Urge Kingdom With Diet of Its People.

Model Bill on Old Finnish Constitution.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

ST. PETERSBURG, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Home Rule party in the Douma, the Polish deputies, have fallen into their role without loss of time.

The Home Rule Bill borrows from the Finnish constitution of Poland under Alexander II. It reëstablishes the office of Viceroy and stipulates that he shall not be a military commander.

The boundaries of the kingdom remain as established in 1815 and it shall be an indissoluble part of the empire.

The government shall consist of a Diet of one chamber, a Senate as Supreme Court, and judicial administrative machinery to be created by the Diet. The highest administrative officer shall be the Viceroy appointed by the Emperor.

The Diet shall be elected by universal suffrage and shall impose all taxes within the kingdom except the customs and excises, and shall establish the annual budget of the kingdom. The Diet is to be convoked annually and its sessions may not be closed before the lapse of three months.

The Polish treasury is to take possession of and operate all imperial property within the kingdom except strategic railways.

The Polish deputies admit that the Emperor will not sign such a bill, and are doubtless prepared for a compromise.

TO SHAKE UP POLICE.

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) May 18.—There will be a complete reorganization of the Kansas City police department as a result of the investigation that is to be begun here, next Tuesday, by the Board of Police Commissioners. The shake-up will include several of those higher up. This statement was made late today by an official high in authority, and, coming on top of a two days' personal investigation of the situation by Gov. Folk, is taken to mean that sensational results may be expected to follow closely after the meeting of the board next week.

FOUNDS COLONY FOR FREE LOVE.

SPENDS HUNDRED THOUSAND ON CASTLE TEMPLE.

Wants Women Under Reign of "Spontaneous Love" to Mate Like Birds, Taking no Man for Better of for Worse and Expects to Overthrow Marriage.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

CHICAGO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Jacob Biehlhart, a small, thin, wiry man and founder of the strange Spirit Fruit Colony, is about to begin a war against an institution that is almost as old as the human race. He will aim a shaft at the institution of marriage in about a month from now which he avers will overturn that custom of the ages and make way for a new regime—the reign of "spontaneous love." Under his plan men and women will not be mated for life, but their mating will be like that of the birds. Every woman will be allowed to choose who shall be the father of her offspring. There will be no marriages and no divorces. No man will look upon any one woman as his "property."

No woman will live with one man for "better or worse."

The first gun is to be fired in the beautiful new castle on the shores of Lake Wooster, in Lake county, Sunday, June 16, when the public is invited to inspect the new home and listen to the apostle of "spontaneous love" as he makes his onslaught on marriage and points out what he considers the better way.

Chicago is to furnish a host of visitors and all the towns in northern Illinois will probably be represented. The Anthropological society of Chicago will be on hand, and even far-away India will have at least one representative there to see and listen.

The occasion will be the dedication of the castle which now after two years of hard labor, is nearing completion. By that time the cement structure which has been the object of so much curiosity to the people of Lake county will stand completed and its doors will be thrown wide open.

It was over three years ago that Bielhart left Lisbon, Ohio, where he had a like colony. The people of the little Ohio town were scandalized. They raised such a rumpus that he was forced to move. He came to Chicago and, looking about, decided to locate in Lake county, and he selected a site on the shores of Lake Wooster, and after purchasing the farm of some ninety acres started in to build the gray castle that now looms up among the trees. This house, which would have cost him at least $100,000 if he had hired it built, has cost only about $10,000 as it now stands, for it has been built by the members of the colony in every part and particular.

CUTS MAIL COMPENSATION.

CHICAGO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Recent action of the Burlington in cutting rates on transcontinental mail to meet competition in service and time of Rock Island, is having an important bearing on the question of mail competition generally.

It is said that the voluntary reduction made by the Burlington is being seriously considered by the Postmaster-General in determining whether the total compensation received by the railroads shall be reduced between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 annually.

This fact became apparent last Wednesday when a committee of prominent railroad men called on the Postmaster-General with a petition asking him to rescind the order requiring the total tonnage carried over the mail route for one week to be divided by seven instead of by six, in arriving at the average tonnage carried. Such division as the Postmaster-General is insisting on will reduce the mail compensation nearly 14 per cent.

STEAM BLAST SCALDS FOUR.

PITTSBURGH, May 18.—Locked in the steam room of the Washington Park natatorium last night, four men were badly scalded by a sudden pressure of steam. Three of the victims were visitors and the fourth was an attendant. The latter was so badly scalded that his recovery is doubtful. All were taken to a hospital.

WHEAT IN SKY, TRADERS SELL.

SPECULATORS HASTEN TO GET FROM UNDER MARKET.

Price Drops Four Cents from High Mark of Friday Close—Prominent Brokers Dispose of Their Lines to Clear Up Profits While Quotations Are Up.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

CHICAGO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] History repeated itself on 'change today when the wheat market, for the last week the prized possession of the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, declined sharply on the decision of shrewd traders to clear up their profits while prices were unhealthily high.

July option, closing amid pyrotechnics last night at $1.00 1-8, closed today at 96 1-4@96 3-8 cents, a drop of almost 4 cents, with Logan & Bryan, Bartlett, Frasier & Carrington, J. H. Wrenn & Co., and Pringle, Fitch & Rankin all selling out their lines.

They were still selling when the gong sounded, a procedure which tended to confirm the uneasy feeling that has grown on the board lately that the skyrocket advance was unhealthy and unwarranted by actual crop conditions.

This feeling has now become general among the conservative members of the board. Several of the veteran members comparing notes agreed that the advance of 25 cents a bushel in thirty days was due to the rush of an inexperienced public to buy wheat on a widely advertised advance.

This strong bear sentiment was further borne this morning by the grain elevator houses. They reported approximately 15,000,000 bushels of wheat on hand, most of which has been untouched since September—pretty strong evidence, it is said, that the millers are managing to buy it elsewhere at more reasonable prices than those current.

Chicago is trying in vain to sell her wheat at a figure now 14 cents above what it can be bought for at Liverpool with freight charges added.

SELECT WRIGHT'S SUCCESSOR.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—It was announced today at the State Department that Thomas J. O'Brien of Michigan, United States Minister to Copenhagen, will become Ambassador to Japan on the retirement of Ambassador Wright, who has given notice to the department that he wished to leave the service. A successor to O'Brien has not been selected.

CHEER KUROKI AT RACE TRACK.

BELMONT GIVES OLD SOLDIER MIGHTY OVATION.

When Band Plays His National Anthem Chieftain Springs Erect and Salutes, Giving Equal Honor When "Hail Columbia" Floats on Breeze. Staff Joins in Homage.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The greatest ovation ever given to a man on an American race track was accorded Gen. Baron Kuroki while the field was on the way to the post of the historic Withers at the Belmont track this afternoon.

Baron Kuroki, with his staff, occupied a box in the grand stand and as the horses were going to the post the track band assembled on the lawn and began to play the Japanese national air.

The old fighter was at once all aglow. Springing to his feet he doffed his silk hat, and, surrounded by his staff, stood at attention until the last strains had floated away over the surrounding hills.

Then with an expansive smile that took in the thousands that were gazing up at him, he sank back into his seat.

It was only for a moment, however, as the band at once struck up "Hail Columbia." Gen. Kuroki was on his feet in a moment and while the grand old tune swelled forth, he stood in reverent attitude. As the last notes died away he lifted his silk hat high in the air and his action was followed by a cheer as seldom has been heard on any American race track.

WITH SMILES GOES BEYOND.

Life of Hon E. H. Conger Peacefully Ended.

With Friends About Him He Obeys Summons.

Leaves an Estate Aggregating Half Million.

Victorious in a harmony of peaceful resignation and beautiful faith, with smiles and words of courage to assembled loved ones, and crowned with successes of a life served for his country, Hon. Edwin Hurd Conger, diplomat, statesman and philosopher, died yesterday.

The end came at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon at his beautiful residence on El Molino avenue in Pasadena, where he has been for so many months confined. Surrounding him were his faithful wife, his brother, Rev. Dr. E. L. Conger, and two nephews. In adjoining rooms other relatives and a few very intimate friends were assembled.

At intervals during the moments in which he slowly failed, the brave man spoke to those about him. The sentences were short. It seemed that he rested but that he might gain strength to murmur another message of loving cheer. Hearts were strong, but the voice that gave the first message of death over the telephone was broken with sobs. A little later and all Pasadena knew that the beloved man was dead. A hush fell upon the business center of the city.

At the home, that stillness which comes after the long struggle, that "peace which passeth all understanding," reigns. No effort has yet been made to arrange for the coming of that host of friends who will wish to pause in silence and pay a last tribute to one beloved. It is only known that interment will take place in North Pasadena, where the tender arms of the mighty Sierras reach into the valley to gather the children of men to eternal slumber.

FIRST AMERICAN CONGER.

The first American John Conger settled in Woodbridge, N. J., in 1667. He came with letters patent signed by the King of England to 170 acres of rich New Jersey farming land. That curious document is a treasure in the Conger Pasadena home. John Conger primus also laid the fortunes of the forceful American Congers by becoming one of the soldiers of the commonwealth. The diplomatist was the sixth in descent from the Woodbridge pioneer. In that generation the Congers moved West and Edwin Hurd Conger was born on a farm near Galesburg, Ill., on March 7, 1842. He was the son of Lorentus E. Conger and Mary Hurd Conger. His mother was a Vermont girl who moved to Illinois shortly before she was married. The future diplomatist's ancestors had been native Americans for at lease five generations before he was born.

Edwin Conger made his mark in youth as a student. At 19, when less precocious youths were wondering whether or not to go to college or about getting maried, he was graduated from Lombard College, Galesburg. The A.B. degree he got at that time was increased later by an M.A. degree from the same institution. Late in life Mr. Conger was honored by an LL.D. degree from his alma mater and from Tuft's College, a theological institution near Boston.

He had twelve brothers and sisters, all but one of whom grew to maturity. Two Conger boys became Union soldiers, one perishing in the great conflict, and the other, Edwin, becoming a major at its end. Early in 1861, shortly after graduation, he enlisted as a private in Co. I, One Hundred and Second Illinois Volunteers, the regiment commanded by Benjamin Harrison. He rose through successive ranks rapidly and a year before the end of the conflict he was brevetted a major by the President of the United States for daring action. He fought under Rosecrans and Thomas from Louisville through Chattanooga, then joined Sherman and marched through Georgia to the sea. He fought with Sherman through the Carolinas toward the coalition with Grant and ended his three years of service in the grand review before Lincoln in 1865.

QUICKLY TAKES UP BUSINESS.

Maj. Conger set about the business of life one week after he left the army. By May, 1866, he had been graduated from the law school at Albany, N. Y., and in the following month he married Miss Sarah Pike, who remained by his side practically every day thereafter until his death. Of their two children the elder, Lorentus, died in childhood. Miss Laura Conger became the wife of F. E. Buchan, lieutenant, U.S.A., now judge-advocate in the Philippines.

The young attorney moved to Galesburg, Ill., and practiced law there for two years. Even Galesburg, then by no means a small city, did not offer the freedom the young man thought his talents deserved, and he emigrated to Dexter, Iowa. In that middle western community his rise was rapid. The first diminutive office he got was the post of County Supervisor. Three years later he became Treasurer of the State of Iowa and in 1884 he was elected a member of Congress. The shrewd, forceful, yet open-minded member from Iowa, whose character was the most evident thing about him, was known first in the House as the spokesman for the Iowa agricultural interests. He also fought for more pensions for what was then an army of needy soldiers.

Later he asserted his mettle in the leading issue of the day—the money issue. President Benjamin Harrison selected him as the sound-money champion in the House and when the free silverites swept the Senate off its feet, Representative Conger, who was then chairman of the House Committee on Weights, Coinage and Measures, opposed and successfully withstood the issue in the House of Representatives.

MINISTER TO BRAZIL.

After his brilliant campaign against free silver Maj. Conger became a marked man. He was appointed Minister to Brazil in 1890, under the Secretaryship of State of James G. Blaine. The Iowa Congressman, whose training hitherto had been solely that of the American interior politician, made so excellent an envoy to South America that during his residence in Brazil his first diplomatic post, he secured a treaty of reciprocity between the United States and the major South American republic. Mr. Conger stayed in Rio de Janeiro until 1897, when Peking became the chief theater of the international drama and President McKinley, who had been the Iowa diplomatist's colleague in Congress, appointed him Minister to China.

Minister Conger's name became identified with the great events in China in the late nineties. It is doubtless not too much to say that he became the best-known American diplomat. During the Boxer rebellion and the siege of Peking his courage and his judgment never wavered. He was the head of the vastly important diplomatic commission which accomplished the treaty of peace with China at Shanghai on October 8, 1903. That instrument did much to establish the foreign attitude toward the United States which made possible the American chaperonage of the Portsmouth treaty which ended the Russo-Japanese War. He was the disciple of John Hay in his work in the Orient. When he left China he received the highest honors which had ever been given by the hoary old monarchy to a departing diplomat.

Minister Conger became Ambassador Conger when he went to the City of Mexico as American envoy in June, 1905. After his long and trying service in China, the diplomat felt his health giving way, however, and less than a year after he was sent to Mexico he had to resign. President Roosevelt's letter accepting the resignation is perhaps the best guage of his ability and services that his family possesses.

THE LAST YEARS.

Most Pasadenans know the history of the last few years of the life of their fellow townsman. After returning from Mexico the ambassador visited friends in Iowa. He had left Dexter as a "country Congressman" and returned with the highest honors his own country or foreign nations could bestow. He wished to end his life where he had lived during his aspiring and valiant youth, but the disease which ended his life was developing and he announced his intention of passing the remainder of his life where nature is kindest. Before taking up his residence in Pasadena, the ambassador submitted to an operation in the Presidio Hospital in San Francisco for the advances of amoebic dysentery now alarmed him. The result was disappointing, and in response to pleas from his wife, who had been a Christian Scientist for years, he put himself under the care of Christian Science healers. They did not stop the advance of death, although Ambassador Conger followed their advice consistently for some time. Since October 20, 1906, he had been under the care of Dr. J. J. Bleeker, Dr. Henry Sherry and other experts. Except for his excursion into Christian Science, Mr. Conger has been all his life a professing Universalist. He was an active and watchful friend to the missionaries in China and often fought their battles with the Chinese authorities.

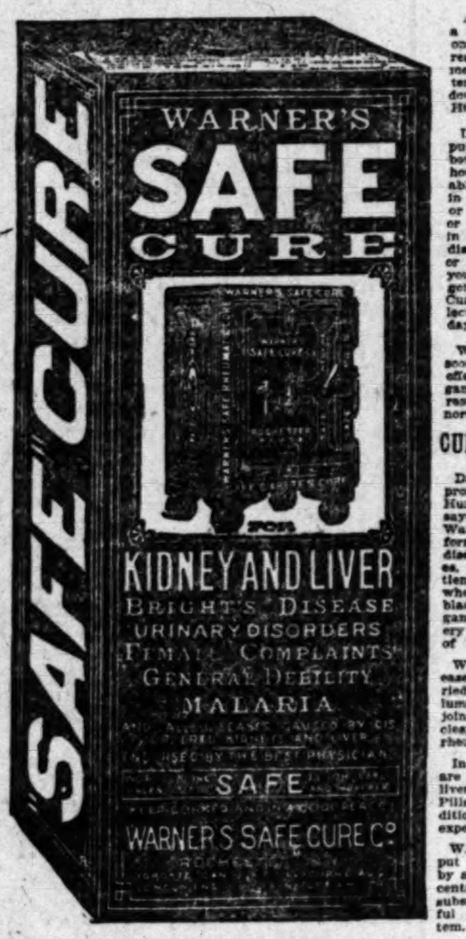
The dead Ambassador's fortune is large. He was president of the Occidental Life Insurance Company of Los Angeles when he died, and most of his other investments he withdrew to the West when he removed to California. His estate will aggregate about $500,000.

The brothers and sisters who survive are: Rev. Dr. E. L. Conger, pastor emeritus of the Universalist Church, who has resided in Pasadena for twenty years, and whose home is on South Orange Grove avenue; Frank Conger of Benton Harbor, Mich.; Mrs. Alta Baldwin, for many years connected with the botanical department of the Agricultural Department, but now in the Treasury Department, Washington; Mary, wife of Lieut.-Col. E. A. Edwards, retired, of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, and who is now military instructor of the Agricultural College of New Mexico, and John Conger, who resides in the City of Mexico.

An Adjustable Building.

The St. Paul Auditorium, which has just been opened, is an elastic sort of affair. According to The Bellman, the local architects have invented mechanical appliances, by means of which a row of boxes and a balcony will swing toward the center and walls will drop from out the ceiling, cutting off about half of the area of the building, and making a good-sized, well-proportioned, fan-shaped room, suitable for a concert room.

The balcony and boxes are swung back and the partition walls climb to the ceiling again when any big event, such as a hippodrome or a convention or grand opera calls for the full size of the auditorium.



HEALTH IN EVERY BOTTLE

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF MEN AND WOMEN IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD WHO WERE GIVEN UP TO DIE OF KIDNEY DISEASE HAVE FOUND HEALTH AND STRENGTH AND ARE LIVING WITNESSES TO THE TRULY MARVELOUS EFFECTS OF

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

At every stroke of the clock a human life goes out. Nearly one-half of all deaths are the result of kidney disease. Nine men and women out of every ten have kidney trouble. If in doubt, TRY THIS SIMPLE HOME TEST.

Upon arising in the morning put some urine in a glass or bottle. Let it stand for 24 hours, and if there is considerable white or reddish sediment in the bottom of the glass, or if the urine is cloudy or milky, or very pale in color, no doubt there is some disease of the Kidneys, Liver or Urinary Organs present, and you should lose no time, but get a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure, as it is dangerous to neglect your kidneys for a single day.

Warner's Safe Cure has a soothing, tonic, invigorating effect; heals the diseased organs, builds up the body and restores all the functions to a normal, healthy condition.

CURES KIDNEY DISEASE

Dr. C. F. P. Burchmore, a prominent physician of 878 Huntington ave., Boston, Mass., says: "I always prescribe Warner's Safe Cure for all forms of kidney and bladder diseases and female weaknesses, and I have yet to see a patient dissatisfied with the result where diseases of the kidneys, bladder or genito-urinary organs existed. Count on me every time as a strong advocate of Warner's Safe Cure."

When the kidneys are diseased the uric acid is not carried off and this causes gout, lumbago, rheumatism of the joints, rheumatism of the muscles, rheumatism of the heart, rheumatism everywhere.

In kidney disease the bowels are often constipated and the liver torpid. Warner's Safe Pills quickly relieve this condition and no ill after effect is experienced.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is put up in two sizes and is sold by all druggists, or direct, at 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. Refuse substitutes which contain harmful drugs and injure the system.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE To convince every sufferer from diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will absolutely cure, a trial bottle will be sent FREE OF CHARGE, postpaid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in The Times. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed. If you will write us a full statement of your case, our doctor will send you free advice and a valuable medical booklet describing causes, symptoms, and treatment of all diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, and many convincing testimonials. All communications strictly confidential.

A PRETTY MATRON OWES HEALTH TO PE-RU-NA.

MRS. ANNA N. KAISER.

Had Suffered Severely From Pelvic Catarrh—Cannot Praise Peruna Too Highly—Read Her Letter.

MRS. ANNA N. KAISER, Two Rivers, Wis., was a sufferer from internal catarrh to such an extent that she could scarcely do her own work. In describing her symptoms, she wrote:

"I have such terrible backaches and pains below my shoulder blades, way down my back and across my hips, and at times pains in the internal organs, so that I am not able to lie down or sleep. I also have pains through my left side."

After taking Peruna and following Dr. Hartman's instructions for several weeks, Mrs. Kaiser reported as follows:

"I feel much stronger and do not get nervous as I used to. The pain is entirely gone, except when I work a little too hard. I am taking Peruna and Manalin. My bowels are also in good condition."

Reports Her Cure.

After continuing the treatment a short time longer, Mrs. Kaiser reports her cure as follows:

"I am well now and cured with your medicine. The medicine is something wonderful. I have advised others who are suffering as I did to consult you and many are taking my advice. If ever I need medicine again, I know that Peruna will help me."

SECOND WEEK---Great Thirty-Second Anniversary Sale

500 Sample Suits From San Francisco Agents Sacrificed by Them at 50c on the Dollar

On Account of the Great Street Car Strike

Over a dozen agents of NEW YORK MANUFACTURERS have large show rooms and lofts in San Francisco, some carry stocks of READY-TO-WEAR GARMENTS, but most have three or four sample lines of COATS, SUITS, WAISTS and SKIRTS. Every man jack of them left the unfortunate City of the North last week, unable to get a single order from merchants who were their daily customers.

Los Angeles Merchants are Always Ready

We bought from three agents their entire lot of samples, including SILK, LINEN and WOOL SUITS, amounting to nearly $7000. Adding them to our immense stock of SPECIAL PURCHASES, we offer the greatest assortment of the season tomorrow at $15.00, $20.00, $25.00 and $35.00

Another New Anniversary Feature Our Great Mid-Season Millinery Sale

To make this the most talked about millinery sale ever held in Los Angeles, we're going to sell millinery at prices lower than the average millinery store pays for same goods.

Mind you, these are not old or otherwise undesirable merchandise, but only the choicest, most wanted kinds.

Swell Trimmed Hats Just Out of New York

Untrimmed shapes, the most popular and wanted kinds of the season. You'll not find them elsewhere, either.

Millinery Flowers—We've sold more flowers this season than any two stores in Los Angeles. We're even going to beat this record during this sale.

$6.50 and $9 Trimmed Hats $3.95

And they're worth $6.50 to $9.00 too, but a backward spring season in the East caused the manufacturer to close 500 of them out to us at a ridiculous figure; we pass them on to you during our Mid-Season sale at $3.95.

$10.00 and $12.00 Dainty Hats $4.95

At $4.95 chic and dainty hats trimmed with the best quality flowers and ribbons; sold in the regular way from $10.00 to $12.00, Mid-Season sale $4.95.

$15.00 Trimmed Millinery $6.95

At $6.95 here's a splendid assortment of higher grade trimmed millinery; not a single wanted style missing; you'll find values as high as $15.00 in the lot, Mid-Season sale price $6.95.

$2.25 to $4.00 Hats $1.65

$1.65 for ready-to-wear hats that are usually sold for $2.25 to $4.00. Mid-Season sale price $1.65.

$2 to $3.50 Untrimmed Shapes $1.09

100 dozen untrimmed shapes in burnt straws and fancy chips; usually sold from $2.00 to $3.50, Mid-Season sale price $1.09.

$2.00 Leghorn Hats $1.25

50 dozen burnt leghorn hats; regular $2.00 values (and they're scarce at that), Mid-Season sale price $1.25.

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

NO NITRO, BUT JUST A SLEDGE.

PASADENA POSTOFFICE SAFE IS FORCED BY HARD BLOWS.

Citizens, Aroused by the Boldness of the Robbery, Propose to Demand Better Police Protection—Thirteen Thousand Dollars in Stamps Taken. City's Only Rowboat Stolen.

Office of The Times, No. 26 S. Raymond ave.

PASADENA, May 18.—Yeggmen stole a horse and buggy, broke into a blacksmith shop and robbed it of tools, sledged access to a safe in the postoffice standing within ten feet of the sidewalk, rifled it of $13,000 in stamps and successfully made their "get-away."

All this happened in the center of Pasadena some time Friday night. The city slept and no one was the wiser until a frightened young woman cried the following morning "We have been robbed!"

Pasadena is aroused. Her citizens yesterday openly avowed their intention to demand better police protection. Mayor Earley was stormed with appeals to raise the salary of the Chief of Police and place W. Wray Freeman at the head of a reorganized department.

The boldness of the robbery of the postoffice created perhaps the biggest sensation of the kind in the annals of Pasadena. The act came as a last straw and a wail of dissatisfaction marked the day. As a result it may be said that Mayor Earley and the police commissioners will in all probability make the suggested raise in salary and offer the position to the former Chief. Also that Freeman will undoubtedly accede to the almost unanimous call and accept the office.

CHRONOLOGY OF CRIME.

It is believed that at least two and possibly three men committed the robbery—two working within while one stood guard without. Entrance was effected from the lobby of the postoffice, which is always open, a knife easily forcing back the latch of the door. An eight-pound sledge fell four times upon the disc of the safe combination. It was removed and the tumbler pin was then driven back sufficiently to allow the tumblers to fall. The report that nitro-glycerine was used is not born out by the evidence.

The big door was easily swung back and a recently-arrived consignment of stamps totaling $12,000 was removed from an exposed compartment. Only the stamps that were in original packages were touched. Loose stamps were scattered about the floor. Attempts to force the door of the money compartment failed. Within was $1500. A number of private papers and documents belonging to Postmaster J. W. Wood, a gold watch and $7.80 in change were taken. The robbers then shut the door of the safe, reset the combination disc, using soft soap to hold it in place, placed their tools behind the safe, tidied up the floor a bit and left as they had come.

During the night a watchman of Freeman's detective bureau registered five visits at the postoffice. At all of his rounds he found everything secure. This protecting is paid for out of Postmaster Wood's own pocket, all efforts of the postmaster to get protection by government appropriation having been "turned down." Shortly after 2 o'clock Private Watchman "Tex" of the Hotel Green in passing the postoffice noticed that the blind was up at the big window fronting the position of the safe. He thought that it had been accidentally left up when the clerks went home. The electric light was burning within, but he heard no noise.

The stolen horse and vehicle was later found in Los Angeles on Hewitt street prior to 3 o'clock in the morning.

Col. J. H. C. Wilson and Frank Steward, postoffice inspectors; secret-service men; private detectives and the local police force are diligently working on the case, but as yet no "hot trail" has been found.

PASADENA BOATLESS.

Pasadena's only rowboat has been stolen. It used to float on the placid waters of reservoir No. 3 of the Pasadena Land and Water Company and was used in the cleaning of the water's surface. The reservoir is located on Sunset avenue. Loss of the craft was first discovered yesterday and the mystery presents a unique quest for the officers that have been detailed on the case. How was the boat taken and where was it taken to, from its point thirty miles from the sea? The shores of Southern California are to be searched, as the boat was trim built and valuable.

OPERAHOUSE PROPOSED.

B. O. Kendall is negotiating a deal for the erection of an operahouse on the site of the Hotel Anderson on North Raymond avenue. There have been several rumors of the much-desired operahouse, but all of them have failed because a favorable location could not be found.

NEW G.A.R. POST.

Veterans Organize in Santa Monica and Arrange Plans for Memorial Day.

SANTA MONICA, May 18.—Stephenson Jackson Post, G.A.R., was organized here this afternoon with a charter membership of thirteen, and the first business transacted after officers were elected was to set on foot preparations for the observance of Memorial Day. The programme will be given at the North Beach Auditorium, after which the soldiers' graves in Woodlawn Cemetery will be decorated. Officers of the new post are: M. Dollard, commander; A. N. Archer, senior vice-commander; and J. Johnson, junior vice-commander

SANTA MONICA NOTES.

Once more the local officers are on the trail of the dog-poisoner. Several pure-bred animals have fallen victim to the fiendish work during the past few days, but as yet there is no clew the the identification of the perpetrator of the crime.

The residents of Irwin Heights have completed the organization of a neighborhood development society by the election of the following corps of officers: W. F. Parrish, president; Jacob Wood, secretary; Mrs. F. W. Richard, treasurer. The purpose of the new body is to do any and all things that may mean the promotion and development of the heights.

The first baseball game of the new amateur league series is to be played here tomorrow afternoon. It will be between the Santa Monicas and the Dolgeville nines, and will be played in the Southern Pacific Park.

The local Baptist congregation is considering the matter of calling Rev. Carl Green from Los Angeles to fill the beach pulpit.

START HONEYMOON IN GONDOLA.

Novel Beginning of the Wedding Journey of Couple Married at Venice.

VENICE, May 18.—Beginning their wedding journey in a snow-white gondola, accompanied by three dozen of the wedding guests, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Plant this afternoon started for their home in Oakland.

The ceremony which united Francis Plant to Miss Florence Pope had been performed an hour before, at the home of Miss Frances Sterritt, on Rialto canal.

The groom is a civil engineer whose home is in Oakland, and the bride had been an art student under Miss Sterritt. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Sibley, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Long Beach. Carolina, the 5-year-old sister of the groom, carried the wedding ring, which was hidden in a magnolia bud. The wedding march was played by an Italian orchestra of stringed instruments.

The bride was attended by five flower girls and marched to one end of the room, which had been prepared as an altar, where the groom met her. After the ceremony the nuptial party proceeded to the dining-room, where a wedding feast was in waiting.

AFTER "PLAIN JUSTICE."

The Venice Chamber of Commerce has called a mass meeting for Monday night and has sent circular letters to residents and taxpayers, calling attention to the necessity of at once correcting sewer abuses. This organization announces that it has learned from the engineer in charge of the septic tank of Ocean Park that Santa Monica's sewage is being pumped into the tank at an expense of $4800 per year to the city of Ocean Park, while the crude sewage of the greater part of Ocean Park is diverted directly into the sea. Every citizen is called upon to contribute to a fund to secure what is termed "plain justice."

CANAL CITY RIPPLES.

There will be a Sunday innovation at Venice at 11 o'clock tomorrow, when religious services will be held in the European section of the Exposition building. Miss Mabel Biggart of New York City will deliver a sermon, taking for her subject, "I Know Where You Live."

The 125 employés of the recent "Made in California" Exposition are coming to Venice for an all-day outing, Sunday. They will pass the day on the Strand, enjoying life as suits their fancy.

The corner stone of the new bath-house on the beach has been laid, and the concrete-mixing corps is busy with the foundations for the enormous plunge.

Fine auto roads to Coronado.

HOME MUCKY PLACE NOW.

Oiling of Roads Mars Pleasure of Visit at Veterans' Retreat at This Time.

SOLDIERS' HOME, May 18.—Owing to oiling of the boulevards and minor roads here, the Home is in what one of a group of visitors described "a state of oleaginous muck." The contractors are making a clean sweep from north to south of the park, and in taking in the latteral and cross-roads, have completely encircled the postoffice, dining-room, and several of the northernmost barracks, providing only a tiny streak of gravel here and there by which 1400 or more perplexed veterans string along in Indian file for their "three square meals" each day.

Visitors find their trip to this place anything but attractive. Autoists are advised, if not familiar with the various drives, to go slowly, else they are apt to run into a cul de sac which will require an inconveniently abrupt "right about."

C. W. Dickens of Sawtelle has secured the contract for painting the hospital, also the band stand. Memorial Hall is undergoing a coat of paint, for which W. E. Newman of Sawtelle is the contractor. Another improvement under consideration is the construction of a place where visitors to the cemetery may rest during a trip to that place. It will probably take the form of a pavilion.

PICKET SHOTS.

Harry C. Gallaher, late Co. B, Forty-sixth Illinois Infantry, is appointed sergeant of the firing squad, vice "Mike" Halpin, deceased. William T. Anthony, late Co. D, Second California Infantry, is appointed clerk in the quartermaster's department, vice Faulkener, resigned. Gerard B. Fagon is appointed lieutenant in the dining hall, vice Deakins, resigned.

The Memorial Day committee reports its preparatory work almost completed. Mrs. Mamie A. Brown of Los Angeles, president of the Uncle Sam Post, W.R.C., has been chosen marshal of the day to have direction of the 300 young ladies of Los Angeles and Sawtelle who will take part on that day. Owing to the march and exercises it has been decided to exclude children under fourteen years of age.

Col. H. L. Chamberlain, commandant of the State Veteran Home of Idaho, was a visitor to this home Thursday. He was, he said, charmed with the institution and its location.

Col. C. A. Wadsworth, assistant inspector-general, N.H.D.V.S., arrived yesterday on his semi-annual tour, and is already at work inspecting the various departments. Inspection of "rank and file" will take place on Sunset boulevard Monday at 2 o'clock p.m.

Rev. Wiley J. Phillips delivered an address in Memorial Hall on temperance Friday before the Veteran C.T.U. That the audience was not larger was due to the omission of notice of his coming.

Large numbers of Rebekahs and Dunkers were daily visitors to the Home for the past three or four days.

DEATHS.

Martin Freeman, late Co. B, Forty-eighth New York Infantry, a native of Ireland, admitted from Urea, Colo., in 1900, died May 14; aged 64.

Ezra T. Getzendanner, late Co. D, Fourth California Infantry, a native of Maryland, admitted from Los Angeles in 1906, died May 18; aged 87.

John A. Connors, late Co. B, Third Colorado Cavalry, a native of Canada, admitted from Los Angeles in 1904, died May 18; aged 80.

Edwin T. Munn, late Co. M, Ninth Iowa Cavalry, a native of Indiana, admitted from Florence in 1896, died in Los Angeles May 9 while on furlough; aged 84.

STROKE COMES AFTER BATH.

Los Angeles Man Victim of Apoplexy Following Dip in the Surf at Long Beach.

LONG BEACH, May 18.—For nearly two hours today physicians labored to save the life of Edward Redfern of No. 558 Fifty-second street, Los Angeles, who collapsed after coming in from the surf. Stimulants and the most heroic treatment were resorted to and Redfern was restored to life.

Redfern, who is a man of middle age, came down to the beach with friends to spend the day and after dinner donned a bathing suit and went into the plunge and afterward went out into the surf. He remained in the water half an hour, then came ashore and went to his dressing room. Five minutes later an attendant, passing, heard the sound of stentorious breathing and caught a glimpse through the partially open door of the prostrate form of Redfern.

Aid hastily summoned, the unconscious man was carried to the hospital room and another bather, a physician, finding that Redfern was suffering from an apoplectic stroke, tried means of restoration but while working the patient suddenly showed signs of collapse and for a while no heart action could be discerned. Treatment was continued unceasingly and after a while there was a flutter, which grew stronger until the danger was past. As soon as possible Mr. Redfern, in charge of a nurse and physician, was placed on a car and sent to his home in Los Angeles.

At a meeting of the school board today Prof. James D. Graham of Pasadena was formally elected supervising principal of the Long Beach school district at a salary of $3000. The appointment of the High School principal was deferred another week. The board appointed the following additional teachers: High School-commercial, Effie Stevenson; Latin and Greek, Jessie Ray, Pasadena; English, Marion W. Segner, Pasadena; music, Nellie Thompson; manual training, Nellie Moon; grammar school principals, J. W. Gastrich, Bernett; J. R. Parker, Alamitos Heights; Lester Black, Pine avenue. Grade teachers, Georgia L. Garrison, Covina; Jennie V. Bowman, Whittier; Ethel Bishou, Alhambra; Etha Dawley, Louise C. Mills, Alma Macy, Fanny Van Fossen, Maud V. Moon, Florence Sands and Ruth M. Clewett, Long Beach.

Prof. Graham, the new supervising principal, has been connected with the Pasadena schools for twelve years, ten of which have been as supervising principal and superintendent. He is 48 years of age and a native of Peterboro, Ont., graduating from Toronto University with B.A. and A.M. degrees. He came to Southern California sixteen years ago.

SO SURPRISING.

Society circles received a startling surprise this morning when it became known that Mrs. Carrie Day and Myron Wells were married. The engagement was announced several months ago, but no date was set. Yesterday afternoon the expectant bride entertained her whist club without a suspicion. The wedding occurred at 7 o'clock last night at the home of the bride, Rev. Gooden officiating. The only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Slater and the two children of Mrs. Day. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wells went to Los Angeles and this morning left by auto for Redlands and Riverside for a week's trip. The bride is a member of Ebell and of the Friday Whist Club, while the groom is prominent in realty circles.

SEASHORE NOTES.

Walter B. Joy and Arthur E. Brown left this evening for Oroville to attend the grand lodge sessions of the Knights of Pythias. They go prepared with invitations from the City Trustees and Chamber of Commerce inviting the grand lodge to come to Long Beach in 1908. The delegates have with them 1000 buttons containing a picture of the bath-house inclosed in a triangle with the words "Long Beach, 1908," on the edge. They have been promised the support of practically all of the Southern California delegates.

The People's Bank and Bank of Commerce closed their doors at noon today and cash, books and everything used in connection with their business was removed in express wagons to the new offices of the First National Bank, with which the two have consolidated. Between $30,000 and $50,000 in cash was transferred through the streets like an ordinary load of merchandise.

The life savers employed by the bath-house company have protested against further use of the lifeboat, claiming it is leaky and too cumbersome for fast work and threaten to resign. The catamoran designed to take its place was not a success in the heavy surf.

Samuel Edson Avery, a visitor from South Haven, Mich., died last evening after several months' illness.

Mrs. Nancy M. Fraser died this morning at her home on West First street. Deceased was 36 years old and a native of Reading, Pa.

George H. Keller, aged 44, died this morning at his home on Lime avenue. A widow and one child are left.

Mrs. Clarinda Boyd, aged 79, died last night at her home on Orange avenue.

Two hundred children of the Florence school district enjoyed their annual picnic at the beach today. Several of the parents accompanied them. The children were under the watchful eyes of Misses Barber, Wright, Bollinger, Orchbald and Adlin, their teachers.

BURNED BY ALCOHOL FLAME.

Avalon Woman by Quick Action Saves Herself from Serious Results.

AVALON, May 18.—Mrs. Frank Rhinehart, wife of the wireless operator here, was the victim of an accident this morning which might have cost her her life, but as it is she has her right hand and arm up to the elbow bound up and swatched in witchhazel. Her gasoline stove had been "acting up," and she called in a stove doctor to attend to it. She "charges" her stove with wood alcohol, and to demonstrate how it acted she poured some of the fluid into a spoon and thence into the cup under the stove.

By some chance she had poured too much from the bottle and it ran down her arm and onto her dress-skirt. Just as the "creepy" fluid was spreading about her arm, the repair man struck a match, and in an instant Mrs. Rhinehart's arm was in flames, which were reaching up to her shoulder. Before she had time for thought, her skirt was also ablaze. She played the heroine by keeping a cool head, and dropped on a rug, which was hastily wrapped about her and the flames were extinguished. By reason of her quick action, the burns are only superficial.

ISLAND NOTES.

For two weeks a party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wales of Ely, Nev.; Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Brown of Avalon, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Gay and Miss S. G. Skidmore of Brooklyn, N. Y., and W. J. Torpie of Los Angeles has been camping at the Isthmus and enjoying the fishing. They went well supplied with everything needful, Mr. Brown having his own launch, and George Farnsworth and Capt. Fisher supplying two more. The fish caught were legion, among them being two gold button fish and four silver button ones, although each of the gentlemen of the party had taken all the degrees in the Light Tackle Club previously, with one exception. They returned to Avalon yesterday reporting an exceedingly pleasant time. The party was enlarged during the last three days of its stay by Thomas McD. Potter and Percy Neale.

S. R. Boswell and wife of Minneapolis registered at Hotel Metropole yesterday, where they will partake of its hospitality for a few days as they enjoy their honeymoon. Mr. Boswell is the junior member of a large paper manufacturing concern of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Boswell is a niece of E. H. Brewster of Alavon, until recently Miss Stillman.

H. L. Hobbs and wife of Denver, in company with Malone Joyce, were visitors to the island yesterday. Mr. Hobbs is cashier of the Colorado Midland Railway, and Mr. Joyce its general western agent at Los Angeles.

The Nestell group of new modern flats, cottages and tents are the finest on the island. Campus Virginia (fourteen tents grouped) is a dream. I have 100 apartments to select from, and can please you. J. Albert, Avalon.

RUSH FOR "LUCKY'S" HAY.

Arcadia Almost Depopulated of Men and Beasts to Gather the Forage Crop.

MONROVIA, May 18.—Work has been temporarily abandoned on the racing course at Arcadia and every horse and man available has been rushed by E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin into the hay fields. There is not even a riding horse at the Oakwood livery for guests. The warm weather caused a sudden ripening of the crop and it had to be harvested. Work also on the "Great White City" has been abandoned, some say on account of lack of funds, others that it is only temporary.

TAYLOR ASKS FIVE HUNDRED.

Prof. E. E. Taylor, late supervising principal of the schools of Monrovia, has made application in the courts for a writ of mandamus to compel the Board of Education of this city to reinstate him to the position he occupied in the schools and to pay that part of his salary for the year called for by his contract and which has not been paid. Mr. Taylor was deposed from the school by the Board of Education. He appealed to the County Superintendent, Mark Keppel, and, after a lengthy hearing, the action of the board was sustained by the Superintendent. Mr. Taylor avers that about $500 is due him as balance of his year's salary. The case will be heard next Friday.

GOOD STREETS—BIG MONEY.

One hundred and twelve thousand dollars has been expended on Monrovia streets since March, 1904. The city now has 12.61 miles of graded street and nine miles of oiled street, 7.8 miles of sidewalk, 4.75 miles of gutter and 15.5 miles of street curbing.

The concrete bridge spanning the San Gabriel River for the Pacific Electric road is about two-thirds completed. It is said that when this structure is entirely completed it will be the largest of its kind in the world, even excelling the Salt Lake bridge at Riverside.

Last evening the children of Arcadia were delightfully entertained by Miss Frances Wyatt at her home in Duarte.

Mrs. C. F. Moore entertained the teachers of the Orange-avenue school this morning.

SUITS OF LOVELACE.

Ocean Park Quill Wielder Accuses His Accuser of Libel and Latter Gives Bonds.

OCEAN PARK, May 18.—An echo of the recent city election and collapse of the Leroy hot air engine bubble was heard here today. Believing himself to have been held up to ridicule and derision by the Ocean Park Journal, A. B. Bynon today instituted proceedings against Charles E. Lovelace, the Journal's editor, on a charge of libel. Lovelace gave bonds for his appearance before Police Judge Jenness on May 25.

The suit is one of several threatened ones, and comes as an aftermath of the suit brought by Lovelace against Bynon and Leroy on a similar charge, they having accused him of attempting to collect blackmail from Leroy when the perpetual motion stock was in its palmy days.

Quick, Industrious Girls Wanted.

There is quite a scarcity of girls for local manufacturing concerns. Industries are increasing so rapidly in Los Angeles, it is difficult to keep up with the demand for goods. Many good positions can be had in most desirable places to work. The large firm of Bishop & Company, manufacturers of crackers, candy, preserves, are now in need of a number of girls for these departments. Girls are paid by the piece in most cases, and quick, industrious girls make better wages in a place like this than in many other places. Bishop & Company are located at Seventh and Alameda.

CURE FOR DRUNKENNESS

Orrine Treatment is to Be Used at Home Without Publicity, or Loss of Time From Business.

Thousands of persons who really want to quit the use of whisky or beer, realize that they cannot do so without medical help, yet they cannot afford to go to a sanatorium. Happily a new cure for drunkenness has been discovered which is to be taken at home and costs less than the average drinker will spend in a day for drink.

In using Orrine there is absolutely no publicity, as the remedy is sold by the leading druggists in nearly every city and town or it can be sent by mail. Sure relief is positive when Orrine is used. So uniformly successful is this treatment that in every box is a registered guarantee which entitles you to a refund of your money if Orrine fails to effect a cure.

Orrine is in two forms. No. 1, a secret remedy, absolutely tasteless and odorless, which can be given in food or drink without the patient's knowledge; No. 2 in pill form for those who wish to be cured. The price of either form is $1.00 a box. Send to the Orrine Co., Washington, D. C., for free booklet and consultation blank.

The desire for liquor is soon destroyed after Orrine treatment is commenced, and before long the patient is freed from the terrible drink craving, and the drink will not be missed.

Orrine is for sale by Owl Drug Co., 320 South Spring street and Fifth and Broadway.

ORANGES SET WELL.

POMONA, May 18.—The blossoming period of orange trees now being over, it is possible to form some estimate of the coming year's crop, which, from present indications, will be excellent here. The new fruit has set well in some orchards, being already as large as the end of a finger, and gives evidence that the crop generally will be much larger next season than the one now closing. The output from the large Richards' orange grove above North Pomona this season will be a little over 100 cars, or about half as large as last year.

The Pomona cannery is being put in readiness for a busy season's run and a new 100-horse-power boiler is being installed. The apricot crop is light this year, but the peach crop will be abundant and good prices will likely prevail. Work will be begun upon blackberries about the middle of June and about 100 tons of berries will be canned this season, if present plans mature.

President George A. Gates of Pomona College has gone to Stanford University, where he will deliver the baccalaureate sermon before the class tomorrow.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Conaty of Los Angeles will deliver a lecture here on Tuesday evening, at the Fraternal Aid Theater, under auspices of the Academy of the Holy Names. His subject will be "Religion in Education as Exemplified by Father Junipero Serra."

A. C. Braden, physical director at Pomona College, has been secured to take charge of the gymnasium work of the local Baraca Union.

Summer rates now on at Coronado.

ALHAMBRA WINS DEBATE.

ALHAMBRA, May 18.—Alhambra debaters representing the High School won in the debate held in the school here this evening with the representatives of the El Monte Union High School. The subject of debate was, "Resolved, that the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States be repealed." El Monte took the affirmative side and Alhambra the negative. Albert Cogswell and Frank Robinson spoke for the affirmative and Warren Schnoonover and Cyrus Weeks for the negative. The judges were Tully Knolls of U.S.C., A. L. Hamilton and C. S. Compton of Pasadena.

ALHAMBRA PASTOR RESIGNS.

ALHAMBRA, May 18.—Rev. George H. Merrill, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Alhambra, has tendered his resignation, to take effect September 1. He has not announced what his plans are for the future.

The result of the school census shows 676 children of school age in the district, an increase of over 100.

WIRELESS WONDERS YET.

LIGHT, HEAT, POWER AND OTHER THINGS TO COME.

Etheric Waves Can Be Utilized for Lighting Purposes or for Fusing Metals—Experiments Made by Poulsen, the Danish Physicist, and Other Electrical Experts.

The experiments of R. B. Garland of Ansonia, Ct., like those of Tesla and Poulsen, suggest a wider application of the principle of wireless telegraphy than has yet been made. Etheric waves, not unlike those utilized by Marconi for messages, can be utilized also, it is shown, to operate incandescent lamps and that, too, at considerable distances. If lamps can thus be made to glow at places far removed from the source of etheric vibrations, why may not power be similarly transmitted? And if power and light, why not heat be sent without wire or other conductor? All that is needed, it seems, for this purpose is the generation at the starting point of vibrations of the ether of great frequency, and the presence at the receiving point of an apparatus contrived to take up the vibrations. Poulsen, the Danish physicist, recently in London showed how vibrations of enormous frequency readily light incandescent lamps brought within their reach, or fuse a copper ring. Persons in the lecture room where Poulsen made his demonstrations were unaware of the presence of the noiseless, invisible and continuous waves he was producing by his oscillating circuit, yet they were all the time being penetrated 1,000,000 times a second by his etheric waves. The lamps were more sensitive than the audience to the bombardment both were undergoing.

The experiment was suggestive. The sun is supposed to radiate not simply the etheric waves which we know as heat, light and actinic rays, but also rays comparable with the Marconi vibrations, or the more frequent Poulsen vibrations. These, reaching our atmosphere, produce, it is said, the aurora borealis and other phenomena. It is not improbable that many meteorological phenamena, unintelligible by any theory that takes only air, moisture and the sun's heat into account, will ultimately be shown to owe their origin to observe etheric impulses received from the god of day. Particles are shot out also, it is said, by the raidum of the sun, not to mention the fine dust, such as floats about comets and other heavenly bodies and is driven outward by the impact of the waves of sunlight. The postponement of the examination was made on account of the District Attorney not having appointed a lunacy commission to examine the patient. Sperry wanted the privilege of returning to his home until after the examination, but owing to the nature of his alleged mania, the court would not permit a departure from the strict letter of the law, although Sperry in other ways appears perfectly rational.

ODD MIXTURE OF PARADES.

A comical mix-up occurred here this morning in two parades. One was given by Mrs. Chamberlain, a musician. She had secured a number of vehicles, draped them in gaudy streamers, and filled them with little children, all togged out in the brightest colors. As this flaming procession moved along Third street, a "Wild West" parade, consisting of half a dozen musicians, tooting brass instruments, several horsemen leading alleged wild horses, and two alleged South American wild bulls, hove in sight. The joining of the two extremely opposite processions made a most comical sight, a fact which the Wild West manager appreciated and, seeming to fear that his "show" was losing by the contrast, he hustled his aggregation on to a side street, and let the beautiful procession of litttle children continue along the principal thoroughfare.

WOULD TURN LYTLE CREEK.

President A. G. Kendall of the Board of Water Commissioners and Superintendent Starke of the water system this morning left for Lytle Creek, to examine the bed of the stream, with a view of selecting a point at which to change the course of the stream, to avoid a belt of white rock. The rock gives a whiting color to the water, and although not injurious to health, is rather objectionable. For days the city has been operating its pumping plant at Antill to its full capacity. It is desired to remove the objection to the Lytle Creek water that the city may turn its part of that stream into the reservoir.

INSANE AND INDOLENT.

Carl Bahr, of Redlands was committed to the State Hospital at Patton this morning on complaint of his father, who charges him with being insane. This is the young man's second commitment to the institution. The father says the son shows insanity by remaining in bed asleep until noon each day, refusing to work, and eating at odd intervals. He recently made an assault upon his aged mother because she urged him to give up his indolent habits and seek employment. As a further evidence of insanity, the father testified that the young man would sit for hours in a brown study, and refuse to notice anything going on about him. He has also threatened to take his life.

ONTARIO.

ONTARIO, May 18.—R. C. Smith, an employé of the Pacific Electric Heating Company, received painful injuries this morning while working on the drill press at the company's shops. Something distracting his attention caused him to get his hand in between the sharp drill and the plate with the result that the sharp point entered the back of his hand, piercing through to the front. He was taken to the office of Dr. Sheppard, where the injury was dressed.

AUTO CAUSES RUNAWAY.

Loara Woman Injured as Result of Horse Being Frightened by Buzz Wagon.

SANTA ANA, May 18—An automobile abandoned beside the street yesterday evening started a runaway. Miss Doege and Mrs. F. Mickle of Loara were driving from Santa Ana to their home when their horse became frightened at E. M. Smiley's red machine left on the side of Hannah street. Miss Doege attempted to leap from the buggy and was thrown, one ankle being badly sprained. Mrs. Mickle held to the reins. The bridle broke and the bit fell from the frantic animal's mouth and he tore off toward Anaheim. He ran for several miles before he was caught by a rancher. Miss Doege was picked up by George Slocum and was taken to her home. The automobile had been left beside the road by E. M. Smiley's small son, who was a novice at manipulating the machine.

ORANGE COUNTY NOTES.

H. A. Czarske and his wife were arrested today, charged with running a "blind pig." The complaint was sworn to by Charles C. Williamson, who says he bought whisky there on May 12. The Czarskes pleaded not guilty before City Recorder Willson this afternoon and put up $400 cash bail. They declare that two men attempted to get $100 from them yesterday and when refused it, threatened to have them arrested.

W. A. Horton, a berry raiser of Buaro, west of the Santa Ana River, has raised strawberries measuring five and a half inches in circumference from vines four months and a half old. He brought in a number of berries today for exhibition.

Suit has been brought by Andres de Los Reyes against E. E. Beagley, asking that $500 damages be given because Beagley plowed up and fenced a road between his place and the place on which Los Reyes lives. Los Reyes says that he had used the road for sixteen years.

WESTMINSTER.

WESTMINSTER, May 18.—The song, "California," which is a recent production of Mrs. W. H. Burlingame, daughter of Justice McCoy, who has resided here since childhood, has attracted considerable attention. A Long Beach quartette sang it to the visiting Shriners and it was encored. The Royal Italian band also has taken up the music of the song and is playing to the delight of large audiences. The Hawaiian band of Venice also is rendering this piece of music.

Rich Feast in Redlands; Jail Cell Is Result.

With Male Companion Misses Have Great Spread.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN BERNARDINO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Laura and Minnie Huntington, Dottie Arthur and Catherine Sutherland occupy cells in the County Jail tonight, charged with grand larceny in having made off with a large amount of clothing belonging to Mrs. A. M. Potter, wife of the rector of the Episcopal Church at Redlands.

Miss Laura Huntington, the oldest, is 20 years of age. She was employed at the Potter residence to look out for the place during the absence of Rev. and Mrs. Potter in Los Angeles this week. Every trust was reposed in her.

Friday night she invited the other girls and an unknown man to the parsonage. They spread a rich feast, made free with the communion wine until they were tipsy, then they ransacked the parsonage and Laura Huntington forged Rev. Potter's name to a check for $20, which she easily cashed.

The Huntington girls were arrested tonight at Colton. Their two companions were taken into custody at their homes here. All have confessed. The Huntington girl's father made good the money obtained on the forged check. This crime will not be placed against them.

All come of highly respected families. Their parents and close friends are astonished at their criminal outbreak, all having been girls of good conduct heretofore.

INVITE BOND BIDS MONDAY.

SAN DIEGO OFFERS EIGHT HUNDRED THOUSAND.

Issue Draws Four and One-half Per Cent. Interest and Is Arranged on the Forty-Year Plan—Right of Banks to Accept Public Moneys Likely to Help the Premium.

SAN DIEGO, May 18.—Bids for the city bond issue of $800,000 will be opened at the office of the City Clerk Monday afternoon, when the award of sale may be made. The bonds are to bear interest at 4½ per cent., and are to run for forty years. They are being engraved by the Los Angeles Trust Company, one of whose representatives has said the company would bid on the entire issue, and that if successful in getting them it had a market for the issue.

Although the ordinance provides for an unconditional sale it is expected that the request for expert examination of the proceedings will be allowed. The sale will be the first since the new law went into effect giving the banks the right to accept moneys of the city and county treasuries, which fact, bankers say, will help in the size of the premium. The president of one of the banks estimates that the bonds will bring a premium of $30,000.

CHICAGO ARRIVES—TROPHY WON

The cruiser Chicago formerly flagship of the Pacific squadron, arrived this morning from the South and it is understood that she will remain here several weeks. She did not get a chance to come north last winter as she was turned back when on her way here by the wireless message to go to Central America, where trouble was brewing. Her crew is glad to see the Stars and Stripes on land once more. The Boston will sail this afternoon for Mare Island where she will go out of commission, her place being taken by the Albany.

The vessels of the Pacific fleet have won every trophy for every class except battleships for the whole navy. It became known yesterday that the Preble had beaten the world's record for torpedo and in striking moving targets. The Boston broke the world's record with her six-inch and eight-inch guns. The Charleston made fine records with a six-inch gun and several smaller guns. The naval trophy for best shooting of the cruiser class was won by Boston.

BAY CITY DRIFT.

In June the Russ High School will graduate a class of thirty-four. Adding fifteen graduated in September will make forty-nine graduates for the year. Prof. M. A. Stevens will deliver the commencement day address, while the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. Guild, pastor of the First M. E. Church.

The Southern California Editorial Association will be at Tent City June 28, 29, 30 and July 1. The Chamber of Commerce of this city will tender the editors a banquet the night of the 29th.

Maj. George Gatchell will succeed Col. Charles G. Woodward as commander of the military forces at Fort Rosecrans and the artillery district of San Diego. Col. Woodward has been ordered to Fort Terry, N. Y., for duty.

Mrs. C. Fred Henking, who has been prominent in social circles, died yesterday, aged 49. She leaves a widower and six daughters, Stella, Frances, Lucille, Ruth, Earle and Fredrica.

OCEANSIDE.

OCEANSIDE, May 18.—To C. J. Casterline of this town, formerly a toolmaker of Portland, Or., is credited the rediscovery of one of the lost arts of tempering steel. He is said to have subjected razors to a red heat, then dipped them in a mysterious liquid and ground them by holding them at right angles to an oil stone. The edge is reported to have bent so as to be ground exceedingly fine.

Mrs. David Rorick is entertaining her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tyrrell of Beaumont, Tex.

Miss C. Pruitt of Fallbrook has been entertained this week at the home of Mrs. Emma Belt.

Mrs. J. G. Slee has recently returned from an extended visit to friends and relatives in England.

N. J. Friend of San Jose is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Friend.

PROTEST OF MERCHANTS.

ANAHEIM, May 18.—The members of the Retail Merchants' Association will appear before the City Trustees and ask that body to take some action against outside business firms which are selling goods in this city without license. This association will also request the Trustees to increase the city licenses for street fakers from $5 to $50 per day. The matter of organizing a mutual fire insurance company is also being considered by the Merchants' Association. A committee has been appointed to arrange for a banquet for members and their friends to be given soon.

Members of Company E, N.G.C., are still under orders issued over a week ago to be ready to leave for San Francisco on short notice.

S. J. Entriken of Pierce, Ariz., was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sandilands the past week. Mr. Entriken was with Lieut. Peary on his last voyage in search of the North Pole, and was second in command of the expedition.

J. E. Raker and wife of Alturas are guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Spencer. Mr. Raker is judge of the Superior Court of Modoc county.

The Turners will give their first picnic of the season at Columbia Gardens Sunday, May 26.

See Coronado by automobile.

HUNGTONGTON BEACH.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 18.—The transfer of forty acres from J. C. McDowell of Bolsa to the Huntington Beach Company which took place recently, has brought encouragement to many residents here who are waiting for the railroad to be put through from this town to Santa Ana. It has been known for some time that McDowell was one of the most obstinate land owners with which the company had to come in contact in its efforts to secure a right of way, and it was expected by many that this rancher would hang on to his property until the last minute. With this obstruction removed from its path the Huntington Beach Company now has its right of way well in hand. It is expected that the laying of rails will begin within a short time.

Irish Church Bells.

It was about the time of St. Patrick, in the fifth century, that bells began to be adopted in the Christian church, though their use in other directions was long anterior to Christianity, as Mr. Layard records having found some in the palace of Nimroud. The first Christian bells, like Patrick's, weighed only a few ounces, and from that they gradually increased till the greatest weight was reached at Moscow with 198 tons of beautifully enriched work, a strange contrast to the humble "Clog-an-eadhachta Patraic," or "bell of Patrick's well," sometimes referred to as the bell of Armagh, with its diminutive dimensions of 6 inches high by 5 inches broad, 4 inches deep, made of thin sheets of hammered iron, bent into a four-sided form, fastened with rivets and brazed or bronzed. This bell is at once the most authentic and the oldest Irish relic of Christian metal work that has descended to us, writes W. J. Fennell in the Belfast Gazette, and is mentioned in the "Annals" under the date of 552.

"A SUIT A MINUTE"—that's the record. Slam 'em together—any old way just so long as the Stitches will hold—and the Thing we're working on looks something like a Suit—

—Our Boss doesn't care a rap whether a Sleeve or a Collar is put on properly, or the Foundation of the Coat's Shape—the Canvas and Haircloth—are put in as they should be.

Everything's wrong—from Cutting to Finishing.

The so-called "suit" might be made half presentable if it were taken apart and altogether Remade by Someone who knew how—

But that wouldn't do for a minute—No Siree—that would add to the Cost.

Instead—he gives the Thing to Old Dr. Goose—the Hot Flat Iron——And Old Dr. Goose presses here—stretches or shrinks there—and in a jiffy has as fine a looking suit as you would want to see—

That's all the Boss wants.

For he knows that all he'll have to do will be to tell Someone a Fairy Tale and that Someone may buy that Suit and think for a Week or so that it's a Dandy.

But soon the Lapels will Commence to Bulge—the Collar to Fall away from the back of the Neck—the Shoulders to lose their shape—and the whole Suit will go back to First Principles just as it was when we rushed it out.

PREHISTORIC ORNAMENTS.

UNIQUE COLLECTION OF RELICS OF THE INCAS.

Ancient Burial Places of the Powerful and Cultured Race Explored by Representatives of the Museum of Natural History of New York. Images of Sacred Animals Abound.

[New York Times:] One of the largest and most valuable collections of prehistoric gold and silver ornaments so far recovered from the soil of South America is now in New York. These magnificent treasures are the result of the Museum of Natural History's extended explorations among the ancient burial places of the powerful and cultured race of the Incas, whose empire or confederacy in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries occupied the table lands of Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador.

Curator Charles Mead of the Peruvian department has recently rearranged and installed these rich relics, showing strikingly the handicraft and the high degree of civilization possessed by this the most remarkable aboriginal race of the new world. They are displayed in a massive showcase at the entrance of the Peruvian hall.

WORSHIP OF THE DEAD.

The relics were wrested mainly from ancient burial sites and their presence is attributed to the elaborate worship of the dead, which prescribed that offerings should be placed in the graves of nearly all the objects associated with the deceased in daily life, such as choice personal ornaments of gold and silver, rich garments, pottery, etc. In some instances, however, these were deposited for sacrificial and votive purposes during religious ceremonials.

In order to use every foot of tillable soil the dead were consigned to unproductive and barren places. The graves of the coast were in desert sand stretches, while the people of the high uplands of the Andes used the sides of steep cliffs, but more especially stone towers, called chulpas. One of these mortuary structures was 25 feet high, 22 feet in circumference on the top and 27 feet at the base. The majority were round, though a few were square shaped.

IMPOSING MORTUARY STRUCTURES.

They were built of massive stone blocks and the Inca race possessed extraordinary skill in handling, polishing and joining the stones, as often no mortar was used. In these the bodies were interred with great pomp and ceremony, together with rich objects of gold, silver and elegant pottery.

The interiors of the chulpas varied in size and construction, some having a single vaulted chamber, others two. A few had niches. The entrance was gained through a small opening at the bottom hardly large enough to admit the body of a man. This was closed by a stone slab. One of the most peculiar of the funeral accompaniments was that of a false head, a square sort of cushion stitched on top of the mummy pack, which contained the wrapped body inside. To this a large mask was attached, made out of thin silver or gold.

ORNAMENTS FOR INDIAN BELLES.

The idea of this extra death mask was seemingly to give a human appearance, which they wished their dead to retain even in their buried abode. Most of the hammered gold ornaments for personal use were in the shape of animals, more or less conventionalized in some instances, such as a frog, crocodile, parrot's head, birds, etc. Two very handsome and very massive gold tweezers were found. These, it is thought, were used for pulling out the eyelashes and undesirable hair of the face and head of the Indian belles of that period. Immense ear ornaments in silver and gold were worn, an inch or more in diameter, and huge silver topos or poncho pins, twelve inches long, to fasten these shoulder garments. Probably some of the most striking and noteworthy relics found were a series of portrait-shaped gold and silver cups, a foot high, thought to have been used for ceremonial purposes.

IMAGES OF SACRED ANIMALS.

The most numerous of all the objects found in the burials were splendid images of the llama, the celebrated beast of burden and sacred animal of the Indian peoples of their day. It is portrayed on pottery vessels and was especially made into gold and silver figurines.

On the island of Titicaca, in the lake of that name, which was observed as a great place of pilgrimages where elaborate feasts and ceremonials, sacrifices, etc., were observed by the Incas, many of these gold and silver images were obtained. The lake, it is believed, would, if dredged, yield up many thousands of these and similar precious gold articles thrown in, it is alleged, both as a sacrifice and to prevent them from falling into the hands of Pizarro's band.

Yawning as Aid to Health.

Systematic yawning seems to have proved highly successful in Austria, as a method of vocal and health culture. Dr. Naegli advises deep yawning with arms outstretched, thus insuring complete change of air in the lungs, and at each treatment he has his patients make six to eight yawns, each being followed by swallowing. He regards the exercise, with deep breathing, as the best means of strengthening the respiratory organs and muscles, while it gives astonishing relief in catarrh of the throat. For singers a like practice causes the tonsils and uvula to retract and harden, and the clear passage gives the voice greater volume and improved quality.

Yesterday's Forecast and Report.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, May 18.—[Reported by A. B. Wollaber, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.99; at 5 p.m., 29.95. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 54 deg. and 68 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 82 per cent.; 5 p.m., 57 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northwest, velocity 1 mile; 5 p.m., west, velocity 9 miles. Maximum temperature 75 deg.; minimum, 53 deg. Barometer reduced to sea level.

Weather Conditions.—Cloudy weather is reported this morning on the North Pacific Coast and in the extreme South, and clear to partly cloudy in the central portion. No precipitation has occurred west of the Rocky Mountains, except in the extreme North, where light rain has fallen. A trough of low pressure extends from the Gulf of California northeastward to the Great Lakes, the center of the greatest depression being over Kansas and Oklahoma. This disturbance is giving cloudy weather throughout its extent, with light rain in Kansas, Nebraska and in the eastern portion of the lake region. Temperature changes over the entire country have been unimportant, but somewhat cooler weather is reported from North Dakota and the immediate vicinity. The conditions on the Pacific Coast indicate a continuation of the present fair weather in Los Angeles and vicinity for tonight and Sunday.

Forecasts.—Local forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—A storm of moderate energy has appeared off the Washington coast, moving rapidly eastward. It has caused cloudy weather southward to the California line and westward to the Rocky Mountains, and rain over Oregon, Washington and Northern Idaho. Fair weather prevails over the southern half of the Pacific Slope. Conditions are favorable for cloudy weather and probably showers over the northern part of California Sunday, and fair weather over the southern portion of the State. Forecast:

San Francisco and vicinity: Cloudy Sunday; probably showers; fresh southwest wind.

Sacramento Valley: Cloudy Sunday; probably showers; fresh south wind.

San Joaquin Valley: Cloudy Sunday; light south wind.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair Sunday; light west wind.

Arizona: Fair Sunday and Monday.

VALENCIAS OPEN AT FIRST RATE PRICES.

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—The orange market has been lower for the past three weeks, but there was some revival of interest shown at auctions and interior selling points on Friday, and dealers here are hoping that there will be no further depression. Inferior fruit and large sizes has been the combination that has brought about the week's condition. There have also been some very heavy offerings in the last three weeks, over 150 cars a week being sold in New York City during that period. Just now the arrivals are a great deal lighter, and this will account for the better prices of Friday.

Navels are fully ripe and do not carry any too well, even under ice. When they are taken from the ice, they begin to melt down immediately, and will not stand reshipment, restricting the consumption to points very close to large markets. Seedlings have gone way down in price lately, for although they carry a little better than the navel, they are running to large sizes, and the consumer looks hard at a five-cent piece before he lets it go for a big, coarse-looking orange. St. Michael's Sweets and Bloods are bringing very good prices, but these varieties have dropped some from former figures in sympathy with navels and seedlings.

Inquiries are coming in for the Valencia lates, and while it was predicted that the opening price would be low on account of the lateness in marketing the navel crop, prices opened at $3, which was the opening of last season. Growers state that Valencias are in better condition than last year, and as they have no rivals in the citrus line this should prove a very good year for this variety.

It is said that there are yet about fifteen hundred cars of navels left in the State, and if this is so, early June should see all of this fruit rolling to market. Of course, there will be scattering cars through June, but they will cut no figure. Considering that the crop was a month late, and that cars were so short, this is doing very well indeed. The shortage has proven a blessing in disguise, as it strung the output of oranges in such a manner that there was very little congestion at marketing points.

Lemons are doing very well, although there is at present a very large supply of foreign stock available. At the last foreign lemon sale in New York City, prices advanced from 10 cents to 25 cents over opening figures. There is a lively inquiry for high-grade California stock, and only hot weather is needed to create a very large demand.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

A short session on the Produce Exchange yesterday morning closed an uneventful week in produce circles. Local ranch eggs remained at 20½, and case-count offerings at 18½. Demand was steady, with sufficient arrivals of fresh ranch to supply the market needs. The Egg Committee of the Produce Exchange yesterday passed a rule that all northern eggs bought hereafter will be subject to candling after arrival here. The passing of this rule was necessitated by the arrival of many cases of over-heated eggs from the North. Stocks have been coming in in all sorts of condition, and much dissatisfaction has been felt among dealers, for they have had to bear all losses of over-heated eggs from the northern interior producing sections.

There was no change in the price of butter at the meeting of the board yesterday afternoon. Stocks are reported ample, and offerings meet the trade needs. A large shipment came by steamer from the North.

Good potatoes show a tendency toward firming up. There is an active demand for old Burbank potatoes for planting purposes.

Strawberries showed measureable improvement yesterday. The mild, bright weather is infusing increased buying interest, and prices were 4@5.

Cherries are without new features.

Vegetables were plentiful at unaltered rates.

Fish cleaned up early. Crabs glutted the market.

Broilers, old roosters and ducks have declined.

Sales on 'change: Two cases of creamery firsts; 40 sacks of new white potatoes; 3 dozen old roosters.

The receipts of produce as reported for yesterday's exchange were as follows: Eggs, 3?2 cases; butter, 38,812 lbs.; cheese, none; potatoes, 116 sacks; onions, 1 sack; beans, 350 sacks; sweet potatoes, none.

[Exclusive service to The Times by the Los Angeles Stock Brokerage Company, ground floor Citizens' National Bank. Quotations are guaranteed by the Western Union Telegraph Company.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The mining market today again made steady advances all along the line. Goldfield Consolidated gained 12½ points, Jumbo Extension 15, St. Ives 5 and Combination Fraction 5. Trading was light on the morning call; Jumbo Extension led the list with sales aggregating 8330 shares. The Bullfrogs showed more strength today than they have for the past week, several of the better stocks gaining from 1 to 5 points. The Tonopahs and Manhattans were weak and inactive.

GOLDFIELD ORE SHIPMENTS FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 17TH.

A car of ore valued at more than $4000 was shipped by the St. Ives Leasing Company yesterday. The car contained 20 tons of ore which averaged more than $200 to the ton. A large body of ore has been opened and shipments will be made as fast as the ore can be taken out.

More than 800 tons of ore were sent out during the week, from different mines and leases. Of this amount 425 tons were from the Combination Fraction. The entire product, with the exception of the output of the Combination and Florence, was handled by the Nevada Reduction Company. Following are the shipments:

COPPER STOCK

THE LONDON-ARIZONA MINE

The SAFEST, QUICKEST and MOST PROFITABLE thing in the whole field of Good Copper Stocks

For instance, here is the record of a few. All but one of these (the North Butte of are, you may say, right at the back door of Los Angeles, over in Arizona and Nevada within the city's proper and natural sphere of financial influence, and the profits earned Arizona mines mentioned amounted last year to $30,600,000. (Just think of it!—almost millions.)

And yet our beautiful and ambitious city got almost nothing out of that vast sum we have been absorbed in the fascinating occupation of swapping jack knives amongst declined to interest ourselves in the great copper mines in the great mineral empire of Arizona which by the natural laws of finance and trade should belong to Los Angeles.

Our real estate values would be safer and our financial institutions would be stronger the annual profits of Arizona's great copper mines coming to reinforce them.

Well, within three years the great

London-Arizona Copper Mine

should rank with the best in that great red-metal territory.

The conditions are so favorable that Mr. Charles E. Finney, the founder of the was for years the general administrative manager of all the vast mine and smelter inte Guggenheims in the United Sttes and Mexico, and naturally from such an experience exceedingly conservative and responsible statement, estimates that when the property is tion to smelt 3000 tons of its ore a day, it can earn 100 per cent. a year on the price at wh offering of the treasury stock is made—and that it can do that (this is the notable and feature of the statement) with

Copper Selling at 13½ Cents a Pound

It couldn't do that unless it could produce its finished copper at as low a cost as the world—and the cost of producing the finished metal, laid down in New York, is the value of a copper mine.

The London-Arizona property covers 1280 acres of a copper deposit which good

The Biggest Thing, The Quickest Thing And the Easiest Thing

in copper ever opened in Arizona. It can begin to earn dividends very soon. But it big dividends mentioned till the enterprise is in full operation.

Here is a list of copper mines and prospects with whose record the future of the great Arizona may be compared:

Some of the Younger Group of Great Copper Mi

		Cap.Stk.	Par Val. per shar	Mkt. Vl. per shar

Cumberland, Ely, Nevada		5,000,000	5.00	10.00
Nevada Consolidated, Ely, Nevada		6,500,000	5.00	16.00

These last three are new Nevada copper companies, that have been listed within the and a half. They are very fine properties, with large and reliable bodies of low grade ore be concentrated before it can be smelted. They furnish a favorable standard of comparison London-Arizona in that they are all still in the prospect stage, and neither of them has ever dividend or produced a pound of finished copper. They are, nevertheless, great copper and their present market price is not in excess of their real future value as profit-earners.
of them has less than half the acreage of the London-Arizona, and they are not likely earn dividends sooner than the London-Arizona. The present market prices of those sound and valuable copper stocks therefore furnishes a safe indication of the prices of the London-Arizona stock may hope to see their holdings rated at within a very soon as the company is in a position to have its stock listed on the New York and Boston

Those great Ely propertis, once they reach the dividend-earning stage, will of course very much higher than at present, but we confidently believe the London-Arizona will as soon as either of them.

With equal confidence we believe that 30 to 40 months hence the London-Arizona fully up to the present quoted market values of those two most admirably young North Butte and the Calumet and Arizona.

Those are two of the finest copper properties of the younger group of first-class share with the London-Arizona the fundamental advantage of a management thorough in all the technical and administrative business of producing copper.

They share also with the London-Arizona the advantage of possessing a vast tonnage of direct-smelting ore of a good average grade.

It cannot therefore be fairly questioned that the London-Arizona will presently be equally with them the public confidence as to both its management and its resources them favorite investment stocks. They are two among a very small number of com produce copper close to the very minimum cost, and it is our candid belief that, on the production, the London-Arizona will be able to lay its finished output down in the New a shade lower than either of them.

It is hardly necessary to mention that the cost of the product laid down in the price at which it can be sold without any loss whatever—is the final and complete of a copper property.

As we assert and insist that in from 30 to 40 months the London-Arizona will Calumet and Arizona and the North Butte, we give here their record to date, that there future be no question as to precisely what we claim for the London-Arizona.

The Calumet & Arizona

Location, Bisbee, Arizona.

The above figures are official, and may be relied upon implicitly.

The London-Arizona Copper Company

Is located at the junction of the Gila and San Pedro rivers in Gila County, Arizona, three Phoenix and Eastern R. R. It contains 68 claims (about 1280 acres,) and has, we believe good faith, a dependable ore body equal to 83,000,000 tons of a self-fluxing, smelting average at least 5 per cent. (100 pounds the ton) in copper content—a perfectly self-fluxing serve, that can be mined unusually cheaply, transported from the mine to the smelter ton and dumped right into the furnace without any of the usual expense of "mixing."

We desire most especially to avoid exaggeration in presenting this great property clients. But we believe in absolute good faith that it is

The BIGGEST thing, the QUICKEST thing, and he EASIEST hing in copper ever Arizona.

It is capitalized at $10,000,000, par value of shares, $10.

The price of the first offering is $6. We have maps and the most responsible

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Today's statement of the treasury balances shows: Available cash balance, $253,627,267; gold coin and bullion, $96,665,704; gold certificates, $18,762,930.

GENERAL EASTERN MARKETS.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, May 18.—The cereal markets were chiefly influenced today by the inevitable week end realizing. Wheat dropped in net figures to 96 1-4@96 3-4. July corn declined 7-8 and oats 1-2. Provisions dropped 7½@12½. There were other influences in wheat but they availed naught against the desire to secure profits without testing the possibilities of an idle Sunday. Cables were lower, Budapest reporting rain in Russia as well as in the Austro-Hungarian grain belt, but the desire for profits among the cautious offset these factors. Buying orders were by no means absent, for the demand was again large and of general proportions but it was not sufficient to hold prices at the high level at which the market closed yesterday. July sold between 98½ and 96 1-8 and closed 3 3-4@3 7-8 lower at 96 1-4@96 3-8. Other options closed at proportionate losses. Corn felt the effect of the weather improvement, the slump in wheat probably having as much influence as the other. Reports from country shippers spoke favorably of the crop's appearance. Local receipts were 110 cars. July sold between 53 3-4 and 52 5-8@52 3-4 and closed 7-8 lower at 52 7-8@53. The oats market held well in the face of weakness in other grains, but could not wholly escape the sympathetic action usual in such cases. Trade was on liberal scale. Local receipts were 144 cars. July oats sold between 47 1-8 and 45 3-4 and closed ½ under yesterday at 46 1-8. The provisions market was quieter and easier the tone being largely in sympathy with the cereals. July pork closed 10c lower at 16.57½@16.60; lard, 10c down at 9.17½ and July ribs 10@12½c down at 8.92½.

New York Cotton Market.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO FRED DORR.]

NEW YORK, May 18.—Cotton reached new high levels today in all options with trading more active for a Saturday than it has been for months. The buying was largely for account of western houses and, in fact, for the last few days Chicago seems to have bought more cotton than the South. Several big operators are said to have deserted stocks and gone into cotton. The trading became very excited after opening and an advance of 20 points in October was scored in as many minutes. Crop news was decidedly favorable. Habersham King reports the week's developments favorable over 85 per cent. of the belt. He also says the southern half of the belt is 20 days earlier than normal, although northern half is two weeks late. Visible supply of American cotton, 3,045,184, against 2,436,028 last year.

E. R. Dick says: "There is no Liverpool this morning and therefore no guide as to how the market will open, weather conditions are still favorable. Reports say it is much warmer in the East Gulf States and the forecast calls for partly cloudy over Texas Saturday, partly cloudy today; fair tomorrow over the Territories and Kansas, and fair both days for Tennessee. The week end statistics are bullish, but by no means as much so as last week. Spinners' takings of American cotton according to Chronicle, 222,535, against 219,128 last year. Visible supply of American decreased about 120,000 against about 90,000 last year. Visible supply of American Chronicle figures, 3,045,184, against 2,436,784.

"Chronicle weather report rain was quite general in some sections excessive. In Texas it was light and in a few days of dry weather planting will be completed.

"Crop report of Habersham King checked the early bulge. It was current talk on the floor after the close that Price was heavily short. We hardly like to be a party to a bull campaign based on that."

NEW TRUST COMPANY.

The Columbia Trust Company has opened its doors for a trust and general banking business. One of its features is a woman's department, under the management of Mrs. Pearl A. Spaulding. L. L. Elliott, the founder and former manager of the Merchants' Trust Company, is the president, and the other officers and directors are: Edward D. Silent and William R. Hervey, vice-presidents; F. B. Braden, secretary and trust officer; Frank Thomas, attorney; H. M. Binford, treasurer; R. Junters, Walter Everett, W. S. Collins, Horace O. Smith and Lester L. Robinson.

A RICH STRIKE

the kind that proves a property and foreshadows production of the big dividend-paying sort has just been made on the property of the Crackerjack Gold (California) Company. An 18-inch vein carrying ore literally shot full of free gold has been uncovered. The main shaft is all in solid ledge matter, with neither wall in sight, and the tunnel is within a few days of cutting the big ledge. We wish to reiterate with emphasis the advice given you some time ago—buy "Crackerjack Gold" at market; the big profits available in this stock in the past will be surpassed by those available in the future. The stock is bound to rise high. Buy all you can of it, and buy without delay. Remember ours is the advice of foresight—witness Mohawk and others.

THE SOUTHERN TRUST COMPANY
114 West 4th St.
Capital $2,000,000 Paid In $1,000,000
Total Assets Over $3,000,000
I. W. HELLMAN, PRESIDENT

You undoubtedly have a reserve fund always on hand for the "rainy day," and in regard to that very fund we wish to ask you is it lying dormant in some bank, doing you no immediate good or bearing interest? Put your money on interest. If placed with the SOUTHERN TRUST COMPANY it can be secured upon demand with forfeiture of the interest that has accrued if drawn before stipulated time. The chances are you will not need the money and every six months you can draw the interest or allow it to stay with the principal that earned it and draw interest on principal and interest. There are thousands who are benefiting by the help of the banks.

Consider carefully, and when you look for a bank consider three essential points: STABILITY, CONSERVATISM and PERSONNEL OF OFFICERS. WE INVITE YOUR INVESTIGATION.

The worry over the handling of estates, making of wills, guardianship of minors, care of real property, and any details pertaining to business transactions, is entirely done away with by having THE SOUTHERN TRUST COMPANY act in any of the above capacities.

We transact a general banking business in all branches. Daily quotations from New York on all foreign exchange. We sell on daily rates. Interest paid: 2 per cent. on daily balances, 3 per cent. on 90 day accounts, 4 per cent. on 6-month accounts. All payable from date of deposit.

THE CITY IN BRIEF

BREVITIES.

Buying choice residence property at auction will be the pleasant and profitable method offered the public Wednesday, May 22, when sixty fine residence lots in the Main and Moneta Tract will be sold absolutely without reserve. The sale will last all day on the tract, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning, and lunch will be served at noon. The Moneta avenue cars running south on Main street will take you direct to the sale. Get off at Sixty-first street. The property lies within the city limits, and is fully improved. It has never been placed on the market. The grading and oiling of streets is completed and paid for; cement walks and curbs are in place; palms have been planted and both electric and telephone companies have their wires on the tract. The terms are very easy—a small payment down and the balance to suit the buyer. Discounts of 5 per cent. for all cash and 2½ per cent. for half cash will be given. Deeds are isued by the Los Angeles Trust Company and unlimited title guaranteed by the Title Insurance and Trust Company. Maps of the property can be obtained at Haack & Peipers, No. 202 I. W. Hellman Bldg., Fourth and Main streets. Get prices of neighboring property; compare our advantages; then buy these lots as cheap as you can at the auction. A. W. Lauderback will handle the sale.

Hardwood Floors—If you are thinking of having polished floors we should like to quote you prices on our special oak flooring. We guarantee it never to "cup up" at the joints nor to shrink as so much inferior flooring does. We renovate old floors and make them like new. "Nonpareil" floor wax and "Nonpareil" floor cleaner for sale. John A. Smith Floor Co., 425 W. 7th st. Established 14 years. Tel. Main 2668, Home F6629.

Coöperative Hardwood Floor Co., incorporated. Established only two years and by honest dealing, reasonable prices and good workmanship we are now the leaders in our line. Our men are competent and reliable, which our references will prove. We put down plain and ornamental floors, repolish and renovate old floors, 215 Mercantile Place. Phones, Home F4297, Main 5193.

A startling departure has been made by the Cawston Ostrich Farm in opening a store in Los Angeles, in the Bradbury Block, on Third street, for the sale of their magnificent ostrich feather goods. Ladies can now send their feathers to the Los Angeles store and have them recurled, dyed or repaired by the skilled workers at the South Pasadena farm.

A cordial welcome awaits you today at Christ Church, corner Twelfth and Flower. Topic of morning sermon: "The World's Greatest Dynamic;" evening, special children's service; address by the rector. The Testimony Of Imitation Futile as imitation ever is, there is no more irrefutable testimony to Steinway worth and supremacy than the continued and continuous effort to imitate the Steinway—in construction, in case design, in trade-name, in everything essential to selling. It is the most impressive tribute ever paid any manufacturer, since it is practiced throughout the world, and has its spirit expressed hourly in nearly every salesroom where pianos are urged upon buyers with the familiar assurance, "It is as good as the Steinway," "It is one of the great pianos, like the Steinway," etc.

The testimony of imitation is that the Steinway stands alone—that it is superior to all other musical instruments—and your verdict will be for a Steinway purchase if you are but just to yourself.

FINE VISIONS ARE ON TAP.

But Town Lots Don't Sell in New Jerusalem.

New "Prophet" Talks About Wonderful Temples.

Asserts Daughter Is Christ Reincarnated.

When Abbot Kinney had a vision of a New Venice by the Sea, he straightway went to work and dug canals, built gingerbread houses, St. Marks and other Venetian imitations. But he had the coin to do it.

Now there is another vision on tap for the establishment of a New Jerusalem, but the visionary is Albert G. Stephens, who is practically penniless, and who claims that his daughter is the reincarnation of Jesus Christ. This New Jerusalem has actually been staked out.

The fact that "Prophet" Stephens has included the land belonging to scores of Santa Monica's best citizens makes no difference to him. The fact that the New Jerusalem is to be thirty miles long beside the sea, twelve miles wide, and in the shape of a cross with one arm in the ocean, doesn't seem to worry him a bit. The fact that the Malibu ranch is within the boundaries, and the gate still locked, does not disturb his vision.

Meanwhile the "prophet" says there is going to be a new ascension by his little daughter, who is 9 years old, and that he also is going to ascend. He says he is getting so light that he sleeps half in his bed and half in the air.

His robes are all ready; so is the one for little Virginia. This robe for her has been made by the followers of the "prophet" and is embroidered with mystic signs from Bible lore, including stars, chains, keys and crosses. It's a wonderful creation—to ascend to heaven in.

DREAM TEMPLE.

But it is the great temple which is going to be the gem of the New Jerusalem. Prophet Stephens has already started it. He got a cross and, going up on the high mesa near the Santa Monica Cañon, was shown by his vision the sacred spot where the temple will grow.

There he dug a big hole six feet deep in the adobe soil and "planted" that cross. After carefully covering it up, he dug another hole near by, in honor of Adam, where he says the children's temple will grow. Then he dug a third hole and there he buried the pickax with which he dug the first hole, just as a sign that his labors were finished. And adobe soil is tough stuff to dig six-foot holes in of any size.

This New Jerusalem vision temple will be a dandy, according to the "prophet." It is to be seven stories in height and it will be 200 feet to the ceiling of the first floor. The children's temple will be just the same. The Herman W. Hellman building won't be in it for a minute.

But "Prophet" Stephens is a cute prophet and, unlike the ordinary army of prophets, does not prophesy just what time the second coming of Christ will be or when these vision temples will be built. All this is exceedingly indefinite.

Nevertheless the prophet has gathered around him in Santa Monica a "band of the faithful," who believe his visions, supply him with embroidered ascension robes and other needful things. Stephens himself apparently takes his being a "prophet" quite seriously, also the fact that he is the father of a reincarnated Christ girl.

She is a bright little child and attends the Twentieth-street school in Santa Monica.

NO BOOM IN LOTS.

Town lots in the New Jerusalem have not as yet been put on the market, no options, even, having been given by the "prophet" so far as can be learned. But when the temples are really built and the walls of this New Jerusalem protect the faithful from the doomed Gentiles, then it is expected that the real estate boom will come in earnest and the profits—and prophets—will be great.

As for Brother Al Stephens, he's as cool as a cucumber. He says these things and consequently his followers believe they must be true—otherwise why should he have such visions? He don't eat mince pie before going to bed—if he did, he wouldn't feel so light.

Stephens has no hesitation in telling about his visions or how he discovered that his daughter Virginia was the Christ child. After one of his visions he told her she was, and she didn't deny it, and she was 6 years old then, too. But here is his story:

The location of the New Jerusalem was shown him in a vision, so he claims, while traveling in Idaho, one night three years ago.

AN IDAHO VISION.

"I had never been a believer," said "Prophet" Stephens, yesterday, "but from that day and hour I was convinced not only of the truth of the Bible, but of the divinity of Christ and of His second coming. I was shown the gates of the New Jerusalem and told to go without delay to Santa Monica to prepare for the return to earth of Christ. I was told that His materialization was near and that He was here now in the person of my little daughter, Virginia. She was then but 6 years of age, and when I told her that she was the Christ child she was not surprised. She said she had known it all the while, and straightway she proceeded to discourse upon the Sea of Galilee and bearing the cross through the streets of Jerusalem.

"I sacrificed home, furniture and everything in order to come to Santa Monica, and immediately upon arrival here was caused to suffer all manner of tortures to the end that my flesh might be prepared for what was to come. I was shown in a vision the exact location of the New Jerusalem and was given the command to have it surveyed. Windward avenue at Venice is the center of the sacred spot. The center of the cross is at Venice, and the long shank extends up the coast a distance of about twenty miles, where the end rests upon the highest spur of the mountain. The cross is about thirty miles long by twelve wide, and within its bounds includes Playa del Rey, Palms and Sawtelle, while the half of it is in the sea.

"When I first received the revelation, I was almost bald-headed and there were several teeth missing from my mouth. Today my head is gradually becoming covered with a soft coat, and new teeth are coming to fill the places of the old ones. Ugly wounds that for years disfigured my body have grown over and my flesh is now as soft as that of a child. All of the material weight is disappearing from my body, and for weeks I have been sleeping with head and shoulders off the bed. It is only a matter of a few days, or at most weeks, until the laws of gravitation will have been suspended in my case.

PLANTS TEMPLE SEED.

"It was pointed out to me that the great temple should be built on the high mesa overlooking the cañon and the sea, and on the sacred spot designated I have long since planted the cross. It is six feet beneath the adobe soil, a hole having been dug by me to receive the cross. It rests in what was almost the center of the old adobe house that stood for so many

"OUR MARY'S" SPELL OFF?

Rumored That Kennedy Will Marry Another.

Worships at Shrine of a Pasadena Beauty.

She Denies Report, Which He Gave Out.

"I am going to marry Mrs. William Truman of Pasadena, as soon as she is divorced," said Ernest Kennedy, gentleman, mining broker and Beau Brummel.

"I am not going to marry Mr. Kennedy," says Mrs. William Truman, dashing and petite young lady of Pasadena.

This highly elevating dialogue is the consensus of conflicting statements issued by Ernest Kennedy, a fine-appearing, broad-shouldered mining man who has earned the distinction of being the best-dressed man in town, and handsome Mrs. Truman, one of the most charming young women of the Crown of the Valley. Both have been positive in their statements, and the public can take its choice.

Mrs. Truman at the present time is encumbered with a husband, who is now in Arizona, and from whom she expects to be set free during the present month.

"But," says the beautiful young woman who has been the despair of many Pasadena and Los Angeles youths, "that does not mean that I am going to marry Mr. Kennedy, for I am not." And then she stamped her little foot.

SPECTER OF "OUR MARY."

Between the acts, as it were, the specter of buxom Mary Van Buren—"Our Mary"—rises. It was rumored about six weeks ago that she and Kennedy might be mated. Miss Mary was then capering before the footlights in the Burbank and holding the callow youth in sweet subjection. Now she is supposed to be en route to England, where she is to visit the relatives of the gay Ernest and look up the ancestral tree and the lands that Kennedy speaks of when he feels talkative.

It will be remembered that blond Ernest and Miss Van Buren were supposed to have entered into a delightful cordial entente which was to result in both facing a gentleman in flowing robes and both promising to be good. There were gay times during the winter months when the entente between Ernest and Mary was at its height.

Ernest had leased the old Lamme log cabin at No. 1761 West Adams street, and there he had established a rendezvous for actors, actresses, mining men and what not of the Bohemian class. Gay were the soirees that Kennedy held at his log cabin.

AT ANOTHER SHRINE.

Now that Mary has gone Kennedy has transferred his affections to the rosy shrine of Mrs. Truman of Pasadena.

Pasadena folk say that morning, afternoon, evening and all the time a tall, florid gentleman with a decided foreign air has been seen parading up and down Orange Grove avenue with a dainty lady leaning upon his arm. The lady was Mrs. Truman.

Then the news came out that Kennedy was to be married to Mrs. Truman. He told it himself. First he told it to his friends, then, becoming convivial, he invited several friends to the festive bar and insisted that they have a drink with him on his approaching marriage.

HE MAKES FORTUNE.

Kennedy made his money in Goldfield by promoting new mining ventures. He was "dead broke" when he went to the camp and succeeded in making a considerable fortune. His sudden wealth has wrought wondrous changes in his habits and his apparel.

Mrs. Truman is one of the most popular young women in Pasadena. Her maiden name was Miss Anna Reed. She married William Truman, a mining man, who has been lately in Arizona. Her wedded life was unpleasant, according to accounts, and there is now a suit for divorce pending in the Arizona courts. It is expected that a decision will be handed down about the 27th inst., and that Mrs. Truman will be granted an absolute freedom from her husband.

Kennedy, when called by telephone and asked about his reported engagement to Mrs. Truman, denied it entirely. Yesterday afternoon he confessed it openly, and urged that it be not published, as Mrs. Truman is seeking a divorce and it would embarrass her. Last evening he denied that he and Mrs. Truman are to be married. And there you are.

POSITIVE STATEMENT.

Mrs. Truman is visiting friends in Ventura. She was reached by distance telephone and asked about the reported engagement. She made the following statement:

"I deny emphatically that I am engaged to Mr. Kennedy, or that I have any intention of becoming engaged to Mr. Kennedy, or of ever marrying Mr. Kennedy in the event that I secure a divorce from Mr. Truman."

Looks like a "settler" for Mr. Kennedy, doesn't it?

He announced last night that he's going back to Goldfield.

EXPENSES ARE HEAVY.

Al Malaikah Paying for Shriner Festivities—Injured Nobles at San Luis Obispo Recovering.

Bills contracted in connection with the entertainment of the visiting Shriners are being paid by Potentate Motley H. Flint of Al Malaikah Temple. So far the Auditing Committee has passed upon nearly all the bills, excepting for the Catalina trip and baggage expenses. The bills already aggregate about $18,000.

Potentate Flint has received a letter from S. D. Ballou of San Luis Obispo, stating that all the injured Shriners remaining in that town are rapidly progressing towards recovery and will soon be able to undertake the railroad journey to their homes in the East.

BONANZA FOR HIM.

Carlisle Norwood, Jr., one of the younger mining men who "struck it rich" in the Southern Nevada mining camps, arrived in this city, yesterday. It is reported that he went to Rhyolite comparatively poor, and succeeded in making a fortune within a few years. He is a guest at the Angelus.

FROM FORTY PLACES.

Delegates Attend Interesting Annual Meeting of Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Diocese.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Los Angeles was held at the parish house of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, being attended by representatives from forty different places from Santa Barbara to San Diego.

The sessions were presided over by Mrs. Philip G. Hubert, who is the head of the Federated Auxiliaries of the diocese, and on her shoulders fell the brunt of entertaining and planning for the comfort of the visitors. The programme was of rare interest. The morning services were conducted by Bishop Johnson, the annual sermon being delivered by Rev. Angus M. Porter of Redlands. At noon a beautiful luncheon was given at the parish house and 250 people sat down to the flower-decked tables.

At the afternoon session Mrs. Josiah E. Cowles gave a talk on "Church Work in Honolulu." Rev. F. A. Brigham, an Indian clergyman who is in the city at present, gave an interesting account of the work of the Episcopal Church among the people of his race. A very remarkable woman and Christian worker, Miss Clara Carter, who is an Episcopal deaconess for Alaska, told of the hospitals of the Episcopal Church there.

Light Shinjiro Mayekana, a Japanese from the mission recently established in this city by the Episcopal Church, talked on the benefits of the mission. A question box and discussion was conducted by Mrs. William S. Porter of Santa Barbara, and then came the annual address of the president, Mrs. Hubert. A delightful feature of the day was the talk made by Mrs. Edwin Grice of Philadelphia, who has been in the city attending the Mothers' Congress and who is a member of the auxiliary in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Hubert was appointed a delegate from this diocese to attend the great national convention of the auxiliaries of the Episcopal Church, which will be held in Richmond, Va., in October.

WILL ACCEPT COMMISSIONERS NAMED BY CITIZENS.

Good Roads Association Will Hold Meeting Next Saturday to Choose List of Prominent Men for Highway Commission from Which Board Can Appoint Three.

Over 7000 names of freeholders of Los Angeles county have been signed to the petitions of the Good Roads Association requesting the Board of Supervisors to appoint a highway commission of three.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the association was held at the headquarters of the association in the Chamber of Commerce Building yesterday at which a letter was received from the Board of Supervisors requesting the Good Roads Association to suggest the names of seven or more citizens of the county from which the board will select the three commissioners.

A call for a general meeting of the association was at once sent out to all members to meet in the Assembly Hall of the Chamber of Commerce at 2 o'clock next Saturday afternoon for the purpose of complying with this request by the Supervisors.

It will be the duty of the commissioners appointed to investigate the public highways of the county and their condition, to make a map showing their connections, to determine which of them should be improved by the issuance of bonds and the kind of improvements to be made, and also to make an estimate of the cost of the proposed improvements.

To fill these important positions the Good Roads Association will send a list of prominent citizens to the Board of Supervisors to be acted upon at the meeting of the board to be held on Monday, May 27. It is hoped that practical work for good roads along this line will be commenced with as little delay as possible.

RESTAURATEURS MAY JOIN.

Movement for Organization Is Started Among Eating-house Men for Self-protection.

As a result of the recent careful inspection of the restaurants of this city by deputies from the Health Department, the restaurant proprietors are considering forming some kind of an association, so they say, for self protection.

An eating house man said yesterday that the organization is also considered necessary because so many of the smaller cafés are falling into the hands of commission houses.

It is probable a meeting will be called about the first of June to consider permanent organization.

LOSES LOVE AND MONEY.

Scorned Wife Can't Forgive Some Things.

Race Track Swallows Fortune of Mrs. Klippert.

But Another Woman Builds Wall of Ice.

With her little fortune squandered and her heart broken, Mrs. Eva Martin Klippert, of No. 935 West Twentieth street, is bravely trying to hide the tragedy of her heart and love. She could have forgiven her husband the loss of the money, even his alleged cruelty, but his neglect of her, as she claims, for another woman, has built up between them a wall of ice.

She refuses to forgive him and has turned him away from their home when at the last he sued for forgiveness.

MR. AND MRS. J. E. KLIPPERT.

After a year of dissipation during which, it is claimed, he succeeded in squandering $5000 of his wife's money, and becoming entangled with a young girl, J. E. Klippert, a furniture dealer with a store at Pico and Figueroa streets, is absent. His young and beautiful wife is lying in her home prostrated. She says her husband has used what money she had, and left her after beating her shamefully.

His furniture store is now offered for sale, and the store room is for rent, and there are several checks held by local business men which have come back to them marked "no funds."

IN ASCOT'S MAW.

In an effort to beat the races at Ascot during the last season Klippert is said to have lost considerable money, and borrowed from his trusting wife various sums. He is charged by Mrs. Klippert with having openly flaunted a young woman in public, and to have taken excursions to the beaches and to Catalina Island with the woman, and even to have gone to the extent of boldly telling his wife and asking her what she could do about it.

The climax came when the young wife refused to give her husband more money, and declared that if he did not settle down she would go home to her father in Montana. As an answer to this poor little threat the husband is said by his wife to have struck her.

The couple were married in Montana about three years ago and came to Los Angeles. Mrs. Klippert, whose maiden name was Miss Eva Martin, daughter of Robert Martin, one of the wealthy mine owners of Montana, married Klippert against the wishes of her parents. The estrangement was not complete, but a coldness existed between parent and daughter that led to the Klipperts coming to Los Angeles. A few thousand dollars were settled upon Mrs. Klippert, and now she says it has all been squandered by Klippert.

For the first year after the young couple arrived in Los Angeles everything went well. Mrs. Klippert furnished the funds to set her husband up in the furniture business and she had visions of a happy married life. Then Klippert began to go to Ascot Park and gambled on the horses. He lost and began to borrow money from his wife. She loaned all she had readily, and did not become suspicious until she heard that another woman had appeared on the scene and that Ascot Park racing and this woman were using up the cash. Then she closed her purse to Klippert.

GOING THE PACE.

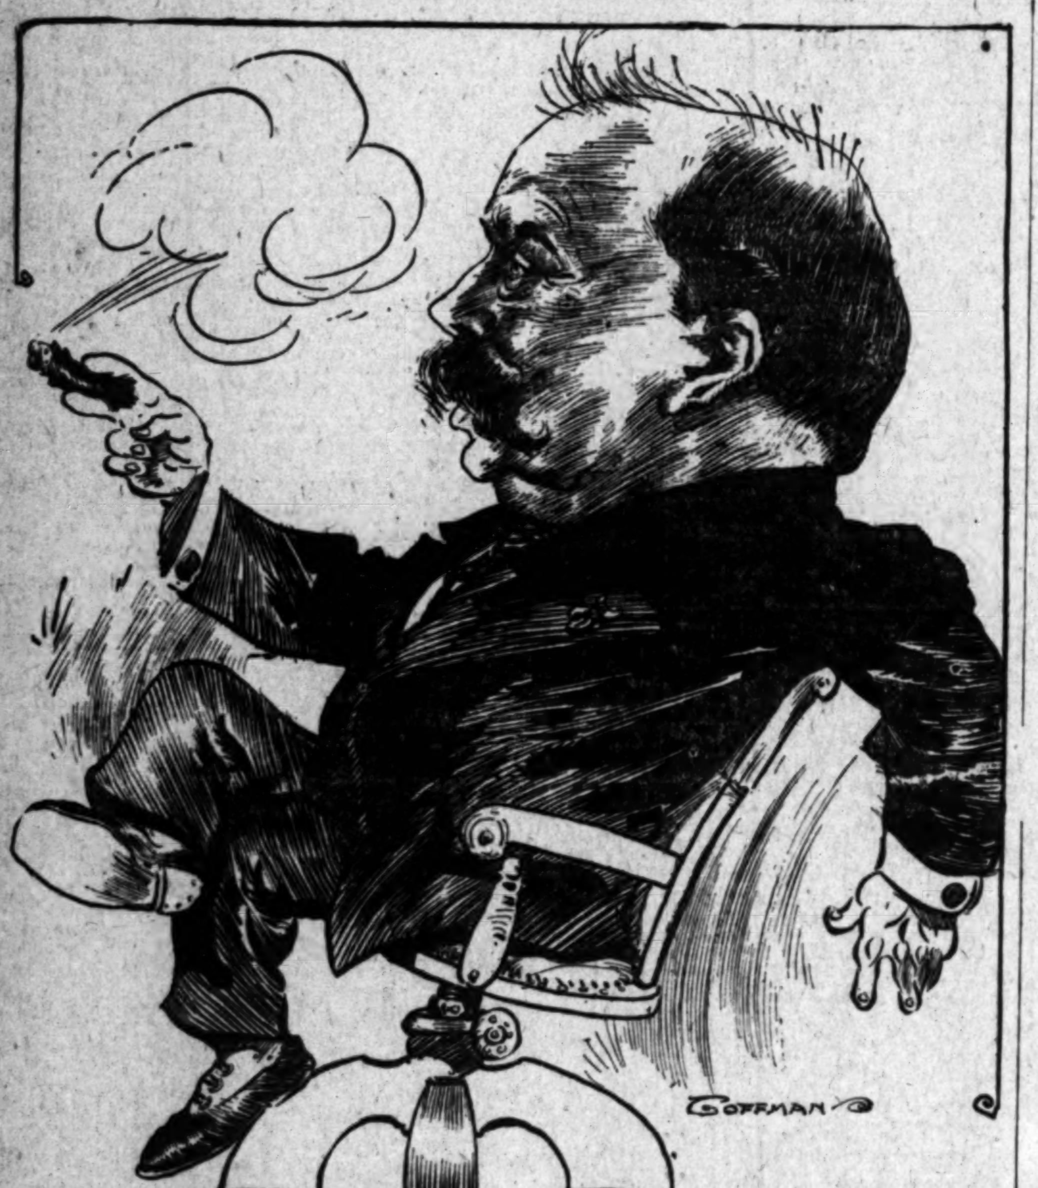
The furniture store was not paying. Klippert used every ruse possible to secure money, but failed. He is said by his wife to have passed two checks—about $75—upon the family butcher, and the man still holds them. Then the beautiful home of Mrs. Klippert was mortgaged, and a horse that her father had given her was also mortgaged, although she held title to the animal.

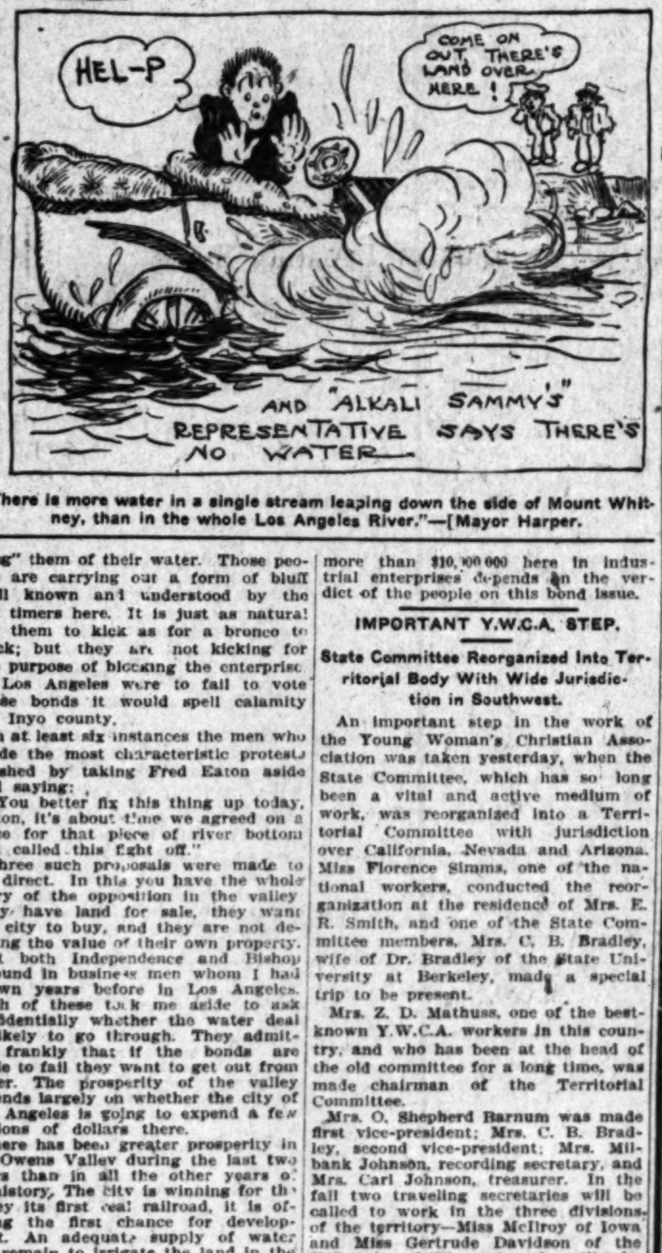
About two weeks ago a reception was held and the Klipperts were invited to attend. Klippert is said to have demurred, but finally, after going out of the house to telephone, agreed to go. Mrs. Klippert says that after they arrived at the reception and she was talking with friends her husband excused himself, saying he had a business engagement, but would return in time to accompany her home.

Next day she heard he had left the reception to keep an appointment with the other woman, and together they had boldly gone to downtown cafés and had a riotous time. Klippert openly boasted to the family butcher that "I was out with my sweetheart last night. I went to the reception with my wife and left her there while I went out and had high jinks with my sweetheart."

Mrs. De La Moore was present at Klippert's home when the wife accused her husband of these things. Both women say Klippert struck his wife and kicked her. He then left, was absent a week, and returned and asked to be taken back. Mrs. Klippert refused to let him in.

"SEEING IS BELIEVING" IN THE RIVER THAT'S COMING.





HEL-P
COME ON OUT, THERE'S LAND OVER HERE!
AND "ALKALI SAMMY'S" REPRESENTATIVE SAYS THERE'S NO WATER

"There is more water in a single stream leaping down the side of Mount Whitney, than in the whole Los Angeles River."—[Mayor Harper.

BY MAYOR A. C. HARPER.

THE man who summed up the problem of human faith and doubt in the terse epigram "seeing is believing" was a pretty fair judge of human nature. Government statistics and the reports of experts furnish excellent circumstantial evidence, but they all require faith in the judgment and integrity of the other fellow; and away down beneath the veneer of acquired knowledge the average man has more faith in his five senses than in anything else in the world.

During the first three months of my term of office I boosted for the Owens River because I believed in the men who reported that there is water in plenty and that the aqueduct furnishes a cheap and feasible way to bring it to our gates. Besides, the main plank of the platform on which I was nominated declares for the big conduit.

An average of twenty men a day would ask me about the project and the ever-recurring question would be: "But do you know the water is there, and that it is all right, or are you taking the other fellow's word for it?"

Then I would roll off the statistics that had been repeated to me, but down beneath it all I felt something lacking.

NOW HE SEES.

Now I have been to the Owens River Valley. I have stood beneath the shadow of those peaks of eternal snows that cluster about Mount Whitney. In one forenoon I crossed twenty mountain torrents, each a part of our new water supply. In any one of half a dozen of those streams there flowed as much water as the city takes daily from the Los Angeles River.

For more than twenty miles I rode by the banks of a crystal lake which sleeps on the breast of the panting desert. Not all the heat and evaporation of Death Valley can parch the sources of this wonderful body of water. It is fed by the snow streams of Mount Whitney that are to be won away to form our water supply. When a member of the anvil chorus comes to me now and says that there is no more water in Owens Valley than in the San Fernando, I know he is either ignorant or a knave.

I went with the engineers over the line of the proposed aqueduct. With the exception of the tunnels there is nothing difficult about building that conduit. I have seen fifty such waterways built in California.

The tunnels are something which we must still accept on faith. But I find engineers are willing to stake their reputations and bankers their millions that these can be built for the price named in the estimate of the experts. On file in the office of the City Clerk is an offer to take those tunnels and build them by contract. This offer is supported by a coterie of bankers. It means to them an investment of several millions. I am enough of a banker myself to know that they are not risking all those millions on any wildcat estimate.

There is not a problem in the entire construction more difficult than that which City Engineer Hamlin has solved on the outfall.

I wish I could take every voter in Los Angeles with me on a second trip to the Owens Valley. I would it were so that each might see for himself those mighty snowsheds whose snow-locked cañons form the greatest aqueducts in the world. It would require no argument to convince them that the water from those virgin snows is pure and the supply inexhaustible.

Just a single incident by way of illustration. The second day out from Mojave our automobiles came to Cottonwood Creek, the first of the streams which the city has secured. This single creek carries more water than we are taking daily from the Los Angeles River.

Three of the machines crossed safely at the ford, though far from dry shod, the fourth stuck in the middle of the foaming stream, the engine was flooded and the fires went out. That machine carried the representative of the one local paper that is opposing the Owens River project. The incident impressed me as a good omen.

NATURAL TO KICK.

At Lone Pine, Big Pine and Independence I met some of the Inyo county citizens who are reported to be so bitter against Los Angeles for "robbing" them of their water. Those people are carrying out a form of bluff well known and understood by the old timers here. It is just as natural for them to kick as for a bronco to buck; but they are not kicking for the purpose of blocking the enterprise. If Los Angeles were to fail to vote those bonds it would spell calamity for Inyo county.

In at least six instances the men who made the most characteristic protests finished by taking Fred Eaton aside and saying:

"You better fix this thing up today, Eaton, it's about time we agreed on a price for that piece of river bottom and called this fight off."

Three such proposals were made to me direct. In this you have the whole story of the opposition in the valley. They have land for sale, they want the city to buy, and they are not decrying the value of their own property.

At both Independence and Bishop I found in business men whom I had known years before in Los Angeles. Each of these took me aside to ask confidentially whether the water deal is likely to go through. They admitted frankly that if the bonds are liable to fail they want to get out from under. The prosperity of the valley depends largely on whether the city of Los Angeles is going to expend a few millions of dollars there.

There has been greater prosperity in the Owens Valley during the last two years than in all the other years of its history. The city is winning for the valley its first real railroad, it is offering the first chance for development. An adequate supply of water will remain to irrigate the land in the valley when the city's aqueduct is running full to the brim.

Now a word as to the other proposed sources of water supply, the ones which, in the words of the druggist's clerk, "are just as good."

I have lived in Los Angeles for thirty-nine years and I know them all, not as an engineer knows them by second-feet measurements, but by observing their flow over a number of years. In a wet season they might suffice; three dry years would bring a water famine that would spell ruin for us. Better the Owens River at twice the estimated cost than trust to so doubtful a source.

MILLIONS AWAIT RIVER.

As a banker and a business man I desire to say that millions of dollars of capital are here ready for investment in vast industrial enterprises as soon as the new water supply is assured. During the last week I received a visit from some eastern capitalists who are preparing to embark in a manufacturing enterprise in Los Angeles that will involve a first expenditure of $4,000,000. These men have looked the field over and have decided to locate here, provided they are assured that the growth of the city will not be cut short by an inadequate water supply.

I was fairly startled when one of these repeated to me Bill Mulholland's words: "If Los Angeles doesn't get that water supply she'll never need it," and he added "She'll never need us, either."

I am in a position to say of my own knowledge that the investment of more than $10,000,000 here in industrial enterprises depends on the verdict of the people on this bond issue.

IMPORTANT Y.W.C.A. STEP.

State Committee Reorganized Into Territorial Body With Wide Jurisdiction in Southwest.

An important step in the work of the Young Woman's Christian Association was taken yesterday, when the State Committee, which has so long been a vital and active medium of work, was reorganized into a Territorial Committee with jurisdiction over California, Nevada and Arizona. Miss Florence Simms, one of the national workers, conducted the reorganization at the residence of Mrs. E. R. Smith, and one of the State Committee members, Mrs. C. B. Bradley, wife of Dr. Bradley of the State University at Berkeley, made a special trip to be present.

Mrs. Z. D. Mathuss, one of the best-known Y.W.C.A. workers in this country, and who has been at the head of the old committee for a long time, was made chairman of the Territorial Committee.

Mrs. O. Shepherd Barnum was made first vice-president; Mrs. C. B. Bradley, second vice-president; Mrs. Milbank Johnson, recording secretary, and Mrs. Carl Johnson, treasurer. In the fall two traveling secretaries will be called to work in the three divisions of the territory—Miss McIlroy of Iowa and Miss Gertrude Davidson of the University of Wisconsin, who will take charge of the student work.

It is a great compliment to the local women to be selected to manage this extended territory.

The local Young Women's Christian Association will have its closing educational exercises this week, beginning tomorrow evening, with an art lecture by Mrs. Eleanor Bingham of Chicago, "The Story of the Holy Grail, as Demonstrated in Art in the Boston Public Library." Tuesday will be devoted to a display of drawing, painting in oil, water color, plain sewing, shirt waists and skirts, millinery and cooking, from 4 to 10 o'clock p.m. At 8:30 o'clock there will be fancy drills by pupils in physical culture.

A programme of forces, pantomimes and music by the Guitar and Mandolin clubs will be given Wednesday at 8 o'clock p.m. Friday evening there will be a concert by Choral Club and orchestras. Sunday an address will be delivered to the students by President Gates of Pomona College. The public is welcome.

Horse That Opens Doors.

A horse that turns the knob on the kitchen door, walks into the pantry and helps himself to the sugar is in the possession of R. D. Jennings, head of the new Government Sanitarium at Hot Springs, S. D. Another intelligent and utilitarian act on the part of this equine is to go to a faucet, turn on the water, and then with his hoof excavate a hole into which the water flows, permitting the thirsty animal to drink therefrom. He is "jist a busted broncho."

JAP-A-LAC
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
"WEARS LIKE IRON."
THE ORIGINAL STAIN AND VARNISH COMBINED
The greatest factor in housekeeping economy.

NATURAL (Clear) JAP-A-LAC is a transparent varnish which you can apply yourself, and produce a beautiful finish on either HARD OR SOFT WOOD FLOORS. When your floors become scuffed and dull, you can refinish them yourself at small cost. JAP-A-LAC is easily applied, and will give any floor a lustrous, mirror-like finish, as hard as flint. It "wears like iron." Heel prints, mars and scratches will not show white. You can scrub it as much as you like, and not injure the finish. Old floors distribute germs—JAP-A-LAC makes your floors sanitary. Sixteen colors—a thousand uses. Rejuvenates everything about the home from cellar to garret.

ALL SIZES FROM 15c to $2.50. For sale by paint, hardware and drug dealers. Ask for card showing beautiful colors, and illustrated booklet describing the many uses.

If your dealer offers you a substitute, say to him: "No, thank you; I want what I asked for. Good bye." Trade with the dealer who gives you what you ask for. That's JAP-A-LAC.

The Haywood Mine, without modern machinery — with only hand drills, hand windlasses and crude wooden buckets—already has produced about $3,000,000 in gold. At the depth now being worked the rock is the richest yet encountered. More than 600,000 tons of measured ore are in the mines. The best modern machinery has been installed. The chloro-cyanide process is the exclusive right of the company in the part of Nevada in which these properties are.

Rich Mines in Nevada

The mining claims of the Nevada Mining, Reduction & Power Company—29 in number—are near Silver City, Nevada, and in the Como and Goldfield districts. There are 423 acres of good mining ground and 1223 acres for mill and reservoir sites. Millions of dollars' worth of ore are blocked out, and the company mills, splendidly equipped, are capable of reducing the ores rapidly and economically.

Our HAYWOOD MINE is in Lyon county, Nevada, about a mile and a half southwest of Silver City and about four miles west of Dayton. This is one of the older mines of the State, and has been operated since the early '60s, having produced several million dollars from rich chutes of ore. In the early days of the mine's history ore had to be high-grade in order to pay, the cyanide process of extracting gold being then unknown.

The losses in the tailings, after battery and plate amalgamation, are chiefly in the form of heavy sulphurets, which are easily recoverable, after which they may be treated by the chloro-cyanide process. By these methods, it is estimated, by Mr. Lane C. Gilliam, M.E., that a saving of 90 per cent. of the values can be obtained at a cost not to exceed 94 cents a ton for all expenses.

For the purpose of being well within bounds in our final estimates, we have figured the extraction at only 80 per cent., thereby leaving a wide margin for any contingency which might arise. We have a gross tonnage of 366,567 tons of measured ore with a gross value of $2,341,946.93. Allowing an extraction of 80 per cent., we have an output valued at $1,873,557.54. Deducting 94 cents a ton for all other expenses, we have $1,529,003.36 net profit.

Capitalization $3,000,00

Through worn spots in the casing the inner tube peeped at frequent intervals.

After whirling along for thirty-odd miles the casing gave way and the inwards bulged out in a lump as large as a boy's head.

The place was the middle of an old dry lake. The sun-baked floor lay flat and gleaming in the blistering heat. A shimmering mirage ahead suggested lovely possibilities, when the walk that looked inevitable would begin. "Alkali Bill" stopped the car, leaped out into the dusty roadway and reached back into the tonneau. He hauled out a long piece of clothesline. He bound this about the wounded place, jumped back in and in a short time the auto party was in Ash Meadows.

"Bill" rushed the machine across long soda flats, panted up hills and plunged down a long cañon. When the morning's journey was done he had gone more than fifty miles, and during that time the high-speed clutch had been set in so much that it seemed as though it had never been shifted at all.

Such driving as this carries men in the wink of an eye from a railroad terminus to a far-away mining camp. They breakfast aboard a diner and eat lunch out in the Funeral Mountains. It makes possible transportation of ice, though the sun may have raised the temperature to several degrees beyond the hundred mark. Literally, it kills distance.. There is no space.

NO GOGGLES FOR HIM.

Brong drives without goggles or leather cap. He has none of the paraphernalia of a chauffeur. His appearance is distinctly desert-like. He looks much like a mule driver, and, riding behind him, if you have ridden in a freighter's wagon, you come to look for the long, lashed whip. He wears a high-crowned Stetson, and borax and alkali dust have caked its brim until from black it has turned gray-white. At the end of a day's journey his face is masked with this dust.

He has driven thus for five years in the desert. He began in the early days of Tonopah, and went on through Goldfield and Rhyolite, fetching up at Greenwater. In that time he has carried millionaires journeying to see coming mines, experts who looked at the country with coldly critical and somewhat pessimistic eyes, scientists who had wandered from the Smithsonian Institution to hunt new flowers, and riotous prospectors who had sold claims for thousands and were railroad-bound in the hope of ridding themselves of their money quickly in civilization. He has seen the millionaires return, complacent with newly-acquired properties; the experts leave embryo camps enthusiastic, and the prospectors, desert-bound again, seeking new lodes that they might, through hardship, win more "stakes." He has seen the promoter replaced by the mine owner, and following the latter, the sleek traveling man coming to sell goods where, a few months since, the coyotes had found living precarious.

And always he has sat on the front seat, with his hands on the steering wheel and his gray eyes "glued" on the road, which the wheels were "eating up" as fast as it came toward them.

He is a lean, spare man, with a stoop in his shoulders, and a thin, long nose. He looks of the desert. And he has come to regard the desert as his home.

"A fellow I used to know in Goldfield offered me a couple of hundred a month to drive in town for him," he said, yesterday. "Lord! Think of it, working a whole month for $200."

LAUDABLE AMBITION.

He has one ambition. This is it: He wants some day to get a car which can make a hundred miles an hour and keep it up on rough roads. Then he wants to find a load of those cranks who are always wanting to travel a little faster than they are going.

"Then put her through for all there is in her, and listen to what they say about it," he said.

Coming down on the Salt Lake route he awoke the other morning near Riverside, among the orange groves. It was barely daylight, and he had sought his berth late the night before. But he climbed out on the platform and gazed, with a certain degree of rapture, on the dark green groves, where the fruit still hung in great globes among the foliage.

"It's good to get back to God's country," said he.

But two days later he was getting anxious to find the desert again.

"I can stand it a little while longer, but not much," said he. "I want to get back to that car."

"Alkali Bill" is a case of the emergency finding the man. Six years ago he drove a machine in San Francisco. The desert called him, because it was time for him. And today this man, who knew every nook and corner of the big city, has learned the secrets of the wilderness, and has carried to some of its out-of-the-way places civilization.

THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME.

The sun is now rapidly climbing the heights of the firmament. In one more month he will achieve his farthest northern boundary and then begin his downward course along the sky to the equator and the southern tropic, one to be reached three months after the northern tropic is touched and the other three months later. Summer is here in Los Angeles.

The schoolboy has his eye upon the calendar marking the summer solstice because he knows that with the highest point of the sun's northern course comes an end to all his school troubles. He has been counting by months. Today it is by weeks, and in a few days more it will be a matter of days, and finally he will reduce his arithmetical investigation as to the end of the term to hours and even minutes. A great host of clerks and persons employed in shops of different kinds are almost as intensely interested as the pupil in the public school. Their vacation is coming, too, and they are almost as eager in their counting of the intervening days.

When to begin the vacation and where to spend it is an interesting subject in the minds of no end of people in this city. As a matter of fact, there will be no necessity for any person so favored by circumstances as to have his home in Los Angeles to seek a change of air. There may be a hot day or two, perhaps two or three hot spells between now and the end of September, but those who live in cities in the East or Middle West or anywhere excepting along the shores of Southern California, would be highly delighted if they knew of any spot within their reach where the summer could be so delightfully passed from the viewpoint of climate as right here in the midst of our city.

There are many strong calls to us all to change our scenes and climate for a little while during the summer. Again the inhabitants of Los Angeles are peculiarly blessed in having such a wide variety, both of scene and of climate, from which to select. Before us lies a great stretch of seacoast, calm and with clear skies and refreshing breezes, stretching 200 miles up and down. Then around us rise the magnificent chain of mountains, with deep cañons, wooded slopes, rippling streams and cool mountain breezes which make it difficult to choose between the seashore and the hilltop. The varying scenes, both of seashore and mountain, are almost as imperative a call to the soul as the desire to escape from the little torrid heat that the summer brings us.

It has been proclaimed to the world a thousand times over that Los Angeles and Southern California present the most delightful winter climate in North America, a temperature so agreeable as scarcely to be matched anywhere on the earth, and only in far smaller areas in the most favored spots in Italy and Greece. This has been told with so much iteration and detail that it is generally accepted all over the known world. But we have said too little in times past about the attractiveness of our summer climate. Those who have lived long here are heard to state as their opinion times without number when the subject is under discussion that in reality Los Angeles offers a more delightful summer climate than winter climate. Eastern people, without an exception, who have passed a summer or two here, never fail in giving voice to their astonishment that Los Angeles should be so entirely agreeable as a place to spend the summer.

All through the East, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, there are very many more people who find it necessary to seek relief from the summer's heat than those who are driven away by the rigors of a severe winter. Those of us who can carry our memory back to the days when our homes were in that region know very well that we endured the cold of the winter and reached spring in much more robust health than we had at the end of the long, burning summer.

Here is a good work for the Southern California Promotion Society. The United States Signal Service has been maintained here for a period of thirty years. All the data are available in the records of this public office. A presentation of the actual facts regarding our temperature, tabulated carefully and with due attention to absolute accuracy, and then accompanied by comment written by some person of knowledge acquired by experience in a considerable lifetime here, and of an analytical turn of mind, capable of drawing attention to the salient facts in the record, would do great service in directing attention to this section of the country as a most desirable place for a summer home. The topography of the country should be dwelt upon in such a brochure, and the effects of the northwestern trade winds alternating with the mountain breezes that come down from snow-capped heights.

There are from 50,000 to 75,000 tourists who come to Southern California during the year. Probably four-fifths of these arrive between the first of December and the first of May. There is no reason why judicious and careful work, done honestly and intelligently, should not result in bringing us about as many summer visitors as we now have winter tourists.

Even the Barbary Coast may yet become respectable.

FOOLISH YOUNG MEN.

The manager of a large lumber business in a good Montana town reports that he is put to his wits' ends to secure and hold young men to fill positions on his clerical force. The lure of the cities is too strong for them. They want to live in populous places, like Chicago, where the primrose path is gay with flowers by day and aglow with lights by night. Foolish young men!

The Montana town is an ideal place in which to live. It lies in the great heart of the Rockies, and below it are the vast, sunlit plains. Winter is often long there, but it is always bracing, healthful and good with the delights that a strong man loves. The summers are divine. The town has its own little social pleasures, and the distance to the large cities is not so great but a trip to one of them is frequently feasible. Hunting and fishing is at call. And yet it is only an instance of a thousand places like it throughout the length and breadth of the land.

But spots like this have no charms for the average young man of today. He prefers to come to the cities on half the salary. He wants theaters every night, albeit he must sit in the back seats or in the galleries. He wants to leer on the street corners at the girls with a cigarette in his mouth. He longs to wear rolled-up trousers and pink stockings. In short, it is his ambition to be a monkey instead of a real man.

It is a sorry condition of affairs and one that bodes no good for the future. There are too many cities now, and they are all too big. The scramble for existence in them has become tragical. They cover civilization with a veneer. They have built up a social system wherein one man preys on another. Nine-tenths of the people in big cities, like Chicago and New York, live a hand-to-mouth existence. In order to take care of them when they fall ill or meet with other misfortunes, charity hospitals are built endlessly and charity organizations are worked to death. The average city young man neither makes money nor saves it. He is merely an insignificant cog in a machine that has too many wheels.

The wise young man who desires to get the best that life affords will do well to stay out in the open where he has a chance to breathe right and to grow physically as well as morally. Let him live where women are respected and a thief is ostracized. Let him be a man among men and not a pigmy among dwarfs.

WHAT GAME IS SAN FRANCISCO PLAYING?

Every person in California who cares much for the peace of the community, for the future of the State industrially and politically, and to whom the reputation of the State means much, is deeply interested in the struggles going on daily in the metropolis of the Coast.

The main impression produced by the news is one of profound bewilderment that will not yield to any known method of mental analysis. Day by day the mystery deepens as to what the ultimate aims may be of the men who occupy the center of the stage as guardians of the rights of the people, as upholders of the law and as reformers with a professed intention to punish wrongdoers, rid the city from the grasp of felons and bring about industrial peace, established on grounds of absolute American equality and of fundamental righteousness. As the struggle goes on there are phases which make it look very much like a game which neither side seems desirous to play honestly. It looks suspiciously like a game of poker where all players "stack the cards" and carry aces, kings and queens up their sleeves, to play as opportunity affords.

Perhaps this is a wrong construction to put on the action of those whose professions of doing right are so loud. The suspicion may be uncharitable. Probably it would not be entertained if it were any other community than San Francisco of the year 1907 in which the game is played. If that community is wronged in the present instance by uncharitable suspicions, it is because the city has a reputation for chicanery.

What can be thought of a reform movement which takes one batch of "yellow dogs" after another, gives them a coat of whitewash and turns them loose among the flock marked "These are innocent sheep since they passed through our hands?" Who are to be punished if not the perpetrators of all the villainies which have marked the city for years? What kind of reform is it that proves felony upon felony, one after another, to have been committed by divers persons and forthwith lets them off unpunished and even continues them in office? There may be a high aim in all this, but the game is too intricate and unusual for the unsophisticated person to understand.

Another cause of uneasiness is found in the supine indifference of the people of San Francisco. To be sure, clique after clique puts its head up out of the seething waves of corruption, riot and bloodshed in the shape of committees, but so far the right class of citizens has not emerged to view in the sea of turmoil roaring along the streets. San Francisco may be so poverty-stricken in her lack of men of high ideals that the best she has to offer is little cliques of business men heretofore prominent only in the forefront of combinations to form business monopolies and feather their own nests. If there are no men who have not had any higher purpose in life than to get the best of everything going for themselves, why all we can do is wait and hope that they have experienced a change of heart and will now devote their best energies to make the city what it should be.

Meantime, it is difficult to hope, while the city is given over to riot or the insulting of decent women by foul-mouthed ruffians plainly intent upon murder. In the game of wringing confessions of past guilt from boodlers on promise of immunity, while grand jurymen fall over each other in their eagerness to show friendliness to the contemptible, whining little boss whose crimes lay at the bottom of all the infamy, women and children pass through the streets in peril of death, and these are things that neither citizens' committees, grand juries, prosecutors nor reformers seem to care a straw about.

One of these days—and we think it will be pretty soon—the American workingmen located to the north of us will take it into their heads that the best thing for them to do is to attend to their own business without the interference of walking delegates. Then, and not till then, will there be something doing.

THAT ORCHARD INTERVIEW.

What a hue and cry the fellows who have tried so hard to prevent Moyer and his partners from getting a fair trial are raising because Harry Orchard has been interviewed by the newspapers.

Orchard abstained from all discussion of the trial going on. He would not even concede that he had made any confession.

The fact is that the crowd with Moyer have been persistently circulating a false report that Orchard was held against his will, was treated hardly, and that his health was seriously injured by confinement.

There seldom was a better chance for newspaper men to get a good article. Thousands of people in every part of the Union were interested to know the truth or falsity of these reports. After much effort, the reporters were able to reach the man about whom these reports had been circulated. They told their story as a matter of very interesting news. The Moyer crowd had fabricated the yarn of Orchard's poor health and hard treatment. The reporters exposed this tissue of lies. That is all there is about it. There was no wrong done to any person. The public mind was set straight against lies circulated for a purpose. If lies were told and the tellers are prevented from making them work their way, that is a thing to rejoice in.

FOR GOOD GOVERNMENT.

Indorsed by the City Auditor and by the Finance Committee, an ordinance will go to the Council Monday making it a misdemeanor for an official or employé to obtain supplies in the name of the city without first securing proper authorization.

This ordinance is an attempt to break up a vicious practice in the purchase of supplies that has been costing the taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars every year. The city charter expressly stipulates the manner in which supplies shall be secured: First must come a notification from a department head that the article is needed; then must follow a resolution by the Council authorizing the purchase; the purchasing agent is to get the best price possible and the demand for the goods shall come back to the Supply Committee with the bill.

Current practice has reversed this order so that the department head goes out and orders the article without any reference to price; after it is received and in use a bill comes from the firm that sold the goods; this bill is made the basis for a Council resolution, estimate of expense and requisition. Manifestly it is impossible to get bids on the purchase of something that has been delivered and is in use.

For years the city has paid the top retail price for goods which it is entitled to purchase at wholesale; a cash buyer, it never receives a discount. At the end of his first month in office City Auditor Mushet made the startling allegation that 90 per cent. of all the demands which came to his office were for supplies that were purchased without first securing a Council resolution.

Three weeks later the Auditor asserted that by discontinuing this illegal practice and purchasing supplies in accordance with charter provision the city can save at least 10 per cent. on the cost of these articles. He went before the Council and announced that he will not approve any requisition that is not made out before the purchase is made.

For a time this declaration caused confusion in city departments. There was not one in which the charter provision had not been frequently, flagrantly violated. Commissioners of the Board of Public Works asserted that they could not observe the charter provisions without stopping work in a number of departments under their control. The City Auditor remained firm and the City Treasurer came to his rescue by refusing to pay bills for supplies purchased in an irregular manner. City Attorney Hewitt supported the contention of the Auditor and Treasurer. The Board of Public Works had to fall in line and obey the law.

An inspection of demands in one week showed that some were for supplies received as long as two years before, and that bills were presented for the first time. The men who had ordered the goods were out of office and there was no way to check the claims.

Some departments are still opposing the attempt of the Auditor, the Attorney and the Treasurer to compel the purchase of supplies according to the requirements of the city charter. It is in a final effort to awaken these to a realization of their position that the ordinance making such purchases a misdemeanor offense has been drafted.

Providing for cases of extreme emergency, the ordinance permits the purchase of supplies to an extent of not more than 5 per cent. of the monthly bills of a department; this is a marked reduction from the 90 per cent. rule which has prevailed for years.

It is intended to give to city officials and employés a keen understanding that they must account to the taxpayers for their stewardship of the city's money.

During the last three weeks the number of irregular requisitions has dropped from 90 to 15 per cent., and there has been no blockade of public business; department heads are beginning to realize that the city charter is not so much of a dead letter as they have tried to make the Auditor and Council believe.

COUNTRY REAL ESTATE.

Two items of news in the real estate department of The Times today will hardly fail to arrest attention.

One of these tells of the success a company has had in selling small farms in Orange county. The wells shown in a picture indicate that the water supply coming out of the land is abundant. Of course it is pure. The sales of small farms are very numerous and the purchasers are investors and home makers, not speculators. They are a permanent addition to our rural producing population, and therefore a valuable asset to the whole community.

The other item reports many sales of citrus fruit groves about Ontario, one of the most delightful and prosperous of all the high foot-hill towns in Southern California. The prices paid for these producing groves indicate the high estimation in which property of this type is held. If the uninformed think the prices too high, it would be well to study the returns from the sale of fruit which are also a part of the item in question.

So long as country property sells like this to actual investors, Southern California real estate, including all good city property, may well be declared "all right." While the country grows, city property has a base to rest on.

MONEY AGAINST THE BONDS.

There are many whispers around the streets that money will be used to defeat the water bonds.

In a sense, this is not news. There has been money in circulation for this purpose ever since the plans for acquiring and getting the water were first made public.

But this new money is to go where it will produce direct results on election day, as the selfish interests which are to put up this money suppose.

No doubt a large sum will be spent in an effort to corrupt voters already putrid in a political sense. But there is one comfort for those who wish the bonds to carry because the water is necessary for the city's growth and prosperity. The secret ballot will make this expenditure of the corruption fund largely futile. No man can tell how any voter casts his ballot at the polls.

Is any person so stupid as to dream that many voters in Los Angeles who work for a living will vote against these bonds for a great undertaking which will put $23,000,000 into circulation in the next three years, a very large part of it going out for labor?

The interests which furnish this money may be heedless as suckers because of their o'erweening desire to defeat the bonds. But if any workingman soils his hand by touching this filthy lucre, be sure it will be with the full intention of giving the corruptor what the street gamin knows as "the double cross."

But while this is a rational conclusion, there will, no doubt, be members of the riffraff to whom the city's interests are nothing, and these may be of the class which holds that there is honor among thieves. To make things sure, let all earnest citizens vote.

NAVEL ORANGES NEARLY GONE.

The highest estimate of Washington navel oranges left in Southern California at this time is from 3000 to 3500 cars. The lowest figure is more than likely to be an exaggeration. A good many shippers are still complaining that it is impossible to get cars to ship this fruit fast enough. They say that it is dropping rapidly from the trees in certain locations, puffing and becoming difficult to freight in good shape. Decay is marked against a good many cars arriving out in the eastern markets.

The season's shipments run now to pretty close to 20,000 cars. There are 100 to 150 cars a day going forward, and even if there are 3000 cars left, nearly all remaining in Southern California will be gone before the end of the month.

It is said that some growers in the central part of the State have already begun to ship Valencias. This would seem to be a very shortsighted policy. The markets are weaker today than they have been at any time during the current season. They are weaker than they are likely to be again after the first to the middle of July. The considerable amount of poor fruit coming out in the eastern markets these days must have a depressing effect upon prices. Then in spite of the severe weather East there must be more or less green truck and small fruits coming in. Usually this stuff begins to arrive in the northern markets about in April. Surely by the middle of May, in spite of all drawbacks, a good deal of it must be arriving. The people who have been enjoying oranges for the past four or five months in a measure will naturally turn to the newer foods. With these facts in view it would seem entirely better for Tulare county orange growers to hold back their Valencia oranges.

HOROSCOPE FOR THIS DAY.

Sunday, May 19, 1907.

BY COZETTE.

"A day conductive to concord."

This is the 139th day of the year. Moon is new; age seven days. [illegible] is evening star and Venus is star of the morning.

Strive to put yourself in a perfectly harmonious and concordant state of mind, for you will have need, during the coming week, of a reserve fund of composure and serenity, to draw on.

Devote the morning hours to meditation, reflection and study. Seek solitude and, above all things, quiet. In the evening call, receive friends and make merry generally, for there is nothing so conducive to a peaceful state of mind as happiness.

Those whose anniversary today will have much success in a business enterprise in the near future, but only by dint of hard and unremitting labor. Look out for enemies who are working in opposition because of jealousy.

Children born today will be clever and extraordinarily lucky. They will be fond of pleasure and society and will be great favorites with both sexes.

The Lancer.

I AM inclined to believe that there is some truth in Ruef's explanation of his participation in the graft and corruption of San Francisco.

Ruef apparently seeks to excuse and justify his course, and to represent himself as a good man forced by environment to go wrong, but in that role he is not convincing. What he has told explains but does not excuse.

The newspapers of San Francisco have taught the people of that city that all office-holders are crooks, and their efforts to remedy the evil of political corruption have served to aggravate it, because their attacks have been reckless and indiscriminate.

An honest man in office, if he offended one of the newspapers, or refused to take instructions from an editorial room, was classed with the grafters and defamed until he had not a shred of reputation left.

By persistently asserting that the city government was utterly corrupt and that nothing could be obtained from the Supervisors without bribery, the newspapers created the conditions which they denounced.

Just as continued denunciation of a "boss" increases his power by creating the belief that it is necessary to secure his influence in order to obtain political preferment, so persistent representation of the Supervisors as boodlers made it easy for them to extort tribute from persons and corporations having business with the city. If a corporation desired a franchise its managers assumed that the only way to get it was the crooked way. The newspapers had taught that all Supervisors were thieves and hold-ups, and nobody thought of trying to put anything through the board on its merits. The first move toward obtaining a public privilege was to seek the man supposed to control the political machine and bargain with him for the votes of Supervisors.

Ruef says he had to connive at bribery of officials in order to hold the machine together, and he seems to think that relieves him of all moral responsibility for results. It does not occur to him that maintaining a political machine is of less importance than maintaining one's own integrity and being a true citizen.

"The things I did were things that hurt no one," pleads Ruef, and doubtless he believes that, for he is obviously a moral idiot. He is something of a lawyer, and it is only a man of deep-seated ethical sense, who can study law and not lose the capacity to distinguish between absolute right and wrong. The study of law confuses the moral sense and tends to the substitution of legality for justice. Ruef's mind is so perverted by the practice of law and politics that he does not perceive the evil of his career. He even makes a virtue of what he now says is a plea of guilty to a crime that he did not commit.

The things Ruef did, even if he did not steal directly from the public treasury—and he seems to think direct theft is the only criminal way of making money—have hurt San Francisco more than have all the petty pilferings of thieves in office.

And the men who used Ruef as an agent of bribery share with him the guilt of debauching the public service and endangering the civic conscience of San Francisco.

San Francisco is as rotten in its civic life as the newspapers of that city say it is; they have done much to make it so. And they are responsible in a greater degree for the existing industrial labor conditions, for not one of them has had the courage to battle with the evil forces that dominate the community and bring ruin greater than that which came upon the city last year.

San Francisco's Mob.

The San Francisco mob is a malevolent, [illegible] beast, and it is cold-blooded in its cruelty. Some mobs are maniacal in their rage, swept by storms of passion, and they are hard to deal with for they are temporarily insensible to fear. The San Francisco mob as I have known it and as it appears to be, is coldly vicious and cowardly as it is evil. It is quick to scent danger and to flee from it and therefore readily cowed by the police when the police are in earnest. The hoodlum type is not so easy to find as in the earlier days, but the hoodlum spirit persists and manifests itself in the crowds that make a sport of strikes in San Francisco. The hoodlum was a prowling, [illegible] creature, as vicious as a sewer rat, as cruel as an [illegible] and as cowardly as a coyote. He prowled in gangs, avoiding the police—for the old-time San Francisco policeman carried a gun and was ready to use it, and he hated the hoodlum—and they assaulted defenseless Chinese out of pure deviltry, often killing them, and waylaid [illegible] citizens in dark streets and robbed them. Sometimes they murdered policemen, shooting them from [illegible]

When Kearney took command of the [illegible] and there were riots in San Francisco, and the gangs that wrecked Chinese laundries and murdered the Chinese were composed of hoodlums. They were the same cowardly, venomous reptiles that are now hunting in packs for "scabs," hurling loathsome epithets into the faces of women and making San Francisco the shame of the State. We formed a vigilance committee to reinforce the police, and with hickory clubs drove the vermin back into their holes. Dens Kearney was a member of that committee and carried a pick-handle for law and order, not a leader of the rioters as muddled "historians" assert. It was after the sand-lot riots that Kearney took the sand lot and played Jack Cade. If the San Francisco police of today were not officered by men subservient to the mob leaders, they could sweep the streets clear of the hoodlum allies of the criminal unions in one day. If the men of San Francisco were of the [illegible] blood as those who have passed [illegible] a Vigilance Committee would have taken charge long ago and wiped out the whole crew of official crooks, conspiring agitators and hoodlum rioters from the face of the earth. But San Francisco is morally sick, and the labor-union pack is worrying her to death.

A Joke.

The Lancer has been perplexed by the apparent difficulty of classifying the editor of the Evening News and finding a reason for his queer performances. The theory that he has flitter-mice in his cupola is not tenable, for there is too much method in his madness. To assume that he really means what he says is to be absurd. But Ben Truman has solved the problem. In his sketches of American humorists, in the list with Mark Twain, Artemus Ward and John Phoenix, he places—doubtless at suggestion of his editor, who is also on the News staff—the name of Sam T. Clover. Thanks to the major and his book we now have the editor of the Evening News classified. Sammy is a humorist, and his paper is a joke.

The [illegible] Kid" has been killed again, and [illegible] has his head pickled in alcohol, perhaps he will stay dead. This renegade scout has had more reincarnations than Phra the Phoenician—in the newspapers. According to the Chicago story, he turned up six months ago and was killed by ranchers, who declined to accept a reward of $9000 offered for the red slayer's head.

Twelve years ago I was asked by an enterprising newspaper to get up a party and go after the Kid, but as the Kid had been dead for some time the assignment did not appeal to me, and when I informed the newspaper of that trifling defect in its scheme, the matter was dropped. And now to think that a Chicago man, an ex-Alderman at that, has secured the Kid's $9000 head and proposes to give it to a museum! The villain has robbed me. Just like a Chicago Alderman to turn such a trick!

VOICES FROM THE STATE.

Only One Rightful Strike.

A labor strike exercises a demoralizing as well as an immoral influence during its continuance and until it becomes a memory. This always obtains, no matter who is to blame for its inauguration. All labor strikes are begun in anger and their influence upon the public could not be otherwise than to lower the community's standard of right conduct. History records but a single instance when a labor strike became a moral, religious and political duty. That was when the Israelites struck for better treatment from their task masters, the Egyptians, in the long ago. The Almighty not only commanded them to strike, but to pack up their belongings and move to another country and seek new homes and better conditions there.—[Berkeley Gazette.

San Francisco's Great Need.

If San Francisco had a press, not so much concerned in the chase after the illusive nickel as in standing up for law and order, it could easily build the latent public sentiment into a power so strong that all the lawless elements would have to respect it. But such is the chase for the subscriber, no matter how lawless his acts, and such the sycophancy to the advertiser, no matter how disreputable, that the press as a whole in San Francisco stands awed in the presence of a mob and is afraid to come out in a strong, vigorous voice for American principle and for law and order.—[Sacramento Bee.

Open Shop, Industrial Peace.

The Los Angeles teamsters' strike came to an end by a compromise which gives the truckmen 25 cents additional wages per day, but makes the business "open shop" without discrimination for or against union or non-union men. Los Angeles comes near to being an open-shop town, and yet it enjoys as much industrial peace as any other city on the Coast.—[Sacramento Union.

Public Sentiment's Effect.

The city Council of Los Angeles is now favoring the plan limiting the "family" liquor stores to the present saloon district in that city. Slowly but surely the crystallization of public sentiment against the unlawful liquor interests is making itself manifest in more ways than one, and in no uncertain manner.—[Santa Ana Register.

Good Roads Movement.

The "Good Roads" movement, which has been instigated recently in Riverside county is of inestimable value to all this fair land. When such men as President Ripley, Bishop Conaty, President Gates, Rev. Robert Burdette and others of like fame engage to push this kind of work it usually goes. Every part of our beautiful county will soon feel the effects resultant from that meeting—also all Southern California.—[Elsinore Press.

Agrees With "The Times."

Under the modern system of railroading no one can feel sure that he is going to arrive safely at his destination. We do not pretend to know what the remedy is, but we do believe that there is one. Whether the trains should travel at a slower speed or whether more attention should be paid to track construction we do not know, but are inclined to believe that a little of both would work wonders. At least we will all agree with the Los Angeles Times when it says:

"There is something radically, criminally and most damnably wrong about the methods by which American railroads are operated."—[Tulare County Times.

Ruef's Mock Repentance.

Ruef may be repentant, but it's dollars to doughnuts that he will never restore a dollar of the money he has stolen. He appears to be an utter reprobate and destitute of any quality remotely approaching decency, and there is no more reason for extending sympathy to him for throwing his pals overboard than there would be for wasting a similar emotion on any other thief who buys immunity for himself by peaching on his fellow-criminals.—[San Francisco Chronicle.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

A compromise has been effected between the City Attorney and City Council on the one side and the District Attorney on the other over the appointments of prosecutors in the Police Courts under the new law placing those officials under the control of the District Attorney. Two of the four men to be appointed will be given the work of conducting prosecutions of violators of the city ordinances. E. J. Fleming will be in charge of the force.

The Council committee of the whole yesterday decided to recommend for passage an ordinance regulating the keeping of rooming-houses and placing their supervision in the hands of the Board of Health.

The Board of Public Works yesterday awarded nine new contracts for improvement of streets, and many new applications for work will be presented to the City Council tomorrow.

Pico street property owners have filed a petition for the installation of a system of ornamental street lighting from Main to Vermont.

Ella Higgerson and her counsel in a divorce action which has aroused suspicion, yesterday were ordered to come into court next Tuesday and explain.

Mrs. Grace Taylor told a story of cruelty which satisfied the judge that she was entitled to an interlocutory decree, without going into other grounds.

William H. Sheasby was fined $10 yesterday morning by Justice Chambers for thrashing his stepdaughter's sweetheart.

M. T. Hancock, son of the millionaire, who was killed in an automobile accident on South Main street two years ago, was fined yesterday for exceeding the speed limit.

Henry Campbell, a contractor, was fined $25 yesterday by Justice Chamber for cruelty to animals.

Mrs. Nellie Cochran was fined $5 for striking her neighbor, Mrs. Mary O'Brien.

R. L. Bolden must go to jail 180 days for vagrancy.

AT THE CITY HALL.

COMPROMISE ON PROSECUTORS.

FLEMING, EDDY, ALEXANDER AND FORD NAMED.

District Attorney Offers to Accept Nominees, Council Committee Confers With Fredericks and City Attorney Determines Who Is to Act for City at Police Courts.

A compromise has been reached on the question of city prosecutors in the Police Courts, through a conference held yesterday afternoon between Dist.-Atty. Fredericks, City Attorney Hewitt, and a committee from the City Council.

Guy Eddy and Joseph Ford, two of the four appointees of Dist.-Atty. Fredericks to prosecute violations of the State laws in the Police Courts, are also to be deputized by City Attorney Hewitt to prosecute violators of the city ordinances. Thus, for a time at least, a vexed question is solved.

Deputy District Attorney E. J. Fleming is to be dean of the quartette in the Police Courts, and his assistants are Guy Eddy, Joseph Ford and Harry Alexander.

Dist.-Atty Fredericks appeared before the Council committee of the whole, yesterday, and with City Attorney Hewitt discussed the situation. The result was that a committee was appointed, composed of President Niles Pease and Councilman A. J. Wallace, E. L. Blanchard and Walter J. Wren, to confer with the District-Attorney and the City Attorney in an endeavor to select two men who would be acceptable to the District-Attorney as his appointees as prosecutor and at the same time would satisfy City Attorney Hewitt as prosecutors of offenders against the city ordinances. It is expected that this committee will report results at tomorrow's session of the City Council.

The act passed by the last State Legislature provides that the District Attorney shall appoint four prosecutors for the Police Courts, and it is also provided that the city may, if it so desires, authorize two of these to prosecute violations of the city ordinances. The city, however, must pay the salaries of these officials.

Dist.-Atty. Fredericks yesterday made a statement of his position, in which he declared that at first he was opposed to the passage of the measure, but that after the investigation he had satisfied himself that it was for the best interests of his office that all departments connected with the prosecution of the State statutes be directly in charge of the District Attorney.

"I have come here to consult with you as to whom these two men shall be, if you decide to select two of my appointees to prosecute violations of your city ordinances. If it is agreeable to you to agree on the appointment of two of my appointees to represent you for this work, I shall endeavor to make such appointments as will be satisfactory to you and the City Attorney. If you decide that the recently-passed law is illegal and that your City Attorney must make separate appointments for city prosecutor, then I have nothing more to offer.

"The four men at the police courts ought to be sufficient to handle all the business there. I see no necessity for six, and hope we can come to some satisfactory understanding on the subject."

"Is your appointment of these four men mandatory?" inquired Councilman Dromgold.

"So I take it," replied the District Attorney.

Both Councilmen Dromgold and Pease expressed themselves as opposed to any move which might compromise the city's stand that the act is unconstitutional and Dromgold advocated the appointment of separate men for the city's work and a pressing of a decision in the courts as to the status of the act.

Other members of the Council looked upon the offer of the District Attorney as the best way out of the situation for the present, and when the vote on the resolution to appoint the conference committee was taken only Dromgold was recorded against it.

City Attorney Hewitt expressed it as his opinion that the more consistent position for the city to maintain was the appointment of its own prosecutors regardless of the District Attorney's appointments, but declared that he should be guided by the desires of the City Council, and if it so desired, he would deputize two of Fredericks's appointees as city prosecutors.

The new law goes into effect Wednesday.

The conference yesterday afternoon was a harmonious one, and the results as given will doubtless meet the approbation of citizens who hope for economy in the conduct of the city's business.

E. J. FLEMING,
the deputy district attorney who will have charge of all prosecutions in the Police Courts after next Tuesday.

E. J. Fleming, who will be in charge of the prosecuting forces in the police courts, has been a member of the District Attorney's staff for four years. Before that he was City Attorney of Pomona. The most important case which he carried to a successful conclusion was the Stackpole murder case. He also successfully prosecuted the Lee, Hart, Myrtle and McClure murder cases. He has had charge of the extradition work of the District Attorney's office ever since he entered it and has never had a requisition for a fugitive refused by any other State.

PUBLIC WORK.

NINE CONTRACTS PLACED.

The Board of Public Works yesterday awarded contracts on nine streets, as follows:

Improvement of Mesa street, from Avenue 59 to Avenue 61, awarded to D. D. Chapman, at $3.80 per lineal foot for grading and graveling; 35 cents per lineal foot for cement curb; 18 cents per square foot for gutter, and 14 cents per square foot for sidewalk.

Sidewalking and curbing Court street, from Hill to a point 151.78 feet east, awarded to Los Angeles Bridge and Construction Company, at 40 cents per lineal foot for cement curb and 14½ cents per square foot for sidewalk.

Constructing a sewer in Darwin avenue, from Hancock street to Eastlake avenue, awarded to R. C. Lowell for $275 for sewer complete.

Improvement of Neva street, from Lafayette street to the north city boundary, awarded to H. H. Curtis at $1.70 per lineal foot for grading and graveling; 35 cents per lineal foot for cement curb; 16 cents per square foot for gutter and 12 cents per square foot for sidewalks.

Improvement of Cashio street, from Long Beach avenue to Leeds street, awarded to H. H. Curtis at $1.75 per lineal foot for grading and graveling; 35 cents per lineal foot for cement curb and 12 cents per square foot for sidewalks.

Improvement of Abbott Place, from Avenue 54 to easterly terminus, awarded to H. H. Curtis at $2.25 per lineal foot for grading and graveling; 35 cents per lineal foot for cement curb; 16 cents per square foot for gutter; 13 cents per square foot for sidewalk and $325 for vitrified pipe culvert.

Sidewalk and curb on Figueroa street, from Sunset boulevard to Alpine street, awarded to Pattillo Contracting Company at 34 cents per lineal foot for cement curb and 12 cents per square foot for sidewalk.

Improvement of Allesandro street, from Effie street to D street, awarded to Samuel McCray at $1.75 per lineal foot for grading and graveling; 36 cents per lineal foot for cement curb; 15 cents per square foot for gutter and 14 cents per square foot for sidewalk.

Sidewalking of Pico street, from Central avenue to San Pedro street, awarded to Jones & Slayden at 11.9 cents per square foot.

BED BUGS SKIDOO.

LODGING-HOUSE ORDINANCE.

Lodging-house keepers must wage war on all creeping things, or suffer the revocation of their permits to keep lodgers. The festive bedbug and other pests are to be legislated out of existence.

Such is one of the provisions of the new lodging-house ordinance which the committee of the whole discussed yesterday, and decided to recommend for passage at tomorrow's session of the City Council.

The proposed ordinance provides that all keepers of tenement-houses, lodging-houses or hotels must apply for and receive permits to conduct such places before they can conduct such business. These permits are to be issued by the Board of Health. The application is to give a complete description of the property.

Various sanitary provisions are made by the ordinance, including the maintenance of a supply of fresh water on each floor, thorough cleaning of all parts of the buildings, and that every room leased for lodgings shall have at least 500 cubic feet of air space in the clear for each occupant, and shall be provided with means of ventilation, so that a complete change of air may be made therein at least once every twenty minutes.

Beds must be separated from each other by passageways of at least three feet, and when one bed is placed above another there shall be a space of not less than four feet in the clear between them. It shall be unlawful for any keeper of such place to "permit" or allow the floors, ceilings or walls of any such building to become dirty or foul, or the bedding or any part thereof to be or become dirty or infected with disease or with live or other parasitic insects." The provision of nonabsorbant receptacles for expectoration, and their thorough cleansing and disinfection every twenty-four hours, is required.

The Board of Health is to have complete charge of the enforcement of the new ordinance, and it is to have power to revoke permits on proof of violation of the provisions of the law. The penalty attached for violations is a fine of from $5 to $500, imprisonment from five days to six months, or both fine and imprisonment. Each day's violation of the ordinance is to constitute a separate offense.

San Fernando Paving.

The Board of Public Works has received but one bid for the paving of San Fernando street, from Main to College streets. This is from the Western Paving Company and its offer is 34 cents per square foot for vitrified brick paving. This is said to be about the same price as has been made on other paving bids of late, but the Board of Public Works is anxious for an expression of opinion from the property owners along the street before any contract is awarded.

Lighting for Pico.

A largely signed petition has been filed with the City Clerk for presentation to the City Council tomorrow, asking that provision be made for the installation of an ornamental lighting system on Pico street, from Main to Vermont avenue, under the provisions of the Municipal Street Lighting Act. Petitioners want ornamental posts at intervals of from 120 to 160 feet on each side of the street, and they want the lights to burn from a half hour after sunset until 10:30 oclock each night, with constant illumination of two clusters of lights at each street intersection. They also ask that the city assume such proportion of the cost, as that now incurred by the lighting of the street. A petition has also been filed asking that the street be cleared of poles, except the transmission poles of the Los Angeles Railway Company, and that these be replaced by ornamental iron posts similar to those now in use on Ninth street.

More "Exams."

The Civil Service Commission held examinations yesterday for patrolmen, matron for Police Station, bulletin clerk and telephone clerk for the Police Stations, drivers and hosemen for the fire department, and an inspector of public safety.

Clay-street Improvements.

For more than four years property owners on Clay street have been working to secure the improvement of that street, and the matter has now reached the point where bids have been received on the proposed work, which includes the cutting down of the steep bank between Second and Third streets. The lowest bidder is R. C. Lowell, whose figures are: For grading and graveling, $2 per lineal foot; 35 cents per square foot for vitrified brick gutter; $7200 for concrete retaining wall; $325 for sewer.

CAR ACCIDENTS.

SEMI-MONTHLY REPORTS.

The Los Angeles and Redondo Railway Company had no accidents within the period from April 15 to 30, and has so reported to the City Clerk. Other accident reports have been filed by the various railway companies, in compliance with the city ordinance. The Los Angeles Railway Company reports thirty-three accidents for this period, in which there were no fatalities, but in which twenty-seven persons were injured.

The Los Angeles-Pacific had ten accidents, in which six people received injuries, but none fatally. One mule and one horse were killed. From May 1 to 15 the Pacific Electric and the Los Angeles Inter-Urban lines had forty-three accidents, in which fifteen persons were injured, but none fatally, they report.

Money Comes Back.

A refreshing experience is that of the City Treasurer in receiving money that had been turned over for a definite use outside regular city expenditures. The Consolidation Commission has sent to the City Treasurer the sum of $494.62, the amount remaining on hand when that body closed up its campaign for consolidation. As the time is so indefinite as to when a further move on this line will be made, the commission decided it best to return the money to the city treasury.

More Street Work.

The City Clerk tomorrow will present to the City Council new petitions for street work which include:

Grading of Ascot avenue, between Fifty-third and Fifty-fifth streets; improvement of Flower street between Temple and Third streets, under the road and oil specifications; improvement of La Salle street from Twenty-first to Twenty-second streets, under bond provisions of the Vrooman act; improvement of Lima street between Vermont avenue and Forty-fifth street, under bond provisions; improvement of Santiago avenue, between Vermont avenue and Forty-fifth street; change of grade of Charlotte avenue from Britannia avenue to ninety feet east of Kingston avenue; improvement of Guirado street between Euclid and Ezra streets under bond provisions; improvement of Old Temple road between Temple street and Coronado street.

Hole Raises Protest.

Antonio Parrazzo has filed with the City Clerk a protest against the act of the People's Gas and Coke Company in making an excavation 50x8 feet in St. John's street, wherein Parrazzo alleges the company intends to place a steel tank in which to store inflammable materials. He asks the City Council to take immediate action to prevent this.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

MUST EXPLAIN DIVORCE CASE.

METHODS PURSUED AROUSE THE AUTHORITIES.

Suspicions, Long Held, of Shady Practices by Attorneys Ripen Into Action in Connection With the Higgerson Suit—"Cobbler Lawyer" to Be Involved.

An order was made by Judge Smith yesterday which indicates that there may be breakers ahead for the "cobbler-lawyer," J. H. Smith, of divorce-case fame, and certain of his associates. H. B. Hunt, known as "Affidavit Hunt," and Attorney Charles J. McKelvey, must appear in Department One of the Superior Court next Tuesday to explain some seemingly peculiar circumstances in connection with an action for divorce brought by Mrs. Ella Higgerson against Henry G. Higgerson.

At first the case appeared to be the ordinary default divorce case, of possibly doubtful merit. The petitioner had come from Cutter, Ill., where her husband lived. The original intention of those who had charge of the divorce proceedings appears to have been to serve notice in the usual

DIAMONDS

A Staple and Imperishable Investment

When the bottom drops out of stocks and bonds; when real estate is a drug on the market; when houses, automobiles and other personal property daily deteriorate from wear and grow less valuable; fine Diamonds remain uninjured by age and are constantly growing more valuable.

Their popularity is never affected by the fickle conceits of fashion. Their possession at all times gives the stamp of prosperity to the prosperous, the insignia of thrift to the thrifty.

But while all Diamonds are a good investment, even as the purchase of land anywhere in the U. S. may safely be considered a good investment, still it is an indisputable fact that absolutely flawless Diamonds of the finest color make the safest and most profitable investment.

If you are a person who would investigate the relative merits of a piece of real estate and would compare prices and salability before buying, you should also investigate the superior merits of the Flawless Blue White and Extra White Diamonds, which we handle exclusively.

DUNKERS GATHERED IN THE ANGEL CITY.

First General Conference West of the Rocky Mountains Now Held—Frugal and Industrious People—Their Faith and Practice Explained.

GATHERED from every State in the Union, for the first time west of the Rocky Mountains, Los Angeles is today entertaining thousands of what has always been considered a peculiar sect of people. They are sometimes called the "German Baptist Brethren," perhaps more commonly known to the outside world as "Dunkards," but which name they regard as an epithet and look upon it with much disfavor. They, however, recognize the name "Dunker" and use it to some extent, though they generally designate themselves as "The Brethren."

Their annual conference has been held alternately in the territory east of the Ohio River; between the Ohio and the Mississippi; between the Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains, and now it has come over the range. In Pennsylvania their greatest meetings have been held, it being said that as many as 50,000 people have attended some of them. They are now assembled in this city for their annual session, with headquarters at Temple Auditorium, and a brief statement of their history, beliefs and customs will prove interesting to the readers of The Times.

The present generation of Dunkers has made great progress towards the manners and customs of other bodies of Christian people, when compared with the rigid rules that governed them in the days gone by, and many of them are today numbered among the most progressive people of the United States. As a body they have always been known for industry, rigid rules of morality and deep piety, and have clung tenaciously to what they believe to be the Apostolic usages and practices.

Since the second century, A.D., there have been attempts on the part of many to depart from these early principles, but always attended by the most vigorous and determined protests from the great body of Dunkers. At the close of the seventeenth century, Alexander Mack of Schwartzenau, Germany, was a leader of the Protestants against departure from the early tenets, and he and others of similar mind resolved to study the Word of God, with a view of receiving and believing all its facts, and of obeying all its commands, in the belief that in this way they would be certain to enjoy all its promises. They adopted the New Testament as their creed.

The condensation of the history of the Dunker Church here given is prepared by M. M. Eshelman, who is a recognized authority.

Chief of the Dunker publications—Elder J. H. Moore, managing editor of the Gospel Messenger, on the left, and Elder I. B. Trout, editor of the Sunday-school publications.

In 1708 a company of eight souls repaired to the River Eder and were "buried with Christ" in baptism, trine immersion being the mode used. The church was organized, and Alexander Mack was chosen as its first minister, but he has never been regarded as the founder of the church. The Brethren claim to follow only Christ and they accept His Word as their rule of faith and practice.

The infant church increased in numbers rapidly, but even in Witgenstein their peace was soon disturbed, and, although they lived peaceful and harmless lives, the hand of persecution was laid heavily upon them. Mack, in company with Hochman, preached in many parts of Germany and Holland. Here they met and formed the acquaintance of William Penn, who was at that time much interested in his colony in the New World. The Brethren were invited to settle in Pennsylvania, and, as they were sorely persecuted, the invitation was accepted.

In 1719 they commenced emigrating to America, and in less than ten years the entire church found itself quietly settled down in the vicinity of Germantown and Philadelphia. From this nucleus, formed in the New World, the church spread southward and westward, and flourishing congregations are now found from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

FAITH AND PRACTICE.

In the subtleties of speculative theology the church takes but little interest. She is chiefly concerned in giving willing and cheerful obedience to the plain, simple commandments of Christ Jesus. The Brethren are, in every respect, evangelical in their faith. They believe in the Trinity, in the divinity of Christ and of the Holy Spirit, and in future rewards and punishments. Love, faith, repentance and baptism are held to be conditions of pardon. These four constitute true evangelical conversion, and upon them rests the promise of the forgiveness of sins and the gift of the Holy Ghost.

Baptism is administered by trine immersion. After being instructed in the principles of the Gospel, and having faithfully promised to observe the same, the applicant is taken down into the water, and, kneeling, reaffirms his faith in Christ and promises to live faithful until death. He is then baptized for the remission of his sins, into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, the administrator immersing the applicant face forward at the mention of each name in the Trinity. The administrator then lays his hands on the head of the kneeling candidate and offers a brief prayer in behalf of the one baptized, and he rises to be greeted as a brother, with the right hand of fellowship and the kiss of love, to walk in newness of life.

The Brethren follow closely the practice of the apostolic church, and admit none into fellowship until they have been baptized. Holding that baptism is only for believers and those who have repented, they oppose infant baptism, declaring that infants can neither believe nor repent, hence they are not proper subjects for baptism. They hold that Christ, having sufficiently atoned for them, all children who die before coming to a knowledge of good and evil will be saved.

AGAPE, OR FEAST OF LOVE.

The evening before his death, our blessed Master, after having washed His Disciples' feet, ate a supper with them and instituted, in connection with this sacred meal, the communion—the bread and cup. The Apostles, led by the Holy Spirit, followed the example of their great leader and introduced the agape into the apostolic church. This feast of love, of which all the Christians partook, was a full meal, was eaten in the evening, and is called by the Apostle Paul the Lord's Supper. The communion of the bread and wine was given in connection with this meal. The love feast was kept up in the primitive church for four centuries, but as the church grew in numbers and wealth, it lost its first love and spirit of fraternity, and the feasts of love were discontinued. The Brethren, in their reformatory movement in 1708, restored these love feasts, and in this particular still follow the example of Christ and the practice of the Apostles and primitive Christians, and keep the feast of love. A full meal is prepared and placed upon tables, used for that purpose, in the church, and all the members partake of the supper.

Before eating supper, the religious rite of washing feet is observed. Their authority for this practice is found in John xiii, 1-17. In their practice of the ordinance of feet washing at love feast, the Brethren follow very closely the example of the Master. Water is poured into a basin, a brother girds himself with a towel and washes and wipes his brother's bared feet, and in turn has his feet washed. The rite is in this way performed over the entire congregation. The sisters wash the sisters' feet and all the proprieties of the sexes are most rigidly observed. By this ordinance the Gospel principle of humility is set forth and by its observance all are placed on a common level. The rich and poor stand alike together in the great brotherhood established by Christ.

After observing the ceremony of feet washing, a blessing is asked upon the simple meal spread on the tables, and it is eaten with solemnity. At the conclusion of the meal, thanks are returned, and then, as the members are seated around the table, the right hand of fellowship and the kiss of charity are given. The salutation of the kiss of love in worship and in customary greetings, as enjoined by the Apostles, is never observed between the sexes.

The communion is then administered. The emblems are passed from hand to hand by the brethren, while the officiating minister breaks the bread and passes the cup to the sisters. After this, a season of earnest devotion follows, and then a hymn is sung and the services are closed for the evening. Love feasts are held in each congregation usually once or twice each year, but as the members visit from congregation to congregation during the love-feast season, they engage many times in this service during the year.

CHURCH GOVERNMENT.

The Brethren have a republican form of church government. Each congregation is independent in the management of its local affairs, such as the election of deacons, ministers, elders or bishops, and in matters of local church discipline; but is subject to the entire brotherhood through district and general conferences.

The general conference is a great annual reunion for the Brethren, and is the body now in session in Los Angeles. They come together from all parts of the country, and it is not unusual for thousands of them to assemble at the place of meeting.

The decisions of the conference are to be adhered to by all the members of the church, and questions referring to church doctrine rarely come before the conference, proving that there has been a firm adherence to the principles of the Gospel, as originally adopted by the church. The tendency of the conference and the annual reunions is to unify the Brethren in all their church work, and it is a fact that there is rarely found so large a body of religious people so closely united on the doctrines and principles to which they hold.

Elders, ministers and deacons are elected by the church from among her members, such as she may deem qualified for the important work to which they are called. Each member, without reference to sex, has a right to cast a vote. Ministers, after giving full proof of their faithfulness and ability, are advanced to the "second degree" of the ministry. They are then authorized to baptize, solemnize marriage, and make and fill appointments for preaching the Word. Elders or bishops, who preside over the congregations are chosen from the ministers in the second degree. No salaries are paid, but poor ministers, and those who are sent out as missionaries, are properly supported.

A PECULIAR PEOPLE.

The Brethren claim to be, and are in many respects, a peculiar people. Plain dressing is taught and required, and a general uniformity is observed, but this is regarded as a means to an end. They believe that the New Testament teaches plainness in attire, and that, by a general uniformity of habit, marked enough to distinguish the church from the world, gospel plainness may be made a living fact instead of a dead letter, as it has become in many other churches whose discipline strongly insists on plain dressing.

The Brethren are not allowed to go to law with one of their own number, nor with others, without first asking the counsel of the church, and it is rare indeed for a brother to be engaged in a lawsuit. Among themselves, differences are adjusted personally, or by the church, in accordance with the Christian law of trespass given by the Master.

The fraternity is strictly non-resistant as well as non-litigant. It is held that Christ is the "Prince of Peace," that His Word is "the gospel of peace," hence his servants can not go to war and fight. They take no active part in politics, and "swear not at all." If called upon to testify in the courts, they simply affirm, without raising the hand or kissing the Bible. No brother may become a member of any secret or oath-bound society, the Brethren holding that the gospel of Jesus Christ is fully sufficient for all the wants of humanity.

The Brethren hold that the marriage bond can only be dissolved by death. Divorce and re-marriage are practically unknown among the membership.

They anoint the sick with oil, but this rite is administered only at the request of the sick.

The church aims to maintain the poor, hence in many parts of the brotherhood old folks' homes have been set apart for the aged, needy ones. As members of one common family, all are held as brothers and sisters, these endearing terms being freely used in addressing each other. Hospitality, sympathy and generosity are virtues greatly admired by them.

On the question of temperance and prohibition the Brethren have, for more than a century, given no uncertain testimony. They are one of the oldest temperance organizations in the United States. More than one hundred years ago a decision was passed forbidding any of the members to engage in the manufacture or sale of intoxicants. They forbid the use of all alcoholic or malt liquors as a beverage, in public or private. They request the members not even to have dealings with saloonkeepers. They discourage the use of tobacco, and the rule is that no brother can be installed in office who uses tobacco, without making a promise to quit it. All applicants for baptism who are addicted to the tobacco habit are advised to abstain from its use before they are received into church fellowship.

The fraternity is largely engaged in agricultural pursuits, but men and women in other departments of human endeavor may be found enrolled among its members.

Eight schools or colleges are in successful operation, over which the church has a supervisory control. The church has a well-organized Missionary and Tract Society, controlled by a committee of five, appointed by the conference. The Gospel Messenger, the Inglenook, two Sunday-school papers, a Sunday-school monthly, the Missionary Visitor, and other papers, are published by the committee. All the profits arising from these publications are used in mission work at home or abroad.

An extensive foreign mission is maintained in India, with stations in France, Sweden, Denmark and Asia Minor. Over $500,000 is held in trust for missionary work, and the contributions for all good works are increasing. A tremendous growth in sentiment for missionary and educational work has characterized this people during the past forty years.

The Brethren are well known as a quiet, peaceable, unassuming people. Habits of strict economy prevail amongst them, and, by their adherence to plainness in dress and living, they are, as a rule, well to do, and are able to meet their obligations. They enjoy an enviable reputation for honesty in the communities where they live. They manifest a strong devotion to the Bible and are consistently laboring to live out the principles and the spirit of the Man of Sorrows. The church in general has not, as yet, felt the withering influence of worldlyism within her borders. Caste distinctions and differences, born of human pride, have not entered her doors. Rich and poor, high and low, meet alike as one common family in Christ, and the fraternal sentiment is largely developed in her membership. The church has been richly blessed of God and is in a prosperous condition; and before her there is opening a great field for work, in promulgating the principles of primitive and apostolic Christianity.

REMARKABLE MAN.

Managing Editor of "Gospel Messenger," Who Went Three Months to School.

Elder J. H. Moore, managing editor of the Gospel Messenger, the church organ of the Brethren, hails from Virginia, where he was born April 8, 1846. When about 4 years old he was taken by his parestnts in a "prairie schooner," to Woodford county, Ill. Six years later his parents moved to Cedar county, Mo., nearly 150 miles from a railroad. His experiences in the wilds of the West probably form the most exacting and helpful period of his life.

During the Civil War his parents found it necessary to leave Missouri and return to Illinois. Elder Moore, then about 15 years old, walked barefooted through the heat of August, nearly the entire distance. He lived a short time at different places, and finally settled near Champaign City, where, at the age of 22, he was called to the ministry.

He had, up to this time, spent but a few months in the public schools. Three months in school, after he commenced preaching, completed his work in the schoolroom. From boyhood, however, he had always been a careful reader and diligent student, and while engaged at house painting, he studied of nights. He became the author of a few doctrinal pamphlets, that have reached a wide circulation, and are still in great demand.

In 1876 he moved to Lanark, Ill., and aided as senior editor, in establishing the "Brethren at Work," the first church paper among the Brethren in the West. The paper, a few years later, was moved to Mt. Morris, Ill., consolidated with other papers, and the name changed to Gospel Messenger. Elder Moore was chosen managing editor, which position he held until the spring of 1884, when he resigned and went South, remaining in Florida and Southern Georgia seven years. After repeated efforts upon the part of the publishers he was induced to return and resume his place on the Messenber as managing editor, which position he still holds.

In 1898 he traveled extensively in Europe, Asia and Africa, and on this trip he rode from Damascus to Jerusalem on horseback.

His home is now in Elgin where the publishing house was removed in 1899. This is his third trip to California. Last fall he visited Los Angeles and other points in Southern California, and wrote for his paper an extended account of his trip. This he did for the purpose of calling special attention to the first annual conference to be held on the Coast.

CALIFORNIA DUNKERS.

First Came in 1849, but Rapid Growth Did Not Begin Until Seventeen Years Ago.

Soon after the discovery of gold in 1849, S. A. Overholtzer, Daniel Houser and George Wolf came across the continent by team and settled near Stockton, where they built up a congregation. Houser and Overholtzer later came to Covina, and next a small number of Dunkers settled in Ventura county. With these two settlements, a State conference was founded in 1889 and Elder J. S. Flory was its first representative in general conference, which met at Harrisburg, Va., that year.

In 1888 Elder David Norcross of Indiana arrived and with his great vigor and deep spiritual powers did noble work in pioneering. In the autumn of 1889, George L. McDonaugh, colonization agent of the Santa Fé system, arrived with M. M. Eschelman and Henry Frantz. These two, with the late Dr. T. J. Nair, secured an option on the Lordsburg Hotel, and through the financial efforts of Daniel Houser, David Kuns, S. A. Overholtzer and Henry Kuns, the Lordsburg College was established. Immigration of Dunkers was greatly stimulated by Allen Manvel, then president of the Santa Fé Railroad, who transferred Mr. McDonaugh to this coast to direct the colonization.

In 1890 the enterprising people of Los Angeles county contributed a car of horticultural exhibits, and these were sent to the general conference at Warrensburg, Mo., and another in 1893, at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. From these colonization efforts, with diligent ministerial and missionary work, there has come about twenty churches in the State.

The per capita contributions for missionary work, by California members, exceeds that of any other State conference. Over $75,000 has been donated by the churches for home and foreign missions, the past fifteen years. Flourishing Sunday-schools and other good works are maintained. In 1890 the first call was made for the conference, and after seventeen years of persistent effort, Los Angeles has the conference.

THOSE DAINTY DUNKER POKES.

Lively Day Among Brethren Yesterday.

Some Radical Changes Will Be Discussed.

Shall Sisters Enter Into Full Ministry?

Real activity began at Temple Auditorium yesterday, in connection with the Dunker national conference. They had the building all to themselves and everything was in a hum of excitement.

For several days those who have been on the ground have been taking in the sights, but yesterday they gathered at the Auditorium for the meeting of the mission boards, and the crowd was argmented by hundreds more arriving direct from the railway stations, coming to be assigned to quarters.

It was a seething mass of neatly-bonneted women of all ages, and men in broad-brimmed hats. Both sexes wear plain clothes, either in gray or black, in accordance with their principles of exact equality. The women kiss when they meet for the first time; so do the men; but they never cross sexes in their kissing.

There are few handsomer pictures than one of these dainty little Dunker women, clad in pearl-colored poplin, wearing a jaunty little poke bonnet to match, and smiling in sweet content. A plain face becomes pretty in such a setting, and a beautiful face truly angelic.

The same cannot be said of the men, but they do not go on good looks. Most of the bewhiskered faces remind one of the men of forty years ago, the difference being that the Dunkers have clung to the same style of whiskers, while most other men have discarded them entirely.

Said a well-known Dunker yesterday: "The peculiarities of the brethren are little understood by those not of them. Equality fosters sociability; to be social one must love, and love forbids caste. To maintain love and keep out caste, they have adopted their simple practices and style of dress. They cannot be known and understood by opposing them; they do not come that way."

CROWD TOO GREAT.

The meeting of the district mission boards was announced for Choral Hall yesterday afternoon, which will hold 600 people, but it was soon found that it would not accommodate the crowd, though this is but another of the preliminary meetings. The big auditorium was thrown open to them and over 1500 gathered to hear the addresses on the subject of how to foster missionary work.

Last night Elder McCann of India delivered a lecture on various phases of life in that country, in the presence of a great audience that practically filled the auditorium to the topmost gallery.

Today services will be held as follows: Sunday-school in the Auditorium at 9:30; primary class in Choral Hall; sermon in Auditorium by I. B. Trout of Lanark, Ill., at 11 o'clock; at same hour in Choral Hall, by Bishop L. T. Holsinger, moderator of the conference. At 3:30 p.m., sermon in the Auditorium by Galen B. Royer of Illinois; song service in Choral Hall at 7:30, with sermon by Isaac Frantz of Ohio.

On Monday the Sunday-school annual meeting will be held in the morning and the missionary meeting and educational meeting in the afternoon. At the morning meeting there will be addresses by H. P. Albaugh, F. H. Crumpacker, Levi Minnich, J. W. Cline. H. C. Early of Virginia will address the missionary meeting at 1:30, and the educational meeting at 3 o'clock will be addressed by W. J. Swigert of Pennsylvania and D. C. Flory, the latter making a brief talk on "The Future of Our Schools." Monday night J. J. Yoder of Kansas will deliver the annual temperance sermon.

MACHINERY TO START.

The machinery of the conference will move at 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning, when the Standing Committee, consisting of thirty-nine bishops, will appear and officially announce the names of the officers elected at the meeting of the committee on Thursday, and Bishop Holsinger, the new moderator, will take up the gavel.

The business sessions of the conference will last only three days, but the Bible institute will continue nightly until June 7.

In addition to the consideration of the question of the itineracy for Dunker ministers, the question of sports in the Dunker schools and other important items of unfinished business will be discussed and disposed of.

One of these will be concerning the adoption of a "letter of standing" for members removing from one place to another, as is done in other churches, these letters to be void after six months.

Increase of business with the advance of time has called for more time for business, and the committee in charge of that point will recommend that hereafter the sessions of the conference shall open on Monday, instead of on Tuesday as at present.

SOME BURNING QUESTIONS.

It is intimated that there will be a strong effort made to withdraw the energy of the boys in the schools from baseball and football, and turn them to seeking the necessary exercise on school farms, where they may get it by plowing and raising stock.

Perhaps the greatest debate that will stir the national body will be that on the question of the right of admitting the sisters to the right of administering the communion, in the same way it is done by the men. The discussion will be introduced by the report of a committee appointed at the last annual meeting.

Another important innovation will be proposed in the report of another committee, which will recommend for adoption a system of support for the ministry, as in other churches. At present a Dunker minister receives no salary, but earns his bread as other laborers do, and preaches for his faith's sake.

An effort will be renewed to change the official name of the church from "German Baptist Brethren" to something more suitable. The preaching is nearly all in Englishe and the printing entirely so, and progressive Dunkers argue that the title is misleading.

Among the items of new business is a report concerning the wearing of "flashy" neckties, which may be expected to create considerable interest, as an entering wedge in the [illegible] of dress.

An effort will also be made [illegible] the law so changed that no [illegible] serve more than two years [illegible] sion on the Standing Committee.

These are but a few of the [illegible] that promise to make the Los [illegible] conference an interesting [illegible] one. Los Angeles is a city of [illegible] tions, anyway.

Furniture for Summer Comfort

THE advent of summer brings about the thought of comfortable, cool furnishings for the porch, the bungalow and the beach cottage. It suggests furniture that is restful in appearance, comfortable in design and durable in construction.

We are showing a comprehensive collection of summer furniture in which these essentials are combined to a remarkable degree.

The furniture is made from specially selected which by special process of treatment, is rendered very pliable and exceedingly tough. An important feature of this imported grass is the absence of that wiry harshness, which is so objectionable to most grass furniture.

The collection includes arm chairs, arm rockers, settees, tables, stools, and other fancy pieces. They are shown in the natural soft restful green tones of this imported grass. The designs are pleasing and artistic. The pliability of the material renders every piece most comfortable, giving a remarkable degree of conformity to every inclination of the body.

The prices of this furniture are very considerate. An arm chair or arm rocker of comfortable design may be had for $11.50. Tables are priced as low as $7.50. The display of these pieces we are making this week in one of our windows, will give you an idea of the comprehensiveness of the display on our floors.

Follow the Lead of the Shrewdest Investors in the Country

Buy Steel Shares Now

And lay the foundation of your fortune, as did the lucky ones who got into the Bessemer Converter, Air Brake, Bell Telephone and Mergenthaler Linotype, when those stocks were relatively cheap.

The company first operating with the Bessemer process of making steel has produced $200,000 for every $100 invested at the start of that great invention. Keep this instructive lesson in mind when considering the future of the Delaware & Lackawanna Steel Company, the first in the country to operate with the Wills process, which is as great or a still greater improvement in the making of steel than was the Bessemer converter.

The Wills process for making steel is thoroughly covered with United States patents, as well as by Canadian and European patents, which protect it in these countries.

The Delaware & Lackawanna Steel Company has a license to use the Wills process in perpetuity, and also to install seven Wills converters, each with a capacity of 80,000 pounds of steel daily, in its plant.

Non-assessable common shares participating in all the earnings of the Delaware & Lackawanna Steel Company at the present low price are the nest eggs of fortunes.

$1.25 NOW FOR SHARES

That started at $1, going to $2 Saturday night, May 25—will have a market value of from $8 to $10 and earn from 30 to 75 per cent. at the end of the first year's operation of the plant.

Delaware & Lackawanna Dividends Will Be All Out of Proportion to the Capital Invested

They will be as big, if not bigger, than any of those above named. You can readily satisfy yourself on that point—you can figure it out for yourself. As well try to stop the waves of the ocean as to stop the onward sweep of the Wills process once the steel is put on the market.

THE WILLS PROCESS IS THE NEW PROCESS BY WHICH STEEL IS CAST DIRECT FROM THE CONVERTER, THEREBY ELIMINATING THE EXPENSIVE PROCESS NOW IN GENERAL USE OF FORGING AND ROLLING, BY VAST AND EXPENSIVE MACHINERY, THE STEEL INTO THE DESIRED FORMS. IT THUS SAVES TIME, WAGES AND THE COST OF EXPENSIVE MACHINERY, WHILE THE QUALITY OF STEEL IS STRONGER AND BETTER.

It revolutionizes steel making as the perfecting press revolutionized newspaper printing, and as the Mergenthaler typesetting machine revolutionized typesetting. Every steel man recognizes this, and also concedes that the Wills process will eventually be necessary to every steel plant that expects to compete for business.

Present Plans Cannot Compete With Steel Made by Wills' Process

Every steel man who has investigated the Wills process could tell you the same thing. Why? Because the Wills process makes better steel, quicker steel and cheaper steel at a greater profit to the manufacturer. Eventually every steel plant in the country will be compelled to adopt the Wills process of making steel, but it will take years to bring about this change. In the meantime, stockholders of the Delaware & Lackawana Steel Company will have become rich.

This then is the Key to the Companys' Situation

It begins operations with the advantages of having the best and most improved process of making perfect steel in existence. It already has more orders on hand for steel than it can possibly fill in a year.

It has New York steel and financial men back of it who have made a success of every enterprise they have ever been connected with. This company starts business without a debt and on a money-earning basis from the start. Shrewd investors, seeing the enormous profits possible, are taking every share they can carry.

This stock started at $1 a share. Then it went rapidly to $1.25 and next to $2.00. As there are but a few hundred share more to sell at this $1.25 price, you can see that prompt action will be necessary to get in.

Better wire your subscription and follow it up with remittance, for the shares are positively going to $2.00 Saturday night, May 25. This stock is all common—there are no preferred shares, and participate in all the earnings of the company's iron and brass foundries in addition to the profits from the steel plant. The shares are issued full paid and non-assessable, and the company owns its own mammoth steel plant, iron and brass foundries, cupolas, cranes, etc., covering 4½ acres of land situated at Oxford, N. J., practically within the shadow of New York City, Jersey City and Brooklyn, only ¼ mile from some of the biggest iron mines in the country, which can furnish this company more pig iron in a month than it can possibly use in a year. The capitalization is very low—only $200,000—for so great a proposition.

This company has but to operate the plant with three Wills converters, and its iron and brass foundries, to earn over 1000 per cent. a year on its entire capitalization.

The finger of destiny points to fortunes in the steel industry. Today you have the opportunity to secure stock at the bottom price in the greatest of improved processes of making steel. You should not let this opportunity pass, in justice to yourself. The demand for steel is greater by far than the supply, and will continue to be so, as every branch of mechanical and construction work is becoming more and more dependent upon it.

Use the Coupon

Come into our office, get additional information, and investigate this proposition at once. The more closely it is examined, the more stock you will want. If you haven't time to call, mail in this coupon and we will send you printed mater, or better still to be absolutely sure of getting shares at the $1.25 price, send in your order or wire at once for as many shares as you desire with remittance by check, money order, registered mail or bank draft.

HOT WEATHER BOOSTS BITING.

Anglers Report Better Sport at the Beaches.

Mackerel and Pompano at Redondo Beach.

Corbina and Yellowfin Furnish Good Fishing.

Sea anglers have been rewarded with an answer to their hopes of hotter weather, which was needed to bring the surf fishing up to what it should be at this time of the year, and the delightful days that made all the latter part of last week so enjoyable are, in great measure, responsible for the general exodus of rod and reel men who left the city yesterday and expect to go early this morning for beach points, where the corbina and yellowfin are found.

In every branch of angling in salt water, conditions are improving rapidly, although another week like the last is needed to put the fish on feed generally. The present season has been an early one in many respects. As a rule, good surf fishing is not to be expected much before Memorial Day. Trolling, with the exception of barracuda, which are likely to appear late in March, generally is poor until June, although one may strike occasional good days outside before that time. After the weather settles, the chances of making a good day of it at the beaches or in the channel are better.

Reports that have come up from the various resorts during the week are encouraging, in the main, although no big catches have been reported at headquarters, either as regards size or numbers.

Those who like small fishing and are partial to mackerel, would do well to try Redondo today. George Pomeroy of that place reports excellent average sport with the corn-feds, and says they are steadily growing larger in size. Catches of a hundred have been made, and a fine basket is almost certain. Furthermore, Pomeroy states that for the first time in several seasons the pompano have been running in old-time style at Redondo. Strings of half a hundred frequently are taken in a morning, and the fish are large, many weighing half a pound each.

A market fisherman of Redondo declares he caught on his set lines off that port, one day last week, two immense pompano, one of which scaled over seven pounds, the other weighing more than five. The catch is not very well authenticated, and is exceptional for the variety on this Coast, although probably the fish attain that weight on the Carolina shores. The pompano is a game fish, and one of five pounds weight ought to put up a truly creditable fight upon light tackle.

FIND BIG FISH.

Some big fish are seen around the wharves at Redondo. Good catches have been made off wharf No. 3, and it seems to be the favorite with a number of anglers. The yellowtail and white bass are not taking bait to any appreciable extent around any of the wharves, although a few halibut are feeding.

Rock bass have been taking bait more or less all spring, but good sport is being enjoyed by those who seek them now. The breakwater outside San Pedro is losing its popularity with anglers because of the difficulty with which it is reached, but notwithstanding that fact a few go out every Sunday to hook up with the yellow-bellies in the kelp. Port Los Angeles is in the same position, and some very creditable fish have come up from both places during the last week.

According to Harry Lynch of Terminal, who keeps closely posted upon the outside fishing, the yellowtail, bass and bonita are beginning to do business again between Point Fermin and Point Vincent. Lynch's boats have taken more or less bass all winter. Some barracuda catches are made in the same country, and several local anglers, among them E. E. Salyer and Warde Heller, have planned to see what is doing in that part of the ocean today.

Plenty of fish have been seen on the Bolsa and Newport banks, and there is no doubt that plenty of yellowtail await those who troll there. It is a long jaunt from San Pedro or Long Beach, and can be reached best from Newport or Huntington Beach.

Anglers who have fished at Balboa and other southern points along the Huntington lines declare the sport is improving. Corbina are more plentiful and more willing to bite. The sand crabs are coming to the surface quite generally, and are of good size. Some parties catching corbina at Huntington Beach examined their stomachs and found that they had been feeding principally upon the large purple pile worms which infest the old piling under the wharf. This, no doubt, accounts for the fact that a large corbina frequently is taken by casting right under the wharf, close to the piling. They resort to such a place because the swirl of the water stirs up food for them, and dislodges the pile worms from their abode in the big timbers.

GOOD CONDITIONS.

At Sunset Beach favorable conditions await the angler just now. Bay City wharf has commanded a great deal of attention, also. Sometimes clams for bait can be obtained at these places, which will prove an added attraction to the fishermen, whose order for bait has been overlooked in the Saturday hurry.

Today, from all the evidence that can be secured, most of the regulars are planning to invade Anaheim Landing. William F. Weber, Sherman Baker, Eugene Elliott, William G. Stearns, Smith Warren and Tracy Shoults form a party, which has planned to pass the day at the landing.

Anaheim Bay is a good place to fish, but only the past master of the angling game has any business there. The angling hazards are many and diverse. Rocky ledges fringe the depths of the channel, and only by careful, patient work can tackle be saved when it becomes foul. There is a great deal of kelp in the channel, also. When the tide is running swiftly, the unskilled angler is likely to foul a floating island of the stuff and break his gear hopelessly trying to tear his way free of it.

Today's tides are rather favorable to bay fishing, because there is no great rise to the tide. The water is coming in for eight hours after 8 o'clock in the morning, and only rises about a foot in that time, which gives a reasonable current and long periods of slack water.

Nothing has been reported from the croakers in San Pedro Bay. With the warm weather, it looks as if they might have knocked off operations for the summer. The dredger has moved up the bay about a mile and a half from her old location, and is attacking the bar at Croaker Point. When she begins to break up the cockle and scallop and razor clam beds there may be something further heard from the croakers, who really ought to be in the vicinity about the time the shellfish melon is cut. Smith Warren fished several days there with little success during the week.

Yellowfin are beginning to run a little at Playa del Rey and Manhattan, where the sand-crab crop is rapidly reaching maturity, also. No reports have been received from persons fishing off the beach, but as soon as the tides serve, it is likely there will be something doing along the strand from Del Rey to Hermosa. A tide filling at about dark in the evening and attaining considerable height seems most popular with yellowfin anglers, although for corbina the slower tides with less current are more likely to produce results.

In all branches of small fish angling there is considerable activity just at present. The large, silvery sardines that appeared at Redondo a few weeks ago seem to have disappeared, or, at least, become much scarcer. They are only stragglers upon this Coast, however, and are not to be looked for at any time.

Several big China croakers were caught last week. Smith Warren landed one weighing over three pounds in San Pedro Bay. They generally bite well during the month of May.

COTTAGE WITH A MISSION.

First Maternity Hospital Here for Poor Women to Be Dedicated This Afternoon.

A modest little cottage out in an obscure neighborhood across the river, at No. 151 North Rio street, will be dedicated this afternoon. The cottage has a holy mission to perform—for it will be the first maternity hospital for poor women in Los Angeles.

With only one furnished bedroom, and a modern bathroom and a completely furnished up-to-date kitchen, this little building represents the only separate effort that has ever been made here to provide for destitute women over whom the stork is hovering—the most helpless beings on the face of God's earth. This small beginning in the right direction has been made by the Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church, and through their efforts the cottage has been finished and paid for.

A lot was leased for three years at $6 a month, and the whole matter was accomplished in three months and sixteen days.

The only source of income that the women have for this enterprise consists of eight annual subscriptions of $10 each, and the proceeds from a second-hand store that the alliance has conducted since last January at No. 1300 Kearny street, in the heart of a needy section.

At this store every article that can be of use to a human being, clothing, dishes, furniture, bedding, trunks, valises, suit cases, pictures, garden tools, bric-a-brac, sewing machines, sewing materials, and musical instruments are kept in stock, being contributed by people who are interested in the work who no longer need the things themselves. A nominal valuation is placed upon the articles and the people of the neighborhood who are the purchasers have found the store a real philanthropic helper.

At the same time a small income accrues and is used to pay rent, the surplus having been used for the erection of the maternity cottage. A little later a sewing room will be started at the cottage, where sewing will be taught, and clothing made, and repaired for the store. The committee in charge of the maternity cottage comprises Mrs. J. B. Ware, Mrs. H. C. Dillon, Mrs. S. B. McLenegan, Mrs. William Baurhyte and C. J. Fox.

The dedication services will be held at the cottage this afternoon at 4 o'clock and all who are interested are privileged to attend.

ENTRYMAN'S LANDS SAVED.

Land Office Decides in Favor of Imperial Valley Settler Who Was a Few Days Late.

A decision was rendered yesterday by the Register of the local Land Office to the effect that where an entryman has completed the necessary improvements on his land, within a few days after the expiration of the four years, he still preserves his equitable rights. The case was that of E. J. Smith against Warner G. Munger, who spent $7000 for reclamation, effected seventeen days after the expiration of four years from entry.

Smith brought a claim in the Land Office to the land, alleging that Munger had not reclaimed within the meaning of the procedure of the Department of the Interior.

According to the evidence, Munger was prevented from making improvements by recurring floods which destroyed his crops and swept away the results of years of toil.

The land is situated in the Imperial Valley, about forty miles from Flowing Wells, in the dry bed of Mesquite Lake.

Register Prescott says, in his decision: "Conditions in the whole Imperial Valley have been for the past four years, and now are, very unsatisfactory and complex, both naturally and artificially. The trouble with surveys, submerging and consequent and necessary suspensions have made the claimant's lot a difficult one. Only in cases of manifest indifference and neglect can this office, daily in contact with pioneers, overcome with distress and hardship, feel justified in a harsh and technical ruling."

According to a number of quoted decisions, the Department of the Interior holds that where the entryman, in good faith, is engaged in curing defaults at the time a contest is begun, the contest must fail. The decision of yesterday follows along the same lines and the Receiver and Register say the contest should be dismissed, the final proof on the Munger lands be received and suspended pending resurvey or such further investigation as superior authority may deem expedient, and it is so recommended."

ACCIDENTAL, SAYS CORONER.

An inquest was held yesterday at Bresee Bros. on the body of Francisco Giron of Burbank, who was killed by a Southern Pacific train. A verdict of accidental death was rendered. Giron was killed while alighting from a fast passenger train. He stepped on a loose rock and was thrown under the wheels.

IS ARRESTED AGAIN.

E. H. Crowley was arrested yesterday for the fifth time since the edict of the Chief of Police placed a ban on his labor agency on East Second street. Crowley spent an anxious half-hour yesterday, waiting for bail money, which finally came. Several cases are pending against Crowley in the Police Court, where he is charged with conducting a labor agency without a license.

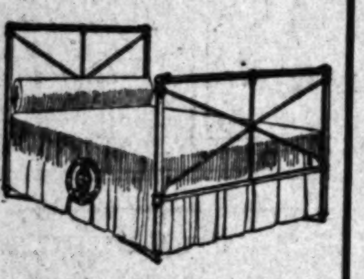
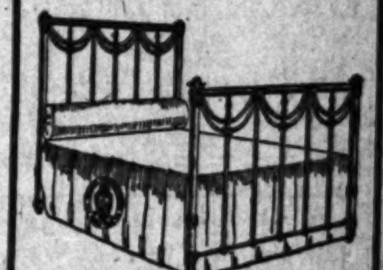
Greatest Sale of

Brass and Iron Beds

Ever Known on the Coast

This great sale of brass and iron beds has no precedent in the furniture history of the coast. It will not pay you to buy a bed anywhere else at any price offered until you have seen this remarkable exhibit of beds. Three full carloads just received have augmented our surplus stock to such a degree that their room is more desirable than their company, and we have marked the prices down to sell as many as possible this week. There are over 500 samples in sight on our floor, no two alike and of every size, style, color and quality made. It is, without an exception, the largest and most varied assortment of brass and iron beds ever shown outside of Chicago. We can please you in the bed and the price, match any color, carpet, wall or furniture, and save you money besides.





Prices Reduced So Low that You Simply Cannot Afford to Buy a Bed This Week at Any Other Store

Unexampled Suit-Price Shattering

$25 for Silk and Wool Models worth to $65

An Almost Incredible Offering

AGAIN Monday is our famous Second Floor to the front with the most stupendous suit value ever chronicled in this city. The indirect cause of this unparalleled price reduction is a backward season accompanied with disagreeable weather. Instead of bright, cheerful, sunshiny days, we have had parceled out to us in an almost continuous performance fog, dank and cold. These and other untoward conditions have retarded sales to an unpleasant degree. To offset this state of affairs, we are employing the one remedy—it is somewhat drastic but always efficient. Our entire collection of exquisite, high art silk and wool suits, selling as high as $65.00, will be sacrificed Monday for the ridiculously small sum of $25.00. Nearly every fashionable woman in town has seen some of these garments and knows what they have been selling for during the last three months, anl also knows that they are the smartest styles and the best values in Los Angeles at our regular prices, so judge for yourself what the value must be Monday at $25.00! Every style suit in silk and wool, every color, every novelty in design and weave, the handsomest suits shown anywhere at any price. Second Floor.

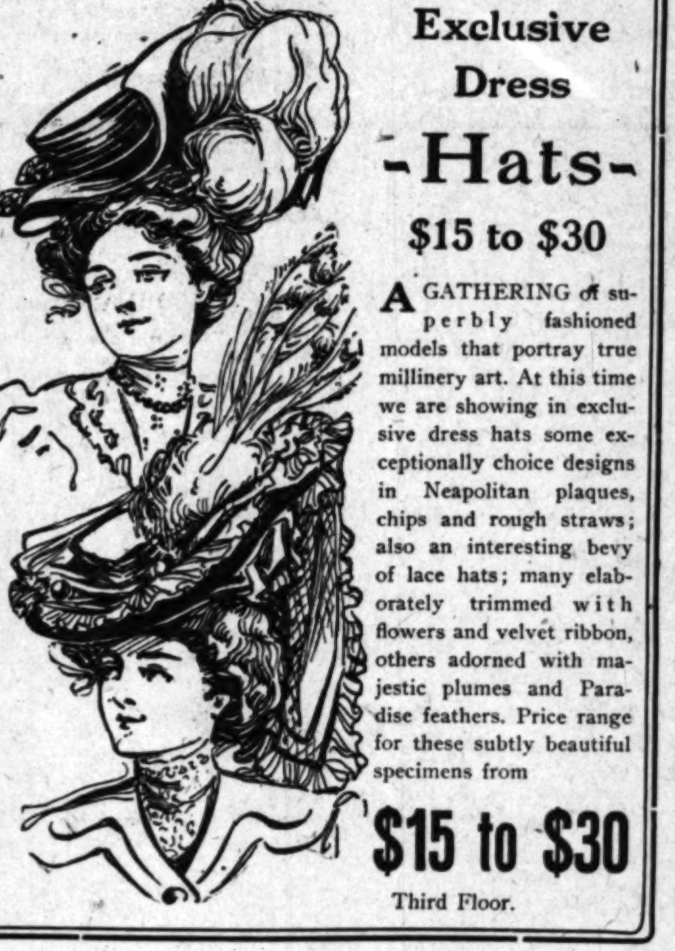
Exposition of Enchanting Millinery

AND not the least enchanting thing about it is the remarkable price moderateness that is a welcome feature of every individual creation. The showing comprises everything that is artistic and high class in bon ton millinery. The elegant productions from our own workshops command the admiration of all beholders. Hats that are almost the exact counterparts of exclusive foreign ideas are here in abundance, many showing the identical lines and trimming schemes of those hailing from Parisian parlors, while others differ from the originals only inasmuch as their ornateness has been modified or increased to gratify the whim of the moment.

Smart Street -Hats- $10 to $18

AT THE above prices we present for your consideration a particularly complete collection of the smartest street hats. There are unfinished leghorns and French Milans in an endless variety of cunningly contrived designs; trimmings are composed of coque feathers, velvet ribbon, and refreshing wild flowers. We feel confident in stating that there is nothing prettier or more appropriate than the above for street wear at the following prices:

$10 to $18



Exclusive Dress -Hats- $15 to $30

A GATHERING of superbly fashioned models that portray true millinery art. At this time we are showing in exclusive dress hats some exceptionally choice designs in Neapolitan plaques, chips and rough straws; also an interesting bevy of lace hats; many elaborately trimmed with flowers and velvet ribbon, others adorned with majestic plumes and Paradise feathers. Price range for these subtly beautiful specimens from

Big Monday Sale

Embroideries

Values		Values
$1.00	35c	$1.50
$1.25	Yard	$1.75

Widths From 3 to 18 Inches

USUALLY in embroidery sales a claim is made that they are worth up to a certain price out of all proportion to the average value of the offering. One, or at most two or three, pieces worth $3.00 or $4.00 or $5.00 a yard are placed in the lot, hence the values up to $5.00 that you read so much about in the advertisement of today. Such inflation of values has a tendency to disappoint people and injures, materially, one's business. When we say that these embroideries at 35c a yard are worth from $1.00 to $1.75, we speak conservatively. Every piece in the sale is actually worth from $1.00 to $1.75 per yard. Beautiful wide embroideries in edges, insertions, corset cover and shirt waist widths on sheerest swiss and nainsook. Actual values up to $1.75. Monday, per yard, main floor 35c

A good deal of damage to oranges is reported by the growers, as a result of an invasion of army worms, which have burrowed into the appetizing fruit, and seem content to remain there. The present outlook is that the fruit in this section cannot be entirely shipped before the end of June, and it is thought a good deal of it will be lost by dropping before that time comes. The car shortage is responsible for this unfortunate condition, as a majority of this fruit would have gone forward ere this were there cars to be had for the shipment.

Recently the Board of Trustees went to a considerable expense to put up street signs along Euclid avenue to the northern limits of the city. In many cases these signs have been defaced already by boys and young men, throwing rocks, shooting with rifles, etc. There is a provision for a heavy penalty for such conduct, and it will go hard with the offenders should they be apprehended.

Shriners Are Estimated to Have Left Almost Two Millions in Recent Visit.

From the recent visit of the Shriners it is estimated by hotel men that between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 was left in this city, divided among the hotels, cafés and stores.

Hotel men have been busy for the past few days, balancing accounts and the net figures are probably such as to bring smiles to the faces of the managers.

BUSTER AND TIGE AGAIN.

Buster Brown and his famous dog, Tige, entertained again at Simpson Auditorium yesterday forenoon, and drew a great audience of little folks and grown-ups as well. Before the introduction of Buster, Miss Eptsein and Miss Greenshaw sang solos, and Miss Bessie Arisson, in Indian costume, sang "Anahuana" and "Cheyenne." Buster made a great hit with the little folk, and incidentally he advertised to his big audience the values of the Buster Brown Blue Ribbon shoes, the exclusive sale rights for which are held by the Broadway Department Store.

PROFITS GO IN LEMON FLOOD.

Imports Knock Bottom Out of the Market.

Strike and Reforms Add to Fruit Men's Grief.

Hottest Fight in History at Exchange Election.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 14.—The recent visit of certain merchants to Europe may not be responsible for the present flood of foreign lemons, but the buying portion of the market would be glad to have the old conditions restored. The total number of boxes in sight is 225,000, with more, possibly, on the way. The Importers' Union failed to report several heavily-loaded vessels until they appeared off the piers, and then there was trouble. There were sales aggregating 60,000 boxes last week —and the market-bottom dropped out and sales were without profit to any one.

Frantic cables have been sent to the other side to cease shipping until some sort of a clean-up can be effected, but whether the despairing cry will be heeded remains to be seen. The foreign shipper, as a rule, gives little attention to the messages from this side, and ships to this market as many boxes as he may think are required, without reference to the quantity in sight and otherwise more or less unfavorable conditions.

It looks like a case of overloading through some one's blunder, but it may have been done purposely to offset some of the efforts which have been made to right the market. In any case, the results have been unfortunate and it will require some little time to recover from the blow delivered by this huge quantity of lemons. If Californias should arrive in large quantities now, there would be dark days, indeed, for importers.

STRIKE AFFECTS FRUIT.

More trouble has resulted from the strike of the longshoremen, several thousand of whom refuse to work at the old wages. The effect is that some of the European steamers have sailed back with the same cargoes in their holds that they brought, and there are others at the piers waiting to be unloaded. It is thought that the lemon cargoes which have not been unloaded will not be a factor in the market. The fruit may be abandoned to the government for duty. The government would then sell at auction, but by that time the fruit would probably be very soft.

Altogether the importer's lot is not exactly a happy one at present. What with reformers at work, the overflooding of the market, and this strike, he is having a good deal of difficulty in mustering sufficient whistle to keep his courage going.

The Fruit Exchange, after one of the hottest fights in its history, with three or four tickets in the field, finally elected these directors: From the buyers E. Andrews, Jr.; William A. Camp, S. Saitta, C. W. Maxfield, Victor L. Zorn, Antonio Zucca; from the importers, P. Brucato, G. Dominici, P. Sciortino, Frank Zito, V. Torcasi. The board organized by choosing the following officers: President, Victor L. Zorn (reëlected:) vice-president, P. Brucato; secretary, C. W. Maxfield, and treasurer, Antonio Zucca.

CRITICS APPEAR.

The new dock committee, having in charge the selection, display and examination of samples, is composed of the following gentlemen: S. Saitta, F. Andrews, Jr.; C. W. Maxfield, G. Dominici and P. Sciortino. The chairman is S. Saitta, the man who has been doing so much to secure reforms. It is certain that he will be supported in his efforts by some of his committee, but it is not sure that all will be enthusisatic in this respect. The appointment of Mr. Saitta created a good deal of comment in the trade, because of his controversy with the old dock committee, but it has been said emphatically that the appointment was not a reflection upon the old committee. On the contrary, it is taken to mean that the new administration has determined to give the principal critic a chance to see what he can do.

Much interest is manifested in Mr. Saitta's course. He may accomplish a revolution in the lemon business. Now that the man who has made the greatest disturbance in years is the chairman of the committee, things ought "to be doing" until the disgraceful methods which have obtained in the lemon trade are forever wiped out.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

President Zorn, in his address, called attention to the reforms which have been begun so auspiciously and pointed out where they had already benefited the trade. He also told of a reduction in freight rates to the South, which will become effective on June 1 and which will make a considerable difference in the cost of shipping.

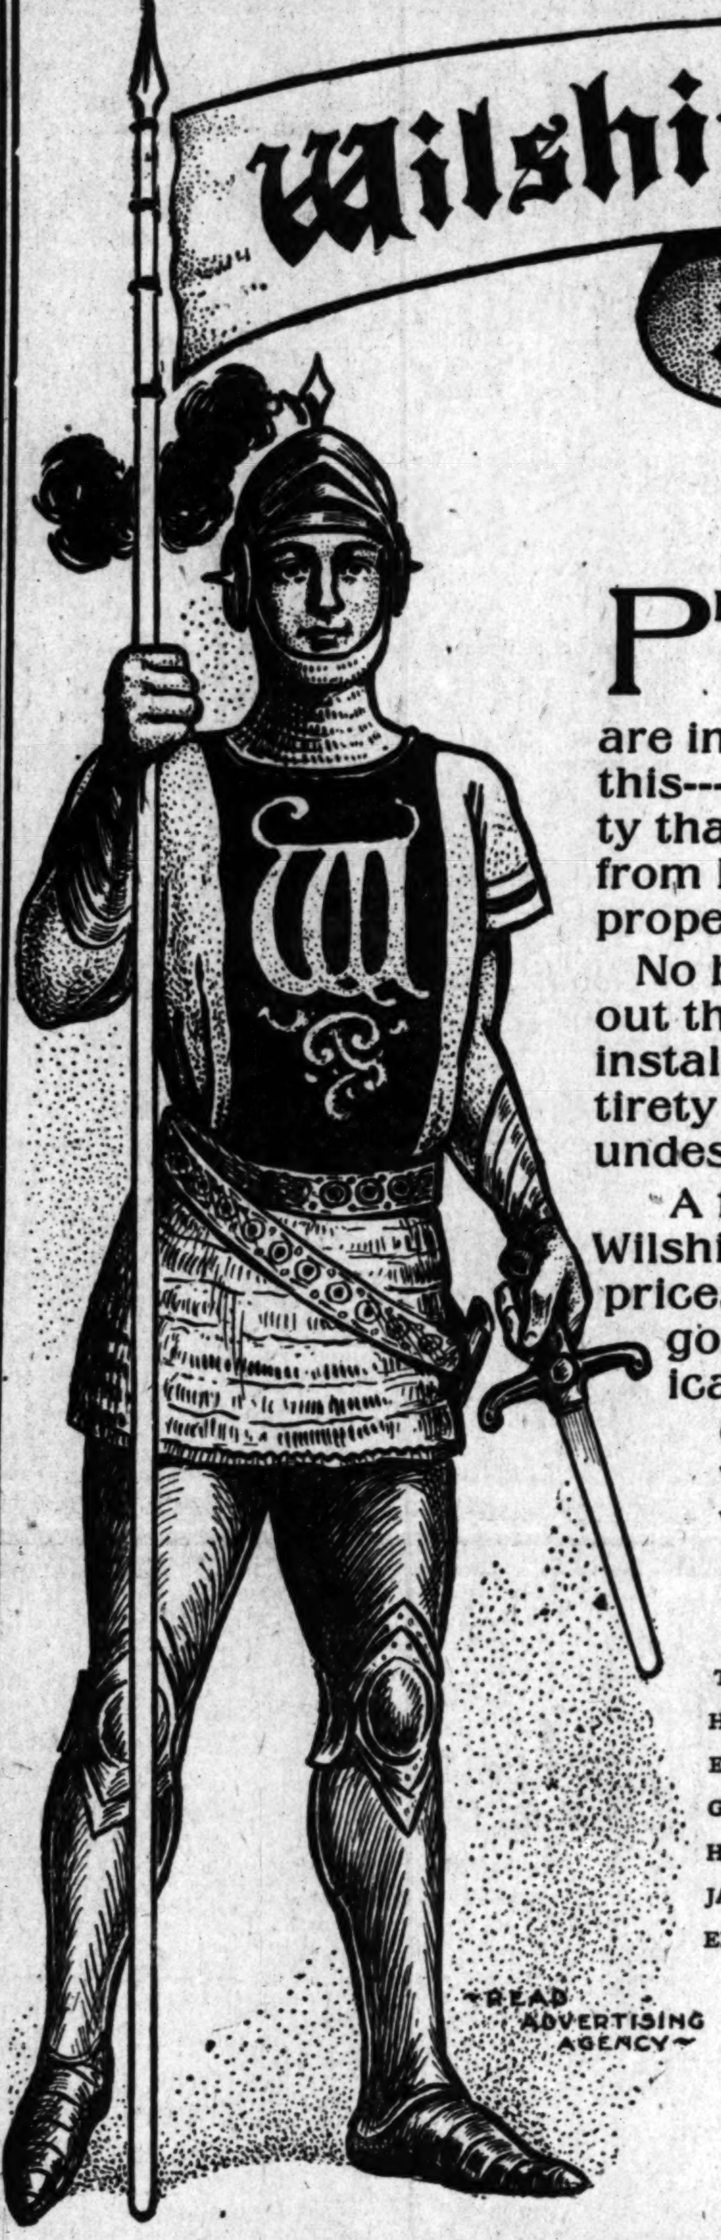
He pointed out that as a result of conferences with railroad companies during the past winter, the refrigerator car service is much improved, even though the companies here, as elsewhere, are short of cars. An effort is now being made to secure an agreement from the companies to sign a receipt for less than car quantities, which would relieve the jobbing trade of this city of a good deal of anxiety.

The inspection of Almeria grapes has been continued with satisfaction, and some plan is to be devised for the more systematic and convenient discharge of cargoes. A committee is now at work on this problem and has reported progress. The principal losses in the past have been due to the delays in buyers obtaining possession of their fruit. Auctioneers and importers are now coöperating with buyers.

FAIRNESS OBTAINS.

The president felicitated the buyers upon the fact that there is no longer any cause for criticism concerning the selection and display of samples of lemons. He declared that these samples were displayed with absolute fairness and that buyers could be reasonably certain what they were buying when they examined the samples as now displayed on the docks. An effort is now to be made to secure the coöperation of the receivers of California fruit in displaying samples in the same manner. This is a pet scheme of some of the Sicily men, though few know what it means.

Mr. Zorn urged the merging of all fruit interests in the city in one great organization. It is his ambition to be the one to bring this about, but at present the prospect would deter a less sanguine man. However, time brings great changes and it is possible that his second administration will be productive of a fruit trade merger which will swallow up all the diverse interests.



Wilshire District Boulevard

The Finest Residence Section of Los Angeles
The Best Protected, The Closest In

PROTECTION to property owners and home builders is feature of the Wilshire Boulevard District, as a whole It is not that building restrictions are so severe---they are in no way prohibitive to the average man. The point is this---a man can erect a substantial home here with the surety that no element can enter into the district that will detract from his pleasure in his home, nor decrease the value of his property.

No business houses here--no flats nor apartments. Throughout the district improvements are of the highest character installed for permanency. It is a district planned in its entirety for residences of a better class, and developments of an undesirable character cannot creep in.

A fortune is not necessary to purchase property in the Wilshire Boulevard District. Considering intrinsic values prices are still very moderate. With the building that is now going on, values will naturally increase. As a result, the logical time to purchase your home place, or to buy in this fin district with the idea of profit making, is now. Presen valuations are practically certain to increase materially within the year.

FIGHT BANKING BY EXPRESS.

Regular Financial Institutions Object to Common Carriers Illegitimate Competition.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, May 18.—Rapid growth of the banking business done by certain express companies, to the detriment of the business of nearly every chartered bank in the United States, has resulted in drastic action on the political committee appointed some time ago to investigate the matter for the American Bankers' Association. The committee yesterday made public its report in which the statement is made that evidence has been secured that certain express companies are carrying on such banking businesses while chartered as common carriers, a violation of the interstate commerce regulations. All evidence thus far and hereafter secured by the committee will be placed in the hands of the committee for the purpose of prosecuting the express companies and stopping what the bankers call "illegitimate competition."

SELLS COW, HAS TROUBLE.

Claiming that she has been cheated out of $40, the last money she has in the world, Mrs. Mary Biermar of No. 1529 West Jefferson street has sworn to a complaint against L. Newton. She alleges that Newton sold to her for that amount a cow which he represented as fresh, and now she declares the animal is not worth half the money. Newton, it is claimed, has refused to return the money. The complaint charges him with a misdemeanor. It was issued last night.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. R. J. Tousley of Belvidere, Ill., is a guest of her sons, R. F. and H. F. Tousley, of the King Edward Hotel. She will spend several months in Southern California.

R. F. Tousley has disposed of his West Adams-street home and is now living at the King Edward.

P. V. Perkins, a New York financier, and his brother, A. A. Perkins of Gold Center, Nev., are at the Angelus. It is reported the brothers are about to develop mines which they control near Gold Center, and which are said to promise rich returns.

A round-the-world party registered at the Angelus yesterday. It included L. Detraux and Miss Detraux of Paris and Miss Shattuck and Miss Koettgen of London. The party recently arrived at San Francisco from Japan, and, after a brief visit at the Grand Cañon, will go directly to New York, where they will take a steamer for England.

CAPT. ROOSEVELT BURIED.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The body of Capt. George W. Roosevelt, a cousin of President Roosevelt, who died while serving as Consul-General of the United States at Brussels, was laid to rest in Oak Hill Cemetery this afternoon. A Congressional medal of honor, for "most conspicuous gallantry" at the second battle of Bull Run and at Gettysburg, had been granted to Capt. Roosevelt. In the latter battle he dashed into the Confederate line and recaptured and saved his regimental colors. At that time he lost a leg. President Roosevelt will fall heir to the trophy, Capt. Roosevelt having directed that it be given to his next of kin.

PRODUCTION OF COAL.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The total production of coal in the United States in 1906 was 414,039,581 short tons of 2000 pounds, valued at $512,610,744. Pennsylvania contributed 200,546,084 short tons. West Virginia has supplanted Illinois as the second coal-producing State.

FINE VISIONS.

years at the head of Seventh street, in North Santa Monica.

"Upon this site a most magnificent temple is to be erected. Its pinnacles will pierce the sky at a height of many feet, and throughout the vast pile there will be neither hinged doors nor locks. There will be seven stories to the building and it will be 200 feet to the first ceiling. The child's temple, near by, will be of the same shape, style and design, stone for stone alike.

"When I had finished with the burial of the cross to mark the site of the temple, I was commanded to make a second excavation to commemorate the work of Adam, and in the third I was impelled to bury the pick with which the other holes had been dug. This was to commemorate the cessation of my labors."

A NEW ADAM.

Stephens, who is now past 50 years of age, seemingly believes himself to be gifted with power of prophecy. He has convinced his faithful adherents that he is the first man of the immortal race—the Adam of a new generation—and that the little girl, Virginia, is Jesus Christ reincarnated.

Virginia acts as though oblivious of the devotion showered upon her by her elders, and seems not to realize that those who feel it a privilege to touch her garments have fitted a sacred halo about her head. Weary months of patient toil are represented in the dress worn on state occasions by the object of worship. Every leaf and flower and twig represented in the delicate embroidery is full of allegorical meaning.

The ascension robe of the immortal "Adam" is also a sermon within itself to the "faithful" who are entrusted with the key that translates the signs and symbols. The cross and the crown, the seven-pointed star and that of five points, as well as the ring and endless chain and key, are full of meaning to the initiated.

It's part wool and a yard wide.

WOULD "BUST" TRUST.

ST. LOUIS, May 18.—A suit instituting quo warranto proceedings on behalf of the State of Missouri was filed in the Circuit Court today, by Circuit Attorney A. N. Sager, against the Union Electric Light and Power Company, charging it with having entered into a combination to control and regulate the price of electric light and power in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State.

MONUMENTS FOR CONFEDERATES

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The War Department will soon award the contract for 20,000 white marble stones to mark the graves of Confederate soldiers and sailors who died in Federal prisons and hospitals in the North during the Civil War and who were buried near the place of their confinement. This will be the first step towards action by the government to mark these graves.

WANTS KING FOR BRAZIL.

BUENOS AYRES, May 18.—Prince Luis of Braganza has arrived here. In an interview he declared that his voyage has no political purpose and that he came to visit his fatherland, Brazil. He hoped the government would reconsider its resolution against his family. He was convinced, he said, that a monarchy was the best form of government for Brazil, but he had never thought to change its institutions by revolutions and hoped the people would recognize his statement as the truth.

Men, It's Free

Ask us to send you, sealed, free, a book, just completed, which will inspire any man to be bigger, stronger, younger (if he is old) and more manly than he [illegible]. We are builders of men.

We can take any weak, puny man and make him feel like a Sandow. Of course, we can't make a Hercules of a man who was never intended by nature to be strong and husky. We don't mean that.

But we can take a man who started with a fair constitution and before it got fully developed began tearing it down. That fellow is weak nerved, poky, lacking in vim, ambition and self-confidence. We can make a man of him in three months so that his own friends won't know him.

Every man who is weak and "going back" knows that there ought to be a something which will restore that old "steam" to his physical body. He has tried the usual drug methods and found that a fizzle, and yet he knows there must be something.

We know it, too, and we have it. It's Electricity. You can't name anything more likely to have that force which a weak man lacks. It's a natural power. We can pump it into a weak man while he sleeps and make him feel like a Sandow in no time. It's the spice of life.

We want you to read this book and learn the truth about our arguments If you are not as vigorous as you would like to be, if you have rheumatic pains, weak kidneys, loss of vitality, prostatic troubles, nervous spells, varicocele or any ailment of that kind that unmans you, we would assure you future happiness if you would look into this method of ours. Don't delay it; your best days are slipping by. If you want this book we send it closely sealed free if you inclose this coupon.

MR. H. E. HUNTINGTON IS EXPENDING OVER A MILLION DOLLARS AROUND REDONDO IN SUBSTANTIAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Go down to Redondo and see for yourself. At Jefferson street and Grand avenue see the immense stacks of heavy steel rails for the double-tracking of the present two electric lines of the Los Angeles and Redondo Railway Company. The rails are arriving daily. Dirt is now flying. Better buy now. Then there's the Los Angeles-Pacific Railway Co.'s electric line to Redondo, the broad-gauging of which will soon occur. And in addition to the above three electric lines now running to Redondo is the great Santa Fe steam railroad. With four lines of transportation it would seem as if same would be sufficient, but surveyors are in the field laying out the shortest line of all to connect Los Angeles with its choicest seashore suburb—Redondo. Mr. Huntington is now building at Redondo the largest electric power house on the Pacific Coast, to cost $1,250,000, as fast as men and money can do it. Go down and look at the mammoth cement smokestack.

A suburban electric railroad is now nearing completion at Redondo. The grand three-story business block of Mr. W. M. Garland at Redondo is just finished. Follow successful men like Mr. Huntington and Mr. Garland—they know that Redondo is substantial and a safe place to invest in. Buy anywhere around Redondo and you are sure to make large profits. Three commercial wharves. A safe harbor by twenty years' practical test. Redondo is permanent and has just begun to grow. Then again, referring to successful men, we notice that the following men have bought to the north of Redondo:

Mr. Edwin Chambers, the far-sighted General Freight Agent of the Santa Fe; Mr. George H. Peck, the successful banker of San Pedro; Mr. John J. Byrne, the capable General Passenger Agent of the Santa Fe, and Dan Murphy, the millionaire oil operator of Los Angeles. A word to the wise is sufficient. BUY.

Remember that your purchase is made with the distinct understanding that we will refund all money paid us, with 6 per cent. per annum interest added, if, after visiting the "Redondo Villa Tract B" it is found that we have misrepresented our proposition in the slightest particular.

25 Per Cent. Guaranteed Increase

For $4 down and $4 per month until paid for we will sell you a "Redondo Villa Tract B" lot for $90, subject to the following guarantee from us: If at the expiration of one year from purchase this $90 lot is not worth $112.50—or 25 per cent. increase—based on the price at which our corps of salesmen will then be selling similar lots, we will refund all the money you have paid us, with 6 per cent. interest additional. If you should die at any time before payments have been completed, we will give to your heirs a deed of the lot without further cost. If you should lose employment or be sick you will not forfeit the land, but as each written certificate of sickness or non-employment is received monthly your time for payment will be extended another month.

THE GRAND MILLION DOLLAR HOTEL AND TROPICAL GARDENS AT REDONDO.

Free car tickets to Redondo furnished all interested. Electric cars leave every twenty minutes.

Get your free tickets at our office in advance. Automobiles will carry you around Redondo and to the beautiful "Redondo Villa Tract B."

GRANDEST SUCCESS OF THE SEASON—Everybody delighted. The golden spike of the Redondo Villa railroad was driven January 6—the commencement of great transportation facilities for the Redondo Villa Tract. The roadbed has been graded, ties are on the ground, rails will soon be laid.

Title Guaranteed Absolutely Perfect

The 604 acres of the Rancho Sausal Redondo, embraced in the "Redondo Villa Tract B," was purchased by us from George H. Peck, president of the Bank of San Pedro, for $151,000.

It is protected by an Unlimited Certificate of Title and all deeds to purchasers of lots in the "Redondo Villa Tract B" will be Warranty Deeds, which is an assurance that every purchaser in the "Redondo Villa Tract B" will receive an absolutely perfect deed.

Be On Hand Early. Come at Once

This sale of large, level lots, 50x150 feet in size, for only $90, in payments of $4 down, $4 month—no interest, no taxes—is unparalleled.

Remember that the "Redondo Villa Tract B" has the advantage of having no city taxes to pay.

Our Restrictions

No saloons, no shanties, no factories. Purchasers are not compelled to build, but if they do then they must erect attractive looking houses, there being no "dollar limit."

We leave it to each purchaser to build a pretty looking house, which must be neatly painted, as we know that for a moderate sum one can now build a very pretty bungalow. Lumber is cheap at Redondo, as there are three commercial wharves at Redondo, at which lumber schooners are daily discharging their cargoes.

If Russell Sage, the multi-millionaire of New York, told you that you could make a fortune in suburban real estate (especially when it costs you only $4 down and $4 per month) wouldn't you be impressed? Well, listen! That's just what Mr. Sage did say in the New York World of September 28, 1902: "Young man, buy real estate, especially acre property, in the outlying boroughs, and then work hard at your usual vocation. Your real estate purchase will make your old age comfortable."—Russell Sage.

COME ONE! COME ALL!—Office open every night during week days from 7 to 9 p. m. to accommodate those who cannot come during the day.

BUY WHERE THE AIR IS THE PURE OZONE FROM OFF THE HEALTH-RESTORING WATERS OF THE PACIFIC.

Buy where the soil is rich and injurious frosts never prevail.

Buy around Redondo, where there are three electric lines and one steam railroad, and there will soon be another electric line.

Buy where the purest of water, from the large water works now on the tract, can be had for only 7½ cents per thousand gallons for irrigation.

Buy where you will make large profits.

Buy at the opening sale, which has been the history, invariably insures a great profit. If you can't be on hand at the office tomorrow morning, then telephone (Main 3379 or Home 5339,) telegraph or write at once, and a beautiful illustrated prospectus map and sample contract will be mailed to you absolutely free.

DON'T SEND MONEY—SIMPLY WRITE.

BIG BOOST IN MINE VALUES.

ASSESSMENT OF TERRITORIAL PROPERTIES GO UP.

Tax Schedules of the Various Counties Are Being Made Up for Report to the Territorial Board of Equalization—Struggle of Water Users.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 17.—Now is the season for the making up of the tax schedules of the various counties of Arizona, for report to the Territorial Board of Equalization, which will meet in Phoenix early next month. Already visible is a valuation raise in excess of $6,000,000, coming from added taxation of the great producing mines of the Territory. The figures thus far turned in by the mining companies are of most decided interest, in themselves clearly demonstrating the truth of the statement, so long reiterated, that the "common people" had been bearing by far too large a share of the burden of taxation within Arizona. Here is the comparison:

	1907.	1906.
Copper Queen	$3,407,292	$502,203
United Verde	2,009,531	736,085
Calumet and Arizona	1,834,427	81,869
Arizona Copper	1,243,355	1,318,666
Detroit	940,667	790,000
Imperial Copper	218,748	187,000
Tombstone Con	162,554	13,868
Totals	$9,816,586	$3,629,692

It will be noted that the Copper Queen has been boosted nearly seven times, the United Cerde nearly three times, the Calumet and Arizona, the small matter of twenty-two and one-half times, the Tombstone Consolidated about twelve and one-half times. It is evident that something has been radically wrong with assessments on these mines in the past or else the present assessment is iniquitous and oppressive. It will be noted that the Arizona Copper Company of Clifton and the Detroit Company of Morenci show little difference between this and last year's assessments. This is due partly to the fact that Assessor Birdno of Graham county distinguished himself last year in the assessing line and to the fact that the companies have been hadicapped in production the past winter, owing to floods.

The assessment is secured this year, for the first time, by the process of considering one-quarter of the gross bullion product for the year as the taxable value of a mine. This may be considered elsewhere as a remarkably light assessment, but its effect upon the valuation of the mines gives a return to the Territory far larger than ever before known. The figures above given do not include the assessments upon surface improvements and reduction plants, and, of course, much will be added by the returns from the smaller producers and from the flat assessment upon unworked properties.

Unexpected complications are arising out of the operation of the bullion tax law. For instance, although the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas had a bullion production for last year of 96,000,000 pounds, the assessment is only upon an initial basis of 68,000,000 pounds production. Most of the difference was charged off to other mines, including the Imperial, and some was stricken off as coming from Mexican ores treated, but an item in dispute was the copper realized in smelting over the old slag piles at Bisbee. On bullion coming from old slag or from last year's stock piles it is understood the companies refuse to pay the tax.

Through the operation of the bullion tax law, Chocise will step to the place of the highest assessed county in Arizona, with about $17,000,000 valuation. Maricopa county will be second, with about $12,000,000. In the latter, the assessment will be dropped $200,000 this year through the transfer to the government of the canal systems around Phoenix, but the net gain over last year will exceed $1,000,000, mainly upon town and farming property.

WATER USERS' STRUGGLE.

A critical struggle now is on in the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association. Heretofore a majority of the directing members of the association have acquiesced in a movement led by Gov. Kibbey, its general counsel, looking toward the fullest adjudication of irrigation priorities through a suit that includes every property owner in the valley. At the last election of directors, however, the dissenters, mainly representing the lands of latest reclamation, secured a stronger representation in the directorate, with results that threaten to be destructive. They insist on the abandonment of the priority suit, and seek to establish the irrigation of the valley in canal zones, by means of which considerable latitude might be given in the distribution of the water stored in the Roosevelt reservoir. At a late test of strength there was a tie vote between directors representing the old and the new lands, and so the final decision had to be delayed. It is understood that the Reclamation Service is strongly in favor of a continuance of the priority suit, through which equities would be established for all time. L. C. Hill, in charge of the governmental work in this district, made a very significant statement yesterday, when he said: "The differences existing in this valley must be settled, and settled within a reasonable time, or the government will discontinue work upon both the Granite Reef diversion dam and the Tonto storage dam. The government owns the north-side canals now, and will continue to run the water on farms that are now buying water, distributing it equitably, but on no other land. Any move indicating a disposition upon the part of the people to discontinue an effort to adjust the differences over vested rights will be construed by the government as a refusal to settle matters, and all government work will immediately be stopped."

MAY GO FOR "AGUA FRIA."

Although Phoenix has just acquired a water system of her own, for which she will pay $150,000, already she is looking toward a radical change in the method of securing her water supply. The water now used comes from wells on the outskirts of the city. There is an abundant supply, and the water is sweet and wholesome, but, as is the case with most of the water in Arizona, it contains an excess of mineral salts that renders it troublesome for use in boilers. North of the city about twenty miles flows the Agua Fria ("cold water") river, a stream of almost absolute purity. Water might at times have to be pumped from wells in the river bed, but thence there is a grade that would deliver it in Phoenix under heavy pressure. A couple of years ago a brewery firm contemplated the piping of Agua Fria water to Phoenix for its own use. It is believed that if this new water supply is secured, there would be no doubt of the establishment here of great shops both by the Southern Pacific and Santa Fé railroad systems, following completion of their joint low-gradient line to the coast through this city. The Phoenix Board of Trade is investigating the proposition.

COTTAGERS' TROUBLES.

On the line of the Santa Fé, Prescott and Phoenix Railway, near Prescott, is the summer colony of the Iron Springs Club, a Phoenix organization that has built a village, occupied during the heated season by as many as 500 individuals. To them has been granted a low round-trip rate, which, under the new railroad rate law, it is believed, will have to be denied this season. Another possible cause of woe to the Iron Springs cottager is the prospect that in the improvements scheduled for the Santa Fé the railroad over Iron Springs Mountain is to be torn up, leaving Prescott, nine miles distant, the nearest station.

TERRITORIAL NOTES.

Although there was no flood, yesterday, sixty feet of the temporary rock dam at the head of the Arizona Canal settled and was washed away. The break will be repaired at once.

Thomas J. Prescott has been appointed City Attorney, G. H. Carr, Superintendent of Streets; Dr. K. H. Beauchamp, City Health Officer; O. A. Turney, City Engineer, and J. M. Creighton, Building Inspector.

The street railway employés in Phoenix have been given a raise in wages, the second within a year. Green hands are to receive 19 cents an hour, increasing to 23 cents after the first two years of employment.

The Phoenix Republican has purchased property on the corner of East Adams and Second streets, where it will soon begin erection of a brick block for its own use. In it is to be placed a complete new equipment, including a modern perfecting press.

DEAFNESS AND CATARRH CURED By "ACTINA"

Ninety-five per cent. of all cases of deafness brought to our attention is the result of chronic catarrh of the throat and middle ear. The air passages become clogged by catarrhal deposits, stopping the action of the vibratory bones. Until these deposits are removed a cure is impossible. The inner ear cannot be reached by probing or spraying, hence the inability of specialists to always give relief. That there is a scientific cure for most forms of deafness and catarrh is demonstrated every day by the "Actina" treatment. The vapor current generated by "Actina" passes through the eustachian tubes into the middle ear, removing the catarrhal obstructions as it passes through the tubes, and loosens up the bones (hammer, anvil and stirrup) in the inner ear, making them respond to the slightest vibration of sound. "Actina" has seldom failed to stop ringing noises in the head. We have known people troubled with this distressing symptom for years to be completely cured in a few weeks by this wonderful invention. "Actina" also cures la grippe, asthma, bronchitis, sore throat, weak lungs, colds and headache and all other troubles that are directly or indirectly due to catarrh. "Actina" is sent on trial postpaid. Write us about your case. We will give free advice and positive proof of cures. A valuable book—Professor Wilson's 100-page Treatise on Disease, Free. FOR THE HOME NAMED FOR HER.

ELLEN BEACH YAW TO SING FOR SWEET CHARITY.

Concert to Be Given Next Saturday Evening at Temple Auditorium for the Benefit of the Lark Ellen News and Working Boys' Home to Secure a Country Place.

For the sake of a worthy charity, lovers of music in Los Angeles are to be given an opportunity, next Saturday evening, to again hear the wonderful voice of Ellen Beach Yaw, now Mrs. Goldthwaite. A concert is to be given at Temple Auditorium for the benefit of the small boys in the home which bears the name of that distinguished vocalist, the Lark Ellen News and Working Boys' Home.

There are sixteen little boys under 11 years of age in the downtown home on East Eleventh street. They have no outdoor joys or association with the healthful country world, and the concert that will be given by their beautiful patroness, and her associate musicians, Maximilian Dick and Miss Georgella Lay, is for the purpose of getting a place in the country for the smallest of the boys under the care of the home.

Ellen Beach Yaw, Maxmillion Dick below, and Georgella Lay, above, the notable trio of musicians who will give their talent for the benefit of the little "newsies" next Saturday evening.

The Woman's Lyric Club is also interested in helping the good cause and will sing at the concert, the whole affair promising a musical treat of the highest order as well as the chance to benefit many homeless little fellows, who are forced to depend upon others until they are able to support themselves.

The older boys, who are working at trades or otherwise employed, are quartered at a pleasant place on East Twentieth street, but the little ones are not allowed to live in the same place, as it is thought best to keep them apart from the older lads. The little fellows are brought to the home from many different places, and often the need of a home for them is imperative.

The Lark Ellen Home has an interesting history. Just seventeen years ago it had its beginning in a reading room conducted by large-hearted women for the boys in the neighborhood of Main and Second streets. So many weary little lads pleaded to stay all night in the reading room, that a place was rented where they could lodge at night. These quarters were soon outgrown, and the management rented a two-story building at No. 319 East First street. From there they moved to the old Ducommon mansion at No. 527 Ducommon street. Here the boys were sheltered until largely through the efforts of The Times sufficient money was raised to buy a place at No. 808 San Pedro street. This was sold two years ago and a place was purchased for the larger boys at No. 420 East Twentieth street, and a home for the small boys rented at No. 130 East Eleventh street.

The managers of the home feel that the time has come to get a home in the suburbs for the little boys where they can yell as loud as they please without disturbing the neighbors, and have the free wholesome life they need. The home must bear the entire support of the boys under 14 on account of the Child Labor Law, and because they cannot be listed as orphans, the State does not contribute to their maintenance.

The officers of the home are: Mrs. Frank T. McGrath, acting president; Miss Florence Housel, financial secretary; Mrs. G. J. Vierra, recording secretary; and Warren Gillelen, treasurer. Many women prominent in the social world are to act as patronesses at the coming concert. Among them are Mmes. Milo M. Potter, J. Ross Clark, Granville MacGowan, Hancock Banning, I. N. Van Nuys, Wesley Clark, Gail Borden, Sheldon Borden, Howard Huntington, Rufas Herron, C. C. Desmond, J. H. Kerckhoff, W. G. Kerckhoff, E. Hollenbeck, W. C. Balch, E. Doheny, A. N. Davidson, W. J. Washburn, F. I. Wheat, W. H. Housh, R. H. F. Variel, George Rice, Willoughby Rodman, S. S. Salisbury, Lyman Craig, Valentine Peyton, Emeline Childs, C. N. Sterry, Mary Banning and J. S. Chapman.

PERSONAL CARE OF THE INSANE.

AMERICAN METHODS THE BEST IN THE WORLD.

Expert Alienists and Other Authorities on Mental Diseases Strongly in Favor of Establishing Psychopathic Hospitals as Adjuncts to General Insane Asylums.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 12.—America is moving rapidly forward in its methods of treating the insane, and the institutions for patients of unsound mind in this country are probably the best in the world. This is what the alienists, the superintendents of insane hospitals, and physicians in these hospitals say, who have been in Washington attending the meetings of the American Medico-Psychological Association, which has been holding sessions here along with various other national organizations of medical men.

Important new ideas in the treatment of the insane are now finding warm advocates among the members of this association, the meetings of which have been attended by leading superintendents of insane hospitals the country over and men of worldwide prominence in the treatment of mental diseases. All these ideas are in the direction of enlightenment and away from the old idea of treating the insane person as a being possessed of a devil, as one to be shunned and restrained.

Quite as important as this, and probably more so, is the spread of the idea of outdoor treatment and outdoor living for insane patients. This subject was not on the formal programme, but is a method of treatment of insanity that is meeting more and more favor, and that seems likely before long to come into wide general use.

The absolute abolishment of all methods of artificial restraint is another idea that is coming more and more to be practiced among the most enlightened heads of insane hospitals.

The psychopathic hospital is coming to be advocated as an adjunct to the general insane hospital, or as something designed to supplement it. Opinions differ as to where they can be located to the best advantage. Some advise that they be located in connection with the State universities; others consider they should be connected with general insane hospitals, and others would have them established along with general city hospitals. Probably the foremost institution of this kind is located at Ann Arbor, Mich., in connection with the State University. A good many insane hospitals have psychopathic wards, but there is a widely prevalent idea among the members of the American Medico-Psychological Association that the time has come to reach out and have numerous psychopathic hospitals.

The psychopathic hospital is intended to be a hospital for the treatment of mental and nervous troubles, where people suffering from incipient infirmities of the mind and nerves, or patients having acute insanity can go, either of their own will or by commitment, and receive the careful attention of skilled specialists. It is the purpose of such hospitals to give individual treatment, the patient getting the personal attention of physicians trained in handling mental and nervous disorders.

Such careful, individual treatment necessarily cannot be given in the general insane hospital.

Putney Place

These Lots Will Be Sold on the New York Installment Plan

Some Important Features of the Putney Place

LOCATION: Near Florencita Park and Graham Station in the most healthful and beautiful residence section of the city. Thirty acres divided into 169 large lots for suitable homes and surrounded by Manchester, Long Beach, Clarinda, and Compton avenues.
SOIL: A heavy sandy loam, where flower and vegetable gardens grow to perfection. There are no filled-in lots, and the level ground and splendid soil will be appreciated by residents who like flowers and vegetables.
CAR SERVICE: The tract is intersected by the principal thoroughfares, affording quick and frequent car service. It is within fifteen minutes' ride of Sixth and Main streets.
RESTRICTIONS: Building restrictions prohibit any building costing less than $1500 to be erected on the lots on Manchester, Compton and Putney avenues, and no building on any lots on Tansy, Van Ness, and Clarinda avenues to cost less than $1,000, thus forever assuring pleasing and refined surroundings.
STREET WORK: Improvements are all high class and in full keeping with the superior natural advantages of the Putney Place; wide streets, graded and oiled; cement walks and curbs.
WATER: Pure water, which is piped to every lot.
PRICES: Lots $375 to $850. Easy terms. Nowhere else in Los Angeles can money be invested with so large returns and so rapid advance in values.

How To Reach Tract

Take car at Sixth and Main streets, which will carry you direct to tract. Get off at Graham Station, fronting on tract.

REMEMBER, PUTNEY PLACE is only fifteen minutes' ride from the heart of the city. Closer in than Highland Park and Garvanza. Closer in than Bimini, and superior in natural advantages to either. Think how values have advanced in these suburbs. Putney Place will beat them out. Prices of lots are from 50 to 100 per cent. lower than those of the same class of property in Highland Park, Garvanza, or Bimini tracts.

There are only just so many feet of ocean frontage. The safest, best and cleanest bathing beach in Southern California. Henry E. Huntington has purchased within the last two years over $2,000,000 worth of property. The South Coast Land Company represented by millionaires Keller & Kerchoff who are now building a railroad from San Diego to Los Angeles have invested over $2,000,000. The Southwestern Realty Company, represented by Senator Flint, Postmaster Flint and other Los Angeles capitalists over $80,000. Huntington now owns the entire riparian rights for power to bring his system of car service from Los Angeles to San Diego. This means a large increase in values to property here. Large lots within three blocks of pier and depot, directly on the ocean front, where no one can build in front of you only $300 each. Easy terms. Inspect this property at our expense.

On Thursday Scholes swore to a complaint charging Sheasby, the girl's stepfather, with battery. Sheasby is a large man and Scholes was roughly handled. The lover is undersized. Davis, Rush & Willis prosecuted the case, and it is said a suit for damages will follow.

The course of true love was not smooth for Scholes and his sweetheart. Finally Scholes was denied the house, and of course, love found a way. Scholes continued to meet the girl, and finally she disappeared. Scholes is supposed to have known her whereabouts. The father pleaded, a brother threatened, but Scholes kept his mouth shut. Then came the beating.

On the witness stand yesterday the father admitted that he knows where the daughter is. She will not return home for awhile, he said. He intimated that the attentions of Scholes are distasteful to the family.

Millionaire's Son Fined.

M. T. Hancock, son of Millionaire Hancock, the implement man, who was killed on South Main street two years ago, was fined in the Police Court yesterday for exceeding the speed limit. Hancock, Jr., used a motorcycle, and sped through the city streets. He was arrested and arraigned in Justice Chambers's court yesterday morning and fined $5.

One week before Millionaire Hancock met his death in the terrible automobile accident, he was fined $150 in the same court in which his son was punished yesterday morning.

Fined for Cruelty.

Henry Campbell, grading contractor of Thirty-ninth street and Moneta avenue, was fined $25 in the Police Court yesterday for cruelty to animals. His teamster, William J. McCarty, was fined $10 for a like offense. Campbell paid both fines. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals prosecuted Campbell and charged him with using horses which are half-starved and covered with harness galls. Campbell promised to place the horses in pasture and give them a complete rest. He was arrested three weeks ago for working broken-down horses and was fined $75 at that time.

Woman Strikes Neighbor.

Mrs. Nellie Cochran, No. 308 North Anderson street, was fined $5 yesterday for using her fist on Mrs. Mary O'Brien, her neighbor. Mrs. Cochran says Mrs. O'Brien called her a "name." She resented it and put her fist out straight. Mrs. O'Brien went down and remained in a state of coma for an hour and a half. Extenuating circumstances earned for Mrs. Cochran a light fine.

Heavy Penalty.

R. L. Bolden got one of the heaviest sentences meted out this year to a vagrant when he stood before Justice Chambers yesterday morning. Bolden will serve 180 days in the City Jail—a straight sentence. Charged with vagrancy, Bolden, who has many times been arraigned in the Police Court expected the customary light penalty.

Don't Waste Money Buy Clothes Right

It's poor economy to buy cheap "ready mades" when you can get fine tailor made clothes for less money. It's only a waste of hard earned cash to pay $25 or $30 for a suit that we will duplicate for $15. And it's throwing away more money still when you pay $35 or $40 for a suit that we will make to your measure for $20 or $25.

Come in and look over our assortment of elegant spring woolens, including over fifteen hundred handsome patterns.

SENSATIONAL YOUNG PREACHER WHO HAS SHAKEN ALL ENGLAND.

He Says It Is the Business of the Church to Care for Human Beings in This Life, and Not to Prepare Them for the Next.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, May 9.—In another age, Reginald John Campbell, pastor of the City Temple, could have been burned at the stake as a heretic. And there are those today, perhaps both in the United States and Britain, who believe that he merits such a punishment, men—and women, too—who cheerfully would help pile the faggots around him and light the pyre.

As readers know, a big religious controversy is raging, and the Rev. R. J. Campbell is the storm center. Although Mr. Campbell had expressed his views as early as September of last year, it was only at Christmastide that his message was set forth fully in the public press. The world was startled. Here was no shrieking demagogue, no blatant charlatan. It was a confession of faith in science, by an earnest minister of the Gospel, a man of tried and proved sincerity, the successor of the famous Dr. Joseph Parker, the holder of the pastorate of London's great City Temple. Somewhat to his own astonishment apparently, Mr. Campbell was suddenly hoisted into the position of Chief Apostle of the New Theology—although he abominates the title.

The famous "City Temple," London, of which the Rev. R. J. Campbell is now pastor in succession to Joseph Parker.

This man, of Irish parentage, of Scotch extraction, of English birth and education, is today known in all the four quarters of the globe. He is denounced and praised for his alleged heresies in a score of different languages, and in thousands and thousands of letters and newspapers that come pouring in upon him.

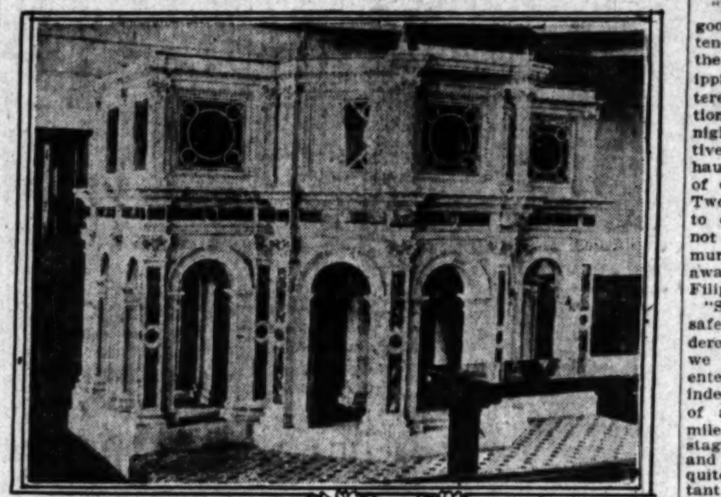
According to Mr. Campbell this "New Theology" is not agnostic; but is the gospel of the humanity of God and of the divinity of man. In speaking of the movement following his candid confession of "new" faiths, he says: "This is only incidentally a theological movement. It is far more a moral and spiritual movement. It is a religious quickening; it is rising spontaneously in every church in Christendom, and sooner or later it will call the whole civilized world back to God. It will put an end to the alienation from religion of the masses on the one hand and of the intellectual classes on the other. It is the Gospel of the Kingdom of God."

AT HOME.

I sought him out in his home. I wanted to get behind the scenes and away from the pulpit where this man, in his black robe, sways multitudes with his musical voice and thrills them with his magnetic personality.

Clay Hill is a celebrated locality some little distance from the village of Enfield, a matter of nine or ten miles to the north of London. Hill Lodge is a large white stone house perched at the top of the hill. It is here that the Rev. R. J. Campbell lives. King George II built the house for his chief ranger, all the land around being royal demesne and the King's favorite hunting ground. Within a few yards of this rambling two-story house was hatched the Gunpowder Plot of the infamous Guy Fawkes, commemorated to this day on every November 5th by the youth of England.

At first sight, Reginald John Campbell takes one by surprise. Luminous eyes that seem to search your inmost thoughts are what one sees first. They are deep-set and constantly change color—at least so one fancies—now densest black, now fighting blue, now beaming brown with glint of gold. They are the predominant feature of a pale, ascetic face, intensified by bushy dark eyebrows; by curling, wavy, white hair. Slight, frail, almost womanly, is the figure of this man, with small hands, small feet, small frame; a breath might blow him away. But his arms are long and he knows how to use them. His voice is rich, resonant, musical.



The pulpit at the London "City Temple," which is now occupied by the Rev. R. J. Campbell. It was from this pulpit that his famous predecessor, Joseph Parker, cried, "God damn the Sultan!" and here that he uttered his memorable criticisms of King Edward, then Prince of Wales.

He received me in his everyday working garb; plain, verging to shabbiness, featured only by a loose velveteen coat. He is a bundle of nerves, of steaming energy, of vigorous enthusiasm. Not a dreamer, but a worker; not a mere student but a leader. I quickly found that out. He did not preach to me; we talked as man and man. He sat on one side of the great fireplace lost in the roomy chair. His body was crouched along the seat; his legs crossed, one long arm lay over the supporting arm of the chair, the other held and caressed the big central wave of hair which crowned his head. It is a trick of his when speaking at his ease to snatch this lock and hold it.

HIS ORIGIN.

Reginald Campbell's father is a Methodist minister at Beeston in Nottinghamshire. The son was a feeble child, sickly, threatened by weak heart and weaker lungs. So his father, struggling for a foothold in a crowded city, gave him into the care of the boy's grandfather, a stern, old Presbyterian elder. Here, in the open, invigorating Irish air of a manse in the heart of the Orange country in Ulster, Reginald spent his youth.

He knew little of his father or mother. When his grandfather died, the boy faced the problem of existence. He entered University College, Nottingham, and when he graduated turned to the profession of schoolmaster. He was an assistant master in a high school in Lancashire, near Manchester. It was an Episcopal school, and while there young Campbell hungered for the church. He was confirmed as a member of the Church of England. At this school Mr. Campbell fell in love with the sweet, womanly woman who has been his helpmate ever since.

THE REV. R. J. CAMPBELL, who has stirred up a world-wide controversy by his advocacy of "New Theology."

Two years after his marriage, the proud father of a child, Mr. Campbell entered Oxford University as a student. He went to Christ Church, the college of King Edward, of Gladstone, Salisbury, of a majority of the modern prime ministers of England. In a long spell of illness, news was brought to his bedside that he had graduated and that he had won the honors of the university in modern history and in political science.

When he recovered his health, he fought the great fight. The mysticisms of the High Church of England fascinated him, but he revolted at the dogmas. Great churchmen of the day argued with him. Yet he wrenched himself away from that church and began preaching in the little Free Churches around Oxford. And twelve years ago he definitely acknowledged a church—not of his father, but of his grandfather.

As a full-fledged Congregationalist, Brighton called him. The church there at England's queen of watering-places was small, forsaken, practically at its last gasp. But in a year there came a marvelous change. Famous people from all the world sojourn at Brighton. They came under the spell of the young preacher—this Free Church convert from the Church of England. The little church overflowed. Marie Corelli, Prof. Lecky, Mrs. Barney Barnato, Lord Rosebery, England's present Premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman; Cabinet ministers, great scientists, churchmen, literary lights, of all creeds, denominations, flocked to hear Campbell. Such was his success that the other Congregationalist church in Brighton was joined to his.

Seven years later all England acknowledged him an inspired preacher, and, including Parker himself, recognized him as the man to fill the justly celebrated pulpit of the City Temple when it should become vacant.

As prophesied, he followed Dr. Parker at the City Temple. That was nearly four years ago.

There is now talk of ousting Pastor Campbell because of his confession of faith. Some outsiders have taken legal advice, and may attempt through the courts to turn him out of his pulpit. But this is not worrying him, nor his friends and supporters, who are legion.

WHY AND HOW.

I thought it would be interesting to know why and how Mr. Campbell had come to make his departure from orthodox views.

"There is no single cause or reason," he said. "I have been teaching these truths for years. I dislike the phrase new theology,' but must accept it because it has come to stay. Some of the arguments are as old almost as the hills. But its general adopting is coeval with the adoption of modern science. The great results we have from modern science today are comparatively new. Modern science of itself is scarcely fifty years old. Science is only the mind trying to understand the universe. Religion is the soul's response to the universe. As soon as religion becomes theology, it must either be consistent with science, or be foredoomed. For the universe explored by science is, after all, the very universe which calls the soul to prayer.

"For want of a better phrase, let us call the movement the New Theology. But one can also call it the higher politics or the higher sociology. For it is one and the same thing. The social reform movement is the gospel of the humanity of God and the divinity of man. Social reformers may not admit it; they may not know it. They may say the movements are parallel. But I believe they are one and the same.

"The church has nothing to do with getting men into heaven. Its real work is to get heaven into this every-day world. Too long has the church been trying to save men from suffering in the world to come. Too little it has concerned itself with the root-suffering in this world.

"But social reformation—that is, the gospel of the kingdom of God—is surely and swiftly spreading. When men get up in the United States Congress, in the English Parliament, in the legislatures of the world, and discuss and plead the cause of the poor, the betterment of the unemployed, the sanitary housing of the masses, old-age pensions, they may be called by the press and public Socialists, labor leaders, what not, but they are the true Christians; they are preaching, as well as I am, the gospel of the kingdom of God.

"What is wanted in the world today is a general conference of the churches of all creeds, the sinking of those creeds and the liberal discussion of our common aims. Each church now holds its own conference. At these they go over the same ground. These same questions, discussed at conferences of Episcopalians, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, all the other churches, are exactly the questions discussed in the legislatures, at meetings of social reformers, at street-corner meetings, by press and pulpit and public. They are the questions of the hour, the day, the progress of Christianity and the betterment of the world.

SHALL WE LEAD?

"The United States has led in many matters. Here is its most glorious opportunity. Let it lead in such a movement. From what I know, the support in Britain would be very strong. Personally, I cannot head a movement of this kind. There is too much animus directed at the moment against me. I have had bushels of letters and clippings of published attacks from the United States, too numerous to specify. But it is not alone America—I have heard from the whole world. I have not answered specifically.

"I have had many invitations from the United States, but cannot accept. My mission is in England. My work is here. My plans for the future, if I am spared, are to continue my work from the pulpit of the City Temple and from the platforms of the Labor party of England, which have everywhere been thrown open to me. I am a Socialist. I am a Christian. I am going to continue preaching, with all my heart, my soul, my strength, the gospel of the kingdom of God."

Mr. Campbell is one of the hardest workers in England. He has two services at the City Temple on Sundays. He preaches at both. On Thursdays he has a service at noon. It is renowned all over the world, and crowds swarm to it, the men and women who are not met within the churches on the Sabbath. It is Mr. Campbell's favorite service. He generally addresses two or three other gatherings in London or the provinces during the week, some, perhaps, from a political platform.

In summer he is up at sunrise, and at work. It is more often midnight when he seeks rest. His wife frequently has to force him from his desk to take his daily ride on horseback or to make him play a round of golf or take a walk around the farm.

He has two secretaries. There is a charming romance about one of them, now his chief secretary. Mr. Campbell has one only child, a daughter. She is a proud, patrician little beauty in her teens, who leads the minister and his wife in home life by taut though silken strings. When she was 5 years old, a little playmate, some years older, came to visit her. The visit was for two weeks. The weeks merged into months, then years. That was ten years ago. The little visitor is now the private secretary. She so endeared herself to the daughter of the house and to the father and mother that they begged she might stay, and stay she has.

This lady is an expert motor driver. When the progress of the times caused Mr. Campbell to get a big, six-seated automobile it was his wisp of a secretary who asked to be allowed to drive it. She was sent to a motor school and quickly graduated. Now she is the full-fledged chauffeur of the Campbell family. She drives Mr. Campbell in and out of London's heavy traffic with skillful ease.

In conclusion, I venture a prophecy regarding the Rev. R. J. Campbell. It is that this modern crusader will be the first man of his cloth to sit in the British House of Commons, and that he will lead a great political party, that of Social Reform.

TREE OF FIRE IN PHILIPPINES.

TRAVELER DESCRIBES AWESOME SIGHT IN JUNGLE.

Strange Phenomenon Observed by Charles C. Eaton While Making a Midnight Dash in Canoe Through Insurrecto-haunted Strip of Country—Mistakes It for Camp Fire.

"LOS ANGELES, May 10.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In your issue of Friday you give an account of a 'tree of fire,' discovered in Asia by Madam Merian. The phenomenon, you go on to say, was found to be 'due to certain insects, which, by the way, have never been observed since.'

"In the summer of 1901 it was my good or bad fortune to make an extended trip along the coasts and into the unfound fastnesses of the Philippine Islands, where I saw the interesting phenomenon which you mention in your article. It was on a midnight dash by 'barrota,' a small native dug-out canoe, past an insurrecto-haunted strip of country at the mouth of one of the large rivers of Samar. Two native boatmen accompanied me to do the paddling—when they were not crossing themselves for fright and murmuring in tones loud enough to awaken any sentry in the world but a Filipino: 'Jesus, Maria, Josef!'

"Somewhat after midnight we had safely passed the rock and palm-bordered shores of the bay along which we had coasted, and found ourselves entering the mouth of the river, if indeed that could be called a mouth of a river, where the country for miles around was but one vast pool of stagnant back-water, of tropic jungle and swamp. There the hum of mosquitoes sounded like the not far-distant murmur of a falling brook, relieved only by the shrill croaking of the tree-lizards, or the almost silent ripples of an eddy, showing the disappearance of the dreaded 'Kaiman,' the alligator of the Philippines.

"Innumerable fireflies, flitting everywhere over this gloomy waste, seemed to confirm the impression that we had reached some horror-haunted region of another world. But now another danger threatened us, a serious menace of discovery if any slumbering insurrecto should happen to awaken.

"All tropic waters are more or less tinged with phosphorescent light, but in this stagnant fell the appearance of it was truly startling. Break but once the smooth, murky surface of the water and it became as if by magic a glittering mass of diamonds, rubies, sapphires, emeralds. The little canoe left a fan-like tail of iridescence behind it, which literally illumined the woods. As a paddle dipped softly into the water, I held my watch close to the surface and could read as if by the light of the full moon. It was 2:30 o'clock.

"Suddenly, ahead, in the dim recess of the jungle, there appeared the flickering of a camp fire. Softly I called to the Filipinos to cease paddling, and pointed to the danger.

" 'No, Señor, este no fuego.' (That is not a fire.) 'Este kilalo figa dajol.' (That is a fire tree.)

" 'Adelante,' I replied, not more than half understanding what was meant.

"And so we approached what came to look more and more like a large camp fire, lighting the surrounding woods, waters, roots and mud with a vague uncertain flicker. And then suddenly rounding an enormous tangle of roots we came in full sight of the tree—a wonderful, awe-inspiring sight. Larger than the California eucalyptus and more resembling the New England elm, it stood alone of all the forest, revealed in every outline, leaf and twig, a pulsating mass of white light, tinged with green, against the dark background of the night and forest.

"Owing to my haste to be away from the place I did not stop to examine the tree, as I later wished I had, but the natives assured me that the cause of the phenomenon was the myriads of fireflies or other insects which attacked the tree. CHARLES E. EATON."

MEXICO.

OFFERS BEST OPPORTUNITIES.

Mexico Is Largest Field for Our Products.

Worth More Than All Rest of Spanish America.

Californians' Copper Mines Prove Profitable.

BY EDWARD C. BUTLER.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MEXICO, May 10.—American manufacturers and exporters who look expectantly toward the Latin-American markets would do well to bear in mind that Mexico offers the largest field today for American products. In fact, excluding Panama and Argentine, this country is worth to them more than all the rest of Spanish-America combined. It is not necessary to rely simply on Mexican figures. The best authorities in the United States, for the calendar year 1906, as compared with 1905, give the following as the exports from the United States to the various countries named:

Country—	—Exports— 1905.	1906.
Mexico	$51,181,674	$62,273,848
Cuba	44,567,711	46,451,524
Dominican Republic	1,840,669	2,271,262
Hayti	2,916,879	3,298,433
Costa Rica	1,872,786	2,472,281
Guatemala	2,873,379	2,868,072
Honduras	1,533,664	1,894,204
Nicaragua	1,532,536	2,041,231
Panama	7,831,564	14,239,671
Salvador	1,478,822	1,821,768
Argentine Republic	28,434,360	38,371,589
Bolivia	144,450	242,418
Brazil	12,351,298	16,547,372
Chile	7,006,977	9,393,658
Colombia	3,685,437	2,961,071
Ecuador	1,967,639	1,884,724
Paraguay	6,719	136,684
Peru	4,287,229	5,138,864
Uruguay	2,765,781	3,390,865
Venezuela	3,208,864	2,810,518

A resumé of the export trade of the United States to her southern neighbors shows as follows:

	1905.	1906.
Mexico	$51,181,674	$62,273,848
West Indies	49,316,686	52,039,161
Central American States	17,871,440	24,332,624
South American States	65,405,368	73,822,379
Total exports	$184,475,172	$213,077,989

SOME USEFUL LESSONS.

The above figures are in United States currency. They teach some useful lessons. Above all, they show the commercial supremacy of Mexico in relation to the American manufacturer and producer. American exports to Mexico amount to 40 per cent. of the total trade with the rest of Latin America. Mexico takes $16,000,000 worth of goods a year more than Cuba, and nearly twice the exports to the Argentine. Mexico imports four times as much from the United States as Brazil, the State that sells the United States five times as much as she buys therefrom. The balance of trade is also in favor of Mexico, for her exports to the United States in 1906 did not fall much below $80,000,000 in gold.

Mexico absorbs two and a half times as much of American products as all of the six republics of Central America combined. In a word, this country imported in 1906 American goods to the value of $62,000,000, gold, as against the $154,000,000 of exports that went to the rest of Latin America.

American products are well known here, and American capital to the amount of $750,000,000 in gold had, by the close of 1906, found profitable investment in this land. Fully 80 per cent. of the lands in this republic are mineral lands, but not one-one-hundredth per cent. of the agricultural possibilities of Mexico have been as yet utilized.

There are immense advantages to be gained by promoting trade with Mexico, before pushing into the Central and South American markets. This country has one strong, stable government and a fixed currency.

CALIFORNIANS INTERESTED.

A side door to the inviting possibilities in Spanish America is fast being erected, through the construction of the Pan-American Railway. This is a line being built by Californians from the station of San Geronimo, on the Tehuantepec Railroad, to the frontier of Guatemala. It will be 474 kilometers in length, and construction has been rushed in places at the rate of one kilometer a day.

Messrs. D. P. Doak and J. M. Neeland of Los Angeles, respectively the president and the vice-president and general manager of the Pan-American Railway, have been in this city a few days on business in connection with the line. The track-laying has proceeded as far as the town of Huixtla, which is within 100 kilometers of the Guatemalan frontier.

Advices from La Dicha, the copper property owned by the Mitchells of California, are to the effect that large shipments of the red metal are now being made abroad. The last lot was 200,390 pounds, valued at $52,000. It all goes now to Acapulco, the Guerrero port, from whence it is shipped to Panama, and thence to New York. The shipments by next July will have increased 20 to 30 per cent. Meanwhile the mining company is preparing to construct its own line to the coast, and the first lot of rails have arrived. Then the copper ore now laboriously taken down to the coast along the narrow and dangerous mule trails will be whirled swiftly over an electric line far more cheaply than by the present process.

The Grant Brothers' Construction Company of Los Angeles two weeks ago inaugurated grading on the line of the Cananea, Yaqui River and Pacific Railroad, from the port of Mazatlan. Many city officials and leading citizens of Mazatlan accepted the invitation to participate in the ceremonies. Everybody, rich or poor, high or low, was provided with a shovel or pick. On reaching the place near the city limits, where the road is to start on its way northward, men, women and children began to make the dirt fly. Thus the first grading was commenced on what promises to be one of the most important railroad enterprises in Mexico. The entire length will be 1000 miles. When completed, the port of Mazatlan will be brought into touch with the railway system of Mexico, via the Guaymas line, the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient and the Southern Pacific extension, which is being built from Guaymas to Guadalajara.

Who's a Fibbing.

"Pa," said little Tommy, "my Sunday-school teacher says if I'm good I'll go to heaven."

"Well?" asked his papa.

"Well, you said if I was good I'd go to the circus. Now, I want to know who's fibbin', you or her?"—[Chicago Chronicle.

Talks With Big Ones.

DICTATOR OF MATCH TRUST, OHIO COLUMBUS BARBER, ONE OF THE BOLDEST MONOPOLISTS IN THE WORLD.

By James B. Morrow.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 13.—There was a short nervous scratch but no fire.

"This company," the positive person in the smoking room of an overland train bound East from California said, "buys the bumest matches on earth. Made by the trust. The only kind fit for use come from Germany."

"Buy them where you please," replied a large, cheerful man in the corner near the window. "We have a factory in Germany, too. I don't like trusts any better than you do—unless I am in them."

"Are matches your business?" the positive person inquired, with just a trace of confusion in his voice.

"Oh, I am only a farmer with a little land, a few sheep, and a pig or two."

I asked Ohio Columbus Barber, the large, cheerful man near the window, if the story was true. His only reply was a smile comporting in all ways to his stature, which is six feet six and a half inches, and to his weight, which is 232 pounds, when he is trained down to fight or purchase a competitor.

Then he abruptly wheeled into the general subject. "Think of an ocean liner at night with its lights gleaming out far over the water! A splendid sight, isn't it? Or a limited train ripping through towns and tunnels and scarcely stopping between Chicago and New York! Or a huge mill wrapped in glow and smoke where 5000 men are at work! Tell me what put each in motion? A little splinter of wood which we call a match."

POET AND MATHEMATICIAN.

Elementary poetry from one of the boldest and most fortunate monopolists in the world. Imagination worked with arithmetic in the conception and creation of the match trust. Barber supplied both. Also a considerable share of the money. A raw youth, a child in years if not in height, he was put to work in his father's little shop. Now he is president and chief shareholder in a $16,000,000 company which has factories in the United States, Germany, Switzerland, South Africa, Peru, Chile, Brazil, and the Philippine Islands.

Besides, he has money in many other things. He built a town in Ohio, turning wheat and corn fields into a stirring community of manufacturing establishments, solid buildings of business and modern homes for thousands of people. Elsewhere he spent a quarter of a million dollars for a hospital. Even so, he has opinions beyond money and matches—a plan of his own, among other things, to settle the dispute about the ownership and management of railways. Into the contention over trusts he slams this inquiry: "Who will run the big corporations when the old men are dead?" A boundless field for reflection and conjecture is within the question. "The battle now," this observing philosopher says, "is purely intellectual. Time was when knights went forth with weapons on horseback. Today they manicure their nails, wear gloves, and ride in automobiles."

"What ought to be done with the trusts?" I asked.

TREAT THEM LIKE RAILROADS.

"Bring them under the law—give them the same treatment that is being administered to the railroads. Up to date I am free to say, however, the railroads haven't complained very much. Freights have not been reduced and fares are less only in the spots where States have supplied the legislation. But Congress will hit the right idea by and by. The future of this nation is wrapped up in the transportation question. To ship cheaply and to get about quickly is the most important matter before the country.

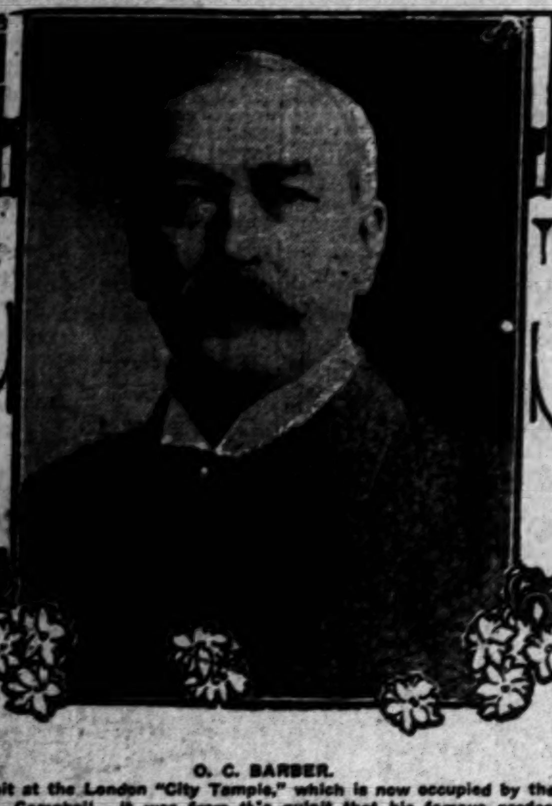
"The railroads needed regulation. They are near to the people in all their material interests. Waste is an economic tragedy. Don't burn two tons of coal where one will do. Our railroads are unsound as purely business problems. The Vanderbilts control the New York Central and the West Shore, along the Hudson, and the Lake Shore and the Nickel Plate, from Buffalo to Chicago. For each there is a different organization. Throw them together, I say, and stop waste.

"I would put all of the railroads into one ownership and management. Then I would provide for needed extensions, for maintaining the physical property, for the adoption of practical inventions and for an annual dividend of 4 per cent. on the stock. Freights would tumble, people could travel for a cent or a cent and a half a mile, and there would be a stable investment security for the public.

"When Morgan and Hill began to buy Northern Pacific stock it was $16 a share. In a few years they turned it over to the Northern Securities Company at $200 a share. The capital of the road was correspondingly increased, and now the people pay dividends on that flood of fiction. It isn't right. The railways of the United States find it impossible to keep up with the growth of miscellaneous business. The future is to be a golden time for them. Therefore, they should be consolidated now into a single private ownership along the line I have suggested.

REGULATE CAPITALIZATION.

"And I also believe monopolies and trusts should be sensibly but adequately controlled by a general or national statute. Capitalization ought never to be any greater than the actual value of the property. If water is wanted, let us follow Germany, where the excess of capitalization is put into the form of participating certificates, on which dividends are never expected, unless there is a surplus above everything else."



O. C. BARBER.

The pulpit at the London "City Temple," which is now occupied by the Rev. R. J. Campbell. It was from this pulpit that his famous predecessor, Joseph Parker, cried, "God damn the Sultan!" and here that he uttered his memorable criticism of King Edward, then Prince of Wales.

The famous "City Temple," London, of which the Rev. R. J. Campbell is now pastor in succession to Joseph Parker.

"Has the poor man as many opportunities to get rich as he had thirty years ago?"

"More. The poor man with brains gets better wages than ever before, and his chances for obtaining a competence have been multiplied over and over again. Do you know that it is hard to get competent men, and harder yet to keep them? They must be trained in one's own establishment or found by accident. If you want a baseball team, all you have to do is to consult the official records. It is the same with trotting horses. It is not so with men in factories and business.

"I am bound to say, however, that the boys of today are infinitely better than those of a generation ago. I had a concern that was costing me $100,000 a year in new money to keep afloat. One day I discovered a chemist who had been graduated from an eastern technical school. I turned the factory over to him. He began with 125 men and annual sales of $250,000. In eight years he increased his working force to 2700 and his sales to $12,000,000. At another establishment which was a drag I have a young fellow whose salary is $25,000 a year. There are plenty of ways to get rich, and new ones are being opened right along. Look at the automobile business. But better than all is some cheap thing that can be brought into daily and general use."

"Matches for instance?"

"Yes. Did you ever think that it only costs 5 cents to ride on a street railroad, but that millions of dollars are invested in tracks, cars, and machinery?"

"You went to work in your father's match factory when you were fifteen years old?"

"I quit school at that age, but I had been working pretty steadily mornings and evenings for a considerable period. My father was a wise man. He took pains to let me do everything my own way—that long scar on my hand was caused by whetting a scythe upside down—and then he was particular about showing me the right way. 'Use your head as well as your muscle,' he would say. I have acted on that principle all my life. Thus while I left school rather young, my education was continued by a mighty good teacher. I didn't receive wages but got money for the menagerie and circus every summer.

BECAME PARTNER AT TWENTY.

"At 14 I became a traveling salesman. There were not many railroads in those days, and the few we had would not haul matches. So we shipped by canal. I would meet a consignment at some small town and peddle it with a horse and wagon to farmers and country merchants. I went all over Ohio and into adjoining States east and west. It was right after the panic of 1857 and money had almost vanished from circulation. I traded matches to small merchants for muslin, calico, tea, coffee, sugar, and spices and to farmers for butter, eggs, beeswax, and sheep pelts. I can smell the pelts yet. Once I took home a hundredweight of big copper pennies. The produce and merchandise I collected were given to our workmen as wages. When I was 20 my father made me a partner in the business."

"How were matches manufactured in the early days of the industry?"

"Little blocks of wood were sliced by hand and the ends covered with phosphorus. Matches made in that way were in bunches. Phosphorus was discovered in the eighth century by an Arab, and rediscovered in 1669 by a German. At first it was made from bones, but is now obtained from mineral phosphates. In 1680 Godfrey Haukwitz mixed sulphur with phosphorus and lighted the combination by friction. One hundred and fifty years later Walker, an Englishman, put the discovery to practical uses. The lucifer, or improved friction match, was patented in the United States by Alonzo D. Phillips of Massachusetts, and its manufacture begun late in the year 1836. At first the splints were whittled by hand, but in 1842 were cut by machinery. My father peddled clocks from New England to Ohio. A man from Connecticut came along, sold him a formula for mixing sulphur and phosphorus, and he quit the clock business. That was the beginning of the match trust, as you persist in calling it. Wood and composition are now converted into matches and packed in boxes by a single operation."

"Is the making of matches an unhealthful business?"

CONTRACTED DISEASE.

"At first it was really a deadly business. By inhalation or contact phosphorus would get into the decayed teeth of workmen. Necrosis of the jaw, a terrible disease, would follow, the bones being literally consumed, as if by some powerful acid. We have had as many as a hundred cases a year in our Ohio factory. Matches are necessary, and I make them. Perhaps I have been of some use in the world in that respect. However, the very best work of my life has been to lessen the dangers connected with our business. The air in our seven American factories is changed every four minutes. When a man applies for a job he is examined by one of our dentists. If his teeth are not sound he is compelled to have the bad ones filled or drawn or go without employment. But our own machinery, we invented and made it, is the best protection of all. Matches are now produced, from first to last, even to the packing of the boxes, without being touched by the hand of a single human being. The unhealthfulness of match manufacture was made the subject of Parliamentary inquiry in England, and our two factories were the only ones to escape censure. All of the others have been compelled to adopt our methods."

"Where do you get pine for your matches?"

"We own 20,000 acres of land in New England and 80,000 acres in California. We cut and saw 80,000,000 feet of lumber a year, which is 6,666 carloads, or 222 trainloads of 30 cars each. We have $2,000,000 invested in California in land and sawmills and own a railroad which is thirty-five miles long and as well built in every way as any in the country. Strange to say, our factory there makes bunch matches—the people on the Pacific Coast demand that kind."

"What is the annual consumption of matches in the United States?"

"Ten a day for each man, woman and child in the country. At the factory in Ohio we manufacture 150,000,000 every twenty-four hours."

"Isn't there a large sale of foreign matches in this country?"

"Well," and Mr. Barber's blue eyes deepened in color and his friendly face grew serious, "that's a matter I don't care to dwell on. You see, we have factories in Europe, and Americans who want imported products ought to be gratified in that particular. The trust, as you still term it, is broadly cosmopolitan. But I think I have said enough. What else do you want to know?"

"How many factories does the trust own in foreign countries?"

HAVE PLANTS IN AFRICA.

"We control the match business of Great Britain and have plants of our own in Germany, Switzerland, South America, the Philippines and Africa."

"Africa?"

"Yes, the southern part. The blacks don't do much cooking; it isn't necessary; they can pick their dinner off a bush or climb a tree. But they are prodigious smokers."

"Some of the Goulds went into the match business. Did they succeed?"

"Not as manufacturers. They did fairly well, however, by selling out to us."

"How has the American consumer fared since the formation of the trust?"

"He is getting better matches and is paying a good deal less for them. The old-fashioned bunch matches sold for two cents a hundred. Today 2400 better matches can be bought for ten cents. Let me tell you something. The profit of the retail dealer who sells a dozen boxes for a dime is larger than the aggregate profits of the manufacturers and all the men and companies engaged in supplying us with raw materials. There are natural monopolies. Anthracite coal, for instance, is found in a single narrow area. Petroleum of good quality is limited to certain regions. Natural monopolies are difficult to control. But where competition is open to all, monopoly can only be created and maintained on the basis of cheap production, good quality, and low profit. We make 85 per cent. of the matches consumed in the United States. Why? Because competition can't sell at our price. We manufacture our own chemicals and pasteboard. Glue for holding the heads to the splints comes from England. We go abroad for it because American glue is not carefully made. Great tracts of pine land are purchased, from which we sell the good lumber, using the odds and ends ourselves. Inventors are regularly employed to improve our machinery and to find cheaper mechanical means of production.

VALUE OF CONSOLIDATION.

"Before the match business was centralized there were thirty-six factories in various parts of the country. Some were strong in one thing and weak in others. The map of the United States had been ignored, and, therefore, the different plants were not economically located. Of course, there was an organization for each concern, with officers and salesmen. About 5000 hands were required. Twenty-six years ago all this property was put into a single corporation. One of our factories is now making 60 per cent. more matches than the combined product of the thirty-six factories and with 800 work people as against 5000.

"As a citizen, having knowledge of past and present conditions, I am certain that the centralization of capital into immense corporations is for the good of all. And the idea is almost as old as creation. No individual could build a railroad from Chicago to the Pacific Ocean. We welcomed the grouping of men and the combination of money in the railroad business. If the principle is workable there it can be of value elsewhere. But I would safeguard the public interest with laws which would prevent overcapitalization and extortion."

"Is the composition out of which you make the heads of matches a trade secret?"

"The main ingredients are phosphorus and chlorate of potash. Each maker, however, has his own formula and believes his way to be the best."

"You founded a town. What have you learned by the experiment?"

"That it is easier, cheaper and more scientific to build a new town than to modernize an old one. I went to England and investigated the soda-ash industry. When I returned I bought a farm and built a factory. A village and then a little city sprang up in the fields. Likewise let me mention that the price of soda-ash, which had been $40 a ton, went down."

Wickedness of Adulteration.

"It is wickeder to adulterate a man's food than to pick his pocket. Who steals my purse steals trash, but he who filches from me my good health—well, he's a possible murderer."

The speaker, pushing away, with horror, a dish of preserved strawberries, went on:

"The Germans actually do regard it as wickeder to adulterate a man's food than to steal from him, and they punish the food adulterator twice as severely as the pickpocket.

"In a German court I once saw a shabby pickpocket—he had stolen two dollars—sentenced to six months' imprisonment. Directly afterward a millionaire canner was convicted of adulterating canned beans with a chemical that was likely to give you erysipelas or quinsy. With us the canner would have gotten off with a fine, but the German judge indignantly sentenced him to two years.

"'And I regret,' the German judge added, 'that the law does not allow me to make your sentence harder.'"—[The Independent.

HIGHEST OFFICE MAY SEEK HIM.

AMERICAN PEOPLE MAY PLACE TAFT IN WHITE HOUSE.

Man of Many Honors and Wide Experience—Executive Ability and Resource in Diplomacy Proven in Many Crises and in Successful Accomplishment of Delicate Missions.

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

One of the strong candidates before the American people for election as President in November, 1908, is William Howard Taft, Secretary of War.

Born at Cincinnati, O., on September 15, 1857, Mr. Taft is a son of the late Alphonso Taft, who was a judge of the Superior Court in Cincinnati from 1865 to 1871, Secretary of War from 1875 to 1876, Attorney-General from 1876 to 1877, United States Minister to Austria from 1882 to 1885 and Minister to Russia from 1885 to 1887.

Passing through all the grades of the public schools of Cincinnati, William Howard Taft graduated from the Woodward High School in 1874, and from Yale University in 1878, with the degree of bachelor of arts. He was salutatorian in a class of 121, and also class orator. He entered the Law School of Cincinnati College in 1878, graduating in 1880 with the degree of B.L., and dividing first prize.

In May, 1880, he was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of Ohio. For about a year he served as law reporter of the Cincinnati Times, and, subsequently, of the Cincinnati Commercial. He was appointed Assistant Prosecuting Attorney in January, 1881, but resigned in March, 1882, to become collector of internal revenue for the First District of Ohio, under President Arthur. He resigned this position in March, 1883, to enter the practice of law, and continued his law practice until March, 1887, holding in the meantime, from January, 1885, the office of Assistant County Solicitor of Hamilton county. He was appointed in March, 1887, a judge of the Superior Court of Cincinnati, to fill a vacancy, caused by resignation.

He was elected in April, 1888, to succeed himself for five years, but resigned in February, 1890, to become Solicitor-General of the United States, under President Harrison. This office Mr. Taft relinquished, in March, 1892, to become United States circuit judge for the Sixth Judicial District and ex-officio member of the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Sixth Circuit. In June, 1893, Yale University honored him with the degree of LL.D., and in 1896 he became a professor and dean of the law department of the University of Cincinnati.

In March, 1900, came the event which has given the American people the benefit of the invaluable services of William Howard Taft along political and governmental lines. A great charge devolved upon our nation—to bring order out of chaos in the Philippines, with all the world looking on, ready to criticise every move we made. We had the confidence of a people to win, and a confidence hard to secure, because 400 years of Spanish oppression had created an inborn suspicion of everything new, and especially of everything foreign.

To that great task President McKinley called Mr. Taft; called him from a life of peace and quietness to a life of turbulence and worry, as first president and organizer of the United States Philippine Commission. The next year, on July 4, 1901, by appointment of President McKinley, Mr. Taft became the first Civil Governor of the Philippine Islands.

In December, 1901, by order of the Secretary of War, Mr. Taft went to Washington to testify before the Senate Committee on the Philippines and the House Committee on Insular Affairs. His testimony lasted six weeks and was most favorably received by the press and the country. It stands today as authoritative on Philippine matters.

In February, 1902, the University of Pennsylvania honored itself and Mr. Taft by conferring upon him the degree of LL.D. Both Harvard and Miami Universities did likewise in 1905.

On May 17, 1902, by order of President Roosevelt and Secretary Root, Mr. Taft went to Rome to confer with Pope Leo XIII concerning the purchase by the United States of the agricultural lands belonging to religious orders in the Philippines. He held conferences with the committee of Cardinals for over two months and reached a general basis of agreement. The importance of this successful negotiation is obvious. This piece of work alone proved conclusively that Mr. Taft has had all the high diplomatic qualities necessary to make a successful President. Of his executive ability there is no question. It has been shown in a hundred ways in the Philippines, in the War Department, and in the offices he held prior to entrance into political life.

Returning to the Philippines in August, 1902, Mr. Taft again became Civil Governor, but on December 23, 1903, returned to the United States to become Secretary of War.

With Secretary Taft's able work since his return home, the American nation and the world are familiar—his visit to Panama in November and December, 1904; his tour of inspection of the Philippine Islands in the summer of 1905, with a party of Senators and Representatives; his crisis mission to Cuba last fall, under direction of the President, by means of which revolution was nipped in the bud; his temporary service as Provisional Governor of that island; his visit to Panama, Cuba and Porto Rico in March and April, 1907, settling certain problems which had arisen.

THOUGHTS ON BUSINESS.

BY WALDO PONDRAY WARREN.

MEN OF TOMORROW.

Lack of success is largely the fruit of wasted opportunity. The men who will be most actively engaged in business affairs a few years hence are today going to school. The average young man in school does not in any practical degree appreciate what the business world will require of him. For lack of that knowledge many young men now in school are wasting opportunities as recklessly as the man of sudden wealth who lights a cigar with a twenty-dollar bill. Opportunities that in a few years money cannot buy are daily and hourly thrown away by young men with a prodigality that saddens every business man who has come to realize what such opportunities would have meant to himself and others.

A million unsuccessful men in business life call out in admonition to the young man who is not making the most of his opportunities today. A million homes of want and vain regret cry out to the teachers in schools and colleges, beseeching them to labor assiduously to imbue their pupils with right ideas of work, education and purpose. But louder still is the cry that goes out to parents, whose children are to enter the arena of the world's activity, imploring them to labor systematically and patiently to teach their boys and girls to love work for work's sake, and to love knowledge for the good it can bring—and to use every opportunity to the utmost.

GREW MISS CARROLL'S HAIR

AND WE CAN PROVE IT

Beautiful Hair At Small Cost.

WITHIN the last decade great and rapid strides have been made in Materia Medica. Many diseases that were considered incurable fifteen years ago are now cured in a few days, and in many cases prevented altogether. The scientists of late years have been delving for the cause, the foundation, the reason and the starting point of disease, fully realizing that the actual and true cause must be ascertained before the remedy can be located. Hair troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp, and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, and when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all of its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural and logical thing to do in either case is, feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is identical with the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp. It feeds and nourishes the hair and does all the work originally carried on by the natural nutrients or life-giving juices generated by the scalp itself. It penetrates the pores of the scalp quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One twenty-five-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself. Now on sale at every drug and toilet store in the land. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

WILL ASSIST VOTER.

THE accompanying profile of the Los Angeles aqueduct will assist the voter, called upon to decide whether or not the credit of the city shall be pledged to obtain an ample supply of water, to arrive at a clear comprehension of the project and the remarkable feasibility of the conduit route.

In studying a profile map it must be remembered that proportions are distorted, and that depressions are neither so deep nor so abrupt as they are made to appear. The horizontal scale of the map is eight miles to an inch, while the vertical scale is only 400 feet to an inch. This distortion is necessary in order that differences of elevation may be perceptible. A true profile of the San Francisquito Cañon, for example, if made on the scale of eight miles to an inch, horizontal and vertical, would be a line so nearly level that the departure from the horizontal would hardly be noticeable, and the depression marking the cañon would be only a wave in the line about one-thirty-second of an inch deep.

Profile distortion is, of course, familiar to those who have occasion to use maps, but others are likely to derive erroneous impressions of topography from an engineer's profile unless they bear in mind the difference between horizontal and vertical scales and the consequent exaggeration of elevations and depressions.

The profile shows how water taken from Owens River thirty miles above the lake, at an elevation of 3818 feet, runs down the natural slope of the land to the Fairmont reservoir, 800 feet lower, thence through a tunnel under the only considerable natural barrier into the precipitous San Francisquito Cañon, and thence by a series of short tunnels and inverted siphons into the San Fernando reservoirs, 2600 feet below the intake.

Division No. 1 is not properly a part of the conduit. The works in that division are designed to gather the waters of Owens River and tributary creeks and convey them to a reservoir at the south end of the valley. An open canal is to take the water from the river, pick up the water of Black Rock Springs and the surplus water of Oak Creek and Independence Creek, and carry it to the Alabama Hills, a distance of twenty-three miles. The canal will have a capacity of 35,000 to 40,000 miner's inches. It is virtually only a straightening of the river and a correction of grade.

From the north end of the Alabama Hills, the canal will be lined with masonry, and will wind along the hillsides, at an elevation above the valley and its farms, passing Owens Lake, 225 feet above its surface level, on the slope at the foot of the mountains, and picking up the creek waters at the mouths of cañons. Thus the waters of the river and its tributaries are accumulated before they have reached the alkali lands in the valley, and will go into the canal in their native purity. The alkalinity of Owens Lake and the undrained lowlands of the valley has no more relation to the water in the canal than it has to the canals on Mars.

The length of the accumulating canal, from the intake to the reservoir, is 59.4 miles. The estimated cost of construction is $3,712,100, or an average of $11.85 per foot. In making this estimate, the Board of Engineers figured on the labor of men and teams and allowed a liberal margin of safety. The first twenty-three miles of canal will be made by a floating dredge and the remainder by power excavators at a cost much below the estimate.

REGULATING RESERVOIR.

Division No. 2 is the Haiwee Reservoir, having a length of 7.4 miles and a capacity of 21,000,000,000 gallons, with a dam 70 feet high, which may be increased to 27,000,000,000 gallons by raising the dam ten feet. This capacity is sufficient to supply a constant flow of 5700 miner's inches for an entire year, if no water came into the reservoir to replenish the store. The estimated cost of dams and accessories is $4.97 per acre foot of capacity, or $316,800 if the dam is only 70 feet high. An additional ten feet of dam would cost less in proportion.

THE CONDUIT PROPER.

Division No. 3, from the reservoir to Little Lake, fifteen and a half miles, is the first and easiest division of the aqueduct proper. The total fall is 210 feet, and the first sharp drop of 270 feet may be used for power development when needed. Because of the

ALARUM AROUSING CITY ELECTORATE.

Future as Chicago's Fighting Alderman Sees It—The City's Struggle Within Nation—Human Conflict Within the City.

BY WILLIAM KENT.

[One of Chicago's first reform Aldermen, Mr. Kent, fought his way into the City Council and represented the Thirty-second Ward from 1895 to 1897, when barely a dozen of the sixty-eight men of that body were even suspected of being honest. As a member of the Municipal Voters' League and its president in 1900 and 1901, he carried the fight on and out until now there are scarcely more than a dozen of the seventy Aldermen who do not bear the indorsement of the league.—Ed. Times.]

OUR cities came unwelcomed and unprovided for into our national life. They grew up ragged, barefoot, neglected. They found no adequate expression or voice in our political scheme, which contemplated no urban needs beyond those of the town, nor method of government beyond the town meeting.

In the beginning, the States claimed the patriotic allegiance of their citizens, while the nation owed its life to what the States dropped in the hat that was passed around at the constitutional convention. In those days there were no great cities nor any great questions peculiar to urban life.

Little by little the artificial State boundaries have been erased in the aqua-regia of powers delegated to the nation, and the municipal electorate in its municipal problems. Outside the political pale, misunderstood and cursed, our cities have continued to grow.

It is only for a short period that we have seen what the city means. We now know it to be the highest social expression. We now know of the incalculable wealth produced by the labor-saving device of propinquity, and are vaguely conscious that the community should retain what the community has created. We recognize the possibilities for the highest sort of cooperation, and the strength and understanding that comes of human neighborhood.

CITY STRUGGLE WITHIN NATION.

Next to lack of urban tradition we can trace the neglect of the cities to other things that have usurped the city's share of public interest. National partisanship was naturally the overwhelming issue in the days when men were too scattered to meet on any other common ground, and during the terrible slavery struggle that culminated in the Civil War, partisanship, both North and South, was interwoven and almost synonymous with patriotism.

During the twenty years that followed, the cities grew amazingly, but still the tom-toms were beaten and our people lined up along the bloody chasm of the past. Then and thereafter came the evil days of the sack of the cities. For behind the barricades of national partisanship the voters were divided, and corruption held the balance of power. Men began to discern the danger and sought by theoretical charters to remedy the evil.

One type was an attempt to vest great powers in a Mayor, a sort of elective despotism. In other cases the virtuous rural districts were to save the wicked city from itself by managing its police force. The Pennsylvania Legislature went so far as to provide for an annihilation of home rule. On the one hand the living, cities were by law but suppliants at the feet of the moribund States, and on the other they were stifled by irrelevant partisanship and ruled by ignorant, irrelevant and vicious votes.

The earliest lessons of non-partisanship were eloquently preached by the grafters and the boodlers. Today no reformer can equal them in clear demonstration, and yet even now it is roared from the stump, that the President needs a thief elected as alderman, or that some other worthy national cause demands a crooked assessor.

An American city electorate—that is the highest need of democracy today. Good government is not enough, it must be our government.

THE HUMAN STRUGGLE.

No power from on high will do it for us; no academic discussion can produce an effect; no charter can be self-acting. We shall never respect laws that are not our laws, nor will a Carnegie library ever have the dignity of a tax-founded public institution.

It is at once the despair and the reward of the individual that in our civic struggles he is dealing with vast masses of men. The progress of democracy is slow, but when anything is accomplished a great deal has been done, all of us are rising or falling together. Thus to hammer, to drive in, a "realizing sense" of things municipal, has taken years and years of fiery and immeasurable energy, but not one particle of honest effort has been wasted. The lessons are taking hold and bearing fruit; the cities are coming to their own.

It seems strange that we city dwellers should have gone so far astray and should have failed to link our urban conditions next to our family life. Light, air, water, sanitation and transportation, we must have as primary physical necessities; law and order, education, recreation, and beauty—these are fundamental social demands. Not one of these essentials can in anywise find expression or place in the policies of national parties. For none of them can the cities look to the State. They must be worked for by each community, and obtained under home rule, through the service, the struggle and the sacrifice of the municipal citizen. The prayer of the cities to the States should be the short prayer of the French Revolution—"Let us alone." That is the charter needed, the charter of unrestricted home rule in all municipal needs.

The insistent near-at-hand demands of the city will not weaken the spirit of national patriotism. The school of municipal civics at which the attendance is compulsory, will better fit men to act with intelligence in the broader field. Ignorance and neglect of the meaning of a flag for which men are willing to die, is a combination altogether too common. It is in the cities where all that is best and highest in human life flourishes, and has always flourished, that the meaning of patriotism must be found in a sanity and continuity of public service; more in living for others than in ignorantly dying for a cause that may be wrong.

FOR MUNICIPAL ADVANCE.

As one who has enlisted for the war and who has been down amid the fighting, I rejoice in the many new activities of the cities and the vast burdens they are certain to assume. For only by directly taking charge of the common necessities that are inherently monopolies will the municipal government act in its full capacity as custodian of the commonwealth. It is only when the city dweller appreciates the wonderful enrichment of life that the city can afford, and is willing to strive with patient strength to throw open the doors of [illegible] opportunity that he is worthy of the name of citizen.

Through the evil days of turmoil, graft and incompetence the army of the city elecorate has been mustering.

The struggle of and for democracy must be primarily an urban struggle.

PROSPEROUS BISBEE.

Strikers Have Gone, Miners Are Busy, and Smelters Are Turning Out Full Product.

BISBEE (Ariz.) May 18.—Of the 1200 men who quit work in the Bisbee mines in compliance to the demands of the Western Federation of Labor, less than 200 remain in the camp, while about 3000 men are busy and drawing satisfactory wages around the mines. Miners are coming in from all parts of the country, and the management of the Copper Queen has stated that within two weeks there will be more men employed in its shafts than at any time within the past year. The smelters at Douglas are running to the limit of their enormous capacity on Bisbee ores, without necessity for resort to the stock piles.

The Copper Queen bullion production for the past month was about 9,500,000 pounds, a half-million short of the record for March. Yet a greater tonnage was handled than in any other month in the history of the smelter, the furnace charges aggregating 106,000 tons. The drop in production can be charged to the strike, which prevented the hoisting of the usual amounts of high-grade ore, but the management seized the opportunity to get rid of available ore of lower grade, and to work up a score or so of trainloads of slag from the old Bisbee smelter dump, found well worth attention. So it is probable that in the way of net profits, the company has done quite as well as usual.

At the Calumet and Arizona smelter four furnaces turned out the usual production of 4,000,000 pounds of copper. The ores stoped on the C. and A. properties usually are of higher grade than the average from the Copper Queen.

A drift on the 1100-foot level of the Denn-Arizona mine has broken into an ore body assaying better than 11 per cent. copper.

CRIPPLE CREEK TUNNEL.

To Drain Mines of the Great Gold Camp at a Depth of Two Thousand Feet.

The great Cripple Creek, Colo. drainage tunnel is the most noted event in the most famous gold mining camp ever discovered in the history of the world. Work was started May 11, 1907.

The portal of the tunnel is located on the stream known as Cripple Creek, and is situated at an elevation of 8020 feet above sea level. It will drain the entire Cripple Creek district at a depth of about 1130 feet from the surface, or 730 feet below the present water level. The district is drained at the present time by what is known as the El Paso tunnel, which cuts the El Paso mine on the west side of the district (on Beacon Hill) at a depth of about 600 feet from the surface; and the Vindicator mine, on the east side of the camp, at a depth of 1275 feet from the surface. The new tunnel will drain the Beacon Hill section at a depth of about 1330 feet from the surface, and the Vindicator district at a depth of about 2000 feet from the surface.

The length of this tunnel from its portal to the main contact near the El Paso shaft, at which point it begins to drain the district, is about 14,000 feet, which, figuring at the rate of $50 per foot, would cost $700,000 to this point. To continue it to the Vindicator, as proposed, is a further distance of about 12,000 feet, and, as estimated, would cost an additional $300,000, which would make the total length of this tunnel from its portal to the Vindicator shaft about 26,000 feet, and is estimated would cost about $1,000,000.

It is figured that it will take about two years to build it to the contact and between one and one-half to two years longer to build it to the Vindicator shaft, or a total of from three and one-half to four years to construct the tunnel. But all this time ore will be extracted from the upper and reclaimed levels

HOW RAILROADS DO IN TEXAS.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC SINGS A NEW TUNE DOWN THERE.

Lone Star State Corporations Must Run Lines and Keep Offices There. Capital Pours in to Build New Lines, but There Is Complaint of Juries' Awards.

BY ARTHUR R. HINTON.

Texas is a State that has gained fame for its strict control of the railroads and other corporations, too. The Texas car law is a model that is being copied and advocated in other States suffering from railroad domination. Besides the famous reciprocal demurrage law, Texas has several other statutes governing railroads. One required all trains to stop at county seats and it was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States so far as it affected fast through trains engaged in interstate business.

One of the Texas railroad laws is that which requires any railroad corporation to be organized under Texas laws, to have its headquarters and all books and papers kept within the State. For instance, the Southern Pacific's main line crosses Texas from El Paso to the Louisiana line, beside which it has the Houston & Texas Central, the New York, Texas and Mexico, Houston, East and West Texas lines and many branches, all some 2000 miles of track, but the name "Southern Pacific" does not appear in connection therewith.

The Southern Pacific Railroad legally terminates at the crossing of the Rio Grande just west of El Paso, where Texas is entered. From there on it is the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio. Coming into El Paso from the west the conductor of your train has "S. P." on his cap, east of that city, "G. H. & S. A." The time tables and literature of the railroad are careful to inform you that west of El Paso it is the Southern Pacific company (Pacific system;) from El Paso to Houston, the G. H. & S. A.; from Houston to the Louisiana line, the Texas & New Orleans, and from there on, the Southern Pacific again, but this time the Atlantic system. In Texas the newspapers seldom refer to the Southern Pacific as entering their State. The local name is almost always used, while in Louisiana it is always called the Southern Pacific, just as in California. There is a separate management, rules and everything for the lines east and west of El Paso with different officials. Practically all the active officials in Louisiana and Texas are the same, but they hold two offices and two titles. When it is necessary to do otherwise dummies are sometimes used.

The Santa Fé has a line running into El Paso from the north, its total length in Texas being twenty miles. This is known officially as the Rio Grande & El Paso. It has a set of dummy directors, some of them employés, railroad attorneys and business men of El Paso who accept the places with nothing to do. The offices of president, general manager, secretary, auditor, assistant general manager, general superintendent, superintendent and everything else are generally combined in the person of some youthful clerk, who spends his time checking or writing letters in the agent's office until he gets disgusted or discharged, when some other dummy assumes the weight of all these titles. In the eastern part of the State the Santa Fé has a large system known as the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fé.

Absurd as this may seem in some particulars, there is no question about the benefit which Texas gets from the strict control of railroads. The Southern Pacific sings a very different tune in Texas from what it does in California. It gets over the difficulty of ownership by having entirely separate corporations owning the stock. But it is careful, very careful, not to offend the Texans. In fact, it is well pleased with the way the newspapers and public seem to have forgotten that it is still doing business there.

It would be ridiculous to contend that the Texas laws which regulate rates appoint receivers for railroads whose service has become unbearably bad with late trains, poor cars and slow traveling, are driving out capital. At present the State is progressing as rapidly as any State in the Union along the line of railroad building. Indeed, it is making a far better showing than most States. Of course, its great resources and vast area will readily account for this.

TEXAS DAMAGE SUITS.

On the other hand, there are some just complaints on the part of railroads. Some of these, of course, are true of other States as well. The chief one is the readiness of juries to award the most unworthy claimant heavy damages. El Paso, being the terminus of eight railroads, is naturally a place where railroad suits are common events in court. For several years I had occasion to observe their workings.

In one case a young Mexican laborer got on the footboard of a switch engine to ride into town from the smelter, six miles out at Towne. He had absolutely no right to do it, the crew had no right to let him and were acting contrary to rules, but were too easy-going or good-natured to kick him off. He fell off and lost his leg. A thousand dollars' damages was the jury's award, the fact that he was a trespasser apparently making no difference at all.

In another case, a young man came to El Paso from Las Cruces, N. M., soon after the first of the year, and spent a week "painting the town." The agent at Las Cruces misdated his ticket, making it read as though it were of the previous year, a not uncommon mistake under the circumstances. The young man started home and presented the ticket, rumpled and torn, to the conductor who, examing it, remarked in an interrogative way, that he "was afraid it wasn't good." Without attempting the slightest explanation, the passenger, decidedly the worse for his stay in town, jumped up and rushed to the platform, saying "Let me off." The conductor had to stop the train to keep him from jumping off and hurting himself.

Returning to the city he fell in with a lawyer who immediately got him to sue. The railroad agent, hearing of the matter, hunted him up and offered to pay all his expenses and furnish him a new ticket. In court the passenger denied this and the issue was simply one of veracity between him and the agent, as was his account of what transpired on the train, an issue between his uncorroborated statement and those of conductor and brakeman. The jury gave him $500 for the "humiliation" he had undergone and the Supreme Court upheld the verdict, although just how it was possible to humiliate a man of such a class as he was shown to be is somewhat hard to understand. Good law, I hear some lawyer say. No doubt it is, but what sort of justice.

Still another case was that of a young man who was beating his way on a freight train from Los Angeles to El Paso. He was ordered off the train and fell, injuring his wrist. He recovered and was able to earn a living without any trouble, although his right wrist remained stiff. He charged that the conductor had pushed him and caused his fall, when he was already obeying the order to get off. He recovered $5000. An amusing part of it all was the speech in which his lawyer laid great stress upon the consequences of his client losing the best use of his right hand, not knowing at the time that he was left-handed.

Some queer things sometimes come for adjustment, particularly in the Federal courts of El Paso, in suits brought against the Mexican Central for accidents in Mexico. In such cases the trial can be held in the United States and at El Paso, because the railroad has an office and agent there, but the decision involves the construing of the laws of Mexico by American courts, it being necessary for the plaintiff to show that the circumstances would warrant his recovering in the Mexican courts under the laws of the southern republic. As the entire code of Mexico, methods of procedure and principles of law are different, this is a hard matter, neither the court or the lawyers on either side being very familiar with them. At first the United States District Court held that such cases could not be tried in this country, but this was overruled on appeal. The result is that every American passenger or trainman, hurt on the Mexican Central comes to El Paso to sue.

Here are two cases that illustrate the workings of this system. A conductor was knocked off the top of his caboose while going through the tunnel on Rascon Mountain on the Tampico branch. He lost an arm and leg, and was awarded $15,000 on account of faulty construction of the tunnel, in that it was lower in the middle than at the ends. This too, was in the face of the fact that he had deliberately ridden in the most dangerous position possible without, as the company contended, there being the least reason for it.

Shortly after this case was settled on appeal, a Mexican Central engineer driving his engine under the bridge of the Rio Grande, Sierra Madre and Pacific, near Juarez, leaned out too far and bumped his head. He sued the two railroads, claiming the bridge had been built too near the track. The railroad attorneys were prepared this time and successfully introduced a Mexican law under which a railroad was held to be relieved from responsibility when the government inspector had accepted any piece of work, which he must do before a road can be operated. It would look as though the same law should have applied to the other case as well.

All over Texas the complaint is made by railroad managers that juries will not listen to a company's case, but will award damages on almost any claim.

UNREDEEMED CURRENCY.

THE NATIONAL TREASURY IS FIFTEEN MILLIONS AHEAD.

Much Fractional Money Has Been Destroyed, While Other Large Amounts Are Preserved as Souvenirs of the War Period, When Medium Was Scarce.

It has been long since our pocketbooks were puffed up as they were when fractional currency was in its prime. No doubt many who now smooth out and fold up the "long green" at regular pay days have but faint recollections of the times when the pretty little notes, about as big as an ordinary visiting card, and bearing denominations of 3, 5, 10, 15, 25, and 50 cents were in circulation, says the Washington Star.

It was on the 17th of March, 1862, when Salmon P. Chase was Secretary of the Treasury that Mr. Hooper, of Massachusetts, introduced into the National House of Representatives "a bill to authorize payment in stamps and to prohibit the circulation of notes of less denomination than $1." Many banks were then issuing small notes, and the small coin was rapidly disappearing from circulation. This bill became a law almost immediately, and then the little currency notes were launched out as good money.

During their existence a total amounting to $368,724,079.45 was issued, and the greatest amount of it was on its travels throughout the land on March 23, 1879, when the various denominations of fractional currency showed up a total of exactly $49,566,760.27. This sort of money was issued very rapidly for awhile, but it was also being almost constantly redeemed. The issues did not go beyond fifty millions

The San Fernando mountain range is to be pierced with a tunnel nearly parallel to, but east of the Southern Pacific Railroad tunnel, and at an elevation some 40 to 60 feet lower, having a total length of 14,160 feet from portal to portal.

For complete covering of the conduit and for construction of the Fairmont and San Fernando reservoirs, the estimate is $2,220,000.

WATER ABUNDANT AND GOOD.

The aqueduct thus described was declared by the most eminent water engineers in America to be capable of delivering to the city 26,000 inches of water from Owens Valley, and the engineers pronounced the water "of good quality for domestic use."

In August, 1905, a committee of the Chamber of Commerce visited the valley, took many samples of water from the river and had them analyzed by different chemists, and the committee reported that the quality of the water was satisfactory. Numerous analyses have been made, and all show that there is less alkali in Owens River water than in the Los Angeles River. Even the organ of the power companies had analyses made, and in April, 1906, said that there was not enough mineral matter in the water of Owens River to render it unfit for domestic usage.

OFFICIAL DATA.

WHAT THE CITY HAS ACQUIRED.

Chief Engineer Mulholland reports to the Board of Public Works that the city has acquired, by purchase, water rights aggregating about 15,000 inches, based upon appropriations by its predecessors on the river and tributary streams. These rights are for the use of water during the irrigating season, and from careful measurements will yield during such seasons to the city a continuous flow during normal years, of about 11,000 inches. In addition to these rights, the city has acquired practically the entire river frontage from the intake to Owens Lake, a distance of nearly fifty miles. As riparian owner of all of such lands, the city would have the right to divert winter waters which flow during the non-irrigating season, and also the right to regulate the flood waters through its reservoir system below the point of intake. Combining these summer irrigation waters with the winter flow, and by so regulating the flood waters, the city would receive during normal years, a mean annual flow of from 15,000 to 20,000 inches. With 240,000 acre feet storage at Long Valley, the net supply that may be delivered in all years from these rights is estimated at 400 second feet, of 20,000 inches. The effort has been made on the part of the city to purchase all lands riparian to the Owens River from the north line of township 10 south, range 34 east, M.D.M. (which is ten miles north of the proposed point of diversion) to Owens Lake. The city has also filed under the State law on all surplus water in Owens River at the diversion point and on all tributaries south of the diversion point, as well as on the main river at the Long Valley reservoir site. The California court's rulings as to the relative rights of appropriators of water, as against lower riparian owners, are not entirely clear, consequently the purchase of these lower riparian lands was considered desirable. With very minor exceptions the city now owns all of the riparian lands on both banks of the Owens River from the diversion point to the Owens Lake, and Owens Lake has no outlet and is saline. Purchases have also been made of lands riparian to the tributary streams entering the valley from the diversion point south and also of lands having water rights on these tributary streams.

GOVERNMENT AID.

Acting largely on the request of the city of Los Angeles, Mr. Gifford Pinchot, Chief of the Forestry Bureau, has extended the boundaries of the Sierra Forest Reserve well down into the Owens Valley from the west and so as to include the greater portion of the drainage basin above Bishop. This forest reserve will permanently prevent the taking up of public lands therein in this district. These forest reserve boundaries have also been temporarily extended so as to include all of the drainage basin of Owens River north of Owens Valley, and also all the lands in the Owens Valley from Big Pine to the Haiwee Reservoir site. The city has requested this extension because when the restorations are made by the Secretary of the Interior of lands withdrawn under the Reclamation Act, the city could not prevent filings on these lands by individuals, and as there is a great deal of public land in the Owens Valley, this would lead to annoyance and expense to the city, particularly in connection with the filings that might be made on the lands riparian to the tributary streams. The extension of the forest reserve boundaries will conserve both the quality and the quantity of water available from the reserve. The Bureau of Forestry throughout the entire period when the city was considering this project, has repeatedly aided the city in this enterprise.

Application was made by the Chief Engineer to the Secretary of the Interior, requesting that Mr. E. Duryee, cement expert of the Reclamation Service, be detailed to study the cement investigation along the aqueduct. The Secretary permitted Mr. Duryee to devote one-half of his time to the city of Los Angeles, and arrangements of this nature were entered into with Mr. Duryee last October. Lime and clay deposits were found near Mojave. The Cuddeback Ranch, containing 3000 acres, upon which the clay is found, has been purchased. Options have been secured upon the limestone. Mr. Duryee's report on the cement situation is given as Appendix I. He estimates that the cement mill can be constructed for $302,363, exclusive of the price of the land. The Board of Engineers estimated that 1,300,000 barrels of cement will be required. The cost of the mill, distributed over the output of cement, is 23 cents per barrel. The cost of the mill has been considered separately by the Board of Engineers. Mr. Duryee estimates that the cost per barrel for the manufacture of the cement, exclusive of the cost of the plant, will be $1; the capacity of the mill to be 1000 barrels per day.

CEMENT PROJECT.

It is evident that whoever furnishes cement for the aqueduct, it will be manufactured in the vicinity of Tehachepi. It has been scientifically and practically demonstrated by the investigations of Mr. Duryee, government cement expert, that good materials are at hand there for making a superior grade of cement, and the proximity of the deposits to the Kern River oil field and to the place of consumptoin precludes the practicability of hauling the cement in from distant points.

The deposits of limestone and clay found there possess the important qualifications of being extensive, uniform and of the required chemical composition. Portland cement is a heavy article, and, as it is required in large quantities, it is a rational proposition to manufacture it hear to the point of consumption. Mr. Duryee is the pioneer in this field of economy in great engineering constructions. In 1903, when the United States Reclamation Service undertook the great Salt River irrigation project, near Phoenix, Ariz., he investigated the materials in the vicinity of the Roosevelt dam site and finally built a cement works there for the government. The output of this mill has proven to be a better cement for use in the constructin of the dam and canals than could have been purchased from commercial manufacturers, while its cost is half the lowest bid submitted. The total amount of cement required for the Salt River dam approximates 300,000 barrels, and the saving to the Reclamation Service by making it on the ground will be about $600,000.

The Owens River project will use four times that amount of cement, and the probable saving will doubtless be about one and a half million dollars, if the city concludes to erect a mill and make the cement.

The proposed location of the mill near Tehachepi is on the line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and ten miles by rail to Warren, a point about midway in the length of the aqueduct.

In the case of the Salt River project in Arizona a bitter fight was made by the Association of American Portland Cement Manufacturers against the manufacture of cement by the government at the dam, and their opposition delayed the construction of the cement mill six months, but Secretary Hitchcock could neither be bluffed nor cajoled by the manufacturers, and after every opportunity had been given the fighters to furnish cement at prices as low as the government engineers could make it on the ground, and they had failed to make good, he authorized the construction of the mill by the government employés, and the results have proven very satisfactory.

The government is furnishing its own make of cement at the project at half the figure offered by the manufacturers. In the parallel case of the Los Angeles aqueduct, the city has secured specially low rates on important items of the cost of manufacture, thereby effecting a saving that could not be secured by a corporation.

Less than a year ago experts employed to investigate the economic features of a cement manufacturing project in California, reported to the capitalists interested that the cost of making cement in Santa Cruz county would be 75 cents a barrel on a daily production of 2000 barrels, and that at the price of $1 a barrel at the mill, the plant would show a profit of over 20 per cent. on the capital interested.

BOARD OF ENGINEERS.

At the time the preliminary bond issue for $1,500,000 was submitted to the people of Los Angeles in September, 1905, the Board of Water Commissioners promised to employ hydraulic engineers of national reputation to pass on the plans and cost of this project. In accordance with this agreement a Board of Engineers consisting of John R. Freeman, Frederic P. Stearns and James D. Schuyler were so employed. Mr. Stearns at that time was chief engineer of the Metropolitan Water Board, which has constructed and is now operating the water works for some twenty towns around Boston Bay. He was president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, consulting engineer of the Panama Canal, and consulting engineer on the additional water supply for the city of New York. John R. Freeman is a past president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, consulting engineer for the additional water supply of the city of New York, former consulting engineer for the Metropolitan Water Board, and lately appointed consulting engineer for the Panama Canal. It was considered particularly desirable to employ some western engineer who was familiar with the cost of work in the Southwest, and particularly with conditions in Southern California. J. D. Schuyler was assistant State Engineer for California from 1878 to 1882

Electricity from the Sky.

Dore Ogden of Columbus, Ind., is installing a wireless telegraph system for which he purposes securing the necessary electricity by using kites. A few years ago, when the United States government was trying to get larger kites to be used by the Weather Bureau, Ogden built a number of large ones of canvas, some of them being twelve feet square. These kites were sent up a distance of one and one-half miles by means of wires to which they were attached, and the wire was taken off a reel as the kites ascended. When the kites had been sent up, Ogden noticed that the lower parts of the wires to which they were attached became charged with currents of electricity so strong that one dared not touch them, nor did one dare to approach very near to the wires. From this condition Ogden has figured that kites sent up from the various wireless stations that he will establish for experimental purposes will attract sufficient electricity to convey messages from one wireless station to another.

Identification by the Palate.

Dr. Paul Prager, of Vienna, an army surgeon, who has made a special study of the methods of identification, recommends that prisoners should be identified by the shape of their palates. He thinks the system far more efficious than by finger prints.

Among the thousands of moulds he has taken of the interior of the human mouth, he has failed to find two which even slightly resemble each other.

He says that though the teeth alter greatly with time, the markings of the palate remains unchanged throughout life. The individuality of the palate is greater and more permanent than that of any other part of the body, and a detective force which possessed a large collection of mouth moulds would have a guide infinitely safer than a gallery of finger prints.

Water and Volcanoes.

The theory that water reaching the subterranean fires causes the eruptions of volcanoes is refuted by Albert Brun, a chemist and geologist of Geneva, Switzerland. For instance, he found in the crater of Vesuvius great deposits of chlorine salts which deliquesce under the influence of the vapor of cold water. They melt away instantaneously. Their presence is irreconcilable, M. Brun thinks, with the notion that steam had been at work in the crater. Further, he finds that the cinder or scoriae from the volcano have the power of absorbing great quantities of water, and he thinks would certainly have done so, with characteristic chemical changes, if water had been present when the eruption took place.

M. Brun considers that the vaporous clouds which float over the volcano during eruption need not necessarily be steam. Many other products of chemical action would give the same appearance.

Fighting Tuberculosis.

Prof. Fraenkel and Dr. Kirshner of the medical department of the German Ministry of Education have made public the results obtained from scientific methods of hygiene, sanitation and diet in the Berlin Sanatorium. Of 2255 consumptives received in this institution in the six years following 1900, about 300 were cured and 1400 showed marked improvement. One-third of the patients who entered during the first stages of the disease were cured and nearly two-thirds were radically improved.

"Within the next twenty or thirty years consumption will be practically obsolete in German cities," said an experienced American observer of sanitary conditions who is now visiting Berlin.

Are Geniuses Mad Men.

Much interest has been aroused in Germany by the announcement that some of the most noted scientists whose brains have been examined were afflicted with hydrocephalno (water head.) Prof. Von Hanseman makes this statement after an examination of the brains of the late Theodore Mommsen, the historian; Herman von Helmholtz, the physiologist, and Adolf Menzel, the painter. This condition he says explains Menzel's extreme irritability and occasional fainting fits and the chronic cramps from which Helmholtz suffered.

Tuberculosis Due to Alcoholism.

Prof. Lancereaux, a member of the Academy of Medicine, and one of the greatest authorities in France on alcoholism, declares that the abuse of spirituous liquors is responsible for a new variety of tuberculosis. Tuberculosis of the hard drinker develops first, according to Prof. Lancereaux, at the right top of the lung toward the back, whereas ordinary tuberculosis begins at the left top and toward the front of the lung. "This is an undeniable fact," says Prof. Lancereaux, "and whereas a century ago it was universally recognized that tuberculosis began at the left top and in the front part of the lung, it is now quite the contrary in a majority of cases. Many legislative measures have been taken to prevent the spread of tuberculosis, but the only efficacious one would be to check the march of alcoholism."

IN THE BIG INDUSTRIES.

The Deepest Gold Mine.

With what persistent effort gold mining is carried on is apparent from the depth of some of the noted mines. Australia claims to have the deepest gold mine in the world, the shafts at the New Chum Railway, at Bendigo, Victoria, having been sunk to a depth of over 4300 feet, and the quartz there tapped has been sampled and chushed, with a result that a yield of gold equal to an ounce per ton has been obtained. The operations in the mine have been tested by government officials in view of the fact that never before in the world's history has gold been obtained from so low a depth as three-quarters of a mile.

Sulphur Saves Wood.

Sulphur as a wood preservative has been used with success in Germany. It is applied in liquid form, and upon hardening it completely fills the cellular spaces in the wood, resisting the action of water and chemicals at moderate temperature. Sulphur for this purpose has been found to answer all purposes where the wood treated is not to be exposed to great heat, such as the intense sunshine of the more southern localities, for the sulphur then takes liquid form and leaves the wood. Poplar is said to be the most susceptible to the treatment, but pine and oak rather indifferently.

A Big Linoleum Mill.

The Armstrong Cork Company has purchased thirty acres of land at Lancaster, Pa., on which will be erected linoleum factory buildings, at an expense of $600,000.

Work will begin at an early day, and when completed 1000 hands will be employed.

There are now only seven linoleum factories in the United States, and the Armstrong Company controls the cork output.

Electric Smelting.

Electric smelting is at last to be done on this continent on a commercial basis. It has long been regarded as an ideal process, but not commercially practicable. A company has been formed and all the arrangements made for such a plant at Niagara Falls, on the Canadian side, the necessary current being derived from the cataract. What is known as the Heroult process, which is said to have already demonstrated its value in several smaller plants in Europe, will be used. It is proposed to show that iron and steel can be manufactured by electricity superior and cheaper than in any other manner.

Tautalum's Great Utility.

The new metal tantalum may revolutionize the manufacture of different metals. The metal possesses many of the same qualities as does platinum; it is not acted upon by acids. In ductility, it is much like iron—it can be worked as readily as iron, but is much heavier. Hammering renders it exceedingly hard, and in alloy with steel it develops startling metallurgical properties.

Experiments at the Krupp Shipyards, in Essen, show that as an armor-piercing point for projectiles of great velocity, tantalum is destined to revolutionize modern marine warfare, and will equalize the attack to the defense, for the resistance of armor plate heavily alloyed with it is increased 25 per cent.

Scientists who have examined tantalum under the direction of a German syndicate which is trying to control the output insist that it will replace the diamond for use as drills. It is the only metal so far discovered, except platinum, which is too costly to have a place commercially among the metals, which can be used in place of the bamboo filament in the electric vacuum bulb.

MEN AND THINGS OVER THE SEAS.

The Old and the New.

Damascus, the oldest surviving city in the world, and probably the most typically Oriental one, has just celebrated the opening of a new electric street railway and an electric street lighting service. It was an event of more than passing interest in the old city. Representatives of the Ottoman government came from Constantinople to attend the celebration. The Consul-General at Beirut writes the State Department that it was a red-letter day in the annals of Ottoman Asia. Until about one year ago there existed a ban on electricity in Turkey. The Consul-General at Beirut relates that it was American influence that raised the ban. The country is still without the telephone.

Sacrifices of French Priests.

The Separation Act, which deprived the French Catholic clergy of official position and stipends, has led many to adopt curious forms of coöperation with a view to earning their living in Paris. The priests have formed a syndicate the chief object of which is to procure coal and provisions at wholesale prices. There is also a federation of clerks who do manual labor. Many priests who are capable gardeners and carpenters find employment through this federation. In the Department of the Cher priests have formed a beekeepers' association and make as a yearly income from the sale of honey about $150, almost their former stipends.

A Talking Clock.

A novel use for the phonograph has been found by the Kaiser, who has had it connected with a clock, so that, for instance, when he wishes to be at the Chancellor's house at 10 o'clock in the morning, he speaks into the phonograph the night before, moves the pointer and is then called at the hour indicated. The phonograph graciously announces:

"Your Majesty, now is the time to call the carriage to go to Chancellor von Buelow's."

Moreover, when the Emperor is at breakfast, the clock tells him a dozen or more things which he spoke into the phonograph the night before so as not to forget them.

Kaiser Amenable to Law.

For a long time the Kaiser has been at law with a hotel-keeper on the imperial estate at Rominten, and has twice been defeated in the courts. Herr Gustavus Kalmert, the hotel-keeper in question, was accused by the Kaiser of having sold spirituous liquor without authorization, and having broken his contract. Besides being non-suited the Kaiser has been condemned to pay costs.

Lottery for Science.

In order to secure funds to carry on excavations at the site of the Roman amphitheater at Benevento, a bill has been presented to the Italian Chamber of Deputies providing for a $200,000 lottery. The town of Benevento was founded, according to tradition, by Diomedes and possesses Trajan's triumphal arch, which is the finest and best preserved of all the Roman structures. The amphitheater is lying almost intact under a number of old houses occupied by poor people.

PEOPLE OF THE COAST.

Prof. T. B. Robertson of the State University has been conducting some remarkable experiments in the production of artificial proteids at the university laboratory during the past five months. His experiments are supplemental to the work of Dr. Jacques Loeb, in the creation of life from inanimate matter.

Mayor Thomas Rickard of Berkeley refused to permit the town trustees to raise his salary of $25 a month when the salaries of the town officials were readjusted. It was proposed to increase Mayor Rickard's salary to a figure commensurate with the dignity and responsibility of the office, but the Mayor refused to accept any advance.

Artist Keith of Berkeley is reviving the old art of painting on gold, when he wants to get mellow effects. So in love with his art is he that on the day of the earthquake he only lost one hour's time. He went to San Francisco in the morning and when he saw he could do nothing he returned to his home and began to paint at 11 o'clock. Usually he starts work at 10 o'clock.

Thomas Cotter, a wool buyer of Battle Mountain, Nev., recently saw a hole in a sack of wool and on sticking in his hand he found a canvas sack containing more than $1200 in gold and silver. It is believed that the money had been concealed in the sack by some ignorant sheep-shearer and that the fellow had been unable to find the sack after hiding his money. Cotter believes, however, that it had been concealed in the sack by some thief, believing that it would have been claimed had a sheep-shearer hidden it.

Haig Patigian, a young sculptor of San Francisco, is winning encomiums in Paris over the exhibition of his latest work, entitled "Ancient History." It represents the figure of a beautiful woman, practically life size, standing on the globe, but her outstretched arms outstretched as if trying to grasp knowledge, flutter away into the pinions of a phoenix or a griffin. The whole statue is seven feet, seven inches in height. Patigian will return to San Francisco in August, and soon thereafter will be married to Miss Blanche Hollister.

PROMINENT PERSONS.

During his visit to Rome, J. Pierpont Morgan refused to be have the title of Count conferred upon him by the Pope, on which the Pope is said to have taken from his own neck the chain of solid gold and the diamond and jeweled cross of the Order of St. Gregory the Great and presented it to the American king of finance. Mr. Morgan was unable to refuse this. This order, one of the highest of the papal orders of knighthood, instituted in 1831, carries with it the distinction of entering the presence of the Pope without a previously arranged appointment.

Israel Zangwill and George Bernard Shaw are considered the most business-like of authors, and they give editors as much trouble as if they were great capitalists "placing" their thousands to grow millions. While one has what is called a "fantastic ideal" and the other is the sworn enemy of cant, each is capable of driving a hard bargain. Mr. Shaw especially is credited with "jumping all over" his publishers.

Samuel Douglas McEnery, Louisiana's senior Senator, is nearing his seventieth birthday, and except for defective hearing he is hale and hearty. He was educated at the United States Naval Academy, but preferred the life of planter to that of a naval officer.

Gov. Swanson of Virginia and his wife were compelled on May 1 to ride in a dirt cart from the Jamestown Exposition grounds to the boat. Speaking to an exposition official, who expressed surprise at the situation, the Governor said: "I must accept with thanks even the dirt wagon which you are kind enough to furnish me. I am thankful you do not require us to walk and carry our trunks."

SEEK GOLD IN VOLCANO.

AN AMAZING ROMANCE OF TREASURE-SEEKING.

A Colombian Lake Drained After Years of Endeavor When the Climate Changes and Rain Falls Everywhere Except at the Volcanic Lake.

In a small city office situated in Londonwall, news is anxiously awaited from a man who is sitting on the edge of a mountain lake in Colombia, Central America, waiting for rain, says the London Express.

Heavy rain may mean for him and for those in the city office in Londonwall the recovery of treasure worth, so experts say, at least £100,000,000. The hero of the vigil is H. Knowles, managing director in Bogota of Contractors, Limited. The story of the company is one of the most amazing romances of treasure-seeking in history.

The Lake of Guatavita, in Colombia, lies in the basin formed by the cone of an extinct volcano. It stands nine to ten thousand feet above the sea level, and is but a few miles from the thriving little coal city of Bogota. Many centuries ago it was the sacred lake of the Chibchas, a race which at the time of the Spanish conquest numbered over 1,000,000 individuals.

The Chibchas worshiped the "Gilded Man," and devoutly believed that their deity made his home at the bottom of the Lake of Guatavita. Periodically they declared to have made pilgrimages to the lake, where they cast every imaginable kind of treasure, gold, silver and jewels, into the waters, with the object of propitiating the "Gilded man," who, through his army of priests, threatened all kinds of pains and penalties unless the treasures were offered in sufficient quantities.

The story of the Chibchas has many times been investigated by travelers, and all agree in believing that the lake contained untold treasure. Humboldt, the famous traveler and historian, was one of those who estimated its value at £100,000,000.

Queseda, the Spanish conqueror of the Chibchas, was told the story of the treasure, and succeeded in reducing the water of the lake, then 214 feet deep, to fifteen feet. Then the sides fell in and all his labor was wasted. Further attempts were abandoned, and the lake regained to a very large extent its former depth.

Where the great Spanish administrator failed, however, Contractors, Limited, a prosaic British syndicate formed just over six years ago, has determined to succeed.

The syndicate was formed for the purpose of exploiting a concession obtained from the Columbian government to drain the lake and recover for their own uses the treasure believed to be hidden by its waters. Among its directors are R. J. Price, M. P., for the eastern division of Norfolk, chairman, and C. J. Murietta. Its capital was originally £20,000, and was increased to £35,000 in 1902.

After six years of hard work, however, some of those connected with the company are beginning to believe that the "Gilded Man" is still at the bottom of the lake guarding his treasure. Encouraging finds of isolated gold and silver gods and jeweled goddesses have from time to time supported the tradition of the treasure, but so far the dreams of untold wealth have not materialized.

First the lake was drained. It was not an easy task, for it is some nine miles in length, and unforeseen difficulties were constantly confronting the workers. The most harassing of these was the constant rain, which, winter and summer, hardly ever ceased.

At last, however, toward the end of 1903, the welcome news reached London that Mr. Knowles and his staff of engineers and workmen had succeeded in cutting through the basin of the lake and the water had been drained off successfully. There was great jubilation, and preparations were made for the large consignments of gold, silver and jewels which might be expected to arrive by the next boats.

Unfortunately, however, the water is not the only barrier on which the "Gilded Man" has to rely for the safe keeping of his treasure. The jubilation in Londonwall was summarily ended by a cablegram stating that 25 feet of solid mud, or some 30,000,000 cubic feet in all, still lay between the treasure-seekers and their quest.

But what is 30,000,000 cubic feet of mud when £100,000,000 is at stake? A new engineering feat was decided on—the construction of a great dam across the hole made in the side of the basin terminating in a shaft through which the mud should be washed and carefully precipitated, so as to secure the gold and silver treasures as they were disturbed from their hiding place of centries.

The dam was constructed, and with it the cleansing shaft, but while the work was in progress a strange thing had happened. The "Gilded Man" was evidently at work again.

For more than three years the engineers had worked in the rain, in such a downpour, indeed, as was unprecedented in Central America. As the water ran from the lake, however, the rain had stopped, and a drought equally without a parallel in the history of the country set in. For more than two and a half years not a drop of rain had fallen at the scene of the operations, and when the engineers had completed the construction of the dam it was only to find that the sun had baked the 30,000,000 cubic feet of mud into the consistency of hard rock.

Then, metaphorically speaking, the engineers sat down and wept. The rock-like substance still lies as an impenetrable bomb-proof lid over the golden gods and the silver dishes and ornaments, to say nothing of the jeweled goddesses and their glittering handmaidens.

The few natives in the region, remnants of the great race of Chibchas, occasionally visit the scene and smile cheerfully at the downcast Englishmen. "It is all the work of the 'Gilded Man,' who is watching over his treasure mountain," they say, and they plainly hint that when the rain comes—if it ever does come—to soften the mud, some other obstacle will defeat the desire of the treasure seekers.

Letter after letter from Mr. Knowles to the little office in the city dejectedly refers to the determined opposition nature has placed in his way.

"I regret to say rain absolutely refuses to fall here" he wrote in one of his letters." This is all the more heart-rending as it falls all around. I have been here hoping against hope, hearing the thunder and seeing the storm pass us by, which is an awful trial, as you can imagine."

"We really ought to get all the water we want in May," he wrote again, "but nobody can guarantee this."

So far his pessimism has been justified. The "Gilded Man" is taking care of his own.

NEW FEDERAL ARMY.

[Minneapolis Journal:] A grand total of 13,319 new governmental positions were created by Congress at its last session. The salaries for these places aggregate $8,851,775. This is an average of but a trifle more than $600 for each. The bulk of the total increase is taken up by an addition of 6439 coast and field artillerymen, 1541 seamen and 4770 additional employés in the postal service, leaving a net increase of but 568 for all other branches of the public service.

All the various acts of the last session created 18,993 new government positions, but at the same time 5674 places were abolished. The total appropriations for the Fifty-ninth Congress were $1,800,387,328.96. The appropriations of the second session exceed those of the first session by $41,298,958.

During the last session 16,424 salaries were increased, the additional cost to the taxpayers being $2,949,352. This includes increases in the salaries of the Vice-President, Speaker of the House of Representatives, nine Cabinet officers, ninety Senators, 386 Representatives and thirty-four employés of Congress.

MINES AND MINING—Past Week's News of the Surounding Ore Districts.

IN THE EARTH.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY.

To Correspondents:

This department is not conducted for pay. Its object is to convey reliable information of interest and value to the public and it is not for the private benefit of any miner, collector, speculator or prospector. Correspondents are particularly cautioned to take careful note of the statements and injunctions contained in the paragraphs below:

(1.) Specimens must be small and bear a tag giving name and address of sender, and the general—not exact—locality from whence the specimen was taken, also the name of it as nearly as the sender knows. Send, also, with the specimen, a clearly written letter briefly describing the find and what the finder wishes done with it. The letter must be properly dated and plainly signed.

(2.) No attention will be paid to anonymous letters or to letters signed merely with initials.

(3.) No examination of samples or specimens will be made in cases where The Times may decide that the specimen and inquiry are not of public interest. This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office.

(4.) Inquiries relative to matters of purely personal interest will not be answered.

(5.) When no response to an inquiry made or specimens sent appears in these columns, the inquirer will understand that his inquiry does not come within the purview of this department.

(6.) It is impossible to return specimens, as they must necessarily be destroyed or impaired in the process of analysis.

Address invariably, The Times.

Tourmaline.

SAN JACINTO, May 8, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In separate package, which we mail you today, I am sending you a few samples of some mineral rock from this locality. I inclose a stamped envelope for an immediate reply, if possible. We think it is a tourmaline formation, and found it on the surface of a large underground ledge.

Very respectfully, W. H. S.

ANSWER.—In justice to correspondents of The Times, no favoritism will ever be shown by this department. "Immediate replies" will, in no instance, be given. It requires more or less time to determine specimens.

Your samples are mixed carbonates and sulphates, and in no wise show or appertain to "tourmaline formation."

You should have submitted a sample of the ledge, and not that obtained from "streaks."

Tourmaline occurs in the older slates with pegmatite (graphic-granite,) and other granite. With lepidolite (lithia mica;) with massive almandite (iron and alumina garnet,) also with albite (soda feldspar,) and often associated with beryl, topaz, quartz and spessarite (manganese-alumina garnet.)

Gypsum and Tripoli.

LOS ANGELES, May 1, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Please identify these minerals: (1) Is crystal substance gypsum? I found a small vein of it in Westlake district. (2) A white substance found close to first. Is it plaster? (3) Rock, like lithograph stone.

Sincerely, H. L. S.

ANSWER.—(1) Crystals are gypsum—contaminated with iron and alumina oxides. (2) The white substance is tripoli (polishing powder.) Plaster (plaster of Paris) does not occur native. We often read of "ground plaster," which is correctly known as "ground gypsum." Gypsum, when burnt, forms plaster of Paris. (3) The substance is an ingredient in cement making.

Pyrope.

WINSLOW (Ariz.) May 5, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you oblige myself and friends by giving in "In the Earth" the name and description of the garnets inclosed? They are from near here.

Yours truly, J. K.

ANSWER.—The name is pyrope (magnesium-aluminum garnet) of vitreous luster. Rarely found crystalized. Fracture conchoidal. Hardness, usually, 7 and a little over. Your specimens are 6 only. It is one of the precious garnets when free from flaw, veil or fissure, and is of a crimson red color. It is sometimes referred to as "fire garnet," from the resemblance of its hue, when held between the eye and the sun, to that of a burning coal. Good varieties were known as carbuncles among the ancients. Pyrope is distinguished from corundum or spinel by the greater dullness of its color, and by inferior hardness.

Amphibole and Talc.

PASADENA, May 7, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am submitting herewith for identification a mineral from Plumas county in fibrous, amorphous and powder form, in which forms the mineral occurs together. (1) Are all three identical? (2) Has this mineral commercial value?

W. A. K.

ANSWER.—(1) No. (2) Twelve dollars per ton f.o.b. cars. Sample No. 1 is talc. No. 3 specimen can be referred to as follows: "The common variety forms the basis of the rouge used by ladies. . . . In a powdered state it is also employed to make new boots and gloves slip on easily." It is the base of so-called "foot-ease" when pure. Some of the constituents of fibrous (2) are in one and three.

Specimen No. 2, while no matrix is attached to it, the sample shows, plainly, no serpentine asbestos. It is amphibole, a variety of commercial asbestos, found in Plumas county. A correspondent of this department of The Times some three years ago submitted amphibole, such as yours, and wrote that he had it in lengths equaling that of a telegraph pole; investigation proved that his statement was true.

No Gold Present.

LONG BEACH, May 4, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] As a commercial proposition, I herewith hand you a specimen of washed sand. Will you, qualitatively, advise if gold is or is not present?

The sample is from the ocean beach near here.

Yours truly, F.

ANSWER.—It is understood that the sand represents a commercial proposition with the gold taken out—provided that the original sand carried gold values.

Under one of the strongest microscopes, no trace of gold appears in the sand submitted.

Oxalic Acid Process.

GRANT'S PASS (Or.) May 3, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you favor me with some practical information on oxalic acid? (1) From what is it obtained, and how? (2) I am informed that it can be made from ordinary sawdust, but I doubt the proposition. Thanking you in advance for a reply.

Yours truly, G. E. H.

ANSWER.—Oxalic acid can be separated from the juice of rhubarb plant and sorrel grass. There are many ways in which it may be prepared synthetically. Two processes are worked commercially. The following experiment will verify one of the processes: Into a large flask containing a few grams of white sugar, pour over the sugar some strong nitric acid. When the chemical agitation has ceased and red nitrous oxide fumes are no longer given off, evaporate the liquid to a small bulk. On cooling, oxalic acid will crystallize out. Starch can be used instead of sugar. (2) Heat sawdust with potassium hydroxide (caustic potash.) Potassium oxalate is thereby formed; this, treated with milk of lime, yields insoluble calcium oxalate. Now add sulphuric acid and obtain calcium sulphate, with oxalic acid set free, which acid is purified by recrystallization.

Is Goldfield Free?

A mining paper published at Reno gives to Gov. Sparks and the Sheriff of Esmeralda all the credit for settling the Goldfield strike, and says:

"Unbacked as they were by these two men, the union of capital, which won the strike in the Goldfield district, would have been helpless, and anarchy would today prevail around there."

Gov. Sparks seems to have saved Goldfield about as the small boy said, in his school composition, pins have saved the lives of millions of people by their not swallowing them. The fulsome eulogist of the savior of Goldfield explains that: "Against all demands and importunities and pressure that could be brought to bear by mine owners and business men, Gov. John Sparks declined to interfere in the Goldfield situation."

If the Goldfield trouble is settled, and settled right, perhaps the Governor of Nevada and the Sheriff should be crowned with laurel for their masterly inactivity. But is it settled? The mines are reopened and business appears to be going on, but is the right of an American citizen to live and work in Goldfield respected and maintained by the State and county governments?

Until every law-abiding, peaceable person is free to go about his business in Goldfield without molestation from the thugs of the I.W.W. and Western Federation, the shame of poltroonery or the guilt of criminal complicity with murderous conspirators will rest upon the recreant authorities of the State.

The truth is that the lawless organizations still rule the camp and order out of town persons who do not recognize them as the "supreme power." And the Governor of Nevada, sworn to uphold the law and safeguard the lives and liberties of citizens, "declines to interfere in the Goldfield situation." For this he is commended and called a "stalwart," and the Sheriff who permits a band of ruffians to terrorize and deport casual visitors is praised for his "determination and cool judgment."

NEVADA.

THE BOOMING OF GOLDFIELD.

SOCIETY FORMED TO EXTERMINATE WILD CATS.

City to Be Incorporated and to Have Street Cars, Theaters and Solid Business Blocks—Reward Offered for Writers of Letters Threatening the Judge Who Tried Murderers.

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) May 17.—Since the resumption of activity, following the forty days' lockout, Goldfield mines are again in the market with regular shipments. Steady contributors to the tonnage of high-grade ore are the Frances-Mohawk Dump lease, the Little Florence lease, the Loftus-Davis lease on Combination Fraction, the Jumbo Extension Higginson lease, the Morton-Beasley Combination Fraction lease, the Quartzite Dump lease, the St. Ives lease, the Truett Dump lease and the Mohawk mine. Most of the output of the Goldfield Consolidated mines properties is being handled at the Combination mill.

Cabinets have been ordered by the Goldfield Chamber of Commerce for the display of Goldfield ore specimens. At different offices in the city there are now the makings of as rich a collection as can probably be found in the world. Echoes of the old high-grade days came with the recent arrest of an Italian outfit, in whose shacks were found cached sacks containing $26,000 worth of quartz stolen from the Mohawk.

TO HUNT WILD CATS.

The Mining and Scientific Society of Nevada, organized in Goldfield and confining its membership to mining engineers, geologists and metallurgists, is taking action looking to the annihilation of what few wild cats may still be preying upon the unwary public.

Charles M. Schwab is steadily adding to his holdings in and near Goldfield. Following a recent visit from him comes now the announcement that he is to build a railroad to the Cactus Peak country, just east of Goldfield, where he controls a vast acreage of land upon which have been exposed veritable mountains of milling ore.

SYSTEMATIC BOOSTING.

Plans are maturing for the running of a special boosting train from Goldfield to points east, next September. The train will make stops at Ogden, Salt Lake, Denver, Omaha, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, Buffalo, Albany, Boston, New York, Baltimore, and on the return trip at St. Louis and Kansas City. Gov. Sparks, members of the Goldfield Chamber of Commerce and prominent mining men from all Nevada camps will occupy all the cars but one, which will be devoted to exhibits. Wise men from the East will accompany the boosters on portions of their journey.

Goldfield corporations which have recently listed their shares on the San Francisco Exchange are the Goldfield Ethel Mining Company, the Goldfield Pittsburg Gold Mining Company, the Goldfield Tomboy Mining Company, the Great Bend Twin Mining Company and the Spokane Mining Company.

MARKET CONDITIONS.

Profit-taking that followed the boom prices, which succeeded the settlement of the labor troubles, the tightness of money in the East and, above all, the San Francisco riots, have caused a depression and ebb quotations on the Goldfield market. Prices are beginning to stiffen again. That they will return to their normal status is the belief of the wise ones, who base their prophecies on the hope of a speedy settlement in 'Frisco and the optimistic expressions of Henry Clews as to the Wall street conditions.

Deposits in Goldfield banks are averaging about $9,000,000. There is no other city in the world where bank deposits per capita of population are equal to those of Goldfield. The John S. Cook Bank, alone, has deposits of about $6,250,000.

PROOF OF GROWTH.

A comparison of the postmaster's reports for the first quarter of 1907 with those for the first quarter of 1906 makes an eloquent testimonial to Goldfield's growth. The number of money orders issued, the registers dispatched and the registers received show increases for the first quarter of 1907 over the first quarter of 1906 of from 100 to 600 per cent. Cash received from other sources for the first quarters of the two years are given in the following table:

	Stamp sales.	Second class.	Box rents.
First quarter, 1906	$ 9,968.19	$ 74.95	$ 766.90
First quarter, 1907	25,418.19	199.31	1,130.00
Increase	15,450.00	124.36	363.10
Per cent. increase	155	166	47

By the first of June cash will be available for the building of a new $80,000 schoolhouse in Goldfield. Of the several bids submitted for the purchase of bonds issued for this purpose, the highest was for $85,000, but it was rejected because of faulty indorsement of the certified check which accompanied it. The bid accepted, in the amount of $82,500, was filed by John Nuveen & Co. of Chicago.

TO BE A CITY.

Goldfield is to be incorporated as a city as soon as the necessary minutiae of red tape can be unwound. This will expedite the giving of titles, establishing street grade lines, providing for sewerage, improving the streets, granting bonds therefor and granting franchises. The letting of a streetcar franchise for service in Goldfield and suburbs is now held up by the County Commissioners, awaiting such time as Goldfield's incorporation shall place her in a position to dictate her own affairs.

POWER PROJECT.

Cost of fuel and power in Goldfield and other Nevada camps should soon be cut in two. The General Electric Company of California is making ready to build a great power house near the head of the Mokelumne River, Calaveras county, California, and to stretch wires to Goldfield, Tonopah, Manhattan, Fairview, Wonder and other districts of Nevada. The California-Nevada Electric Power Company has purchased from T. B. Rickey, a Goldfield banker, 15,000 acres of land in Alpine county, and proposes to build an electric railroad from Reno to Los Angeles, where are located its general offices. This company announces its intention to supply with electric energy Reno, Carson City, Virginia City, Yerington, Tonopah, Goldfield, Manhattan and Ely.

BOOM NOTES.

The Nevada Hippodrome Circuit Company has bought a choice lot in Goldfield and is erecting a theater whose seating capacity will be 1200. The playhouse will be opened this month by Lew Dockstader's Minstrel Company of eighty artists. A little later, Minnie Maddern Fiske and De Wolfe Hopper will hold the boards.

There are two daily papers in Goldfield, the Evening Chronicle and the Morning Tribune. There are three weeklies, the Gossip, News and Review, and a semi-monthly, Goldfield Magazine. In June, Ben Crittenden and John Hagan will launch another daily, to be published mornings.

The first all-night bank of the West will soon be doing business in Goldfield. It will be a check and deposit concern to accommodate the many who do business by night and slumber by day.

Magnificent business blocks and residences are going up on every street in Goldfield. One of them is William Wilson's four-story stone edifice on Main and Gold. Another is to be the home of the Chamber of Commerce, in which will be a permanent mineral exhibit, a bureau of information and statistical literature. The new block built by the Goldfield Mining Stock Exchange, a two-story stone, is nearly ready for occupancy, and ground is breaking for the $90,000 stone block to be erected by the Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board. Recently the Goldfield Review sold for $6000 a half lot for which it paid $2000 five months ago. The Nevada Hippodrome Circuit Company acquired, for $12,000, title to its theater lot, which the vendor, O. V. Allen, bought last December for $5000.

The Goldfield way of doing things found exemplification in the manner of the local Shriners' going to Los Angeles. The trip across the desert was made in a score or more of big automobiles, all heavy laden with Shriners and things, the journey developing into a race of intense excitement. Train time was laid in the shade.

An official house-cleaning day is one of the metropolitan signs of the times. Goldfield set apart a day of May which was devoted entirely to the cleaning and repairing of streets and sidewalks, the removal of all rubbish and garbage from the rear of business blocks and residences, and the general beautification of the city.

Goldfield is called a desert city, yet on Arbor Day many school children gamboled on the green swards of a cañon that cuts the Malapai hills to the southwest.

Goldfield may have the reputation of being the abode of only mercenaries, whose corporations are soulless and whose sole aim is coin, yet there has been organized a Humane Society to war against cruelty to horses and dogs and burros.

REWARD FOR ASSASSINS.

Goldfield has suffered in public esteem because of the presence inside her walls of anarchists, yet the Chamber of Commerce has offered $1000 reward for information leading to the apprehension of the authors of letters threatening the lives of the judge and witnesses in the murder trial of Preston and Smith, agitators of the Industrial Workers of the World, who slew John Silva, a restaurant proprietor, whose offense was that he permitted to dine at his tables union men who refused to affiliate with the I.W.W.; and Preston and Smith have been duly convicted.

SONORA.

COPPER IN MEXICO.

Development by Randolph and Greene. Moctezuma Plant Being Improved.

BISBEE (Ariz.) May 18.—Despite the fact that preparations are being made for the building of an immense new smelting plant for the Cananea-Central mines at Cananea, improvements continue around the old smelter at Ronquillo. Two new furnaces, each of 400 tons daily capacity, lately displaced less efficient units of the plant, and a third similar furnace soon will be in operation. The smelter now is turning out about 4,000,000 pounds of bullion a month. This is to be increased to 6,000,000 pounds by fall. The costs of operation around the smelter have been cut materially by the improved equipment and the same is true around the mines, where Superintendent Kirk has opened up the ore bodies so that they can be stripped with a minimum of labor and transportation costs.

Development of the mineral field of Northern Sonora now is proceeding westward from Cananea into the silver country so profitably worked by the Spaniards of the exploration period. Near Puertocitos, eight miles west of Cananea, 1000 pertenencias of copper-bearing land have been denounced by representatives of companies in which W. C. Greene and Epes Randolph are prominent, and the same interests have denounced 3000 pertenencias in the Santa Cruz Mountains, twenty-seven miles west of Cananea. A townsite has been staked off at the latter point, on the line of a Randolph railroad projected to connect Cananea with the Sonora railway at Nogales. The mineral showing of the new district is said to be immense and there is prophecy that it is destined to rival the great copper field on its eastward side. It is believed that every pertenencia of mineralized ground has been located within twenty miles of Cananea, though the greater part of the appropriation has been by the Greene interests, operating under a prospecting concession from the Mexican government.

At Nacozari, Sonora, the Moctezuma Copper Company is building a model concentration plant, with capacity for the handling of 1250 tons of ore a day, almost automatically. The plant is to be in operation not later than next April. It will occupy a hillside near the present concentrator, workmen now being busied in putting in the massive concrete foundations and retaining walls. Even the ore bins are to be made of reinforced concrete. The completed mill will have 100 vanners, sixty concentrating tables, 126 jig compartments, twenty-four trammels, ten 6-foot Chilean mills and six sets of rolls. The crushing plant will handle 200 tons of ore an hour. Electric motors will be used exclusively. The Moctezuma company prides itself upon its camp, considered the neatest in Sonora. Late improvements completed or under way include a clubhouse for American employés, a new school building and a handsome church. The clubhouse will be three stories in height, with a basement in which will be given room for the post-office and Federal telegraph office.

At Cumpas, south of Nacozari, has grown up a town of 3000 inhabitants, supported mainly by the operations of the Transvaal Copper Company, which now employs about 500 men. In the past year the company has produced about $600,000 worth of copper, shipped as matte. Much of the ore for the smelter is brought down from the mountain mines by burros, of which 2000 are in use. The new Yaqui River line of the Southern Pacific is expected to be in operation to Cumpas within a year and, with bettered transportation facilities, there seems little doubt that the Transvaal will become one of the greatest copper shippers in Mexico.

ARIZONA.

PLACER GOLD NEAR PHOENIX.

RICH DIGGINGS WORKED BY LUCKY MEXICANS.

Copper, Gold and Coal on the Saddle Mountain Properties—Cananea-Globe Copper Company Collapses. Iron Dyke Located in Yuma County by Los Angeles Engineer.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 18.—The stories of mineral strikes that are coming from Pinal county, east of this place, have a flavor of the days of '49. The western side of the Pinal range, clear down to the Gila River, appears to have every known form of mineral, all the way from zinc to opals, and even has exhibited some genuine paraffine oil. But its chief pride since the slump in silver has been its massive beds of sulphide copper ore. Temporarily, however, attention has been distracted from the main issue by the discovery of wonderful placer ground in the Dripping Springs hills, less than two miles from the copper camp of Troy.

Many years ago a party of soldiers picked up an immense nugget in this vicinity and there has been general knowledge that there was gold to be found, but not till the last fortnight has there been appreciation of the quantity of gold lying loose. Two Mexicans, leasing a claim from Charles Wilde of Phoenix, cleaned up for two weeks over $100 a day by the most primitive method of hand-panning, without water. Several nuggets found were worth about $40 each. Henry Brown, owner of adjoining ground, quickly and very quietly secured control of the Wilde claims. No water is available, so the gravel is being packed on burrows to Steamboat Springs, over a mile distant, the burros taking water as a back load. The process is a laborious one and the quantity of gravel that can be handled is small, but Brown is said to be making a Klondike record, just the same. The gold is very coarse and it is believed that its source is near. It is found in disintegrated quartzite, about 500 feet below the top of a high hill. Many claims have been staked off in the vicinity and several of the newer locators are doing well.

SADDLE MOUNTAIN.

President George B. Chittenden of the Saddle Mountain Mining Company has turned over active management of the properties of the corporation at Christmas to Edward D. South, a mining man of broad experience in Mexico. The company now employs nearly 600 men, mainly Mexicans. It has a 200-ton smelter producing matte, to the equivalent of 250,000 pounds of copper a month. The ores average only a little over 3 per cent. copper, but are self-fluxing. Ore bodies cut on the lower levels are much richer than those now stoped. Up to May 1, the property has a production record of 2,750,000 pounds of copper. The reduction plant now is being enlarged to a capacity for 800 tons a day, the present furnace to be given 50 per cent. greater capacity and a 500-ton jacket added.

The mines are at Christmas camp, nine miles up the Gila River from Winkelman, the present terminus of the Phoenix and Eastern Railroad. Rail connection with this road is to be had very soon over a narrow-gauge line well along toward completion. From the end of the narrow-gauge the smelter and Christmas will be reached by means of a tramway 3600 feet in length. The Saddle Mountain Company has 535 acres in the group at Christmas, as well as gold claims five miles distant, with an area of 260 acres.

The management believes it has still another rich property in 800 acres of coal land, about ten miles to the eastward. Two veins of lignite, each about three feet thick, have been opened up and the coal is now being tested for coking. It has a high percentage of ash, but is believed available for steam purposes, being of especial value in a district where oil, shipped from California, now is the only fuel to be had at reasonable cost.

COPPER PROJECT FAILS.

It appears as though the much exploited Cananea-Globe Mining and Development Company has caved in. The corporation was controlled by Robert and George Mitchell, the well-known copper experts. It had property at Cananea and Aguas Calientes, Mex., and three groups around Globe. The main Arizona property, on Pinto Creek, near Globe, had been acquired from the Five Points Copper Mining Company, whose president, John C. Britt, who is said to have represented to the Mitchells that his mines had 100,000 tons of ore blocked out ready for stoping. This statement could not be substantiated, according to George Mitchell, who has declared the deal off. Since the first of the year, work has been in progress on the preparation of a site for a smelter that the Mitchells proposed to place on the Hesley group of claims, a few miles north of Globe, on Pinal Creek, to work the ores of the Cananea-Globe Company, but little is now heard of the enterprise.

IRON MINES.

Emil Holden, a Los Angeles mining engineer, has located a huge iron dike near the Colorado River, in Northern Yuma county, readily to be reached by a spur from the Arizona and California Railroad. Only two other locations are known to have been made in Arizona especially for iron value. One is the Randolph mine, near New River, north of Phoenix, and the other lies southwest of Seligman. In each the iron is of high grade, with little base admixture, the only disadvantage being the distance from fuel for smelting.

MINING NOTES.

The White Gold Company, operating near Wickenburg, has regained possession of the property and mill from L. L. White, original owner of the property. The corporation has been reorganized and will profit by its mistakes of the past in the way of mine management.

James Burson has located a marble-lime deposit near Gila Bend, close to the Southern Pacific Railroad, and will install at once a fifty-ton oil-burning kiln. The product is to be marketed in California, low freight rates having been offered.

A new vein of lignite coal, said to be of unusually good quality, has been found west of Ash Peak in Graham county, by Frank Angie, a Safford lad, aged 18.

For April the output of the Old Dominion smelter at Globe was 2,282,002 pounds of copper, slightly below the March figures.

Mose Drachman of Tucson, has bonded for $50,000 seven copper claims, owned by P. C. Robertson and Frank Westbrook, situated in the western Pinal Mountains, adjoining the celebrated Gibson mine.

Two hundred tons of copper ore a day are being shipped to the Old Dominion smelter from the Copper Hill mine of the Arizona Commercial Company at Globe. The new railroad of the Commercial company is proving of great advantage to a score of mines owned by other companies in the hills to the northward of the smelter.

SOUTHERN ARIZONA.

Active Operations in the Mines of Pima and Pinal Counties—Gold Strike in Quijotoa.

TUCSON (Ariz.) May 17.—Good progress is being made on the big 250-ton smelter, which is being erected at Silver Bell by the Imperial Copper Company. The foundations for the smelter have been completed, and much of the lumber and other material that will be used in its construction is already on the ground.

The best news from the Silver Bell district in several weeks is the strike of a big body of ore in the Cleveland-Arizona. This company, which was recently refinanced, is doing work again on a large scale. A new shaft is being sunk, and the water, which flooded the old shafts, will be removed by the large pumps which have been installed.

The Young America has about eighty miners at work and is making weekly shipments of ore which brings in big returns.

The Mineral Hills Consolidated Company, operating twenty miles south of Tucson, has twenty ore teams engaged in hauling its product to this city for shipment to the Douglas smelters. The company has sunk five shafts.

Superintendent William McDermott of the Twin Buttes, who was formerly in charge of the mines of Senator William A. Clark in the United Verde at Jerome, states that with the railroad facilities, Twin Buttes could ship 2 per cent. ore at a profit. No shipping is now being done from Twin Buttes, as the new superintendent is concentrating all his forces on development work.

The Potomac Mining Company, whose properties lie north of [illegible], is making ore shipments [illegible] nine ore teams employed. A force of forty men is working on the property.

A gold strike has been made on the property of the Weldon Copper Company, in the Quijotoa district, at the 170-foot level in one of the shafts. The Weldon company is operating on a large scale at present, and the strike has caused considerable excitement.

Much work is being done at the Mohawk mine about forty miles north of this city, near Mammoth. One shaft is down to a depth of [illegible] feet; sinking will be continued until the [illegible]-foot level is reached, at which time crosscutting will be begun. The Mohawk is one of the old properties in this section, and has on it a [illegible] stamp mill, which will soon be put in operation.

The Oro Blanco district in the southern part of the county is showing activity. At the Montana mine, work has been temporarily suspended until a pumping plant can be put in to take care of the water.

A number of Pinal county mines are being bonded, and as a result districts in that county are showing renewed activity. The Schilling and Sherlock groups were bonded to P. Dunham, L. E. Bailey and [illegible] McCarey for $100,000. It is said that an offer was made to take up the bond for cash if 20 per cent. [illegible] were given. P. A. Schilling, one of the owners, accepted, and received $40,000, but Joseph Sherlock preferred to take only $10,000 cash and the remainder according to the bond. Both are veteran prospectors.

President S. H. Sherman and [illegible] V. Rider paid a visit to the property of the Alta Mining Company. [illegible] boilers have been ordered as part of the new equipment.

Copper concentrates are being turned out at the Big Lead mine and the Kelvin Reduction Company plant near Ray. The concentrates are shipped to the big smelters at Humboldt.

On the Iroquois group, [illegible] miles east of Florence, work is being done on the 100-foot level. This property is owned by Los Angeles parties, who will further prospect it. A pump has been installed to take care of the inflow of water.

Recent mining sales in the vicinity of Ray have caused an influx of prospectors, and, as a result, the mining ground is located for several miles in that vicinity.

The Arizona Consolidated [illegible] Company, operating at Johnson [illegible], will soon have a fifty-horse-power engine added to its equipment.

Thomas Safford, manager of the Arizona-Apache property, located in the Catalina Mountains, states that a wagon road is being built to [illegible] ton, from which point there is a direct road to both Tucson and [illegible]. Butte, Mont., capitalists are interested in this company.

J. L. Shepard, general manager of the Realito Mining Company, with properties near Realito, on the Yaqui River, has gone to the mines to arrange for ore shipments as soon as the Cananea, Yaqui River and Pacific Railroad, building out of [illegible], reaches that point.

High-grade ore has been found near the surface in a property of L. J. F. Iaeger of this city, one mile from Nogales, in Sonora. The discovery of this ore has caused considerable excitement in Nogales. The property will be developed.

Dr. J. M. Peebles of [illegible] is America's oldest globe trotter. He is nearly 90 years old and has circled the globe five times. Several years ago he was summoned to India by the rajah of Lahore, India, to confer with the ruler on [illegible] which they both are students.

MRS. ANNA CONNER

Newbro's Herpicide

More men and women have gotten positive results from the use of NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE than from all other hair remedies combined.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy that kills the dandruff germ. It eradicates dandruff, stops falling hair and permits a natural hair development by destroying the tiny vegetable growth [a germ or microbe] that causes hair destruction

Nature constantly struggles to supply life and vigor to the hair, but the dandruff germ saps this vitality and strangles the life out of the hair.

Indispensable Following Severe Illness.

1717 Tremont St., Denver, Colo.

"I was convalescent from a critical illness of pneumonia and my hair was left in a deplorable condition, falling out and breaking off, dry, harsh and brittle. The scalp lacked nutrition and seemed dead. I used Herpicide according to directions with most beneficial results and attribute the restoration of my hair entirely to your Herpicide. I can conscientiously endorse it for doing all you claim, and it gives me great pleasure to recommend it."

(Signed) MRS. M. MEGRUE.

For regular toilet use, Newbro's Herpicide easily occupies first place. It is sold in practically every civilized country on the globe, and a single trial will show why discriminating ones prefer it. Contains no sticky substance. It will not stain or dye the hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

then, with no fertilizer but the California sun, this rare compost, prepared by the divine hand through ages of time, is ready for the western farmer who never grows less than tens and hundreds of acres of any one thing, and cannot well converse with his eastern brother farmer because there is no common measurement, no common denominator, as it were, to which they may reduce their calculations.

NO BASIS OF COMPARISON.

When the New England farmer cultivates a stony farm of seventy-five acres, tries to talk to a westerner who has a thousand acres of beans, or peas, he very soon comes to the conclusion that the latter is lying, and, what is still more, trying to bluff him. The only way to convince him is to take him personally to these great cultivated spaces of God's outdoors and let him see for himself. Even then he is hard to convince, for the atmosphere is so deceptive that he will never believe the mountains at the far end of the field that he can see so distinctly, are farther away than he could walk by dinner time, even farther than he could drive with his favorite mare by dark, or even breakfast time the next morning. There is just one thing that is convincing beyond doubt, and that is the loaded cars, the stacks of sacks, the good yellow gold in the bank.

Invention has gone hand in hand with climatic conditions and soil, to make this possible. Even asparagus is cut by machinery, which also gathers it into sacks, which it distributes along the rows.

Then, too, invention has come to the aid of the grower in the possibilities of evaporated vegetables. This is comparatively a recent process, but San Francisco now sends out shiploads of these products not only to Alaska, where the first results went, but to the artics and the Far East, Asia and Europe. So does the mind of man grapple each year with the necessities of growing endeavor, of commerce, and of labor, and succeeds.

It was not so long ago that the people of the Eastern States thought of California only as a country where oranges were grown. Even now it is a misapprehension that lurks in many minds. California, more than almost any other State, is the place for the educated farmer, the man who mixes brains with labor. Good bean land is not suited to asparagus growing. If you build your house on the lemon growing land, and try to raise your lemons where your house should be, you are a failure. It is a land of wonderful and startling possibilities, but the man who would successfully harness these miracles of growth for his own gain must think, and put on the right harness. That is the one secret.

FLOWERS ALSO GROWN.

California grows flowers as well as vegetables for her eastern cousins. One hears of carnation farms, fields of callas, acres of sweet peas and roses, and their growth, cultivation, picking and shipment are all matters of thought, of sober judgment.

What with picking in bud and packing in wet sponges around the stems, or with tissue paper, and shipping on express time, the callas decorate eastern churches at Easter time, and roses and carnations are sold quite fresh in their flower markets.

After all, it is like the telephone, electric cars, swift steamships, and a few other things that are nevertheless such great wonders still, even if our senses are dulled to their magic by their common use.

When one has recently crossed the stretch of miles upon miles that lie between the Pacific Coast and Chicago, between the Golden Gate and the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor, he realizes more fully what a feat is accomplished here in California—vegetables and flowers for those so far away in the regions of frost and snow.

GUSSIE PACKARD DUBOIS.

WORLD ASKS MORE SUGAR.

AMERICAN MAKERS CANNOT MEET HOME GROWTH.

Seventy-five Years Ago United States Produced One-half the Sugar Consumed in This Country, Now We Produce Only One-fifth of the American Consumption.

There is a chap in the Department of Commerce here who knows more about sugar than a wardheeler about vice. The figures he collects and arranges into various aggregations amaze if they do not appall.

For instance, he can tell you how much sugar every man, woman, child and baby in the United States eats every year. He says it is seventy-six pounds. Of course, you do not have to believe him if you do not feel like it, but if you have a personal interview with him the chances are he will convince you. He says he knows how much sugar is produced in the country and how much is imported, and he assumes that it is all eaten, which is the only weak point in his argument. Then, having the total amount sold in the United States each year, and knowing how many people there are, he says it is simple division to find out what the average consumption per capita is.

But the people of this country were not always such gluttons for sugar. In 1822, which is the first year for which accurate data is to be had, the average eaten per head was only nine pounds. By 1830 it already was twelve pounds, showing we grew rapidly sweeter. In 1850 we were eating twenty-three pounds per capita and in 1860 it was thirty pounds. Ten years later it had leaped to forty-three. In 1890 it had reached fifty-three and in 1900 sixty-five pounds. Now it is seventy-six and no man knows where it will stop, but the sugar sharp in the Department of Commerce, acknowledging that it does not look as if the increase would ever stop, estimating that by the year 2100 the average will be 503 pounds per head, which, when one remembers that the average person weighs 135 pounds, will be going some. In this same connection the sugar sharp chuckles merrily, every time any one mentions that the beet sugar folks are again alarmed lest Philippine sugar be allowed to enter the United States duty free.

He estimates that if all the other people of the world develop their sweet tooth at the same rate as the people of this country, it will be not less than 7,000,000,000 years before the supply of sugar overtakes the demand and puts the beet sugar people out of business, or even jeopardizes their interests.

In 1830 more than half the sugar consumed in the United States was produced here and the sugar makers were howling themselves black in the face over the competition of the foreign sugar makers. But now, seventy-seven years later, all the sugar markers in the country, beet, cane and maple combined, produce only one-fifth of the sugar the country eats. Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines produce another fifth, while three-fifths is imported from Cuba, Dutch East Indies, Germany and other countries. And yet the domestic production of sugar, both beet and cane, was never before as great as it is now and neither were the imports ever before as large. "Sugar," says the sugar sharp, "is the staff of life. This talk about bread being it is all humbug and a relic of the dark ages when sugar was still one of the rare luxuries."

Another line of figures makes the sugar sharp chuckle when the fear of the competition of the cane sugar from the Philippines, entertained by the beet-sugar makers, is mentioned, and these are the figures which give the history of beet sugar. They show that in 1840 beets supplied 4 per cent. of all the sugar used in the world. In 1904 the beets supplied 59 per cent.

"That certainly looks as if the competition of cane sugar was a very dangerous thing, doesn't it?" says the sugar sharp, with extreme sarcasm. "And yet Cuba and Porto Rico and Hawaii and the Philippines are all producing more sugar than they ever did before. The trouble with the beet-sugar manufacturers is that they do not take into account the increase in the consumption, both here and in other parts of the world. We have no patent on the use of sugar. Its consumption is growing all over the world the same as in the United States."

PAPER YARNS ARE NOW USED.

GERMAN INVENTION THAT HAS MANY VIRTUES.

Before Many Years We May Be Wearing Paper Clothing, Walking on Paper Carpets and Using Paper Upholstering for Furniture—Process of Manufacture Is Secret.

According to a report by Carl Bailey Hurst, consul at Plauen, Saxony, it is possible that before many years we shall be wearing clothing made of paper, using paper rugs and carpets, enjoying paper slippers and shoes, and making sails of paper canvas. The manufacture of paper "yarns" has progressed so far that many careful housewives last year bought paper towels under the impression that they were getting bargains in linen, the articles selling at wholesale for 24 cents a dozen, medium size. Enough "paper" cloth can be bought for $1 to make a three-piece suit.

The attention of the Bureau of Manufacturers having been directed to this new branch of industry, it made inquiries of the consuls in Saxony regarding it, and Mr. Hurst has made an interesting report on the subject. He states that "Xylolin" as the article is called, was invented by Herr Emil Claviez of Saxony, after many and long continued experiments, and that the processes are patented in all civilized countries. Moreover, the "yarns" of paper fiber, consisting of 95 per cent paper and 5 per cent cotton, are made somewhat extensively in England, Bohemia, and Saxony, and factories are to be established by the inventor in the United States.

Xylolin may be woven into any desired fabric. It is primarily a thread or yarn, and is employed exclusively in weaving. The thread is not brittle, and it does not have a hard surface, and it neither shrinks nor stretches to any appreciable extent. Having certain resilient qualities, it cannot readily be crushed or dented like paper, and on it moisture has practically no effect.

Among the other many good qualities claimed for it is that it is a servicable substitute for cotton, jute linen, and even silk. When bleached the yarn or thread is of a snowy whiteness, and at first glance cannot be distinguished from cotton. It is said to combine the good qualities of cotton and linen at one-third the price of cotton and one-tenth the price of linen.

It can be more readily dyed in delicate shades, far outmatching the range of colors to which cotton or silk are susceptible, and, it is asserted, vastly more than those of linens. The process of dyeing the thread or yarn is patented, and appears to be of such perfection that no colors from the daintiest nuances to the richest hues are affected by strong light.

Rugs and carpets of this material, woven like ingrain carpets, are being imported into the United States. They are said to be elastic to the tread, easily cleaned by beating and washing and not retentive of dust. Moths do not attack them.

SPIRIT OF ACCOMPLISHMENT.

An Employee Gets Ahead When He Makes Employer's Business His Own.

When an employé learns that his boss is a human being just like himself, and therefore influenced by the same motives, he has taken a great step forward. When he becomes conscious that the only way to convince his employer he deserves advancement is to convince him that he has earned it, another great step has been taken. And on the day the worker proves his point by some vivid and actual incident, so that it is plain as day he is worth more than he is getting, promotion will come.

Make your employer's business your own. Be as zealous in spending $1000 advantageously for him, as you would in spending 50 cents for neckties for yourself, and you will not remain a $12 clerk very long, says Spare Moments. Lots of men sort papers on another man's desk, and sign letters with another man's name, who can give you, offhand, Lajoie's batting average to the fourth column of decimals, and recite verbatim Walter Camp's prediction for next season's football activities. But if the boss wants to know in a hurry "where he bought that last carload of Virginia pine," they'll have to go ask somebody.

There is a good story told by the Bamburg Herald of a man who has become a very successful merchant. A few years ago he was employed as office boy and messenger for a large count from a firm which was considered very "shaky" and was told to get the money at all hazards. The debtors gave the lad a check for $250. He went to the bank at once to cash it, and was told by the cashier that there was not enough funds in to meet it.

"How much short?" asked the lad.

"Seven dollars," was the answer.

It lacked but a minute or two of the time for the bank to close. The boy felt in his pockets, took out seven dollars, and pushing it through the window, said: "Put that to the credit of Blank & Co."

The cashier did so, whereupon the boy presented the check and got the money. Blank & Co. failed the next

Labor's Open Shop.

SOCIALISM AN ALLY OF UNION LABOR IN ALL REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENTS.

THE murderous acts of the striking unionists of the street railroads of San Francisco prove how dangerous it is to allow union labor to dominate in municipal affairs. Such a possible event would be absolute ruin for any community, as it would be utterly impossible to lay enough taxes on the community to meet the expenses the unionists would incur. The present strike on the United Railroads is the result of the refusal of the company to increase wages beyond the amount agreed upon by the local board of arbitration, notwithstanding the fact that the existing wages are the highest paid to any street railroad employés in the world. Riots have resulted, lives have been sacrificed, the entire business of the city demoralized, and worse things only prevented by the fear that the Governor would fill the city with soldiers who would have held the mob in check with their rifles.

Right in the midst of all this demoralization, this tramping under foot of the law and the rights of the people not engaged in the strike, the Socialists flooded the town with circulars of the most inflammatory character seeking to further inflame the working people against their employers. The circular is as follows:

DO IT NOW!

TIE UP THE TOWN!

Let that be your answer to Farley, Phelan and the Furies

TIE UP THE TOWN

Don't Feed Scabs. Don't Have Scab Protectors. Don't Serve the Scab-Hearted Herd Cowards. Guns May Bristle. Guns are for Scabs. Scabby Gunners.

TIE UP THE TOWN

Janitors, Cooks, Teamsters, Printers, Carpenters, Servants, Clerks—Don't Serve the Scabs Don't Serve the Cowards Who Serve Scabs.

TIE UP THE TOWN

Misery is Misery. This is the old fight between the rich and the poor. Where do you stand! With the rich, if you serve the Scabs. You serve the Scabs, if you work at all.

Tie Up the Town. Not bad to do that. Not hard to do that.

EASY TO TIE UP THE TOWN

You are miserable when any are miserable, so DON'T RIDE. DON'T WORK. Don't do a thing but TIE UP THE TOWN.

JUST DON'T! THAT'S THE GAG—DON'T!

Soldiers, Police, Judges, have to be miserable with you in misery if you

TIE UP THE TOWN TIE UP THE TOWN

TIE IT UP! TIE IT UP NOW! TIE IT UP!

Of course you could have voted the Socialist Ticket last time and you would not have to tie " up now, but

TIE IT UP. TIE IT UP NOW. DO IT NOW.

At the same time a public meeting was announced by the Socialists, the purpose of which was to further influence the poor deluded unionists and their sympathizers.

If anything were needed to prove to any community the importance of maintaining the open shop these events in San Francisco would seem to be ample enough. By their supineness the business men of that city are now reaping the whirlwind. Had they stood together at the start for the open shop principle, the almost continual strikes they have been having would never have occurred. The business men of every community may well take their text from this inflammatory circular to "Do It Now," and take a permanent stand for the open shop as the only principle that furnishes full justice for every person, whether working man, employer, retailer, wholesaler or retired capitalist. "Do It Now." Establish the open shop for good.

Striking Against Themselves.

Of all the incongruous things that have occurred in labor matters, the strike that has been inagurated in the Nelson Machine shopt at Le Claire, Ill., are the worst. The shops were established on the coöperative plan by N. O. Nelson, a millionaire philanthropist, who erected a great factory and built a model city, spending vast sums of money in making the city an ideal place for labor. All the employés were given stock, which pays six per cent. Nelson built beautiful drives, lakes, recreation grounds, fine free schools and assembly halls. The residences contained all modern improvements, and the workers, aside from getting their rent at about one-half what it would have cost elsewhere, shared in the profits of the factory, after regular union wages had been paid.

Strike agitators, however, secured entrance and worked up a strike among the brass workers and machinists, despite the protests of Nelson, who warned his men that unionism and coöperation would not mix. A strike was called and the plant closed. Then Nelson called the men together and informed them that he had gone the limit in trying to create a model city for labor and that hereafter no union man would be employed at Le Claire. He offered to buy back all the houses sold to the workmen at cost, with the interest added, simply charging rent, but coöperation is at an end. Hereafter only non-union men will be employed, but they will be paid higher wages. The men afforded the incongrous spectacle of striking against themselves.

Four Years' Preparation.

For four years the machinists of Pittsburgh and Allegheny have been preparing for a strike, and have now gone out on the demand for a minimum hourly wage scale of 40 cents and the eight-hour day. Through the successive years the machinists have made successive demands, compromised and gone on perfecting their organization. The present fight was first scheduled for two years ago, then for one year ago.

The present wage rate paid in the Pittsburgh district varies from 30 to 45 cents an hour, the day being eight hours. Three weeks ago the employers granted the men a horizontal advance, affecting all alike, of 2½ cents an hour. The men, however, insist on the minimum rate of 40 cents and the eight-hour day. At the present time 600 machinists and 400 helpers are idle while the manufacturers are seeking to fill their positions with men from the outside.

Canada and Strikes.

The labor troubles in Canada, between the coal operatives and their employers, are receiving the direct attention of Mackenzie King, the Deputy Minister of Labor. The Federal government is in no temper to stand for any exorbitant demands on the part of the operators, but present indications point to a tendency on the part of both operators and operatives to meet each other half way.

The provisions of the new conciliation law are being tested for the first time. If that fails, more drastic means will be adopted by the government. Neither employers nor men will be permitted to paralyze the development of Western Canada—for that is what an indefinite continuation of the present deadlock would mean—and if other methods fail, there is reason to believe that the government will take over the mines themselves and operate them in the interests of the western public.

Salt Lake's Opportunity.

The plant of the American Smelting and Refining Company at Salt Lake, employing between 1000 and 1200 men, with a monthly payroll of $75,000, has closed down indefinitely because of the inability of the company to reach a compromise with the furnace chargers and ore haulers who went on strike for an increase of 25 cents a day. The work done by the company will be sent to Denver, Leadville and Pueblo. It is a good opportunity for the company and the community to make a firm and unalterable stand for the open shop.

Will Lock Out Men.

The Master Builders' Association of Berlin and its suburbs decided unanimously to lock out all masons and bricklayers assisting building workmen on May 15th. Over 100,000 men are affected. The men demanded an eight-hour day.

WHY PROMOTION CAME.

Result of One Clerk Being Able to See More Than Another One.

A business firm once had in its employ a young man whose energy and grasp of affairs soon led the management to promote him over a faithful and trusted employé. The old clerk felt deeply hurt that the younger man should be promoted over him, and complained to the manager.

Feeling that this was a case that could not be argued, the manager asked the old clerk what was the cause of all the noise in front of their building. The clerk went out and returned with the answer that it was a lot of wagons going by.

The manager then asked what they were loaded with, and again the clerk went out and returned, reporting that they were loaded with wheat.

The manager then sent him to ascertain how many wagons were there, and he returned with the answer that there were sixteen.

Finally he was sent to see where they were from, and he returned saying they were from a city twenty miles to the north.

The manager then asked the young clerk to be sent for, says the Saturday Evening Post, and said to him: "Will you see what is the meaning of that rumbling noise in front?"

The young man went out and returned, saying: "Sixteen wagons loaded with wheat. Twenty more will pass tomorrow. They belong to Smith & Co., of A——, and are on their way to Cincinnati, where wheat is bringing $1.25 a bushel."

The young man was dismissed, and the manager, turning to the old clerk, said: "My friend, you see now why the younger man was promoted over you."

PROMOTED TO FOREMAN.

TRUE STORY OF A TOOL MAKER'S RISE FROM THE RANKS.

Proves the Importance of Learning from All Sources Things Helpful About One's Work Instead of Just Doing a Day's Work Along Same Line as Other People.

The average toolmaker if at all competent and understands his business thoroughly, is a living illustration of the old couplet:

My grandfather was the most wonderful man that ever was seen.
He built everything from a needle clean down to a thrashing machine.

A toolmaker is expected to make a die, set spirals in the milling machine, forge a tool, braze a bandsaw, or do anything that comes his way. He is not merely a specialist in tools, as the name implies. A man may make jigs and dies all his life and yet not properly be called a toolmaker, as the term is understood in the machine shop, says Eugene Viall in the Workers' Magazine.

He must not merely be a "jack of all trades," either, but he must be master of a dozen or more closely allied ones, and it necessarily follows that nowhere in a machine shop is a good general education in addition to a thorough knowledge of machinery needed so much as in the toolroom.

Not even the drafting and designing-room needs education so much, yet how often do we find it most conspicuous by its absence, and how often is the most carefully planned jig rendered useless by the lack of a little more knowledge on the part of the toolmaker.

The man need not be a university graduate or have spent several years "doing" Europe, or even have taken a technical course, though the last is an immense help, but he can acquire a splendid education by carefully reading the best mechanical journals and books on various mechanical subjects, which may be obtained at almost any circulating library.

It is to the toolroom that a firm usually first looks when in need of a shop foreman or a superintendent, but how often are they compelled to look elsewhere because no one there has shown general knowledge or ability enough for the place.

To the young man who wants to be a toolmaker I would say: Get a high school education if you possibly can, but if you can't, then get as much as possible and then, in addition to your shop work, read, read, read. Read the shop magazines, study the machine and tool catalogues and the advertisements of the big shops and factories, and whenever opportunity offers visit other shops and always keep your eyes and ears open, but let others do most of the talking.

MUCH LEARNED FROM WORKMEN.

Make friends with the "old timers" and learn their special hobbies in the mechanical line. Get books on diemaking and jig work, and find out how other men go at a job.

Don't let the idea that lots of toolmakers have, that nothing can be learned from the common machinist or even laborer, but watch their short cuts on difficult jobs. Lots of "old hands" can give the smartest toolmaker in existence pointers on certain jobs, and no one who is a man will be afraid to take suggestions from them.

One never knows when some little thing he has learned will help him over a hard place. How often has the short course in chemistry given in the high school helped me, and, too, how much the meager work I had in drawing and geometry helped when I was studying mechanical drawing at home evenings.

At one time when I was learning my trade the head of the firm brought some small copper articles to the toolroom and wanted them finished in "antique." There was no one in the whole shop who happened to know how to do it, but I had read up on that subject a short time before and I quietly told the foreman that I thought that I could do it, and with his consent I got 5 cents' worth of sulphure of potash, some hot water, and an old polishing wheel and did a job in "antique copper" finish that was the beginning of my advancement.

TRYING TO BRAZE CAST IRON.

After that whenever anything unusual came up I was given first whack at it, and, as it luckily happened, I failed only once, and that was in trying to braze a piece of cast iron, but thousands of others had failed on that (I didn't know it then or I wouldn't have felt so bad,) and, though I failed, I did not give it up but put in a good many odd hours trying it, and several years later I discovered one of the three known mixtures, not one of which was in existence at that time.

Once I was given a piece of aluminum to smooth up after another man nearly had ruined it in his attempts to file it smooth, and I put in practice a little article I had read about taking the edges off of the file on a grindstone, and, presto! I filed that piece of aluminum as smooth as glass.

After I had been three years in this shop I was made foreman in place of the former one, who had taken a place in another shop, and it never has been necessary for me to work at the bench since.

GOOD CHANCE FOR ANY MAN.

My chances were no better in the beginning than any other man's. Any one of good mental capacity can do the same if he only will.

Many a good old workman is still at the bench because he would rather sit and smoke or play cards in the evening than to see what is going on in other shops through the pages of some magazine.

Of course, some do get up a little way through sheer native ability, but where would they have been if they had used the opportunities that are every man's?

By special request Dr. William Windsor will deliver his address on "Matrimony," illustrating with several beautiful young la- dies and handsome young men, selecting life companions according to Vitosophy.
There will be good music and special de- lineations of character. The public is in- vited. Silver collection at the door.

FREE LECTURE TO MEN ONLY.

At 215½ W. Fourth st. by DR. WILLIAM WINDSOR of Boston, Monday night, "Evils of Prostitution." This lecture is a discus- sion of the science of Eugenics and shows why so many marriages are unhappy and why children are born with criminal tenden- cies.
This lecture will be followed with delinea- tions of character and a special class on "The Dignity of Fatherhood." In this class will be taught the requirements of parentage and instruction will be given for securing happiness in marriage nd perfection of off- spring.

THE VITOSOPHY CLUB has organized a large class in Eugenics for gentlemen only, which meets every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 7:30 p.m. sharp, at 215½ W. Fourth street. You are invited to join.
You are also invited to become a perma- nent member of the club and enjoy its privi- leges. There is something doing every night at the club headquarters, and you had better be there. The club sustains lectures, classes, reading-room, advisory department and other helpful influences, and has already one hundred members of both sexes of Los An- geles' best citizens. It is the place to get ac- quainted, to have a good time, to receive val- uable instruction and to build up your health and prosperity.
The instruction given in this club will in- clude a NEW SYSTEM OF CHARACTER STUDY, enabling you to tell the strong and weak points of any person at a glance.
A NEW SYSTEM OF DIET AND HEALTH CULTURE enabling you to remove any dis- ease that is not caused by deformity or accident.
A complete cure for catarrh, consumption, asthma, indigestion, constipation, fevers, in- sanity and paralysis. The cure of the POV- ERTY DISEASE and instruction in the de- velopment of FINANCIAL PROSPERITY and SOCIAL SUCCESS. Write or call for circu- lars and full explanation.
REMEMBER! This instruction has been tested by nearly one hundred highly intel- ligent persons, and they are insisting on its repetition, and they are bringing in their friends. They have at last found the REAL THING and are rejoicing in it.
CONSULT DR. WILLIAM WINDSOR, the world's most eminent phrenologist, and ob- tain a complete DELINEATION OF YOUR CHARACTER, showing your talents and how to make the most of them, your faults and how to correct them. Your best business vocation and how to preserve and improve health. Your adaptation in matrimony and business partnership, and how to accumulate a fortune and prolong and enjoy life.

NOT THE CHEAPEST—BUT THE BEST.

TREVELYAN SPEAKS 7 DIFFERENT LANGUAGES. ALL NATIONALITIES MAY CONSULT HIM.

NO NEED TO TELL HIM.
There is no need to tell Trevelyan your story. There will be no "quizzing" or asking of questions by the life reader. His talents enable him to instinctively know your wants and troubles, without any attempt at mystifi- cation, but with unerring sight into the inner nature of things, he reveals that which you most wish to know. His advice and help on all matters, business, lawsuits, marriage, health, is invaluable. It is exact and correct— not guesswork. He gives names, dates, facts and figures and shows clearly and distinctly the road to success in business as well as in domestic and family affairs.

BUSINESS MATTERS
of every description can be advised upon by Trevelyan and perfect satisfaction will be guaranteed. Financial problems are solved, investments advised and assistance of the most practical kind is rendered.

FAMILY MATTERS
may be taken to Trevelyan in the confidence of successful solution in almost any case. Perefct discretion may be relied upon. Let Trevelyan assist you in your family difficul- ties. He has made thousands happy.

LEARN TO WIN SUCCESS.
Success is yours if you woo rightly. No circumstance can keep you down if you un- derstand the power of your inner forces. Learn how to control these forces, and win success. See Trevelyan about it. He can help you.

HE NEVER FAILS

To cause speedy and happy marriage with the one of your choice, reunites the separated, locates absent friends or buried treasures, ores, minerals, etc., gives you luck to win your biggest wish—and it takes him but a short time. In fact, he guarantees all he claims.

A SECRET YOU SHOULD KNOW.

The Power of Control—How to be master and ruler of your own Home and Affairs—Is your husband, wife or sweetheart indifferent to you? Are you occupying the position in life you are ably qualified for? Do you wish to possess the Key to the vaults of Love Friendship, Success and Fame? Know the Secret of Control—the power to inspire trust and confidence and win success in business, social or financial life. "Arise! Throw off thy Shackles." Exchange sorrow for joy— Darkness for Light. "Be Master of your own Destiny."

TREVELYAN
accepts no fee in advance. He guarantees full and complete satisfaction to all callers. Un- less you receive more genuine benefit than you have ever received before, your reading is free—will not cost you a penny.

PERSONAL—KNOW THY FUTURE

BY CONSULTING THE WORLD'S GREATEST CLAIRVOYANT,

PALMIST AND SPIRIT MEDIUM.

PROF.

MILBURN

PERMANENTLY LOCATED IN HIS OWN HOME, 659 S. HILL ST., 659, CORNER OF SEVENTH ST.

Forty years a practicing psychic, known from ocean to ocean as the marvel of two hemispheres, press and public recognize Prof. Milburn as the foremost and most able clair- voyant and spirit medium now before the public. Where others fail he succeeds with ease and he positively will NOT accept fee for his readings unless you are perfectly satisfied and receive the information you de- sire. Marvelous demonstrations of second sight, that must be seen to be believed, so be sure and consult him at once. Elevate thyself! Know thy future. Positively no equal on earth in his profession. By his wonderful powers he will tell your full name, tells what you called for, tells what you want to know. If not correct, free, free. So posi- tive am I of my power to tell the past, pres- ent and future that I will make NO CHARGE, NO CHARGE, NO CHARGE, unless you ob- tain the information you desire and find me superior to all clairvoyants, palmists and mediums in this city.
SPECIAL OFFER FOR ONE WEEK ONLY.
Realizing there are many skeptical people in Los Angeles, and that this city has been overrun with pretenders, etc., and that many of its best citizens would be only too anxious to visit a TRUE clairvoyant medium were they assured of satisfaction, therefore Prof. Milburn will (to convince the public of Los Angeles of his superiority over all clair- voyants) give his full readings to all, for seven days only, at

50C

WHEN CONSULTING A CLAIRVOYANT ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST. AS A TEST IN THE READING HE WILL TELL YOUR NAME, AGE, OCCUPATION, WHOM AND WHEN YOU WILL MARRY.

ASSISTANCE FOR TROUBLED OR UN- FORTUNATE—If you are in trouble of any kind, discontented, unhappy, or not satisfied in life, or have domestic, love or business troubles, you will be told how to overcome all trouble. WHEN OTHERS FAIL HE SUCCEEDS WITH EASE.

HE GIVES ADVICE ON BUSINESS, specu- lation, investments, insurance, changes, trav- els, health, sickness, love, divorce, marriage, lawsuits, separations, wills, deeds, mortgages, patents, claims, collections, mining, etc. He will tell you what trade, speculation, or pro- fession you are adapted for.

LAWSUITS, WILLS, DIVORCES—He can render you assistance and give you advice in a way that will bring success in business transactions, property speculation, invest- ments, mining, etc.

LOVE, COURTSHIP, MARRIAGE—Gives truthful revelations of all love affairs, trou- bles, marriages, restores lost affections, re- unites the separated, settles lovers' quarrels, etc.

Tells how to WIN the man or woman you love, and how to make your husband or wife be true to you, and how to overcome all your enemies.

WHY CONSULT AN INFERIOR MEDIUM WHEN PROF. MILBURN, THE ACKNOWL- EDGED LEADER OF THEM ALL, IS HERE AND HIS FEE IS NO HIGHER THAN THOSE LESS COMPETENT.

His past record and strictly honorable deal- ings are sufficient guaranty for his future work and have won the good will of the press and public.

READING BY MAIL, ONE DOLLAR.
SEND DATE OF BIRTH.
REMEMBER THE REDUCED PRICES FOR ONE WEEK ONLY.

HOURS—10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily and Sun- day. Satisfaction guaranteed or no pay. All business sacred and confidential. Lady in at- tendance. Private parlors and office.

PERSONAL—
PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE, of 305½ S. Spring st. near Third.
THE CELEBRATED RELIABLE PALMIST AND ASTROLOGER, whose work is known throughout this entire land, and who has made a life study of PALMISTRY AND ASTROLOGY, has con- vinced hundreds of the best intellects and persons in all walks of life that HIS RE- MARKABLE READINGS AND PREDIC- TIONS FOR FUTURE EVENTS IN THEIR LIVES ARE UNPARALLELED.
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S readings, which are thorough and scientific have nothing in com- mon whatever with the fictitious readings of illiterate, unreliable humbug palmists, astrol- ogers, psychics, fortune tellers, and those who, THROUGH TRICK METHODS, CLAIM TO TELL YOUR NAME, etc., after you yourself have written the information—who scarcely know one line or mount from the other, and who, by their disgraceful readings, drag these useful sciences into the mire of fortune telling and fraud. Prof. Althouse is not actuated by any feeling of ill-will toward any reader who may be GENUINE (for he believes all reliable readers should be encour- aged;) but he will—in the future, as in the past—denounce humbug work whenever and wherever he can.
A SATISFACTORY AND ABSOLUTELY CORRECT reading can only be had from one who has thoroughly mastered the laws of these wonderful sciences, through years of critical study of planetary influences on the lines of the PALM, combined with large ex- perience, trained judgment, etc. The palm shows diseases, love, marriage, divorce, deaths, money, investments, talents, travels, etc., and many other things which cannot be mentioned here.
PROF. ALTHOUSE stands at the very head of the profession, having read—FROM LIFE—more celebrated people than any other reader. He does not deceive the public in this respect. HIS READINGS, TOO, MUST IN NO WISE BE CLASSED WITH THOSE OF ANY OTHER READER NOW OPERAT- ING IN THIS PART OF THE COUNTRY, AND HIS SKILLED WORK HAS NO COM- PARISON WITH THEIRS WHATSOEVER.
MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK, the great singer, whose hands were read and horoscope cast by Prof. Althouse, says—"I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings were well founded, and having been prepared for the same, I was not taken unawares. Your warning regarding an oncoming illness also proved a fact, as not more than 10 days later I was at home with a severe attack of La Grippe. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."
E. H. SOTHERN says—"I find your read- ings coincides with Cheiro's," and "I am greatly interested in Palmistry." Frederick Warde says, "Your reading of my hands was most satisfactory. Your knowledge and skill in palmistry is REMARKABLE and gave me a much more exalted idea of that science than I have hitherto entertained." Louis James, actor says, "I wish to say that your reading of my hand was ENTIRELY SATISFAC- TORY." Paul Gillmore, actor, says, "I want to express to you my keen appreciation of your reading; it is by far the most scientific I have ever had." Juliet Crosby, actress, says, "Prof. Althouse has given me a most help- ful, complete and satisfactory reading." Prof. Althouse also read Admiral Schley, Senator Clark, ex-Gov. Pardee, Gen. Chaffee, Baron Rothschild, Joaquin Miller, Ysaye, Sousa, Edi- son, Capt. Hobson, Creatore, Caruso, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Huntington, Susan B. An- thony, Nance O'Neil, Lillian Nordica, Con- stantino, Alice Neilson, Calve, Julia Mar- lowe, Modjeska, Adabert, Sembrich, Gadski, Jefferson, Nat Goodwin, Maxine Elliott, James O'Neil, Lillian Russell, Papinta, and hun- dreds of others. These are a few names of PUBLIC persons and are merely given to in- dicate the class of people being read, as well as the very best people of Los Angeles, WITH WHOM ALL HIS BUSINESS IS STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL. Intelligent, high class patronage solicited—those capable of ap- preciating the superior qualities of a fine reader.
ASTROLOGY AND THE HOROSCOPE.
PROF. ALTHOUSE has also given many years of critical study to, and is an experi- enced practitioner in, the science of MODERN ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The HORO- SCOPE IS DECIDEDLY A GUIDE IN LIFE, showing remarkable things when prop- erly cast—from the position of the planets at your birth. It indicates the condition of health, all kinds of diseases, the constitution, how best strengthened, when weak; tells all above love, whom to marry and when, de- scribing the marriage partner, shows deaths; divorce, tells about children, speculation, the best time to invest or to push affairs, and when to hold on to what has been gained; your talents, what best adapted for; your environment; when and where to travel; what to seek and what to avoid; when one will be in danger of illness, accidents, death, losses, troubles, also of your good periods coming, giving dates of these events for the future; in fact, tells everything about one's self worth knowing, being in truth, the best investment the world offers. YOUR HORO- SCOPE is also a key to the character of OTHERS, and in this respect can be of the utmost use to you.
SCIENTIFIC PREDICTIONS, embracing all question of life, for the present, immediate future and events up to the close of life— made by these sciences—with most complete primary and secondary directions, (arcs, etc.) —through the trained judgment of Prof. Alt- house—will stagger the senses. Beware, how- ever, of the unreliable reader.
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in hand reading and casting of horoscopes has brought him a large and successful prac- tice. The most private confidences are re- posed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances.
Daily and evenings, Sunday 10 to 2.

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, England, may be consulted at 222 S. SPRING ST. (Suite 17,)
by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIEN- TIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READING FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALM- ISTS OF THE DAY.
Mrs. Masson's knowledge of palmistry is founded upon SCIENTIFIC PRINCIPLES, aided by years of EARNEST STUDY and pa- tient PERSONAL INVESTIGATION. Her statements do not consist of vague generali- ties, which tell you nothing, but are EXACT, PRACTICAL and TO THE POINT; give PAST as well as FUTURE events, and cannot fail to be of benefit to you. They will assist you in the struggle for recognition by teaching you your possibilities and limitations; save you years of fruitless struggles in the wrong vocation by pointing out the line of work you are best fitted for, and lead you to wealth through information as to investments and en- terprises, quite unobtainable through other sources.
CHANGES OF BUSINESS, LOSSES AND GAINS, LAWSUITS, DEATHS, MARRIAGES, SEPARATIONS, and, in fact, all that life holds for you, is plainly written in your hand. It is simply a question of correct interpreta- tion.
(As Mrs. Masson's methods of hand-reading do not require the names of her patrons to be disclosed, they may rest assured of their iden- tity being unknown, and that their confidence will be maintained inviolate.)
HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.
(Daily and evenings; Sundays 9 to 2.)

FOR SALE—

MANUFACTURING PROPOSITION.
LEADING TO FORTUNE.
THIS IS AN EYE OPENER

For a little money (only $5000,) you can buy outright, a concern which, for earning power in proportion to money invested, should outrank anything obtainable and equal many highly expensive affairs. Will furnish the foundation for your fortune.

It is a patented necessity which not only appeals to the masses, but never fails to captivate at first introduction or demonstration.

Enough goods almost finished, go with it, to pay for the whole thing more than twice over, making it a sure winner from the start.

Owner has other business interests which cannot be neglected. Would sell a half interest to a capable manager. IT IS UP TO YOU.

And hundreds of others. We have a private telegraph wire to San Francisco, and representatives in the prominent mining camps.

The market looks better, notwithstanding bear reports. Winfield during an interview said that the Goldfield Cons. Mines Co., "The merger would not pay any dividends this year." The reason he gave was he wanted to build and operate his own reduction works, claiming the ore sent to Salt Lake smelters cost $30 per ton, while he could treat the ore at Goldfield at $7 cost, also that new hoisting and other machinery is needed. Of course this all may be true, but coming at this time, it shows an effort to still bear the market, and my report may in time prove true that the merger wants to buy and control more ground, such as the Combination Traction, the Silver Pick and other property. The only way they can accomplish this is to bear the market, and buy in these stocks at the lowest. I still advise the public to hold on to their stocks and buy on every decline. Goldfield has the ore—never forget that. Gold is there enough for the whole world. That is the reason the money powers of Wall street is the market. But the market does not affect the good leasing stocks, such as Mohawk Florence, Mohawk Gold Bar, Mohawk Daisy, etc.

We have still a small block of the Mohawk Daisy at 30 cents. This stock will be raised on the 24th. It is worth more. Do not neglect to get a block of the Mohawk Herald Leasing & Mines Co., at 1½ cents per share—going rapidly.

I have also bought a block of Goldfield Vaneda, and I offer this at 50 cents. This is another Little Florence—buy it—I have about 3000 shares left.

Get the Southwest Mining News. It gives you the full list of stocks dealt in on the Southwest Miners' Stock Exchange, where all stocks are dealt in, and a public call at 11:30 a.m. daily.

We handle all Coeur d'Alene stocks. It is not necessary to go into details regarding the various stocks of this district. If you are already interested or wish to become interested, we are in a position to give you any information which you might desire and shall be pleased to have you call upon us.

Have made more money for our clients from mining investments in Coeur d'Alene stocks than any other mining promoters in Los Angeles.

The following are a few of the stocks which we advised our clients to purchase:
Sold them—
Snowstorm at 15c, and will now buy at $2.
Hecla at $1, and will now buy at $4.
Stewart at 20c, and will now buy at $2.75.
Big Creek at 10c, and will now buy at 60c.
Snowstorm Extension at 15c, and will now buy at 30c.
Whipple Mountain at 15c, and will now buy at 25c.

Here is a tip from the Coeur d'Alenes: Keep your eye on Reindeer, Nine Mile and Snowstorm Extension.

Snowstorm Extension, the adjoining property to the famous Snowstorm of the Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, has completed the second contract of 200 feet, and the tunnel is now in 400 feet. A letter from the secretary states another contract of 100 feet has been let. The rock is very hard and the general characteristics are the same as the original Snowstorm. A short time ago the secretary had a talk with Manager Wilbur Creenough of the Snowstorm Company, and was assured that developments in that property proved an ore body in the Extension. We expect to find this ore body in the next fifty feet, in which event the stock will certainly reach par. All those who were fortunate enough to buy Snowstorm Extension at 15 and 25 cents will in the near future have the opportunity to congratulate themselves, as did the lucky purchasers of Snowstorm.

Great activity is looked for, and, in fact, has already commenced for this season, in the Coeur d'Alene stocks.

The Whipple Mountain Gold and Copper Company, which property is located in San Bernardino county, Cal., has let a contract for a 100-foot double-compartment shaft on its property and work is now being pushed with all possible effort.

A limited block of the Whipple Mountain stock is being offered at 25c per share. When this is subscribed no more stock will be sold until the present contract is finished, when we expect this property will be a demonstrated mine and the stock worth par—$1.

We had fifty pounds of the crude ore reduced to copper bar and from this amount received a copper brick weighing over ten pounds. This is sufficient proof to any one that the Whipple Mountain Gold and Copper Company has certainly a wonderful property, with an unusual surface showing. Another great copper district is being opened up in the Whipple Mountains, and mining men who have visited the district pronounce the showing far superior to a number of the better-known localities.

We should be pleased to have you call and see maps and specimens of ore of the Whipple Mountain Gold and Copper Mining Co.

We offer to the investing public stock in the largest and strongest iron company in the city of Los Angeles. Company doing business here for twenty years, and whose standing is the highest. They are doing a business in the millions in this city in structural iron work and mining machinery. The stock has paid over 20 per cent. per annum on a basis of a million dollars, and will continue to pay large dividends. This is an investment for architects, contractors, builders and those looking for the best of securities paying good interest. You can see their name on every large structure in Los Angeles. The Hamburger building is being constructed by them, and you can see their name on the girder. The trustee building on Broadway has their name on it. We recommend this for a safe, solid and secure investment. We do not care to give their names except to parties interested. For further information see us.

FOR SALE—

B. F. LEWIS & CO., 221 W. FIRST ST.
Stocks, Bonds and Mortgages
Established 1881.

Don't buy securities that have advanced too high in price. The public generally buys shares at the highest price instead of the lowest. For a big advance, buy shares that are selling way down; they have a far better chance of advancing than those that have run their limit. The shares of the Searchlight-Parallel are extremely low in price at the present time. There is a good possibility for you to treble or quadruple your money on this stock at prevailing prices.

MAYOR THROWS MUD AT DUNNE.

IN AFFIDAVIT HE ALSO ATTACKS RUDOLPH SPRECKELS.

Says Millionaire Reformer Is Actually Investing His Wealth With Hope of Financial Returns from Franchises He Can Grab When Heney's Plans Mature in Graft Cases.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Dist.-Atty. Langdon was tonight served by Mayor Schmitz's attorneys, Metson, Campbell and Drew, and John J. Barrett and C. H. Fairall, with notice of a motion for substitution of trial judge on the ground that Judge Frank H. Dunne is disqualified by bias and prejudice. Accompanying and supporting this motion is a lengthy affidavit by Schmitz in which charges of an extremely sensational nature are made against Rudolph Spreckels, his associates in the bribery graft prosecution and Judge Dunne himself.

Among Schmitz's allegations are the following:

"That Mr. Spreckels and the associates who are with him as the financial guarantors of the bribery investigation and prosecution long since exhausted the original fund of $100,000 pledged by Spreckels and have expended nearly $1,000,000 in a municipal purification campaign; that the expenditure of this vast sum of money is by way of an investment from which actual moneyed returns are expected; that Spreckels and his prosecuting assistants desire and purpose to overthrow the present municipal administration in order that they themselves may assume the reigns of government and secure for themselves street railway and water franchises which will net them millions of dollars of the public's money; that Judge Dunne is aware of this intent and purpose and is therewith in accord that the conviction of Schmitz is desired as a means of these ends, and that it is the wish of Judge Dunne that a biased and prejudiced jury be selected to secure such conviction; that for many and various reasons, the same as set forth recently by Abraham Ruef in his application for a substitution for trial judge, it is impossible for Schmitz to have a fair and impartial trial at Judge Dunne's hands."

Dist.-Atty. Langdon said of this motion and of the Mayor's affidavit:

"This would be amusing if it were not despicable. It is merely and patently a dilatory move. It is deserving of notice that Schmitz's attorneys propose to pursue for him the same blockading tactics engaged in by Ruef's attorneys. It is a complete exposé of the insincerity of the Mayor's loud and oft-repeated demand for an 'immediate' trial. The Mayor never has wanted an immediate trial or any trial at all. Now that he is face to face with his case he would stave it off by any legal means within his power. The prosecution will file on Monday counter-affidavits disproving the allegations made by the Mayor."

As far as the prosecution is concerned the trial of Schmitz will be begun before Judge Dunne.

The signature of C. H. Fairall to the Mayor's motion is the first notification that the Stockton attorney, who with Ach, Shortridge and Murphy defended Ruef, has joined the lists of Schmitz.

PUZZLE OVER TEMPERANCE.

Question of Action by General Assembly of Presbyterian Church Causes Dissension in Body.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

COLUMBUS (O.) May 18.—Whether the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church shall indorse the efforts of the Temperance Committee to organize a church temperance federation, or shall give its undivided support to the Anti-Saloon League, is a question which will be pressed for solution before the Assembly at the earliest moment, probably next Wednesday.

The controversy, which started when the Interchurch Temperance Federation in Pennsylvania and the Anti-Saloon League disputed over temperance legislation in that State, cropped out in the General Assembly today, when David Wells, Jr., of Pittsburgh, who had been appointed chairman of the Temperance Committee, resigned, and Dr. Henry E. Dosker of Louisville was appointed to succeed him. Dr. Wells refused to discuss his reasons for resigning, but it was said that he did not care to be in the thick of the fray.

The question as to which movement the Assembly shall indorse may not be allowed to go to the Temperance Committee, however, although the matter is discussed in the report of that committee. The present plan is to bring the matter up in the Assembly on Wednesday on overtures from the presbyteries of Carlisle, Chicago, Minnewaukon and Phoenix. The presbyteries of Carlisle adopted a resolution that the effort to organize a church temperance federation is unwise.

That these overtures will receive strong support is conceded, but none can be found who is willing to predict the outcome.

SEND FRATERNAL GREETINGS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.) May 18.—In the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States today Moderator Howerton read the following telegram dated Columbus, O.:

"The general assembly of Presbyterians send fraternal greetings to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States. Read Ephesians fourth chapter and thirteenth verse."

The telegram was signed by William H. Roberts. The Scriptural reference referred to Paul's exhortation to unity.

POLITICAL BRIEFS.

Will Indorse Knox.

CHICAGO, May 18.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington says that United States Senator Philander C. Knox is to be indorsed by the Republican State convention of Pennsylvania, which meets on June 6, as the choice of the Keystone State for President in succession to Theodore Roosevelt.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

COMBINE WILL USE PIPE LINE.

ASSOCIATED TO HAVE HALF OF ESPEE'S FACILITIES.

Coalinga Is Running Fifty Strings and May Easily Take First Place in Amount of Production for This Year—Company Will Test Territory on Divide.

The Southern Pacific's pipe line from Kern River to Delano, which is to be extended at once to the bay, is to be used by the railroad and the Associated Oil Company, according to the latest unofficial reports from the north. So it is generally understood in the fields among oil men. The exact conditions of the contract are not public, but it is said that each will be entitled to half the oil transported in the line. It is also announced that the line will have an entry into Coalinga.

Crude fuel now sells in San Francisco and on the bay for 80 cents and up a barrel. It will go to a dollar soon, the ruling Los Angeles price. The difference is accounted for easily by the fact that, while Los Angeles has oil fields within a few miles, their output is not nearly as great as that of Kern River and Coalinga, or as that of the latter alone, and it is from there that the northern city gets its supply by two pipe lines and from Santa Maria. Competition is keen, while in Los Angeles there is no surplus and the competition is among the consumers.

Gladding & McMean of San Francisco, who conduct a large cement, fire brick and tile works near Sacramento, have purchased tank cars of their own and are canvassing the fields to get oil direct from the producers. They say that they have been forced to do this as they could not get satisfactory deliveries from the big marketing companies since the car shortage began to be serious. It is said that one or two companies are doing the same. This company is said to use about 15,000 barrels a month.

The Associated has raised the price to consumers at the well to 45 cents at Coalinga.

COALINGA IS ACTIVE.

Some fifty strings of tools are running today at Coalinga. But for the difficulty in getting material promptly there might be more. Not only are cars lacking, but the local shops are overrun with work. If Kern River shows a further decline this year over last, Coalinga will be the first field in the State in output. It may even excel Kern's production of last year without great difficulty. Last year the output was over 8,000,000 barrels, although many wells were shut down or pumped to only half their capacity. This year all wells are working to the limit and new ones are being added.

The Coalinga-Midway is the name of the latest company to enter the field. It is owned by Al Gulberson, Thomas O'Donnell, R. L. Peeler and John A. Lucy. Its property is on section 4-20-15, which is directly on what has long been considered the divide between the east and west side districts. The owners evidently think there is oil there if they go deep enough, and will endeavor to prove that the so-called divide is simply a myth.

The California Oil Fields' contract with the Standard is said to call for about one thousand barrels a day for a year; price about fifty cents. The Associated is said to have paid thirty-five under a former contract.

Bakersfield Men in Utah.

Bakersfield oil men have 3400 acres near Virgin City, Utah, which they have been holding for over a year waiting for a good chance to begin work. They will now start shortly. John W. Kelly, Sheriff of Kern county, who is one of those interested, has returned from a visit to Virgin City and says that he is very much encouraged by the outlook. The Kern people were induced to locate by the reports of J. A. Smith, a prospector known to them, who has been going over the whole of southern Nevada and Utah in quest of riches.

Those interested include some of the prominent men in the Kern River field. Among them are W. A. Ferguson, A. H. Liscomb of the Federated Oil Company and the Producers' Refinery; J. M. Dye, superintendent of the Potomac Oil Company; J. D. Martin, T. H. Baldwin, Patrick O'Brien, A. T. Skein, James Hynes, Mrs. C. E. Carlsen, T. A. Baker, and others.

On their land a hole has been sunk about forty feet by hand and from this some oil has been obtained.

Drilling Near Mecca.

Drilling is reported to have commenced already on the first well to be sunk near Mecca, where oil is believed to exist. The chief backers of the enterprise are said to be Bakersfield people represented by L. B. Merritt, brother of the Associated's superintendent at Kern River. They have acquired some 3000 acres and have also located a source of water supply in what is known as Hidden Cañon, from which they are to run a pipe line to the place where they are drilling. Material for the rig was taken in some time ago.

Another owner of claims near this point is a Mrs. Weir of Los Angeles, who went there and located lands at the first outbreak of excitement.

Indications are declared to be unusually good. A Los Angeles oil man who has visited the neighborhood, but is not interested, says that he was told that in some places there are seepages by the road so big as to harden the surface as if it had been oiled.

OWENS RIVER CONFERENCE.

Details of Project Explained to Council in Conference With Campaign Committee and Engineers.

At the invitation of the Owens River Campaign Committee, members of the City Council, the City Attorney and the aqueduct engineers met in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, for conference on the details of the bond campaign.

After the plans of the committee had been laid before the conference, the aqueduct project was discussed in detail in open session, and the engineers were bombarded with questions by the Councilmen.

Councilman Wallace wanted to know the quantity of water available in Owens Valley. The engineers answered that the city has acquired by purchase 11,000 inches of water actually used in ditches, with a maximum appropriation of 16,500 inches, and that by storage of flood waters the quantity will be increased to 20,000 inches.

The quality of Owens River water was shown by analyses to be better than that of the Los Angeles River. Weekly tests made by the United States government from Nov. 6, 1906, to April 30, 1907, and now continued by the city, show an average of 18 grains of alkali to the gallon in Owens River at the intake. Los Angeles River contains 32 grains to the gallon. Water from the city's pumping plant, supplied to the Sixth Ward, contains 52 grains to the gallon.

Details of the city's purchases of land in Owens Valley were given by Attorney Matthews, and the deal by which the Rickey holdings were acquired from Fred Eaton was explained fully. Mr. Eaton bought the Rickey ranch and sold it to the city, and in land and cattle he made a profit of $100,-00. In commissions on the purchase of other lands, Mr. Eaton has received from the city in two years $9686. Eaton paid Rickey $425,000 for the ranch and cattle. The city paid Eaton $425,000 for the Rickey lands, the Long Valley reservoir site and the riparian rights necessary to carry out the project. Eaton retained as his profit, the cattle and 1600 acres of grazing land. The city secured Eaton's options on 12 miles of river front, in addition to the Rickey lands, without cost.

The subjects of taxation, sale of water for irrigation, revenue derivable from the aqueduct, water supply obtainable nearer than Owens Valley, growth of the city and necessity for greatly increased supply were discussed thoroughly, and the Councilmen left the conference with clear comprehension of the Owens River aqueduct project in all its phases.

GREAT ENGINEERING FEAT.

Construction of Railroad Across the Florida Keys Right Out to Sea.

Ranking high with the great feats of engineering which have marked so indelibly the past quarter of a century is the railroad, now in the building, across the Florida Keys from Miami to Key West.

We, who have been so favored by the fates as to have been permitted to live during these twenty-five years, have read of such stupendous undertakings as the building of the Cape to Cairo Railroad, penetrating the heart of the African wilds and extending, as it does the entire length of the continent; we have read of the digging of the Panama Canal which, when completed, will divide the Western Hemisphere and afford a deep, wide waterway from ocean to ocean; we have read of the proposed railroad from New York direct to Buenos Ayres, across the mesas of Mexico, scaling the Andes through Peru and Bolivia and descending again to the vast pampas of the Argentine; we have read of an infinite number of smaller, but none the less difficult, projects. At their construction we have wondered and marveled.

But within our very reach we have a railroad literally going out to sea for a hundred and fifty-six miles, penetrating in its course dense and murky mangrove swamps, crossing creeks, land-locked arms of the adjacent bays, open waterways, ocean channels, and sporific semi-tropical islands of the Southern Sea in rapid succession.

On a trip over this line the passenger's gaze will rest upon nothing, during almost all of the route, save the blue waters of the Atlantic Ocean on one side and the coraline depths of the Gulf of Mexico on the other. He will be shot out over the islands on high embankments, across the intervening roadsteads on concrete viaducts. The route involves problems in railway construction never before solved. From Key West the heavy Pullmans will be shunted to the deck of an ocean-going ferry and sent across the strait to Havana, a distance of almost a hundred miles, much as they are taken on a voyage on Long Island Sound by the transfer steamer from Jersey City to the railway yards on the opposite side of Manhattan Island.

All this is the project of Henry M. Flagler, president of the Florida East Coast Railway, and that it is a feasible one has been amply demonstrated and proven by the amount of work already accomplished, contingencies overcome and the success met with in solving the engineering problems which have been continuously making themselves evident in direct proportion to the progress of the work.

GERMANY'S NEW CANAL.

Enables River Traffic to Go Around the City of Berlin With Saving of Time.

The greatest recent canal project in Germany is the Telton Canal, near Berlin. The immense river traffic on the Havel and the Spree has been much hampered by being obliged to follow these streams through the city. The Telton Canal permits this traffic to be diverted.

The canal is only twenty-three miles long, and there is a saving in distance of only twenty miles in the main river route. But the gain is in the time formerly necessary to get through the city. The total expense of construction, including buildings, harbors and electric works, was about $11,500,000.

The channel, says The World Today, is twenty meters broad at the bottom and from two to two and a half meters deep, with a towpath two meters broad.

There is only one lock, with a fall of water of 2.7 meters. In its construction the latest and most improved system has been employed. Its gates, etc., are worked by electricity supplied by the canal's own electric works, the towing also being mainly done by electric locomotives. Fifty-five bridges had to be built, but the expenditure is fully justified by the enormous traffic through Berlin, which amounted in 1905 to nearly 12,000,000 tons.

The Beggar's One Mistake

The pronunciation of one word the other day changed the philanthropic intentions of a prominent Reading business man, who, during the past month, has been attending to his interests in this city. He was approached by a professional beggar. The mendicant had evidently been preparing to approach the man with the idea of making a good touch. During his hobo expeditions he had apparently been in Reading and must have spent a good deal of time there, because he was able to realize his story even to details. He gave the business man a short history of his life when a boy—how he had played ball in Carsonia Park, how he had scrambled over the rocks of the Neversink Mountains. He wound up by saying: "Won't you give me something so that I can go back to that beautiful town along the School-kill?" "School-kill! School-kill!" ejaculated the man from Reading. "Why, man, you never lived near it. It is pronounced Skoo-kil." The hobo left without even saying good-by.—[Philadelphia Record.

Government Ownership of Railroads Is Agitated by Some.

The Up-to-Date Plan

Ownership by the people will supersede all others.

Toledo, Wabash & St. Louis Railroad offers the solution.

No bonds. No preferred stock. All stock common stock. Every share shares equally with every other share.

A road of the people, by the people and for the people.

A necessary air line from Toledo to St. Louis, connecting the Great Lakes with the Mississippi, forming a connecting link between the Atlantic coast and the Gulf of Mexico.

Building a railroad by popular subscription. A start has been made—it will be finished.

Toledo, Wabash & St. Louis Railroad is building an Electric Air line Interurban Railroad from Toledo to St. Louis via Defiance, Ft. Wayne and Indianapolis, the construction and equipment to be first class in every particular, road bed to be rock ballasted, track standard gauge and equipped with 70-pound steel rails. Right-of-way for the first section has been practically secured. Contract has been let and bond given by the construction company for the fulfillment of same. The construction company has accepted stock of the railroad company in lieu of payment. This stock is first offered to the public—the people. If the investing public can tell a good thing when they see it they have the opportunity—probably for the first time—to get an interest in an Interurban Electric Air Line which will be built. A most important start has been made. The right kind of a start.

Surveys have been made between Toledo and Defiance.

Within thirty days ground will be broken and actual construction work begun on the right of way of a great modern up-to-date railroad WHICH HAUL BOTH FREIGHT AND PASSENGERS.

ng the figures, those who acquainted with real estate Los Angeles will notice s in the above table. The at the population is 15,000 than that given above. The just completed estab- fact beyond controversy that contains 285,000 inhabi- und numbers. Again, there no property sold here at $7000 foot. The highest sale ever here was at a valuation about than that figure. It is true, time ago, and also true erty here is held at that fig- the important fact is that has ever been made, even at parcel sold at almost $6000 speculatively looked upon as perhaps the very best in the city, and besides these two points, it was of an unusual depth and terminated at an alley, all these elements going to enhance the intrinsic value of the property. There is property here at the present time returning a higher rental than could possibly obtain from a similar building put upon the corner in question, namely the southwest corner of Seventh and Broadway. But the interests which purchased that corner were looking far into the future. Property held at perhaps $7000 in other localities not looked upon with so much favor as speculative investments, might not command the price at which the property is held. Again, in the price given for residence property, namely $200, there is a more important error found. There has never been a parcel of real estate sold in the city of Los Angeles for purely residence purposes at $200. If by residence there is included use for flats, apartments and hotels, then the figure is not high enough. There is property here held at $300 a foot where it is available for the uses just mentioned. By residence property here we usually mean property bought and used to put up a home on. Now no such real estate has ever sold here at as high as $200 a front foot. There may be property held at that price.

As to Population.

Another thing to consider is the figures given for the population of the different cities. It is true, San Francisco claims 400,000 people at the present time, which is almost the population of that city before the fire swept it almost out of existence. There is nothing but assumption to establish the fact. In the case of many other cities, no doubt the same element of guess enters into the figures given for the population. In a short time, the Federal census will come around, and then we will know more definitely about the figures for the different cities.

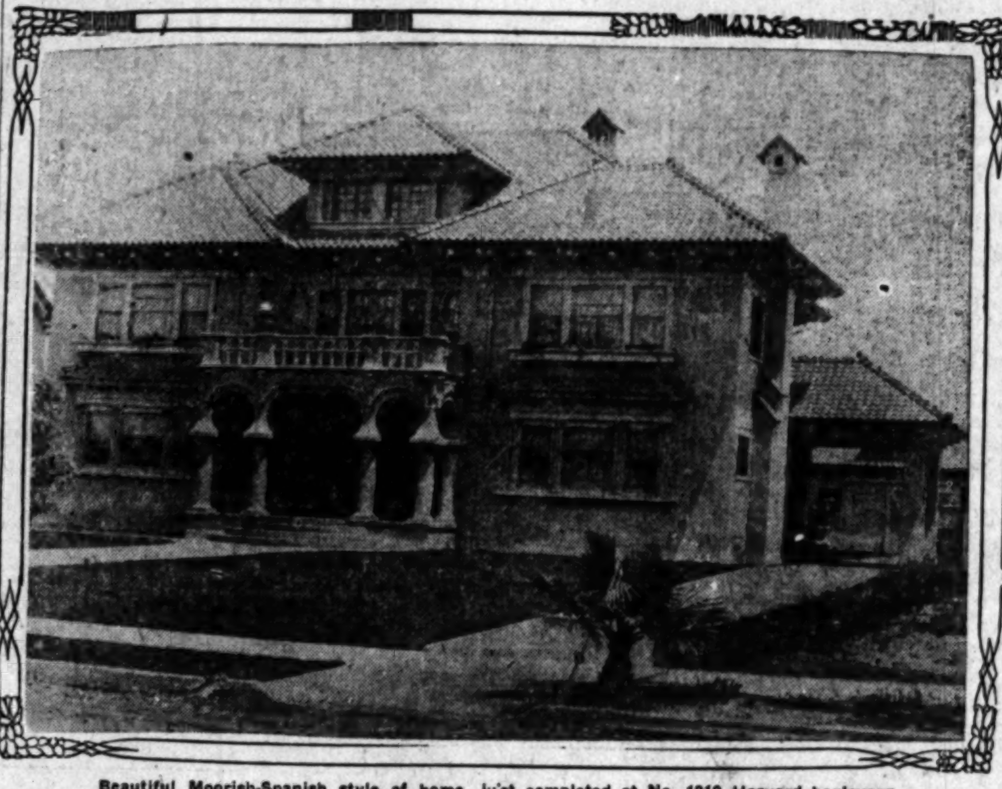
Some Interesting Features Shown.

A careful study of the table will show that population alone is far from deciding the value of real estate. New Orleans is set down in the table with 400,000 inhabitants, and the highest property is put at $6250 a foot. At the same time, the wholesale property is said to be worth as much as $2000, which is an unusual figure in comparison with the price of the highest retail property. In the case of Newark, with 100,000 less population than New Orleans, namely, 300,000, the highest price of business property is put down at $12,000 a foot, and residence property is put down at $1000. Here is 25 per cent. less population, and almost twice the valuation for business property and five times the valuation for residence property. At Pittsburgh, with the same population as New Orleans, business property is said to be worth $20,000 a front foot, wholesale property worth $8000 and residence property worth $500. This is an anomalous condition of business. In the case of San Francisco there is residence property that could not be had for $1000 a front foot, but it is in the absolutely most select residence section of the city, and the amount of the property in existence is exceedingly small. It is doubtful in the case of this city if any business property ever sold for $10,000 a foot. The highest price prior to the fire was $8000 a front foot. Chicago and St. Louis have been bitter rivals in the matter of population in times past, but are no longer so. Chicago has 2,000,000 and St. Louis only 750,000. But the highest price for business property in Chicago is $27,000, while at St. Louis it is worth $26,000. With a third of the population, its business property is worth almost as much money. But in the wholesale district Chicago falls worse behind her rival. There the highest wholesale price of property is given at $3000, while St. Louis claims $10,000.



Beautiful Moorish-Spanish style of home, just completed at No. 1910 Harvard boulevard.

Statistics Misleading.

The farther one pursues the analysis of the table given above, the more evident it becomes that great discretion and a good deal of skill are required in doing business upon statistics. There is no source given for the figures used above, which were found in a Portland financial publication. They are only referred to here in a general way to give a rather broad and somewhat indefinite view of the population of different cities and the value of property in each. The editor of the department has endeavored to point out the misleading features in the use of such statistics, to put investors and speculators on their guard.

In order to give a more complete basis for comparison, let us reproduce the building record of the cities given above for the month of April in the past two years. This record runs as follows:

Pumping plant on property

Views of recently developed farm lands, near Newport Bay.

DEVELOPING LARGE TRACT.

LAND BORDERING NEWPORT BAY USED FOR FARMS.

Investment Company Opening Up Part of Huge San Joaquin Ranch for Small Farmers—Plenty of Artesian Water for Irrigation—Many Settlers Have Purchased.

The Townsend-Dayman Investment Company has been devoting its energies for the past year very largely to the work of securing and developing large tracts of agricultural land in Orange county to supply the growing demand for small farms.

In July, 1906, the company bought 1652 acres of the San Joaquin ranch on the mesa bordering Newport Bay. The soil is free, sandy loam, uniform in character to a considerable depth, and admirably adapted for irrigation. The topographical features are unusually favorable for irrigation work. To the northward of the land is an artesian belt, where work was at once begun to develop water. One of the wells put down is flowing eighty-five miner's inches. A modern pumping plant is being installed to force water to a large storage reservoir, being excavated at a point higher than any of the land to be irrigated. Large mains have been laid on all streets and cross streets. The first appropriation for this work contemplates an expenditure of $25,000.

Twelve hundred and forty acres of this land were divided into five-acre farms in blocks of forty acres, street work was done by the company, and about the first of the year these were placed on the market at a uniform price of $1500 for five acres, one-fifth cash and the balance in semi-annual payments, at 6 per cent. interest, the buyer being given his choice of the entire area. The rapid sales have fully demonstrated the demand for good land for gardeners and small farmers. To this date there have been sold 197 of these little farms, for $295,500.

A most encouraging fact, from the standpoint of one who is really interested in the devlopment of the State, is that a very large percentage is being rapidly improved. Already thirty-one five-acre tracts have been set to English walnuts. One man is planting twenty acres in peanuts. Another has a luxuriant crop of five acres of potatoes. These settlers are afforded unusual advantages. They have cheap and frequent transportation for their products by both Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific roads, and there is a commercial wharf where sea-going vessels transfer cargoes direct to the cars on track. Newport Bay extends inland for three miles, the high bluffs forming beautiful residence locations. The town of Newport Beach has a school, church and banking facilities and a newspaper.

The natural advantages of Newport for commercial purposes are very great, and recently considerable attention has been directed to the harbor features. The Townsend-Dayman Investment Company reports that it has given an option to a prospective manufacturing concern.

The agricultural lands have been sold entirely on their merits for farming purposes, but they now promise to become very valuable for oil, the field being developed by some of the most experienced men in the State. It is stated that one well, which is now down 2200 feet, will produce 200 barrels per day. Another well is being bored, and work on two others will be begun within thirty days.

In addition to buying the lands from the San Joaquin ranch, the investment company has formed a syndicate, which has bought all of the adjoining Banning Company holdings, so that a total of nearly three thousand acres will be uniformly developed for intensive farming.

Illustrations on this page show one of the flowing wells, the pumping plant and some of the modern improvements now on the property.

AMONG BUILDERS AND ARCHITECTS.

BUILDING REPORT FOR SEVENTEEN DAYS IN MAY.

Total of Present Month, Three Hundred and Eighty-eight Thousand. Permits Number Four Hundred and Ninety-eight—Details of Work in Hands of Architects.

The building report for seventeen days of the present month of May has been issued by Chief Inspector of Buildings J. J. Backus. Building operations for the month to date total $388,271, this valuation being divided among 340 building permits. These figures are compared with the record for last year as follows—498 permits issued, having a valuation of $634,064. The loss apparent in these figures is $245,793 in valuation, and 158 in the number of permits issued.

Following is the building report in detail, together with the report of the building activity in the various wards for the week:

NEW WORK PLANNED.

The following details of new work in the hands of the local architects and designers are furnished by The Builder and Contractor:

John P. Krempel is drawing plans for alterations and additions to building at 385 Bauchet street, owned by C. Pieri. The present building will be raised and a one-story-and-basement brick structure, 27x52 feet, to be used for store purposes built under it. The old portion will also be made modern. He has also made plans for a one-story brick building 36x24 feet, to be built for the Maier & Zobelein brewery, on their property on Aliso street. It will be used as a loading platform. The same architect has made plans for an additional story 60x60 feet, to be built on the rear portion of the existing one-story frame building of the Turn Verein Germania, on Figueroa street, near Pico street. It will be used for meeting and banquet purposes, and will contain all the necessary conveniences for such purposes.

Preston & Seehorn have made plans for a double beach cottage to be built at Redondo, for N. P. Nelson. They have also made plans for an eight-room frame residence to be constructed at Temecula for Harry L. Heffner. Also plans for a two-story double house, to contain two six-room apartments, to be built on West Twelfth street, near Burlington avenue, for J. Scresovich. It will be modern in every detail. The same architects are also making plans for a one-story-and-basement brick building, to be erected at East First and Gless streets for Davis & Watkins. It will be used as a candy manufacturing establishment.

R. B. Young has drawn the plans for a five-story steel frame apartment building, 60x155 feet, to be erected on Grand avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets, for C. S. Holman. The exterior finish will be of terra cotta and stone, plate glass windows and composition roof. There will be 100 rooms, divided into two and three-room suites, each with private bath and kitchen. The kitchen will be equipped with ammonia cooling apparatus; the bath-rooms will have the latest improved plumbing, and patented beds and other household fixtures will be installed.

A. Dudley is making plans for a new building for the Gardena Methodist Church. It will comprise an auditorium, Sunday-school and social rooms. The same architect is also drawing plans for three other churches to be built in this section. He is also preparing plans for a two-story eight-room frame and plastered residence to be erected in Altadena for G. W. Woods. It will have modern conveniences throughout.

Paul C. Pape has prepared plans of a two-story and basement frame residence to be built on Grove Place, near Bimini Baths, for N. J. Skinner of the Bank of Southern California. It will contain ten rooms and will have furnace heat, gas and electrical conveniences, hardwood floors and trim, and up-to-date in its appointments. The owner is taking bids for its construction.

S. Tilden Norton has drawn plans for a grain warehouse, to be built at San Fernando for the Newmark Grain Company. It will be 50x200 feet, with corrugated iron sides and roof. It will have concrete foundation.

J. Lee Burton has prepared plans for a six-room cottage to be built on Moneta avenue, for W. W. Davis. It will be modern in every particular and cost about $3500.

Marsh & Russell have completed plans for the proposed pleasure pier and pavilion to be built at the foot of D street, San Diego.

Joseph J. Blick has prepared plans of a fine suburban residence to be built on Andrews Drive, Oak Knoll, Pasadena, for W. H. Cornett. It will have brick foundation walls and porches, shingled exterior and roofing. It will be two stories, attic and basement, and have hardwood floors and trim, plate and art glass windows, furnace heat, fireplaces, high-grade plumbing and electrical conveniences. The estimated cost is $17,000.

The directors of the Valley Hunt Club of Pasadena are considering plans for their new clubhouse, to be built on Palmetto Drive, west of Orange Grove avenue. A decision will be reached in a few days.

MOORISH-SPANISH IN STYLE.

The newly completed residence of Mrs. Linda Scott, at No. 1910 Harvard boulevard is a peer among all example of the Spanish-Moorish type of architecture in the southland. The architect is Frank M. Tyler, and as the photo will show, Mr. Tyler has grasped the idea of a perfect California home in this beautiful dwelling.

Two stories in height, built solidly of cement, surmounted with a red tile roof, the deep arcades, and broad effects, of the shady gables bring a sense of ease and rest delightful, after gazing at some of the composite styles of architecture followed in many of the modern homes.

There are twelve large rooms in the house, which is placed in a large lot 75x150 fet in size. On the first floor is the reception hall, living-room, dining-room, breakfast room, and kitchen and servants' quarters. The finish on the lower floor is of polished oak, both for floor and trim. The second floor contains five large bedrooms, one private bath, and one general bathroom. The attic is finished as a billiard room. The second floor is finished in white enamel.

In the rear of the dwelling is a barn and auto house, conforming in style of architecture with the house. This barn is connected with the main building with a pergola, also following the graceful Spanish style in every detail. The house faces west. The cost was between $15,000 and $18,000.

MANY SALES AT ONTARIO.

BOOM REPORTED IN PROGRESS AT FOOTHILL TOWN.

Several Choice Ranches Purchased by Eastern Settlers—Local Investors Also Are Interested—Good Demand for High-Class Orange Groves—Prices on the Rise.

Real estate dealers in Ontario report an increasing demand for Ontario property, not only by easterners, but by investors from other Southern California cities. Already a number of valuable properties have been purchased by out-of-town investors, and a number of other transfers are in escrow.

Good orange groves are in demand. Among recent important sales are the following:

The nine-year-old, ten-acre navel orange orchard belonging to Mrs. McDowell Mick, on Mountain avenue and I street, has been sold to W. D. Clarke of Los Angeles, the consideration being stated at $15,000.

Benjamin Wilson of Winnipeg, Canada, has bought the ten-acre navel orange grove belonging to George Freeman, situated one mile northwest of Ontario. The consideration was stated at $15,000. The sale was made through the agency of the Ontario Land and Improvement Company.

Horace Little has sold his property on West Eighth street, Ontario, consisting of ten acres of Eureka lemons, improved with a cottage, to E. Maag of Salt Lake City. The price is reported to have been $15,000. The sale was made through a Claremont firm.

The annual crops from these three ranches are valued at from $6000 to $10,000.

J. P. Robinson has sold his property at Ontario, located on Euclid avenue, between G and H streets, consisting of a large modern house and two and a half acres of navel oranges, to B. Wilson of Winnipeg, Canada; $8000 is the price reported to have been paid.

Tuttle & Russel report the following recent sales: Thomas Hill has sold to J. P. Russel two and a half acres of navel oranges, on East I street, Ontario, for a stated consideration of $2000. Thomas Hill has sold to Tuttle & Russel a seven-and-a-half-acre peach orchard, southeast of Ontario; consideration stated at $750. W. P. Smith sold a house and two lots, each 48x150 feet in size, on West C street, to W. Arden; consideration $2000. W. Arden has sold to H. Knox a house and lot, 48x150 feet, on West E street. Price named at $2000.

J. B. Moores reports the following sales: H. C. Oakley has sold two and a half acres of ten-year-old navel oranges on West J street, Ontario, to John Chaffee of Whittier. The consideration is stated at $7000. T. Gosse of Pomona has bought of Mrs. J. Garbutt two and a half acres of eight-year-old navel oranges, on West G street. The consideration is stated at $6000. J. B. Moores has sold to F. Ketchel a house and three lots, each 48x150 feet in size, on West A street, Ontario; consideration $5000.

J. C. Lynch has sold his property, consisting of seventeen and a half acres, planted to Eureka lemons, the balance being in navels, situated about six miles northeast of Ontaria in the Cucamonga district, to H. C. Higgens of Long Beach. The consideration is stated at $20,000. This sale was made through the agency of J. B. Moores.

James Young has sold to J. B. Moores ten acres of naval oranges, situated northeast of Ontario, for a stated consideration of $6550.

CHICAGOAN BUYS ON BROADWAY.

PROPERTY BETWEEN THIRD AND FOURTH TRANSFERRED.

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars for Forty Feet—Five Thousand Per Front Foot—Premises Occupied by Southern California Music Company—Other Sales Recalled.

The largest sale reported for several months was that made through the office of R. A. Rowan & Co. of a piece of property on Broadway between Third and Fourth streets. To be exact the premises now occupied by the Southern California Music Company at Nos. 332-34 South Broadway, lot 40x165 feet in size, and improved with a substantial brick building of four stories in height.

E. M. Eastman, a well-known manufacturer of Chicago, is the buyer. The price is $200,000, or $5000 a front foot, one of the highest prices yet paid for Broadway property. The seller's name is withheld for obvious reasons. Mr. Eastman purchased for investment. Before leaving for Chicago, Mr. Eastman was heard to remark, "In my opinion Los Angeles will boast a population of 1,000,000 within twenty years. I have great faith in the continued growth and prosperity of this sun-favored city, and I am showing my faith by this large investment."

The above deal recalls several others which have taken place on Broadway within the past few months. One between Fourth and Fifth streets, of the lot on which the Trustee Company is erecting a ten-story steel office building, was turned by R. A. Rowan & Co., the same agents which have engineered this last deal, for $235,000. This property was vacant at the time of the sale, and the price per front foot reached the large sum of $4122.85.

Another, and more recent transfer of Broadway realty, was that of the property at Nos. 612-14-16-18 South Broadway, lot 62½x155 feet, improved with a two or three-story brick building, which sold for the large sum of $260,000, or at $4000 a front foot. This deal was also made by R. A. Rowan & Co., in conjunction with W. B. Merwin & Co.

FRONTAGE ON WEST SEVENTH.

The Kaiser-Lippman Company reports the sale of the property at No. 1152 West Seventh street, consisting of a lot 65x150 feet, improved with a two-story, twelve-room residence, by Mrs. Ella White to John Lippman, for the reported consideration of $27,000.

HOLLYWOOD'S HANDSOMEST HOME.

It would cost at least $12,000 to duplicate this property today, besides the delay and annoyance of building. Therefore, if you intend purchasing would it not pay you to investigate this elegant 10-room modern residence? Grounds 165x160, just north of De Longpre's, in the very heart of Hollywood. Don't delay nor hesitate, as you may never equal this bargain again. Remember, Hollywood will very shortly be on two of the fastest broad-gauge trolley lines in the world; is now rapidly improving all its streets and boulevards in a first-class manner and soon will be connected with Los Angeles by solidly paved Sunset boulevard. Come, see the photos, and if interested, I will then show you the place. See photos and owner at ROOM 506, UNION TRUST BLDG., S.E. cor. Fourth and Spring sts. Home Tel. B6235. 19

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

Here you will see the best street work in all Los Angeles; almost completed and paid for by me; no assessments hereafter for street work.

SHADE TREES.

I have let the contract for shade trees to be placed every 25 feet on all streets in the tract and to be kept up at my expense and guaranteed to be healthy and growing.

CITY WATER.

Water is piped to each lot and all ready to tap when you want to build.

STREET CARS.

Over 400 cars daily pass directly through the tract. Long Beach, San Pedro, Whittier and Santa Ana interurban cars, as well as Watts local cars, only 20 minutes to center of business; 5c fare and transfers.

SOIL.

The soil is a nice sandy loam; no mud or wading at any time of the year; the very best for flowers and vegetables.

BOULEVARD.

Holmes avenue, 100 feet wide and the coming boulevard to Long Beach runs through the tract, and which will have handsome mission street entrances to compare with office now on the tract.

BUILDING RESTRICTIONS.

I do not allow shacks on my tract; any house built must cost not less than $1000; all an equal distance from the street; no saloons or anything objectionable to a first-class neighborhood; you are then sure of good and respectable neighbors.

TERMS.

I will sell these beautiful large lots on small payments or liberal discount for cash.

HOUSES.

I will give a liberal discount to those who will build their homes in the tract or I will build you the house and sell on liberal terms.

BE A MAN.

The old saying is, "A man is never a man until he gets married, has a family to love and a home for them so they will love him," so

"DO IT NOW."

Either buy yourself a lot, build your home or have me furnish both lot and house and sell to you on installments.

FOR SALE—

WESTMINSTER SQUARE—
Westminster Square is one of the most elegantly located subdivisions in the city. Situated at corner of Fourth and Western ave. above the fog and dirt of the city, surrounded by handsome homes and high-class residence tracts, and affording a magnificent view.
WESTMINSTER SQUARE—
The improvements are the very best possible. All streets are 75 ft. wide; trees and palms are planted in front of every lot; two elegant homes are being completed, and plans for others, among them a $10,000 residence are being drawn.
WESTMINSTER SQUARE—
The W. Sixth-st. car line runs directly through the tract and affords unsurpassed transportation facilities. The fact that one man bought six, another five, and another three lots, after searching for the best obtainable values, is conclusive proof of the extraordinary merit of this proposition.
WESTMINSTER SQUARE—
Lots are most reasonably priced, considering the excellent environment, the superior improvements, and the superb location. Priced from $1290 and up. Come down the first thing Monday morning—we have conveyances waiting to show you the property. We know you've never seen a more high-class, attractive residence tract at such low prices. Investigate early—and secure the choicest sites.

and see for yourself the BEST plat of ground inside the City Limits.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.
Here you will see one of the finest jobs of street work in all Los Angeles; almost completed and paid for by me; no assessments hereafter for street work.

SHADE TREES.
I have let the contract for shade trees to be planted every 25 feet on all streets in the tract and to be kept up at my expense and guaranteed to be healthy and growing.

WATER.
Water is piped to each lot and all ready to tap when you desire to build.

STREET CARS.
The Eagle Rock car line goes directly past the tract; only 20 minutes to center of business; 5c fare and transfers to all yellow cars.

SOIL.
The soil is fine and the very best for flowers and vegetables.

BOULEVARD.
Prospect Drive, a fine foothill boulevard, runs directly through the tract.

BUILDING RESTRICTIONS.
I do not allow shacks on my tract; any house built must cost not less than $1250; all an equal distance from the street; no saloons or anything objectionable to a first-class neighborhood; you are sure of good and respectable neighbors.

TERMS.
I will sell these beautiful lots on small payments or liberal discount for cash.

HOUSES.
I will give liberal discount to those who will build their homes in this tract or I will build you the house and sell on liberal terms.

BE A MAN.
The old saying is, "A man is never a man until he gets married, has a family to love and a home for them so they will love him," so

DO IT NOW.
Either buy yourself a lot, build your home or have me furnish both lot and house and sell to you on installments.

FOR SALE—A LAND SYNDICATE NOW FORMING.
A project that promises 300 per cent. profit. Every investor becomes part owner in 1000 acres of high class fruit lands, which this company buys at a low price, secured by a long time option on the lands before they advance, and will subdivide and sell out in small farms and orchards.
There is no safer investment for large and small capital than land, and here is an opportunity for a small investor to put his earnings to work and triple them.
Shares are offered now at $120 each, payable $10 down and $10 a month.

FOR SALE—ROOMING-HOUSES.
If you are the owner of an apartment-house or rooming-house and have been trying to sell it and have failed, it is only because you have not consulted a good agent. We do not handle small houses, but if you have a good house and will put a price on it that is fair, we will get you a customer. We are ordinary agents, but this is not ordinary talk. We mean what we say; try us and see.

FOR SALE—

FREE EXCURSION,
SACRAMENTO VALLEY.

HOMESEEKERS—Take advantage of this opportunity to see the beautiful and fertile Sacramento Valley, where the soil will produce everything grown in Southern California.

In the famous Gridley Colonies, the Sunset Colonies and the Briggs Colonies, I offer you the finest land in California at $50 PER ACRE AND UPWARDS.

Water for irrigation at the low rate of $2 per acre per year. An abundance of water at all times—one inch to 3½ acres. Perpetual water right. Canals now built and carrying water.

This is a chance of a lifetime to get the best land at low prices. We grow as fine oranges as Riverside or Redlands and we are six weeks earlier. For peaches, grapes, alfalfa and English walnuts, you can't beat this land anywhere. These are the big grain ranches of the Feather River that made their owners rich and are now being subdivided into small farms. Over 250 families located near Gridley in two years and all prospering.

This land is level—soil deep and free from alkali—a sedimentary loam of great fertility. We get 5 to 6 cuttings of alfalfa, 8 to 12 tons to the acre. Splendid location for dairymen. New creamery soon to be built at Gridley. We have two railroads, one a first-class electric railway, just completed and now running. We are not in a wilderness, but in a prosperous community, with good roads, schools, churches, electric power and everything needed to make an ideal home. A steady market and splendid transportation facilities. Buy this land now at less than one-third the price of land in Southern California, and you will see it treble in value in five years.

Special train leaves Los Angeles, Tuesday, May 21, 10 a.m., carrying sleepers and diner. See me for full particulars, free printed matter, etc.

FINE ORANGE ORCHARD

In one of the best orange grove sections on the coast, near San Dimas, near foothills, good elevation, beautiful view; no danger or damage from frost; good water right, without no expense.

122 ACRES
ABOUT 80 ACRES ORANGES.

Income last year $21,000; crop increasing rapidly each year; ten acres; the oldest orchard produced $7000 this year, balance of the orchard will increase in bearing as trees grow older; with place will go all tools for working ranch; also 2 pair mules, 2 pair horses, packing-house at R. R. depot, etc. This is a model California orchard home; no better climate in California; fine scenery, abundance mountain water, under pressure, near R. R., schools, etc.; orchards located on three corners; would be good for father and sons or friends who wish to have adjoining places.

Income this year $32,000, net profit about $18,000. We have personally known this orchard and its owner ever since the first 16 acres were planted 17 years ago, and can recommend the orchard as well as the owner.

As this property and surroundings are particularly first-class it will be a pleasure to personally show it to any prospective buyer.

Write or see us for further particulars; price $90,000; terms is desired.

EL MIRADOR ORANGE COVE, LINDSAY, TULARE COUNTY. THE HOME OF THE EARLY ORANGE.

THE VALENCIA HARVEST is now in progress, and over 100 carloads of this choice product are to be shipped from Lindsay from the present crop, thus completing the year in which more than 800 carloads have been shipped from Lindsay alone.

Valencias from this district brought fancy prices last season, netting the producers over $2 per box. The navel crop also brought top prices. One carload shipped by Mr. J. J. Cairns in April brought $900.70 net.

There is never a failure of crop in this district, no fruit pests to contend with, and oranges can be produced at one-half the expense of other sections of the State.

We are offering here the finest orange land in the State at one-fourth the price asked in other localities, ranging from $35 TO $100 PER ACRE.

Absolutely free from frost and on the easiest terms of payment. It will pay you to investigate this.

BIG LAND OPENING
SACRAMENTO VALLEY.

Rich irrigated lands, small fruit and alfalfa farms, $50 to $80 per acre. Terms one-sixth cash, balance 6 equal annual payments. Big government-aided canal, small cost for water. Steamboat and rail transportation, lowest freight rate to San Francisco and other points. Farmers are getting rich raising alfalfa and hogs. One settler produced and sold $5000 worth of hogs from 40 acres last season.

Call or write for illustrated folder on either of above tracts.

FOR SALE—
ALFALFA HOG RANCH

Consists of 30 acres of sandy loam soil, seeded to alfalfa, used and equipped as a practical hog ranch. There are three wells 325 feet deep, which are flowing and giving abundance of water. Improvements consist of large hay barn, foremans house, shop, large implement shed, two hog houses 96 feet long 24 pens each, equipped with cement floors with bath troughs, etc.; brooder-house, two pump houses and an 8-room modern residence with baths, etc. The place is stocked and making money now, and the following stock goes with it: 350 hogs, 4 sound young mules, 2 cows, mowing machine, hay rake, tedder, three wagons, harness and full set of tools, etc. Situated only a half mile from the railroad station, in a valley four miles from Redlands, ground is all level and piped with water pipes. There is a demand for all the pork you can produce in this place, right in Redlands, and at 1 to 1½c per pound, above market quotations. The place is in shape to pay $4000 a year net, now, and this should be increased to $6000 within the next 12 months; price $35,000; half cash, and the balance can remain on the property at 6 per cent. Will divide commission equally with regular agents making sale. Have just secured an option on this at the above price, and can deliver it with all improvements and stock with a perfect title.

ALHAMBRA.

FOR SALE—
ALHAMBRA.
The most desirable spot west of Chicago. If you don't have anything else to do tomorrow, come out and take a look and prove it. The running time of the Pacific Electric, will be reduced by the 1st of June to less than 25 minutes, between 6th and Main and Alhambra. Still they don't have to run it 60 miles an hour for it is only 7 miles from Los Angeles.

Gas, electric lights, telephones, churches, schools and the best of a location, even superior to Pasadena, being on the medium altitude, about 600 feet above sea level, with a gentle sea breeze 365 days in the year. Streets being improved with fine cement walks and roadways. Trees planted and many of the avenues have already large, fine shade trees.

We simply invite you to compare the advantages and prices with other suburban towns, and even outside districts of Los Angeles.

We will mention a few of our special bargains:

150x150 within 1½ blocks of the Monrovia car line, with 3 elegant live oaks, which are so much sought for. We can sell this for a short time for $2250; the very spot for gentleman's homes.

150x150 with two live oaks, within 150 feet from the Monrovia car line; street work all done; east front, and best of neighborhoods that can be found; price $3000.

100x200 facing 3 streets, street work all around; price $4000; only one block from Monrovia car line.

Lots on N. Garfield ave., a 70-foot boulevard, finest improvements, one block from the Monrovia car, $800 and up; one or more lots.

Main st. frontage, and all cement work in, covered with fine trees, etc.; price $750 and up; these are the cheapest lots on Main st., in Alhambra, on easy terms; these lots are 50x150 each.

The Washing Irving tract, is the closest to the car; situated in the midst of a fine neighborhood; good improvements; reasonable building restrictions; lots $575 up.

We still have a few lots left in the C. & M. tract, but the majority have been sold, and a number of houses have already been put up; these lots have street work in; finest mountain view and reasonable price, $475 and up.

We have a number of fine ¼-acre lots, with or without trees, street work in, close to center of town, $500 and up.

2 1-4-acre lots with water piped in each street, fine soil, suitable for strawberries, oranges, peaches; now covered with grapes that will bring at least $100 per each lot this year, work pretty near all done; the crop will be reserved after the next 30 days; prices are only $1200 per lot.

5-acre orange grove, N.E. San Gabriel, under the best water system in the county, grove is in a fine condition, and will bring good interest on the money; price only $3750.

5½ acres within two blocks of Masonic Home, right on the extension of the San Gabriel car line; price $5500.

8½ acres located right in the center of Alhambra, majority of the trees are Valencias, and will yield a large crop this year; can be bought reasonable.

7 acres or more on the Monrovia line, close to Weust tract, finest oranges and lemons you ever saw in your life; this can be divided up into lots and they will sell for $1000 each, or can be used for a home and income; price $1200 per acre.

HOUSES.

5-room house, lot 50x150 feet, in the best part of Alhambra, east front, street work done, price only $1100.

New 5-room cottage, modern in every respect, close to High School, car line, etc.; price $2500, only $500 cash and balance monthly.

6-room very cosy bungalow, never been occupied, on Garfield ave., has gas, electricity, sewer connection, hardwood floors, beamed ceilings; lot 50x150; price $2800.

8 rooms, finely finished, new house on the corner 102x150; owner will take smaller house for $3000 equity.

We have a number of other bargains in all parts of San Gabriel Valley, acreage, lots or houses; come and get free tickets and go out and see for yourself.

FOR SALE— Lemon and Orange Groves.

FOR SALE—
"AT COVINA."
Look over the Sunday Times—a long list of Orange Groves for sale.
You are often left in doubt as to their exact locality.
But if a Covina Orange Orchard is in the list you are not left to guess. The advertiser tells you it is "AT COVINA."
"AT COVINA."
Signifies that this particular orange orchard grows upon the best soil, in the finest climate, under the best water system in California.
"AT COVINA."
As a further description indicates that the orange orchard is a good investment, paying from 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. on the price, and, further, that it is a good plan to build a home, with all the conveniences and luxuries, and without the confusion and bustle of city life, that is surrounded by fine streets and avenues, elegant homes occupied by intelligent and refined people.
"AT COVINA."
Further means a little city of churches, and schools, and no saloons. It means convenience to four lines of railroad and one electric line, soon to be in operation, and hard by the Great Baldwin Ranch, which will in a short time be the store house of Southern California.
"AT COVINA."
Some of the orchards are for sale and some are above price. We have an attractive list for sale. One member of our firm has been for years the Assessor in this district and knows the value of the orange groves. We list nothing without his advice as to value.

FOR EXCHANGE—

J. N. WILLIAMS & CO.,
303 I. W. Hellman Bldg.

327—24 acres 5 miles south of the city, one-half mile from railroad station. This is one of the finest places in Southern California, having had the very best of care and cultivation for the past 10 years. 14 acres in 10-year-old apple trees, loaded down with fruit; 2 acres in navels; 2 acres in Valencias; 2 acres in plums, interset with alfalfa. Three times as much water as you need. Fine 7-room modern residence, and many outbuildings, and improvements too numerous to mention; income $4000; cash price $28,000, clear. Will consider well-located Los Angeles rental property up to $12,000, balance cash, or back on place at 6 per cent. net.

644—163 acres in the Imperial Valley (California's hog and cattle section,) with plenty of water; 40 acres in an excellent stand of alfalfa; 40 acres in barley ready to harvest. 5-room new home built of brick and frame. The place is one of the finest in the section. The owner has developed it, and lives on it, and could not be gotten today, if it were not for business matters calling him elsewhere. Cash price $9600; mortgage $2400 at 6 per cent. till 1910. Want income Los Angeles or Long Beach.

966—160 acres in the Lindsay and Porterville neighborhood. Land is locally elevated affording an ideal location for Valencia oranges and citrus fruits; 10 acres now in Washington navels, in fine condition, four years old; 20 shares of water stock. Pumping plant complete that cost $3000, and a riparian right to the river, which runs across one corner of the place; this property is a bargain at the price, if there were no improvements on it; just think of the acreage, the free water and the orchard that is just coming into full bearing. Price $16,000; mortgage $3600; want Los Angeles residence or business property for equity.

681—30 acres one mile from Rialto, 16 acres in lemons and oranges in full bearing; 15 shares of water stock; large residence of 9 rooms, stable, etc. We have this property also at a bargain. Cash price $23,000 clear. Want Los Angeles income clear.

630—40 acres in alfalfa and grain, 2 miles from Highlands; plenty of free water from private plant; place has the finest improvements of any in the locality. Beautiful 8-room modern home, large barns, hog houses, etc.; cash price $10,000, clear. Will take good property in or near Los Angeles up to $12,000. Balance back on place or cash.

253—10 acres in lemons and oranges, ten years old, 2 miles from Highlands; good 8-room house and other buildings; price $9000; mortgage $2800; long time, 6 per cent.; want Los Angeles or Long Beach.

640—Want lot in southwest Los Angeles for $2250 equity in Union Home Telephone Co.'s bonds.

618—20 acres, 1½ miles north of Rialto; beautifully located. 15 acres in lemons, 5 acres in Mediterranean sweets. 31 shares of water stock worth on the market $125 per share. Income, last year $4000. This is one of the show places of Rialto, and a money maker. Lowest selling price $16,000; prefers to sell, but might consider well-located Los Angeles, if attractive and submitted at a bottom price.

611—4½ acres in 17-year-old lemons in Colton, with plenty of cheap water; income $825 a year; cash price $3200 clear. Want well-located property in southwest Los Angeles.

609—20 acres in lemons, walnuts, apricots and oranges, four miles from Santa Ana. Good 6-room house and several outbuildings. Price $9000. Want small chicken ranch near Los Angeles, taken as part payment.

J. N. WILLIAMS & CO.,

WASHINGTON'S GAY SEASON.

Foreigners of Note There by the Score Now.

Distinguished Guests Kept Busy by Society.

News and Gossip of Events at the Nation's Capital.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 12.—In no other American city could there be such a succession of social events as have marked the days here since my last letter. And, indeed, Washington itself is seldom more gay—even in mid-winter. It is as though the nations of the world had combined to give us a huge surprise party, depending on the uniforms and medals of their bravest and best for the decoration and chief attraction.

While so many foreigners were in the city, President and Mrs. Roosevelt are practically keeping open house, first one distinguished party and then another being invited to surround the White House mahogany. The Secretaries of State and of War, Messrs. Root and Taft, and their respective wives, share with their leaders the responsibility of the official entertaining, while the Postmaster-General and Mrs. Von Meyer, who so long represented this country at other capitals, have much to do welcoming personal friends among the nation's guests.

While the perfect picture of "peace among the nations" could only be seen by the official and socially elect, the people have had many opportunities to see the visitors, who, after traveling across land and sea to be here at this time, were kept in full-dress regalia four-fifths of their stay, in order that they might be prepared for the many engagements accepted in their name. Indeed, so constantly were they kept going from one hospitable home to another, and then sandwiching a bit of sight-seeing in between that and the next social gathering place, that the main avenues in the residence section resembled a so-called bazaar of nations.

H. R. H. the Duke de Abruzzi, who fulfilled the prophecy of last week and came to the city as the guest of the Italian Ambassador, was permitted to dine only once at the embassy, notwithstanding his daily programme included at least five meals, several afternoon teas and enough sight-seeing to insure his keeping in perpetual motion from early morning until midnight. Among his hosts were the President, Secretary and Mrs. Root, Secretary and Mrs. Taft, Postmaster-General and Mrs. Von Meyer, whom he knew in Italy, and Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, who opened their new home on Massachusetts avenue for a grand ball in his honor. He must have felt particularly at home in the latter place, since it is built after the style of the Italian Rennaissance, and adorned with much furniture and bric-a-brac brought by the owners from the South of Europe.

The list of distinguished visitors for the week was by no means restricted to guests from over the seas, each State contributing its quota of members attending the recent congresses of the American Physicians and Surgeons, the National Society for the Study and Prevention of Consumption, the National Association of United States Pension Examining Surgeons, and the American Therapeutic Society. Before these doctors of the body were well out of the city, healers of the soul according to the Baptist persuasion, came for the general convention of the Northern Baptist Association. The latter gentlemen were well entertained, and then did some sight seeing on their own account before leaving for Jamestown where they will meet the Association of Southern Baptists for a united conference. The leading hotel men of the United States accompanied, in the majority of cases, by their wives have also been here during the week adding to the gaiety of the Capital.

Though much occupied with the proper entertainment of its out-of-town guests, Washington society did not forget to send congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. J. Blafdell, whose recent marriage in New York, recalled the régime of a former very popular diplomat—father of the present-day bride. As Miss Rose Antoinette Preston, Mrs. Blafdell made her debut here when her father was dean of the diplomatic corps. Mr. Preston's transfer to another post and his death were soon followed by the loss of the family fortune, which caused the daughters to become bread winners. In due course they returned to Washington and were paid handsomely to entertain in the home of others, some of the very people it had been their pleasure to delight when they came as guests of their parents in the days of yore. As fancy dancers, they were a great success, and may be said to have danced their way into favor with Lady Pauncefote, whose husband, the British Ambassador, succeeded their father as dean of the foreign circle, as their sponsor.

Visitors may come and visitors may go, but the poor are always with us—hence the extraordinary enthusiasm which marked preparation for and resulted in the success of the lawn fete at "Friendship" Friday and Saturday. Everybody worked with a will, except the weather man, who being all-important where al fresco entertainments are concerned, caused a postponement of the affair at the last moment from May 10 to 11, and strange to say, public interest was kept keen by the management. A feature of the first day's general entertainment was the cavalry drill given by the United States troops stationed at Fort Myer. A fireman's drill including a battle royal with a temporary building burning, marked the second day. While these drills were being given each day, beautiful young maids and matrons went through the crowd "barking" for the twenty-five or more charities represented by special booths on the grounds.

Everybody in society who could do a stunt, was persuaded to go on the vaudeville stage "just for today." A continuous and highly paying performance was the result. It also developed a knowledge of considerable latent, or rather unknown talent among the members of the diplomatic corps. Madame de Blanpre, wife of the Naval Attaché to the French Embassy for instance, possesses a remarkably well-cultivated voice, which she used both days in gracious manner, for the pleasure of those within reach of its sound and the ultimate benefit of the less fortunate who will be ministered unto by means of the funds collected that day.

Herr Obstetter, the noted German opera singer and composer, who is here for a short stay, also sang several times for "sweet charity's sake." His courtesy was especially appreciated by the Washington public, as he had so far positively declined all requests to sing in concert while enjoying his present vacation, which is undertaken by special permission of the German Emperor.

JUST FOR THE BOYS AND GIRLS.

SECOND PUBLIC PLAYGROUND IS FORMALLY OPENED.

Useless Swamp Filled in and Converted Into a Place of Joy for the City's Youngsters—Mayor Promises Many Improvements If Money Can Be Secured.

Los Angeles opened another life-saving station yesterday afternoon. This station is for saving future citizens, and its name in gilt letters on a swinging sign over the entrance is; "Playground No. 2."

This playground consists of five acres of ground in a wedge-shaped tract on the edge of Echo Park. A few years ago it was a hole in the ground, a marshy swamp that has been filled in twelve feet, and thereby reclaimed. Now it will be used to keep boys and girls from needing to be reclaimed. It has been equipped for play purposes by the city at a moderate cost.

The ground was a gift from the Park Commission of Los Angeles to the Playground Commission, and Rev. Baker P. Lee, on behalf of the Playground Commission thanked the donors most heartily yesterday afternoon for making possible the second great joy-place for the young within the city limits. Not only has the Park Commission given the ground but it is to put in thirty feet of parking, a green, velvety sward, to make a border for the dusty expanse of the playground. According to the Mayor, who made a short talk at the opening, this is to be done immediately. On the raised or elevated portion of the playground, which curves somewhat like an amphitheater about the lower portion, it is planned to have cement seats in the shadow of the fringe of eucalyptus trees on the plateau. In speaking of his scheme, the Mayor said it was new to him, but if Mrs. Willoughby Rodman said they were going to have it, he would try to get it. "Mrs. Rodman is a diplomat," said the Mayor, "and a lady diplomat is the best of all, and if it is possible to put enough money in that playground budget to pay for these seats, it will have to be done."

A great crowd of boys and girls, fathers and mothers and babies, with one big policeman, who was there to look on and enjoy himself, [illegible] celebrate the opening of th[illegible] to childhood yesterday. Though every swing was [illegible] to the blue with some [illegible] it, and though the seesaws [illegible] and the May poles were [illegible] large audience of boys [illegible] listened to the talk that Rev. Baker P. Lee made to them. The [illegible] was standing on a bench [illegible] feet were seated several [illegible] small boys and one little [illegible] serious and attentive. Lee. "I do not know [illegible] will do it unless I fall on [illegible]" continued, while the children's [illegible] brightened, "and that would [illegible] pretty plenty. You see I cannot [illegible] speeches like he does. He [illegible] living 'chewing the rag,' and I [illegible] for my living," and then the [illegible] knew that the jolly Mayor was joking.

Mrs. Willoughby Rodman and [illegible] Stoddart, the two women who [illegible] the Violet-street playground [illegible] named No. 1 because they [illegible] circling the city with playgrounds, were present and saw the [illegible] of their second dream for the [illegible] of Los Angeles.

After the speaking, the [illegible] gym team of the State of California under the leadership of Mr. [illegible] gave exhibitions in mat work and [illegible] amid building. The work was [illegible] derful display of muscular [illegible] development, and the pyramids [illegible] the acme of poise. A basketball [illegible] between the girls of the [illegible] street school and the team from Fremont-avenue school [illegible] gym work, the Fremont-avenue [illegible] winning with a score of 16 to [illegible] dents from the University of Southern California gave an exhibition [illegible] tennis which was greatly enjoyed [illegible] the spectators.

But all the entertainment was [illegible] confined to the games. The [illegible] swings under the trees each [illegible] tiny morsel of humanity, fastened with the broad leather [illegible] swung by an elder brother or [illegible] The apparatus is all of the most substantial order, piping being the [illegible] for many of the pieces. VICE-PRESIDENT WANTED

PROPOSITION FOR SOUND BUSINESS MEN

The vice-president of an old-established, prosperous corporation, having decided to retire after seventeen years' active service, offers his interest for sale. This block of stock is NOW paying the owner dividends better than 12½ per cent. net per annum, based on present value of $300 per share and capable of much larger returns in the near future. This stock is offered in blocks of $3000 and up. The company has hitherto been a close corporation, and the sale of $25,000 worth of these shares carries with it the vice-presidency and a good salary.

The corporation owns its own ground, with fully equipped modern plant, in the very heart of the growing section of this city of Los Angeles, free and clear of all incumbrances. All the assets are in plain sight and the books are open to inspection by any bona fide applicant. Bradstreet and bank references. The closer you examine this proposition, the more it will appeal to you.

CLARK COLONY

Is in Salinas Valley, Monterey County, on the Coast Line of railroad. Located at the foot of beautiful Santa Lucia Coast Range, with most equable climate and best in State for asthmatics and throat trouble.

Rich sediment soil, irrigated by a big mountain river of purest water which is entirely owned by the land.

Has a town, with stores, postoffice and bank, town hall, etc.

With cheapest irrigation water, grows best alfalfa in the State.

DID YOU KNOW

That this valley is the "red ribbon" apple district of the coast where such land, in full bearing, passes at $1000 to $1200 per acre?

DID YOU KNOW

That this valley is the home of the Salinas Burbank potato, famous for both its quality and yield, and which, on these lands in this climate, you can plant with success up to and including month of August?

DID YOU KNOW

That this land is already proven for almonds and English walnuts and that onion growing is a phenomenal success?

Other great things are now in evidence in this famous valley, some of which are, a Gould System Railroad; electric roads; opening up of vast deposits of high grade coal; opening of quarries of finest building stone; establishment of new creameries; enlarging facilities of what is already the largest beet-sugar factory in the world.

Prices on a few choice tracts near town and including water are—

2½ acres at $50 per acre.
10 acres at $60 per acre.
40 acres at $60 per acre.
60 acres at $70 per acre.
100 acres, dry land at $30 per acre. Water lift only 18 feet.

Look at all the $100 to $300 land that is offered you and Clark Colony will surpass it. Go up with our excursion party on Tuesday afternoon at 3:50. Round trip $14.75.

Ruef, "the Boss," Mayor Schmitz, "the Fiddler," and their "Henchmen," have been caught in the deadly and poisonous coils of "graft," having been lured on to their political, moral and social downfall by their lust for dishonest gold. How sad! Had they known the "Wizard," the best trader in the United States, the man who knows how to trade, who trades to live, who lives to trade, methinks they would have honest gold, and yet have retained their positions, politically, socially, morally—and their liberty. Ye Gods! What a sad commentary on the intelligence of man. But what's the use? Read the "Wizard's" Bulletin which follows. It is worth your while. Then let him trade for you. Wil you do it?

STOCKS AND BONDS— And Mortgages.

COEUR D'ALENE MINING & DEVELOPMENT CO.

A. J. RICHARDSON.

We handle all Coeur d'Alene stocks. It is not necessary to go into details regarding the various stocks of this district. If you are already interested or wish to become interested, we are in a position to give you any information which you might desire and will be pleased to have you call upon us.

The Whipple Mountain Gold and Copper Company, which property is located in San Bernardino county, Cal., has let a contract for a 100-foot double compartment shaft on its property and work is now being pushed with all possible effort.

A limited block of the Whipple Mountain stock is being offered at 25c per share. When this is subscribed no more stock will be sold until the present contract is finished, when we expect this property will be a demonstrated mine and the stock worth par—$1.

This past week we have had fifty pounds of the crude ore reduced to copper bar and from this amount received a copper brick weighing over ten pounds. This is sufficient proof to any one that the Whipple Mountain Gold and Copper Company has certainly a wonderful property, with an unusual surface showing. Another great copper district is being opened up in the Whipple Mountains, and mining men who have visited the district pronounce the showing far superior to a number of the better-known localities.

Snowstorm Extension, the adjoining property, to the famous Snowstorm of the Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, has completed the second contract of 200 feet and the tunnel is now in 400 feet. A letter from the secretary states another contract of 100 feet has been let. The rock is very hard and the general characteristics are the same as the original Snowstorm. A short time ago the secretary had a talk with Manager Wilbur Creenough of the Snowstorm Company, and was assured that developments in that property proved an ore body in the Extension. We expect to find this ore body in the next fifty feet, in which event the stock will certainly reach par. All those who were fortunate enough to buy Snowstorm Extension at 15 and 25 cents will in the near future have the opportunity to congratulate themselves, as did the lucky purchasers of Snowstorm.

Great activity is looked for, and, in fact, has already commenced for this season, in the Coeur d'Alene stocks.

CLEVER FIST BEATS CHAIR.

Doctor Treating Molokane Has to Fight.

City's Health Officials Have Their Troubles.

Strange Things Occur in Local Russia.

Down by the river bed, bordering it on both sides from First street to Aliso street, and from Alameda street to the bluff at the western edge of Boyle Heights, is one of America's strangest foreign colonies—a colony where disciples of Tolstoi ignore American laws save when they need the law's help. The Molokane—5000 of them—live here and multiply, mostly in wonderful contrariety to health regulations.

Here Health Department officials and American physicians find themselves harassed by fearful ignorance of sanitary customs and by an ignorance of medical requirements which is well-nigh uncanny. Here doctors have fled, hypodermic syringes in hand, from fathers, chair brandishing; or, standing their ground, have fought grim battles in behalf of the health of the community. Children have died in this district because parents spread insect powders on their bread and butter, or fond relatives dissolved antiseptic tablets in water to make the fluid more refreshing. Men and women have wed, calmly ignoring the marriage licenses, and children have been born without the scratch of a pen being laid to report blanks. This colony is, indeed, the thorn in the sides of those who get their salaries from the city treasury for caring for the city's people.

PEOPLE ONLY PICTURESQUE.

It is a picturesque place—a place which is not of America. But it is picturesque only so far as people go. In itself it is a squalid region, a huddle of flat houses and tenements, of squat cottages and dilapidated huts. Its streets are dusty and the afternoon sun blazes unkindly into front windows, warming rooms already too warm from many babies, and fetid from drying clothing.

The picturesqueness comes to you when you happen on a group of huge, hairy men, booted in cowhide, wearing leather-visored caps and shirts which flap apronlike in the wind. These are tall, broad-shouldered sons of the soil, with long, full beards and heavy, ox-eyed faces. Every line in their figures suggests massive physical strength. And in their features every line speaks of calmness almost amounting to bovine indifference. Their women pass by them or work on porches and inside doorways—women on whose heads are white or tinted kirtles. Their dresses are of yellow and red and green. Their feet are large. They are heavy-breasted, broad-hipped and wide-shouldered. From generations back they and their mothers toiled in the fields, stopping their work only as they bore children. Such are the Molokane.

They come from that part of Russia near Poland. They were always peasants. They came to belong to one of the many strange sects which sprang up in Russia—offshoots from the Greek Catholic Church. It is an odd sect—a church of religious spasms and old-time revivalism, with shoutings and screamings and hysterical frenzies. And yet the priests intone everything, even to the marriage ceremony.

REAL HENRY GEORGEISTS.

This church is the foundation of their governmental ideas—a strange assortment of socialistic ideals. They are the simon-pure Henry Georgeists when it comes to political economy. They grew in Russia to want no government save that of the church. The moral law was to be the only set of statutes which they observed. Too much Russian law was, perhaps, one reason for this way of looking at things. To sum it up in a few words, this is what they came to hold to: Each man should own his own cabbage patch, and on it raise as nearly as possible all that he and his family needed. On this plot of ground each should pay to the church a sort of tithe.

Russia did not like this. She used a gentleness truly Russian in striving to stop it. When Cossacks had harassed them and burned their houses, the Molokanes began to tire of their mother country. They were never afflicted with too-great patriotism. It did not coincide with their ideas of right and wrong.

Then came the Russo-Japanese War. The Molokane in their far-away fields thought little of the struggle until the mother country began to draft soldiers. Then this people began to flee to America. Here laws would not harass them—at least, so had they been told. They packed up their samovars and their babies and took steerage passage to Castle Garden—thence took emigrant cars to Los Angeles. It began three years ago. Today there are 5000 of the people in this city.

A SLUM SANDWICH.

They are sandwiched into the slum district. On one side of them are Mexicans; on another are Armenians. The big, brown-eyed, olive-skinned maidens of this race come and go on the borders of the Molokane district and occasionally mingle with the white-haired, awkward-limbed girls. Here and there—everywhere—among the Russian homes are Japanese houses, and slant-eyed, brown-skinned orientals of the race which their mother country fought, run to and fro at their work among this indifferent people.

They had come here to avoid laws. They had come to form colonies on a socialistic basis, where statutes would not bother them.

"And," said one, "we find here more law than we ever knew."

FORTY-TWO IN HOUSE.

They do—along the lines of health. And they don't like it. In Russia they could live as they pleased. In Los Angeles, health officials have a habit of weeding out overcrowded tenements and using gentle force to minister to the wants of sick children. At No. 310 Amelia street two of these health officers found one ten-room house with forty-two people living within its walls. The Molokane can't see why anyone should want to interfere with such domestic arrangements, and often make obstinate protest.

Similarly they treat the question of medical attendance. They will go to American physicians when children are sick because they must pay their Russian doctor. And it is in accordance with their beliefs that the government should help them when they are in trouble.

CHAIR SWINGS OVER DOCTOR.

One physician found a child in a crowded room suffering from diphtheria. He administered anti-toxin—rather he started to do this. He got the needle into the child's skin. It hurt. She flinched and screamed. Her father—a large man with a beard reaching half way to his waist, and an arm like the leg of an ox—had been standing by, watching, surlily suspicious. He leaped forward when the cry came. The doctor heard a grunt and looking up saw a chair swinging in the huge hairy paws above his head. He dodged and stepped back. Then he stood his ground. For he is a good boxer. For five minutes there was a very pretty fight—science against brute strength. Science triumphed with a clean uppercut to the jaw. While the females of the family were bringing the hairy father to his senses the physician completed the injection. He departed smiling, for he had been in the colony before, and was accustomed to such things.

Then there was the case of the doctor who had been summoned to the bedside of a dying child. He told the parents the little one was about to pass away. He administered an injection hypodermically to stimulate his patient. He left the house. Soon after he was called back. The baby had died. The father met him, armed with a long, keen knife. The doctor fled for his life. The chase went over blocks, and finally a policeman rescued the hapless physician.

A County Hospital physician once left antiseptic tablets for a sick child. The parents gave them internally, and there was a little procession of sad-eyed mourners filing from the house behind a pitifully-cheap coffin next day.

ANNOYING MARRIAGES.

Most annoying because of their frequency are the Molokane marriages. They won't get licenses. The civil marriage is not a part of their creed. A boy and a girl—weddings come in youth with these people—make up their minds to unite. They call the priest. He intones the service in the midst of a crowd in the house of one. Then comes a feast. Every one is solemn. At the end a burst of religious frenzy leaves half the guests hysterical. The men kiss one another at parting. So do the women. For there is no crosskissing at all with these people.

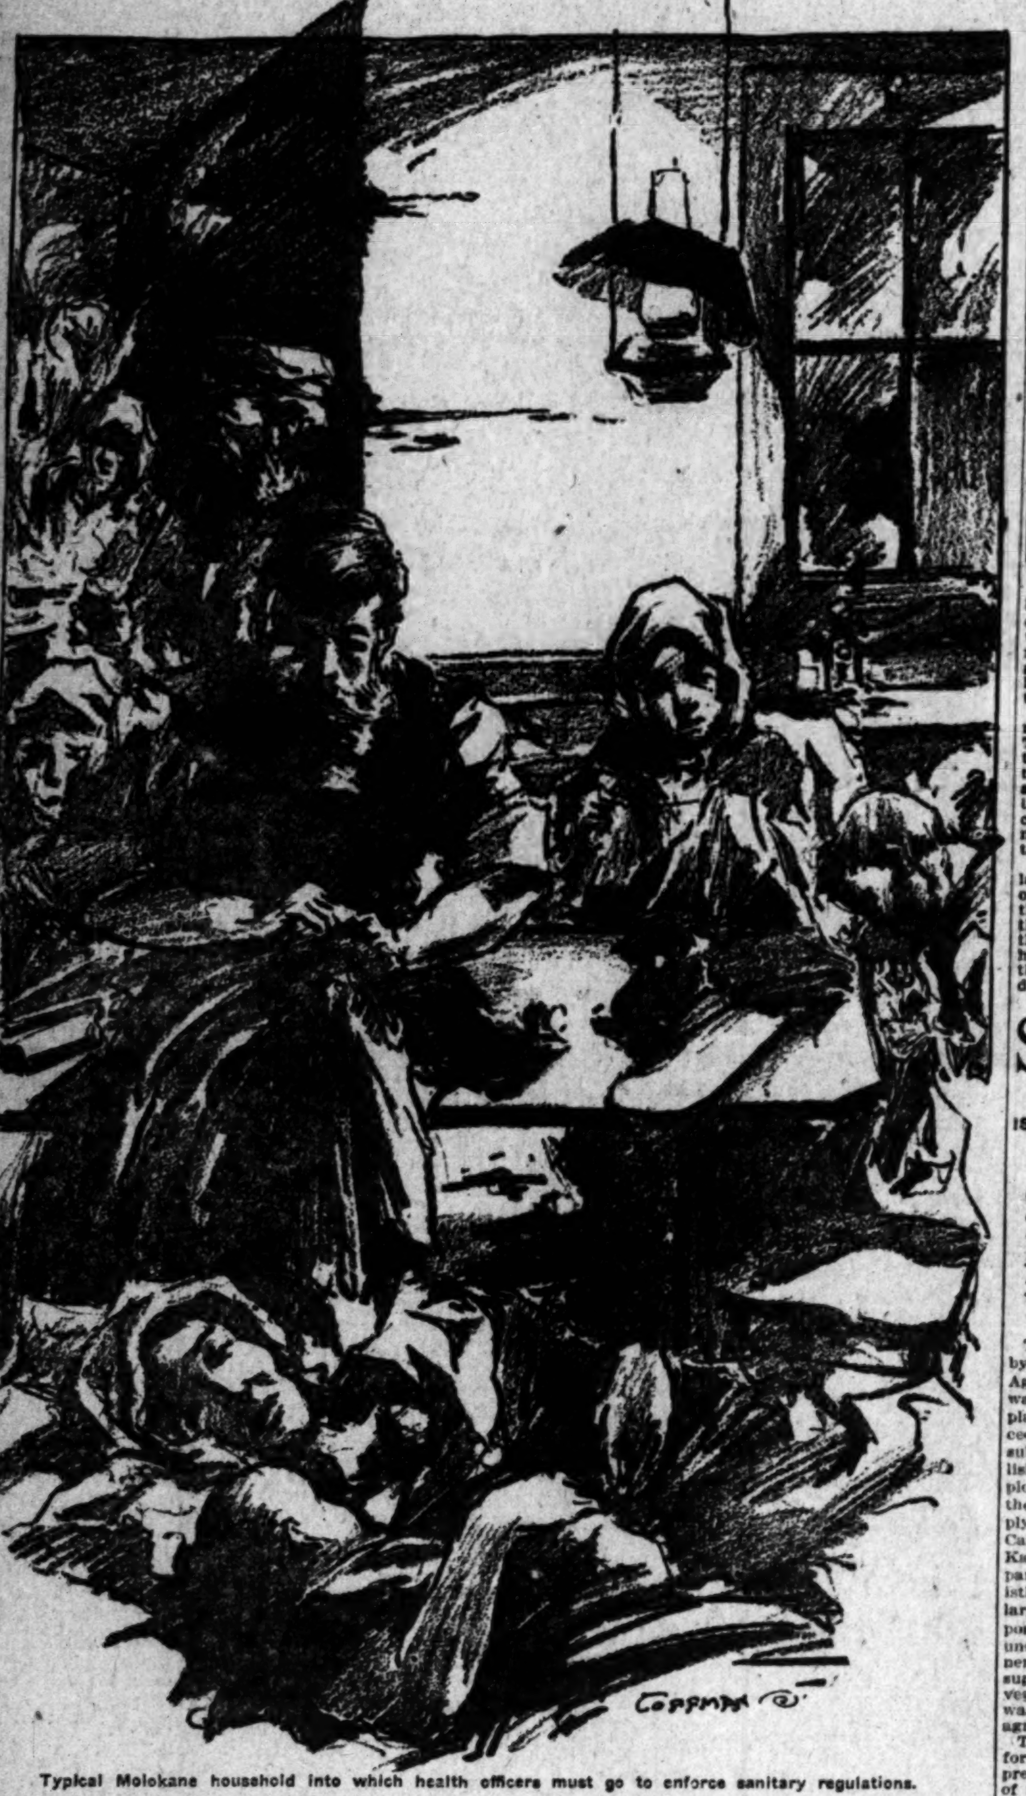
As a rule a Russian midwife officiates at a birth. And then no report is made to the health office. With death the case is very apt to be similar.

SIMPLE AND HARMLESS.

With all these things they are a simple, harmless people. The men work like slaves on the steam railroads or electric lines. The women hoe garden, wash, do housework or sew. They make drawn work and even the little girls are busy at this all day long, unless they be tending too many babies to allow them to do it.

They are for the most part vegetarians. They enjoy rugged health. Their samovars are the household gods to which they have clung through thick and thin. These big brass affairs adorn all their homes. In them is made the Russian tea. It is brewed from cakes of cheap black tea mixed with molasses. It is drawn luke warm and tastes like physic.

They save their money and obey the laws so far as real trouble goes. When one does harm another the priest settles the affair. And so the people of this colony go on, increasing, minding their own business, a problem to the health officials, who in turn are to them a never-ceasing source of wonder.



Typical Molokane household into which health officers must go to enforce sanitary regulations.

SURE WATER PURIFIER.

ISTHMIAN RESERVOIRS TREATED WITH COPPER SULPHATE.

Great Tanks Entirely Cleared of the Decaying Vegetation Leaving the Water Supply Without Any Objectionable Qualities—Also Operates Against Mosquitoes by Destroying Their Food.

The success of the method devised by the experts of the Department of Agriculture for the treatment of stored waters to prevent the development of plant life in them, by the use of exceedingly minute quantities of copper sulphate, has been more firmly established than ever by the recent employment of that method of purifying the waters of the reservoirs that supply the drinking water for the Panama Canal zone, says the New York Tribune. Karl F. Kellerman, expert of that department, has made the trip to the isthmus, where he treated the two large reservoirs now in use, and he reports that this, the biggest of all such undertakings up to date, has been eminently successful, and that the water supply has been entirely cleared of the vegetation which some months ago was discoloring it and giving it a disagreeable taste and odor.

The recipe of the government experts for the treatment of reservoirs to prevent the growth of the algae and of microscopic plant life has been recommended for water systems of various cities and to the public in general wherever water was stored for any length of time and becomes polluted. It has been used in many places in the United States in the last year or two with success. At no place, however, had it ever been undertaken to purify such quantities of water in a tropical climate where vegetation flourishes so luxuriantly as in the canal zone. The method consists of introducing into the reservoir to be treated one part of copper sulphate or bluestone to 5,000,000 parts of water. This is the proportion used at Panama, but is variable according to conditions, sometimes running as high as one part sulphate to one million of water, or as low as one to twenty millions.

THE RESERVOIRS.

In the Panama reservoirs, which have been built by the government along the line of the canal construction, there had developed two varieties of growth in the water that threatened its acceptability as drinking water. These were the algae, which is the general family to which belongs all that small vegetable growth which goes to make up the green scum on the surface, and the greenish color that may go all through the water. Both were plentiful in the new isthmian reservoirs and multiplying rapidly.

The water system of the Americans has been extended throughout the city of Panama and through Colon. The natives have come to use the hydrants generally because of convenience rather than for purposes of health, and sanitary conditions were greatly improved. When the vegetable matter appeared in the water it was plainly perceptible not only to the eye, but giving off an odor and having a taste of matter in decay. This water, according to Mr. Kellerman, is in reality not intrinsically unhealthy, but the person drinking it is so convinced that it will make him ill that in many instances this belief in itself brings about the dreaded result. At any rate the appearance of the water last year became such that not only the natives but many laborers turned from it and went back to the water in the pools and seepage about the towns, which, while appearing less objectionable, really contained disease germs that were dangerous.

Such were the conditions reported by the government expert when he reached the canal zone. He immediately began a series of experiments in order to test the waters, with the idea of determining the least possible quantity of copper sulphate that might be used under the given conditions to produce the desired results. While the sulphate is poisonous to animal life and to human beings when present in large quantities, it has been demonstrated that if those quantities were a thousand times greater than those used under the Department of Agriculture recipes no evil effect could be detected. Nevertheless the smallest quantities compatible with good results are invariably used.

METHOD OF USING.

In the Mount Hope reservoir, which supplies the city of Colon and a considerable part of the canal zone, there was placed in all 800 pounds of copper sulphate. The system of injecting the material is to tie it in a bag hung over the stern of a boat and row about in the most affected places. The sulphate dissolves, and being somewhat heavier than the water has a tendency to settle to the bottom. Ultimately it permeates the whole reservoir and the small plant life is killed. Following the same system, according to Mr. Kellerman's report, 730 pounds of copper sulphate were placed in the Rio Grande reservoir, which supplies the city of Panama. The quantity figures only .0000027 ounces to the gallon, which is so infinitesimal as to have absolutely no effect on human beings.

"When I left the isthmus," said Mr. Kellerman, "the Rio Grande reservoir, which had been treated two weeks before, had entirely cleared up, and the water was without a trace of any foreign matter. The Mount Hope reservoir had been treated four days previously and was clearing rapidly. The work was in every way satisfactory, and the water supply on the isthmus is today without any objectionable qualities, and is as clear and sparkling as any water found anywhere."

The treatment operates indirectly against mosquitoes that carry yellow fever and kindred diseases, as it destroys the vegetation upon which they feed and the protection in which they breed. The healthfulness of the water or its sanitary character is unusually good, as any one may see who studies the reports of Col. W. E. Gorgas, sanitary officer of the zone. On the whole isthmus there is no typhoid, cholera or dystentery, which are the diseases that are ordinarily water borne.

NOTICE OF SALE

Whereas Herman F. King and John C. Stahl, doing a general clothing and haberdashing business in the sale of men's, youth's and boys' suits, coats, trousers, shoes, shirts, underwear, hosiery, neckwear, and all other lines devoted to male wearing apparel, at wholesale under the firm name of The King-Stahl Co., and at retail as the "Trans-Continental Clothiers," with headquarters at San Francisco, having declared their business insolvent, the committee of creditors have appointed William C. Byron as trustee with the power to turn the entire stock and holdings of the above firm into cash. On account of the present unsettled conditions in San Francisco, the entire stock is placed on sale in Los Angeles, at the store numbered 437 S. Spring Street.

JOHN WILSONS BY THE SCORE.

THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR THE RIGHT ONE.

Peculiar Case in Nebraska Which Is Producing More Claimants to a Small Fortune Than There Are Dollars in It—All Want the Money and Tell Why.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.] TECUMSEH (Neb.) May 14.—Thirty thousand dollars in the bank at Tecumseh to the credit of plain "John Wilson," and three thousand "John Wilsons," their relatives, descendants and friends from every State in the Union making desperate efforts to convince the bank that the little fortune belongs to them is the unique situation which has brought enough John Wilsons into the public eye to make a first-class city directory.

Thirty years ago young John Wilson ran away from his home near this town. His father was well-to-do then and afterward became wealthy. At first the father was angry. Then he relented. But nothing was heard of the runaway boy.

Six years ago the old man died, leaving $30,000 to the missing boy, provided he claimed it within seven years. The sixth year has almost gone and if John Wilson does not show up in a few months the $30,000 goes to charity.

The story of the missing heir got into the newspapers two months ago, and then the trouble of all the city and county officials, the postmaster, the bank, the preachers and, in fact, everyone in a public or semi-public position in the town, began. Letters from "John Wilson" began to arrive. At first they were few—one or two a day. Then they came more frequent. Two weeks after the story was published the mails to Tecumseh were fairly swamped with letters from "John Wilson," his family and his friends.

One of the early arrivals was from Jane Nelson, Hannibal, Mo. She wrote: "I saw it in a paper and I want to see aboute it. I mared John Wilson. He died. Then I mared agin. I never nold John left home when he was a boy. Rite and tell me aboute it and send me the money." The letter was addressed to the bank—but the bank still holds the money.

Centralia, Ill., furnished a candidate named John Wilson. He wrote the postmaster: "When a small boy I was kidnapped from my parents somewhere in Nebraska. Tramps took me. They kept me until I got big enough to run away from them. They said my name was John Wilson and that I came from Nebraska. Perhaps I am the missing heir. Please give me particulars."

Scranton, Pa., is responsible for a family of children and a widowed mother, all named Wilson, whose father and husband came out of the West. His first name was John, and the mother wants the money to educate the children. She says she is sure her dead husband was the missing Tecumseh boy.

Decatur, Ind., furnishes another John Wilson, and this man says that there is no question about it. He remembers the whole thing distinctly. Says he left home because his father whipped him, but that since the "old man" had left him his blessing and $30,000, he is ready to accept them both as soon as the papers can be made out and forwarded.

In Brookfield, Mass., John Wilson, however, bids fair to get in ahead of the Indiana man, because he says he will draw "at sight" for the $30,000. "If there should happen to be a few dollars more than the $30,000 when the draft arrives, keep them for your trouble," he writes the people where the money is on deposit.

It is astonishing how many times John Wilson deserted his wife, and how many wives he really had. The people of this county knows more about wife desertion now than he ever dreamed of. Fully a thousand letters tell how a "young girl" was wooed and won by "John Wilson from Nebraska." After a few months of married life John always disappeared, leaving the young wife nothing but a memory and a baby boy, named after his father. The poor fatherless youngsters all need the money, and most of the young mothers will pay a handsome commission to the person who will secure the legacy for them.

Lockport, N. Y., and Ellensburg, Wash., Georgetown, Del., and Hillsboro, Tex., Lynchburg, Va., and Evanston, Wyo., Orlando, Fla., and Lima, O., are just two or three of the widely separated points on the trail of John Wilson's widows.

John Wilson's education often seems to have been sadly neglected, too. Sometimes he writes like a finished scholar, while at others his letters are in a cramped, crabbed hand. Spelling and composition vary just as widely as the handwriting. Sometimes a typewriter is used. In several cases John cannot even write, but got a third party to write his letter for him.

As yet, however, the bank has not handed the money to any of the claimants. Nevertheless, there is $30,000 waiting for the right John Wilson to come forward, and he must come pretty quickly, too, or not at all.

RAILROAD TO COAST FROM CITRUS BELT

NEW FREE HARBOR AT OLD NEWPORT LANDING

Great Lumber Mills, With Hundreds of Employes, Warehouses and Factories—Magnificent Hotel Also Projected

Eastern and Los Angeles capitalists are interested in the new free harbor at Port Orange, formerly known as Newport Landing, where fifty years ago the first ocean freighters landed with their cargoes. The entire water front of this land-locked harbor, which the promoters claim is the best on the Pacific coast, has been purchased by a newly incorporated company known as the Port Orange & Santa Ana Railroad company, and composed of Duluth and Los Angeles business men.

For years one man, who owned all the land surrounding the harbor frontage, refused to yield a right of way, but considerable pressure was brought to bear and the deadlock finally was broken, with the result that the incorporators now are to build a railroad to Santa Ana and Orange, with the promise of subsequent extensions to Riverside and other places, thus tapping the citrus belt of Southern California.

It is announced that because of the confidence placed in the future of this proposed terminal as a harbor, one prominent lumber man of the east is to invest several hundred thousand dollars in the establishment of lumber mills, and that 700 men will be employed by him in these mills. It also is claimed that assurance is received to the effect that a dozen or more big warehouses and several factories will be erected there immediately. Besides this, there will be built a magnificent hotel which it is promised will equal any in the state.

A semi-tropic park will surround the hotel, and fine homes will be built on a track of land lying 150 feet above the ocean, south of the docks. The warehouses and factories, as well as dockage, will be confined to the lowlands lying north of the residential site.

Port Orange is a natural land-locked retreat for vessels in time of storm. It has a low water depth of 18 feet and has but one drawback—a sand bar, the dredging away of which will be accomplished by three giant dredgers now en route from the north. The company claims, also, that the building of an outer jetty will shift the tides and undertows, so that this sand-bar will quickly be removed.

Among the men identified with the work of constructing the new free harbor are F. F. Johnson of New York, whose father is warden of the port of New York; Eugene Germain, A. F. Lejal, J. M. Fletcher and W. G. Hopkins. The harbor is about thirty-five miles from Los Angeles, nine miles from Santa Ana, ten and a half miles from Orange, fifteen miles from Anaheim and at the mouth of the strait leading to a great, deep-water inner bay, which it is claimed will float the combined navies of the world. At the entrance to the strait is Balboa Beach, a long, peninsula-like strip, and on the opposite side of the proposed hotel site is Huntington's island.

Steel for the building of the road is on the ground, grading will be begun within a week, and the ties are due to arrive for the laying of the track by Saturday.

HARBOR PLANNED FOR NEWPORT.

MAY UTILIZE HUGE INLAND BAY AS PORT.

Government Asked for Aid in Building Jetties and Removing Bar at Entrance—Local and Eastern Capital Interested—Electric Railway in Scheme Also.

Port Orange is the name chosen for the proposed free harbor, which a company of local capitalists plan to build at Newport Bay. Intense interest has been aroused in the surrounding country affected by the establishment of such a port.

The land surrounding the bay is, and has been, controlled by James Irvine and his father, for many years, having been obtained by the Irvine family through a Spanish grant years ago. Eugene Germain, the local seed man, has secured a large tract of land opposite the inlet to the bay, and a company of local and eastern capitalists has been formed for the purpose of developing the project. In the company are James Irvine, who controls the land. He retains a considerable interest in the tract affected, and a right of dictating the policy of the concern. Eugene Germain, through his son, M. L. Germain, also is in it. C. L. Frederick and G. H. McCartey, both of the First National Bank of Duluth, Minn., represent considerable eastern capital.

The cost of the construction of the necessary dockage, dredging the bay, and making the turning basis, will be borne by the company that is urging the proposition. Incident to the harbor, a townsite named Port Orange has been laid out.

The bay at present has an average depth of six feet. The dredging out of between fifteen and twenty feet will be necessary to accommodate ocean-going vessels, but this, it is said, will be done.

The claims advanced by the exponents of this harbor proposition are that it is the logical shipping point for a vast area of the Southwest, that between 150,000 and 250,000 people will be served through it, and that by the new electric railways it will be nearer the city of Los Angeles than the present port now is; that it offers a safer refuge for vessels, coming either up or going down the coast, than any harbor between San Diego and San Francisco.

A broad-gauge, double-track electric railway will be built from Port Orange townsite to Santa Ana, according to the statements made by the company. This road will accommodate regular-size freight and passenger cars, and will connect with the transcontinental and inland lines at Santa Ana.

With the opening of the Panama Canal, the promoters hope the new harbor will be ready to receive the great amount of trade which Southern California is sure to send, via the water route, to New York and other eastern ports.

TO BUILD A RAILROAD

Line Will Be Constructed From Port Orange to the County Seat

Filing of articles of incorporation of the Port Orange and Santa Ana Railroad company last evening at Santa Ana by Attorneys Morton and Pruett, supplied the residents of Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties with the first information they had received that the Los Angeles, San Francisco and Duluth, Minn., capitalists back of the Port Orange company, organized last week, intended to construct a railroad line to aid them in the development of their territory.

Saturday the board of supervisors approved the change of the name of Old Newport landing, making it Port Orange. Yesterday came the articles of incorporation of the railroad company, which has a capital stock of $500,000, of which $50,000 has been subscribed.

As planned, the railroad will run along Newport bay, said to be the largest body of still water between San Diego and San Francisco, to Port Orange, and will be the last link in the chain of railways that is required to make Port Orange a most advantageous shipping point.

NEW ELECTRIC LINE WILL MAKE NEW CITY.

Articles of Incorporation of the Port Orange and Santa Ana Railway to Be Filed for Record Today.

A new electric railway line connecting Santa Ana with Newport Bay; a city at the new tidewater harbor to be called Port Orange; extensive terminal facilities and improvements, contemplating connection with the three transcontinental lines, and the early opening of a free harbor, are a few of the things foreshadowed by the articles of incorporation of the Port Orange and Santa Ana Railway Company to be filed for record tomorrow.

The incorporators of the company are Frank F. Johnson, Walter G. Hopkins, A. F. Lijeal, Joseph M. Fletcher, Eugene Germain, Marc L. Germain, C. L. Fredericks, Harry P. Vandeveer and G. H. McCarthy. The capital stock is $500,000 and the amount subscribed is $50,000.

It will be a broad gauge electric line and will be the last connecting rail link between the sea and a population of 150,000, exclusive of Los Angeles, distributed throughout the various cities of Southern California. Much of the material for the new railway has already been purchased and work is to commence at once.

The new line will form the connecting link between the harbor and Santa Ana, providing a direct connection through that city with all the cities of Southern California, as well as with the three transcontinental lines.

Port Orange Townsite

The United States Government has made an appropriation for Newport Harbor, a new railroad is being built to connect the harbor with the three trans-continental roads, and the development of Port Orange as a harbor city is actively under way. Doesn't this look like ACTIVITY?

Port Orange (35 miles from Los Angeles) is backed by a district of infinite resources and half a million people.

Port Orange will become a LIVE HARBOR CITY WITHIN SIX MONTHS.

The rich counties of Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside, which are immediately adjacent to the harbor, will at last have an outlet for their vast amount of products. A few years hence the products of the East will be received for the Great Southwest at PORT ORANGE VIA THE PANAMA CANAL.

MINES AND MINING.

CRACKERJACK'S LATEST STRIKE.

MORE DISCOVERIES OF RICH ORE REPORTED LAST WEEK.

Panamint Range's South End Is Also on the Boom—Freights for Ore Are Down and Ore Is Sent to Smelter—Selby's and Needles Get the Business—Kern Notes.

Yet another big strike is reported from the Crackerjack mining district, San Bernardino county, the Crackerjack Gold Company, the parent corporation of the district, being the fortunate finder this time. An eighteen-inch vein carying high values in gold has been uncovered, the ore, in fact, being literally shot full with free gold.

At the comparatively shallow depth of eighty-five feet, the King Solomon shaft of the Crackerjack Gold Company is all in ledge matter with neither wall in sight. The tunnel being run in the Dalkeith claim is expected to cut the big ledge within a few feet.

LEDGES AT TABLE MOUNTAIN.

Development is rapidly proving the Corona group to be one of the biggest copper properties in the Table Mountain section. Bonded in December last by Judge H. A. Barclay, Alexander McKeigan and C. G. Lewis, all of Los Angeles, work has been pushed vigorously with a large force under the management of Mr. Lewis. Twelve claims are included in the group, which adjoins the Beau Brummel on the north and the Mephisto on the south, the ledges being covered by the same capping as the Beau Brummel.

The main ledge has been proven by tunneling and open cuts to be from 156 to 300 feet wide, carrying values in copper clear across, and lying between dyasite and porphyry walls. The ledge matter is composed of leached iron and lime, interspersed with bunches of high-grade copper ore, exceptionally good values being obtained on the footwall.

Numerous cuts and tunnels cross the ledge at different points. A shaft is now down sixty feet, and it is proposed to sink about 200 feet farther before cross-cutting at this point. A hoist has been ordered and will be on the ground soon. On the Manganiffer claim a tunnel is being run at the present time to open up the great ledge at that point.

Though particulars are lacking at the present time, it is known that a deal is now pending for the purchase of the Corona group by a Montana corporation, including some of the heaviest mining operators of Butte.

MACDONALD TO VISIT DISTRICT.

Malcolm Macdonald, one of Charles M. Schwab's most trusted mining experts, is expected to arrive in Crackerjack from Tonopah some time during the coming week to inspect several copper properties. It is understood that Macdonald intends making a thorough investigation of the Table Mountain copper belt, with a view of purchasing one of the large groups. A letter received in Crackerjack this week contained the information that Macdonald would be here within the next ten days. It has been rumored for some time that Schwab intended investing in the Crackerjack district, and the coming of his expert seems to give confirmation to the report.

SACKING ORE AT BONANZA.

High-grade or is being sacked at the Crackerjack Bonanza mine, and a shipment will soon be made via Silver Lake and the Tonopah and Tidewater Railroad. The owners of the Bonanza also have a force at work developing water in that district, as lack of water has been the greatest drawback. Rasor Bros. have a force in the field surveying claims in that section, and the next few months will see much work being done at the Bonanza camp.

Panamint Is Booming.

Reports from the south end of the Panamint Mountains around Ballarat, say that the country is beginning to boom. Los Angeles, San Francisco, eastern and Nevada capital is coming in.

Considerable ore has been shipped, mostly to Selby's, but lately Needles has begun to get some of this. The heavy freights coming in from Johannesburg to Greenwater and Skidoo have to return almost empty and are anxiously seeking loads. Hence freighting is down to $10 a ton, which will encourage development. From Johannesburg to Needles the Santa Fé makes a rate of $3.25. The Trojan Mining Company, a Seattle corporation, has already shipped four cars of lead ores, of which it is said to have a very fine showing.

Jack Sweet has also a fine showing in lead, 65 per cent., and is shipping to Selby's.

The copper claims of C. H. Tyler have been bonded to Percy Hagerman of Colorado Springs. The latter will sink a 250-foot shaft at once.

The Jail Cañon mine, owned by Maj. C. C. McComas of the District Attorney's office, Samuel Schenk and a number of others from Los Angeles, is yielding an excellent gold and silver ore, which is being sacked for shipping.

Jack Kerns has uncovered a nice lot of specimen gold ores in Hall Cañon near Jail Cañon.

A company of Los Angeles people is developing a property with large gold-bearing porphyry dikes in Redlands Cañon. Schultsheiser brothers are working on a similar proposition half a mile from this.

Kern County Movements.

The Dead Tree claim in the Agua Caliente district of Kern county has been purchased by Horace B. Chase from F. W. D. Gwynne. The price was not given, but some time ago the claim, undeveloped, was sold to Mr. Gwynne by Maj. F. S. Rice of Bakersfield for $4000. Mr. Chase has also purchased the Shasta claim in the same district. He is expected to begin development at once.

The Kern County Board of Trade has determined to ask the assistance of the United States Geological Survey toward having maps prepared of the Amalie and Piute districts.

CHARCOAL SUGAR.

This is the Latest Sweetness to Sprinkle Strawberries With—Patents Applied for.

The sugar trust has lost its trust features if the invention of Charles P. Stewart of this city proves a success.

Mr. Stewart claims to have devised a process for making sugar from just charcoal and water, and a public demonstration to show that his invention will do all that is claimed in its behalf will soon be given. In fact, he is so confident of his ability to make good sugar that a company has recently been organized, with a capital stock of $3,000,000, and it is proposed to locate the sugar factory either in or near Los Angeles.

Not only does the inventor assert that by his process absolutely pure sugar can be made, something which up to this time is an unknown quantity, but that he will produce it at half the cost possible under present methods, thus practically annihilating competition from every quarter.

While it may seem a ridiculous proposition to make sugar from charcoal and water, it is nevertheless true that the chemical formula of sugar only calls for hydrogen, oxygen and carbon, and that these are the very three elements found in charcoal and water. The promised demonstration is awaited with interest by both the scientist and the layman.

Mr. Stewart has applied for patents in every country in the world.

CHILD-STUDY CIRCLE.

The Fremont-avenue Child-study Circle held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon with an attendance of seventy-five members. Dr. E. C. Moore, Superintendent of Schools, gave a talk on "The Relation of the Child-study Circles to the Board of Education." The school will be entertained on May 23 by Maj. Newell, who will talk about the Indians and illustrate his talk with Indian costumes and war clubs. The Fremont-avenue circle is one of the most flourishing in the city. Mrs. Frank Stoddard is president, and she is greatly aided in her work by the principal of the school, Mrs. Cora B. Freeman.

WIFE CHARGES NON-SUPPORT.

Albert Gerome was arrested in San Bernardino yesterday and brought to Los Angeles on a warrant sworn to by his wife. She charges non-support. The warrant has been in the hands of the police some time, but they were unable to locate Gerome until a detective gained trace of him in the valley city. Formerly the Geromes resided at No. 222 North Fremont avenue. He is a musician and claims that he has been grossly misused by his wife. Recently Mrs. Gerome left the Fremont-street house and moved to another part of the city.

BETHLEHEM DISPENSARY.

Baldwin Refrigerators for Government Hospitals
...Twenty-Second Year...

The Baldwin Refrigerator Company has been notified that its proposal to furnish the U. S. public health and marine hospital service with refrigerators for the current fiscal year has been accepted, making the twenty-second consecutive year that this important branch of the government service has adopted the Baldwin dry air refrigerator for use in all its hospitals and quarantine stations. So highly were these refrigerators regarded by the surgeons and stewards as far back as 1884-1885, that one of them was included in the government exhibit at world's exposition, New Orleans, marked "Standard refrigerator for hospital use."—Burlington Free Press, August 18, 1906.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

The contract for the building of the pier at Oceano Beach has been let by Williams & Brownstone of this city to Greenwell & Donlon of Ventura. The pier will front off Pier avenue and measure 1000 feet in length, and is expected to be completed about July 1. A number of bungalows have been contracted for according to reports received, by private parties for this summer, and the resort is preparing for a big season. Several hotels are now open. The Oceano Beach resort is on San Luis Obispo Bay, about twelve miles south of that city. A cross-country railroad is being built from the interior to this point.

That there is considerable activity in the demand for apartment hotels in Los Angeles is evidenced by the two important sales consummated by the E. Jerome Toy Hotel Brokerage Company this week, whereby a ten years' lease on the fifty-room apartment house on Griffith avenue and Clanton street now nearing completion, the property of Dr. Paul Edwards, was secured by Ensign Woodruff, formerly of Ripon, Wis. The second important lease was that of Allen C. Ady, formerly proprietors of the California Hotel, Second and Hill streets, who secured a five years' ease on the new Lofgren apartments about completed at No. 1237 Byram street. The Lofgren is an attractive fifty-room modern apartment house. The building was erected by the owner, Charles A. Lofgren.

The townsite of Burleigh comprises in all 1296 quarter-acre lots. This property is being put on by the Los Angeles Company. The location is on the double-track system of the Los Angeles-Redondo Railway (Inglewood division) about half way between Los Angeles and Redondo. The improvements are backed by a written guarantee and sufficient appropriations have been made to cover these expenses. The work will comprise large, wide streets, oiled and graded, cement sidewalks and curbs, filtered water for domestic purposes, gas and electricity, shade trees on the lots and on the parking between the curb and sidewalk and a fully equipped fire department, all of which are paid for by the company.

Wendell McLaughlin and C. F. McDonald report the sale of the following: Lot 3, block 7, Washington Heights tract, for Mrs. Emma Sasso to Gise & Meyer; consideration $2000. Lots 1 and 2, Estelline tract, for R. D. Wade to Fannie B. Casselmann; consideration $1600.

WRECK SALE OF FURNITURE

Last week we held a wreck sale of Crex which set the town a-talking. Now we come forward with another big event. This time we purchased a mixed car which contained brass and iron beds, chairs, rockers, dressers and chiffoniers. Little actual damage was done, but the car was refused and we stepped in with ready cash. Every piece has been through our workshop, and you couldn't tell they had ever been near a wreck.
In this ad. we mention a few of the good things we will offer.

Prices on Perfect Pieces Cut Just in Half

$25 Oak Dresser $12.50

This is a fair sample of the dressers in this Wreck Sale. This one is made of selected oak, beautifully grained. The cabinet work is exceptionally good. The mirror is heavy beveled plate.

The car also contained some chiffoniers in maple and oak which we are including in this sale.

A postal addressed to the Egg-O-See Cereal Company, San Francisco, Cal., will bring full particulars.

Remember, full instructions about how to make the drawings are in every package of E. C. CORN. Get yours today. Large package 10c

EGG-O-SEE COMPANY'S E. C. CORN FLAKES

More strict than the strictest Food Laws, are the rules that govern the making of E. C. CORN—flaked and toasted.—

—In the World's largest—most sanitary—Pure Food Mills. All vessels and machinery are sterilized—Only filtered water is used for moistening. E. C. CORN is untouched by human hands.

And E. C. CORN is as delicious and nourishing as it is pure and wholesome. Generous packages. 10 cents at your grocer's. Made in the famous EGG-O-SEE way.

More EGG-O-SEE was eaten during the past year than all other flaked wheat foods combined.

This speaks more strongly and unqualifiedly for the actual purity and merit of EGG-O-SEE Company's products than all the claims we might put forth.

If your grocer has not received his supply of E. C. CORN, send us his name and 10 cents and we will send you a package prepaid.

POMONA WINS, EIGHT TO FOUR.

VICTORY AT CLAREMONT OVER OCCIDENTAL TEAM.

McCredie's Crippled Portland Aggregation Defeated by San Francisco Twirlers During Bad Weather. Results of American and National League Games Briefly Told.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Pomona College defeated Occidental College on the Pomona diamond, this afternoon, by a score of 8 to 4. Pomona batted Thatcher and Patterson out of the box and connected easily with Merrill. Gally twirled a fine game for Pomona, allowing but one hit and striking out seven. Pomona got seven hits off the Occidental pitchers, and but four Pomona men fanned.

Patterson pitched the first six innings for Occidental and was touched for four hits. Thatcher then went in and stayed till the middle of the eighth, when Mahoney hit him for a triple. Merrill finished the rest of the game. Pomona had seven errors, to which three of Occidental's runs were due; while the eleven misplays on the part of Occidental allowed Pomona a number of tallies.

Mahoney, Birdsall and Gally put up the star game for Pomona, while Ross did the best work for Occidental.

Occidental opened the scoring in the third, when Spalding went to first on a fielder's choice, stole second, and scored on Merrill's single to center. Merrill stole second and came home on R. Spurgeon's wild throw to third. Deckman walked and came home on Graf's fumble of Spurgeon's wild throw.

In the fourth, Pomona secured her first score when W. Spurgeon beat out a bunt to third, stole second and third, and came home on Patterson's wild throw to the plate. Pomona got another in the fifth, when Gally was hit by the pitcher, went to second on Spurgeon's sacrifice, stole third and scored on Brooke's wild throw to McKenney.

In the sixth, Bill Spurgeon singled, went to third on Metcalf's single and scored on Baer's muff of Canterbury's fly. Metcalf stole second, went to third on Merrill's boot of Baer's throw and home on Canterbury's drive to Baer. Canterbury scored on Spalding's wild throw and Brook's muff.

The next score for Pomona came in the seventh, when Mahoney hit to Merrill, who fumbled; stole second, went to third on Metcalf's hit and home on another muff by Brooks.

In the eighth, Thatcher went to first on Mahoney's muff of a grounder, second on Graf's muff of the same ball, third on Gally's error and home on a fielder's choice. Pomona netted two more tallies in her half.

Gally went to first on McKenny's muff of a grounder, second on Spurgeon's single, stole third and came home on Walden's fly to Spalding. Spurgeon stole second and also scored on Walden's fly. Mahoney tripled, but did not score. Occidental could make nothing in their half of the ninth.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

THIELMAN WINS ONE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CLEVELAND, May 18.—Flacks batting won for Cleveland in the ninth inning. In the third inning Washington scored two runs on the catch of a long fly to left field, the first time such a play was ever made in Cleveland. Score:

Cleveland, 5; hits, 11; errors, 0.
Washington, 4; hits, 6; errors, 1.
Batteries—Thielman, Rhodes and Clark; Smith and Heydon.

TERRIFIC SLUGGING.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DETROIT, May 18. After the Athletics had taken a lead of four runs, the locals knocked Bender and Coombs out of the box in two innings each and scored ten runs off Dygert in four more. It was an exhibition of slugging and it lasted nearly three hours. Score:

Detroit, 15; hits, 18; errors, 3.
Philadelphia, 8; hits, 11; errors, 2.
Batteries—Mullin and Schmidt; Bender, Coombs, Dygert and Schreck.

Americans Defeated.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The first play of the American challenging lawn tennis team upon grass courts was held this afternoon at Ardsley-on-Hudson. Beals C. Wright and Karl H. Behr met H. H. Hackett and A. B. Alexander and were defeated, 6-2, 3-10, 6-3, 6-2.

MANY ENTRIES FOR HORSE SHOW.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Whatever else the great horse show at Olympia will be, it will represent a colossal sum of money. There will be 2000 horses entered. These are the pick of the world in every class. An instance of the way in which the millionaire enterprise has stimulated competition is found in a new challenge made to Ogden Armour.

Stirred by reports of the magnificence of Armour's famous grays, the Lancastershire and Yorkshire Railway Company, and Messrs. Guiness, as well as other firms, have asked for a special opportunity, not previously provided, of competing with their Shires and Clydesdes against the rival of Normandy breed.

A specially decorated stable is therefore to be provided for their splendid animals and a gold medal offered. In this stable some £10,000 ($50,000) worth of horseflesh will be congregated. That the Brewsters, of New York, are giving a special carriage display, is evidence of its costliness.

TELEGRAPHIC CHESS.

Tournament to Be Arranged by Los Angeles Athletic Club After More Practice.

The first "chess evening" of the Los Angeles Athletic Club was held Wednesday, May 15, and drew out a number of players, some of the newer ones being in evidence. The stronger men, for the greater part, kept in the background.

A club button is the prize offered. T. E. Stanton won the first one from a strong field composed of fairly capable players, such as George S. Hupp, E. Muller, A. H. Goodwin, P. W. Newhall, Derby, O'Bannon and other newcomers, who are showing steady improvement.

After the chess evenings, of which there are two a month, have drawn enough strong players, telegraphic chess matches are to be arranged, but nothing of this sort will be done until a strong team of ten players of about equal class can be secured. At the rate of improvement being made at present, this will not be long in coming about. E. Muller, who is a close student of the game, is playing in good form at present, and A. K. Goodwin, Edwin L. Hedderly, Frank Garbutt, H. T. Rudisill, P. W. Newhall, Ray Dunnigan, Mel Nordlinger, Fred Siegel, Adolph Frankel, A. Derby, among others, are putting in considerable practice.

College Tennis.

The intercollegiate tennis tournaments will take place on the Pomona courts, this season, the first being the U.S.C.-Pomona match May 25. The Occidental-Pomona tournament probably will come on Monday, May 27. The Pomona home contest to determine the intercollegiate representatives will be played next Monday. Considerable interest is being taken in tennis at Pomona and winning teams should be turned out. Thomas and Bryant, the 1906 team, probably will be the representatives in the gentlemen's matches.

DIAMOND STOLEN.

Attractively-Attired Young Woman and Man Arrested on Suspicion of Being Implicated.

Miss Aline Shields and E. J. Pickering are held in the city jail on suspicion of having been implicated in stealing a diamond stud belonging to William Alderson. All particulars of the theft are guarded with extreme secrecy by the police and those interested in the case.

A detective arrested Miss Shields at a lodging-house at No. 115½ South Broadway about 1 o'clock Saturday morning. She was taken to Central Station and booked on "suspicion." Later she was taken out by the officers for a half hour and then returned. Alderson was with the officer and the woman.

Following the detention of Miss Shields came the arrest of Pickering on South Spring street. He was held on a similar charge. Miss Shields was attractively attired and seemed very much chagrined by her arrest. On Pickering was found a large sum of money, and he wore several diamonds.

FREE MATERNITY COTTAGE.

The Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church has established a free maternity hospital for poor women at No. 152 North Rio street, a few blocks east of the river on First street. It is the only institution of the kind in the city. The committee in charge is composed of Mrs. J. B. Ware, Mrs. H. C. Dillon, Mrs. S. M. McLenahan, Mrs. C. J. Fox and Mrs. William Baurhyte. The ladies need money to carry on the work and invite the aid of generous people.

CORPORATION TAXES RISE.

Indiana Board Increases Assessments of Railways and Other Big Companies Twelve Million Dollars.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Notwithstanding the pressure brought to bear upon the State Board of Tax Commissioners by business men who believe that the State has gone too far in its campaign against corporations, that body today increased the assessments of corporate property in the State from $224,377,446 to $236,790,754, or practically $12,000,000.

The big end of the increase is against the steam railroads, though electric, telegraph and telephone companies, express, sleeping car and other transportation companies are included.

The net increase of the railroads is about $8,000,000 or from $183,670,955 one year ago, to $191,337,649.

HURT IN A RUNAWAY.

Isadore Finkelstein, a grocer at No. 724 Sunset Boulevard, was injured in a runaway accident at Fifth street and Towne avenue last night. The team that Finkelstein was driving became frightened and dashed along Towne avenue, but suddenly swerved to the right near Fifth street and hurled him to the pavement. He sustained concussion of the brain and a laceration of the scalp. He was sent to the Emergency Hospital at No. 412 Crocker street.

MILITARY PLAY POSTPONED.

Owing to the possibility that the Seventh Regiment may be called to San Francisco by the Governor, the members of Company F have decided to postpone indefinitely their production of "The Confederate Spy," which was billed for the Venice Auditorium for May 24. On that evening the Venice of America Band, as arranged, will give an open-air concert in Los Angeles at Central Park, and the date left vacant by Company F will be filled by Miss Mabelle Biggart with a reading of Adam Bede.

JEWISH CONFIRMATION.

The Feast of Revelations will be observed today in Temple B'nai B'rith. At 10 o'clock a.m. Dr. S. Hecht will confirm a class of ten—four girls and six boys.

DUNKER TENT MEETING.

The Dunkers will hold a special service at 11 o'clock this morning in a large tent at the corner of Santa Fé avenue and Sacramento street. The preacher will be Rev. S. S. Blough of Pittsburgh, Pa.

TO MAKE THE BEST REMEDY

Relieves Nearly Every Person Who Tries It.

Prescription for Rheumatism and Kidneys.

Harmless, Inexpensive and Easily Prepared.

A large eastern publication tells its readers of a number of simple and safe prescriptions that can be made at home. The following, however, for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles receives the greatest praise, viz., Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple vegetable ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is further stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings in just a short while.

A well-known local druggist states that the Compound Kargon in it does the work. It is the drug which acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys; cleanses the spongelike organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood which is the cause of rheumatism.

Cut this out and hand to some sufferer, which would certainly be an act of humanity.

Canfield's Hot Weather Suggestions
Prepare now for the hot summer days. We offer the items below knowing them to be the very best to be had, and knowing, too, that you can buy them here at a considerable saving over what you are asked to pay elsewhere. Study these items carefully. Note the quality and prices asked. Make your selections tomorrow.

Davenport Filters
Why not drink pure cold water? The cost is a trifle more at the start. It may be the means of saving many times its cost in preventing sickness from drinking impure water. In the Davenport Filter the water as well as the ice is filtered through stone. No dirt or germs can find their way through. Perfectly sanitary and needs no special care. Filters quickly and perfectly. May be had in a number of sizes to suit demands.
6 Gal. size, each....$5.50

Hot Water with a Jewel Heater
We can show you exactly the time it takes to have boiling hot water at your disposal if you have a "Jewel" Gas Heater. We have them connected to a boiler in our basement. See for yourself; that's the best proof. We set and connect these heaters ready for use, and at a very reasonable price. Ask to see it in operation.
Jewel Heater $15.00 Connected.

Greenland Refrigerators
The "always cold" refrigerator. Built on correct and practical lines. Built to stand years of service. Made so that parts to be cleaned are easily reached. Perfectly and thoroughly ventilated, giving an even temperature to the provision chamber at all times. Best materials and best finish. Known as an Ice Saver wherever they are used. You can pay more for a refrigerator than the price we ask, but you cannot get a better one than the Greenland. Box No. 606, like cut, with white enamel lining; capacity 120 pounds of ice, with ample provision space, each, delivered $25

Water Coolers
Ice cold water all the time, if you have one of these water coolers. We can furnish them in a number of different styles and sizes. Galvanized iron, or porcelain lined. It is real economy to use a water cooler; it takes less ice than to chip off the small pieces every time you want a drink. Ask to see the No. 44 with porcelain lining, 4 gallon capacity. Each $5.00

Hammocks for Hot Days
Our Hammocks are guaranteed not to pull out at the ends. If it does we will replace it. No talk—just a new hammock. We have a fine line of them and they are priced very close. Suppose you look at them Monday. Priced from $1.50 to $7.50.

White Mountain Freezers
The Standard—and the best. The easiest operated Freezer to be had. The simplest in design and construction. With a White Mountain Freezer you can have delicious Ice Cream all summer, and the difference in cost over buying it will more than pay for the Freezer. We have them in various sizes to suit your requirements. A good general size is our 4-qt. Freezer. Will make cream enough for 20 people. Canfield's price $2.90

"Jewels" Keep Your Kitchen Cool
When you buy a "Jewel" range you buy the best obtainable in a stove. They are built upon honor and sold on merit. "Jewels" have every improvement that tends to make them more usable and convenient—note ease of operating in model like cut. "Jewel" burners are recognized as gas savers—the easiest burner in the world to keep clean. "Jewel" valves are gas tight; "Jewel" ovens are perfectly ventilated and utilize every unit of heat; "Jewel" ranges are built of steel throughout and have the famous "Jewel" ebony finish—the best for wear and requiring no blackening. In fact, "Jewel" gas ranges represent "stove satisfaction." The model shown has four burners with giant and simmer burner on top—high oven and broiler with double burner and pilot light. This is one of the most popular styles made. We will deliver, set up, and connect this range to kitchen supply pipe for $30
THIRTY DAYS' FREE TRIAL
Use it thirty days. If you don't think it is the best range value in the city, we'll take it back. Costs you nothing. Try it. Payments if you wish them.

PREPARE FOR HANDBALL.

Los Angeles Athletic Club Members Plan for Tournament for Championship.

Preparations for the third semi-annual tournament of the Los Angeles Athletic Club at handball are going forward steadily, a committee having been delegated to go right to work.

The play will start June 1 or very soon thereafter, and the entries will close with the present month, thus giving only one day of grace to make up the schedule. Sam O. Hall, Ray Dun[illegible] and Joe F. Amestoy are appointed a committee of three to draft rules and make the preliminary arrangements.

There will be no "round robin" this summer, the players having had enough of that last year when the tournament dragged over about six weeks. The "down and out" system will govern. The tournament will be played off from a drawing, and as fast as a contestant is defeated he drops out of the running.

There is every prospect of a big entry. Practice has been going on for several weeks. All the old hands and a few newcomers of class are waiting for a chance to subscribe themselves to the entry list. Some fast games have been played during the week just closed, several for dinners and other similar stakes.

One came off Thursday, when Frank Garbutt and Dick Wellcome, two of the old war horses, hooked up with Ralph Frankel and Fred Holbrook, with a little interest on the side to add a dash of reality to the proceedings. The day before Garbutt and Wellcome lost to the younger men. Considerable "joshing" followed, which culminated in Messrs. Frankel and Holbrook challenging the Foxy Grandpas. The proposition was accepted, and the return match followed Thursday.

Garbutt and Wellcome cut out the [illegible] life early in the contest and [illegible] their opponents, 21 to 5. In the second game they went around Frankel and Holbrook like ironmolders around a boiler, finally winning out by the score of 21-19. The losers may challenge again.

DEATH'S STRANGE TRICKS.

Body Buried Forty Years Perfectly Preserved—Another Is Petrified.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DES MOINES (Iowa) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two exhumations [illegible] occurred in Iowa today which throw new light on the manner in which bodies are preserved and which promise to attract wide attention.

In Woodland Cemetery, Des Moines, the remains of Frankie Kinsey, aged [illegible] years and 6 months, were exhumed from the grave in which they had lain since December 16, 1863. The body seemed in perfect condition and was instantly recognized by the [illegible] who laid it away over forty years ago and who came to remove it to Nebraska beside the child's mother. At that time little was known here of the embalming process and the preservation of the body is laid to the air-tight metallic coffin.

At Oskaloosa today the body of George Gegner, buried nine years ago, was exhumed and brought to Des Moines. In life Gegner weighed but a trifle over 180 pounds. The remains found today weigh a trifle less than a thousand pounds.

The corpse appeared to be solid stone. The chemists who examined the remains state that the soil in which the body was buried contained a large amount of alkali which produced the same effect as in the petrified animals found in the Black Hills of Dakota.

NEW BAPTIST CHURCH.

A council of delegates from the different Baptist churches of the city, [illegible] the Figueroa-street Baptist Church last Sunday, with forty-four members. The list will be kept open for [illegible] months and all who come in during that period will be named as charter members. Rev. E. H. Brooks was chosen as the permanent pastor and at a business meeting on next [illegible] evening an election of officers will be held. Regular services and Sunday school will be held every Sunday.

"SHOOTING CRAPS."

[illegible] Schone, George Whaling, Ed[illegible]stone, Eugene Broady and [illegible] Mills, lads of 16, were arrested in an alley at the rear of No. [illegible] Main street last night for "shooting craps." The police say a dice game had been in progress the most of the day.

CONFIRMATION SERVICE.

Bishop Joseph H. Johnson will hold confirmation service and administer the rite of laying one the hands, at All Saints Episcopal Church, Highland Park, this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The church is at the corner of Ash and Avenue 56.

NOMINEE'S NAME OMITTED.

The name of Mrs. George H. Wad[illegible] was accidentally omitted from the list of nominations for board of directors of the Friday Morning Club.

WHERE HAS COIN GONE?

Labor Council Takes It in, but Fiesta Fund Does Not Get It.

Early in April the Central Labor Council, through its secretary, W. A. Engel, wrote to the Fiesta Committee, asking that a contribution be received from "organized labor" for the Fiesta, in order that unions might show their appreciation and indorsement of the celebration.

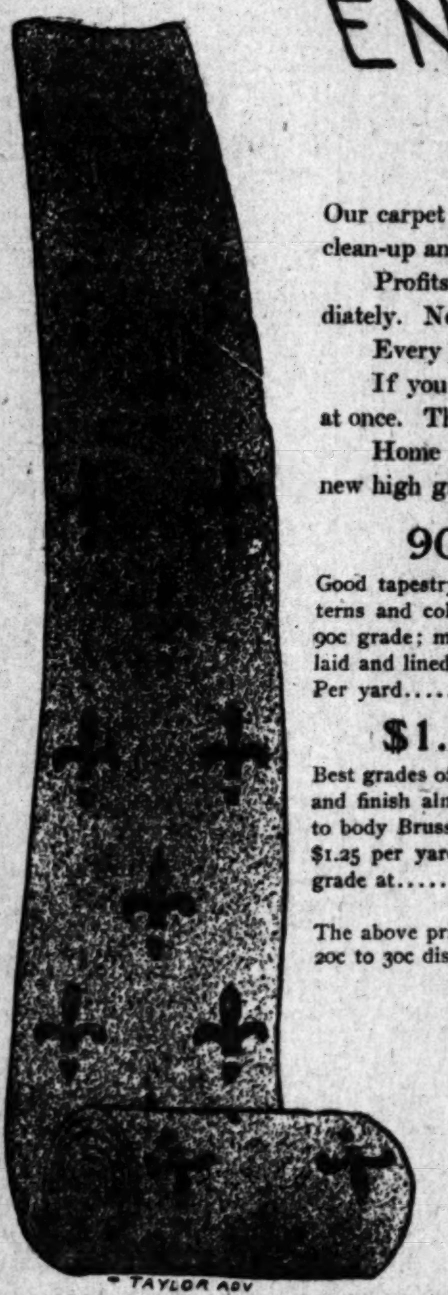
The offer was accepted. Then the Central Labor Council secured the indorsement of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association for a "benefit" theatrical performance to be given to raise the proffered contribution, and it was granted.

The Auditorium was secured for Saturday, April 27, and many actors donated their services. The show came off before a fair house. Men in touch with such things say it should have netted between $500 and [illegible]. The Labor Council people have the money, but the Fiesta fund has not been increased.

According to the secretary, Engel, the profit is small. "We have not got our returns yet," he said. "Probably it will be two weeks before we get them. The profit will be less than [illegible]. I can't say just how much, but it will not reach $100."

CARPET PRICES SHATTERED.

ENTIRE STOCK TO BE CLOSED OUT!



Our carpet stock must go! That has been decided. Now to make the quickest possible clean-up and get out of the carpet business at once, we have cut prices all through the line.

Profits have been entirely sacrificed. Our only desire is to get rid of the stock immediately. Not a yard of old goods in the store.

Every piece is new. Every bolt has arrived since our recent fire.

If you need new carpets—if you want to buy them at a big saving, attend this sale at once. The patterns are all new, and not a single yard is of questionable quality.

Home owners, hotel keepers, rooming house proprietors, here is your chance to buy new high grade carpets at less than wholesale prices.

90c Tapestry

Good tapestry Brussels carpet—all popular patterns and colors. Regular 90c grade; made, laid and lined. Per yard.......... 65c

$1.25 Tapestry

Best grades of tapestry Brussels carpet—patterns and finish almost equal to body Brussels. Regular $1.25 per yard grade at.......... $1.05

$1.35 Axminster

Standard grades of Axminster carpets in the latest patterns and colors; sold throughout the United States at $1.35 per yard; to close.......... $1.05

$1.50 Axminster

Beautiful Axminster carpets—extra fine pile; rich color combinations and latest patterns to choose from. Regular $1.50 grade.......... $1.20

The above prices are for carpets made, laid and lined by experts. Figure out the saving yourself; 20c to 30c discount on every yard means a saving of $5 to $15 on a room of ordinary size.

48th Street—L. A. Car Line

Western Avenue is 80 feet wide and is the longest north and south street in the city, and Vernon Avenue is 70 feet wide and is the longest east and west street in the city.

We have a quarter of a mile frontage on each of above named streets.

This Model Subdivision

Consists of 40 acres cut up into 188 large lots 50 and 55 feet by 126 and 141 feet deep, with 15-foot alley in rear of every lot. Street improvements now under way and progressing rapidly will consist of graded and oiled streets, 18-inch cement curbs and 5-foot cement walks, with 7-foot parkways between, which gives abundant room for planting palms, trees or shrubbery without danger of their ever breaking up walks or curbs, and as they grow and expand they will not crowd people off of sidewalks. Purest of artesian water piped down all alleys in 6 and 4-inch pipes. Having water piped down alleys means that every time a house is built and a water connection put in, the street will not be torn up and made unsightly or dangerous. After a street is torn up to put water pipe in across it, you can never repair it properly without repairing the entire street, which is an expensive operation.

Good and sufficient building restrictions that fully protect home builders from all the many objectionable features found in most tracts.

Every lot is very convenient to the extension of the L. A. Electric R. R. Co.'s Grand Avenue and Vermont Square Line, which runs the entire width of tract on 48th street, which street is our south boundary, and is 80 feet wide. At present we have an 8-minute service, which will be improved upon as fast as the territory that supports it is settled up.

NOW REMEMBER THAT THIS IS THE REGULAR GRAND AVE. CITY LINE WITH A FIVE-CENT FARE AND TRANSFERS TO ANY AND ALL PARTS OF CITY. IT ONLY TAKES TWENTY-FIVE MINUTES TO TRAVEL FROM BUSINESS CENTER OF CITY TO OUR MOST DISTANT LOT.

This entire section of city has a very rich, sandy loam soil, which insures no mud, no dust, good gardens, good lawns, beautiful flowers and thrifty trees, and last but not least, having artesian water means that every time you water your lawn, you are not sowing devil-grass seed or any other sort of foreign vegetable matter.

Now Listen

If you want a desirable lot at a proper price to build a home upon, or if you want one just to speculate upon and make a sure, quick profit

Come and See Us

For just as soon as all of our improvements are completed, the tract will show up fine, and prices will advance very rapidly.

CALEDONIAN VICTORIA DAY.

The Caledonian Club will celebrate Victoria Day with a concert and dance Friday evening at Blanchard Hall. More than eight hundred tickets have been sold, and the proceeds will be devoted to the annual Fourth of July games of the club. The principal officers of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will be guests at the entertainment Friday night, when an extended programme will be given. President M. C. Meiklejohn will deliver the address of the evening.

EELS FOR ELECTRIC POWER.

A Venezuela Scientist Said to Have Made a Large Draft Upon Natural Sources.

[New York Commercial:] Harness your ocean liners and power plants to eels and hear another fish story. Prof. de Esperando, head of the government college at Caracas, Venezuela, had 100 average-sized electric eels captured and copper wire encircled around their necks just below the ears, and then connected them with a motor, the eels remaining in the river near the shore.

Their violent flopping and contortions proved a most uncertain sort of electric current, so he procured another 100 and put them into a zinc bath, which he had in his house, and connected it with the motor and found that they produced about twenty horse power. With this he ran a mill and lighted up his house and grounds. The power from each eel sufficed to produce 45-candle incandescent lights. Prof. de Esperando also has found that a motor car can be run for twenty-four hours, with 100 eels in a tank three feet long and one and one-half feet square and weighing complete less than 200 pounds. It is claimed that the largest ocean steamers afloat can be run with 200,000 eels, producing 40,000 horse power and contained in a tank not larger than 10x10x15. This plant, of course, will have to be duplicated so that when the energy in one is exhausted it can be hoisted from the hold to the dock, so that the light from the sun can infuse a new energy into it while the power is furnished by the relay plant.

The same agent also sold lot 1, block I, George Cummings subdivision, situate on corner North Boyle avenue and Pennsylvania avenue, for $2000. The same property was resold to D. M. Anderson for $2500.

Hundred and Fifty Per Foot Is Paid.

James Donahue has sold to James Grotto, through the agency of F. J. Steele & Co., thirty-three feet of frontage on the west side of Ruth avenue, about 150 feet north of Eighth street, for the reported consideration of $150 a front foot, or a total of $4950. The lot is unimproved. It is 110 feet deep to an alley. The same agent also reports the sale for the Title Insurance and Trust Company to Jules Violi of a lot 25x125 feet, located on the north side of Pico street, opposite Burlington avenue, for the reported price of $3875. The lot is vacant.

Activity in the Southwest Section.

The Arthur W. Kinney Company report the sale of two lots in Fulmer tract, located at Seventh and Vermont avenue, this week, for the reported consideration of $2000 each. The property is located on Leeward avenue. The same company also reports that there are fourteen houses in process of construction in the Jefferson Street Park tract, located at Jefferson street and Arlington avenue. The building operations represent about $30,000 in valuation.

To the Westward.

McGarvin & Bronson Company report the sale of lot 1, block 19, Boulevard Heights, on the corner of Mountain View and Wilshire boulevard, at $3750; to J. W. Uff, lot on Amador street, in Elysian Park tract, from McGarvin & Bronson Company, to A. Matta, $450; same street, lot to James J. Brown, $700; also lot to Walter J. Toreson, at $500.

At La Verne.

The following sale was consummated yesterday and reported by the W. T. Michael & Son Realty Company: Tract of land containing 24 acres, near the foothills, 18 acres bearing in fine five-year-old navel oranges, balance good vacant orange land; seller H. R. Schisler conveys to W. H. Derwin, lately from Indiana, purchase price $18,000. Mr. Derwin is a long-time friend of I. N. Glover of Los Angeles, who recently bought through same agency a $16,000 grove in La Verne.

LORETTA STREET SCHOOL.

Among the newest public school buildings to be dedicated to the education of the young idea in Los Angeles is the Loretta-street school, located on the corner of Loretta street and Arroyo Seco avenue. This building is a two-story and basement, frame structure, which has recently been completed at a cost of about $25,000. Julius W. Krause is the architect. The building is 77x100 feet over all. There are four large classrooms on each floor, which measure 27x32 feet. There are three exits, two of which are eighteen feet wide, and one fifteen feet in width. There is also a principal's office on the first floor. On the second is the teachers' room and an emergency room, to be used in case of serious illness among the pupils. Plenty of cloak and closet room also is a feature. The basement is finished with a furnace room, lavatories and two unfinished recitation rooms, to be completed later, when the need arises. The exterior finish is in brick to the first story, with rustic and shingles above. Each principal gable is finished in the artistic English rural style, with half timber work and plaster.

IN COLONIAL STYLE.

In modified Colonial style of architecture, the home of Mrs. S. A. Harper, recently finished in Jones & Ryder's West Jefferson Street tract, is among the handsomest structures in the southwest section of the city. It is a two-story residence, as the photograph shows, and contains nine rooms. The design was prepared by Knox & Brown, and is a combination of the classic and Colonial styles. The interior finish of the first floor is in weathered oak and Oregon pine. The ceilings are beamed and the walls in the hall and dining-room are paneled to a height of five feet. There are natural-stone mantels in the den and living-room. The second story is finished in white enamel. A feature of the house is the main stairway, which springs gracefully from the reception hall. The exterior appearance is rather imposing, with porch columns of Corinthian style. The gable over the front entrance is surmounted with artistic staff work.

Chamber of Commerce Building, Pasadena, now nearing completion.

WORK BEING RUSHED.

The Chamber of Commerce building at Pasadena will, when finished, be one of the highest-class buildings boasted by the Crown City. Parkinson & Bergstrum, the local architects, are the designers of the structure, a photograph of which appears on this page, showing the great steel framework almost completed. The building is on the northwest corner of Broadway and Colorado street, occupying the entire surface of a lot 125 feet square. It is a strictly high-class office building of the fireproof construction, containing 210 offices, five store-rooms and five basements. It will be finished with every convenience. High-speed passenger elevators of the safest type, electrical devices, vacuum-air-suction system of cleaning and all other up-to-date office building fixtures, will be installed. The building is being erected by Weymouth Crowell and William Crowell at a cost of $250,000. The exterior finish will be in light buff-colored pressed brick with decoration in beautiful green glazed Roman brick. Terra cotta also will be used in the exterior finish, the cornice being made of this material. The light court will be finished in the light green glazed brick, also. All the above material is being made by a local brickmaking company, the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Company, turning out all the necessary material. Interior finish is of oak and mahogany. There will be a stately front entrance and a marble-lined lobby, which will compare with anything on the Coast

QUARTER-MILLION DOLLAR DEAL.

NORTHEAST CORNER EIGHTH AND OLIVE STREETS SOLD.

Local Investor Sells to H. E. Hayden and Associates, Fine Corner in Choice Location—Lot Is Eighty-five by One Hundred Feet in Size—Business Area Expands.

The largest real estate deal of the week is that reported by Robert Marsh and Company of the northeast corner of Eighth and Olive streets for the sum of $250,000, a cool quarter of a million dollars. A local investor, whose name is withheld, told to H. E. Hayden and associates. The deal was only just closed Saturday morning.

The property consists of a lot 85x100 feet in size, the largest frontage on Olive street, improved with a three-story brick block of substantial construction, which is rented at a fair interest on the present investment. The improvements are valued at $75,000. There is a seven-foot right of way around the entire building, making it of that much more value.

At the above consideration the rate per front foot figures at $2941, for the Eighth street frontage. One reason for the large price is the fact that plans are nearly completed for the widening and paving of Eighth street to a distance of several blocks west.

The last big deal in Olive street property, within the expanded business section, was that of the Hotel Baltimore, on the northeast corner of Seventh and Olive streets, which was sold by Isaacs Bros. for the reported consideration of $450,000. The Athletic Club was the purchaser. The lot has a frontage of 155 feet on West Seventh and is 147.75 feet deep on the Olive-street face. This was at the rate of $2903 a front foot for the Seventh-street frontage.

TWO BUYS NEAR POMONA.

Mrs. Belle C. Teague has sold to D. S. Patterson of Los Angeles fifty-four acres of unimproved land southeast of Pomona for $5000. Mr. Patterson will install a pumping plant and improve the property. The sale was made through J. A. Fitch, who has also sold to E. Barham the three-acre orange grove in the Kingsley tract near Pomona belonging to J. S. Hines of Searchlight, for $4500. This little grove is reported to have paid $3400 in the past three years.

SALES IN BEVERLY HILLS.

Total More Than Fifteen Thousand Dollars for Eleven Parcels of Property.

The Percy H. Clark Co. report the following sales in Beverly Hills.

W. C. Lukens has bought a lot, 100x180 feet, on the west side of Beverly Drive; price $1400.

J. V. Shepard purchased a lot, 100x164 feet, on the west side of Beverly Drive, price $1300.

Joseph F. Gruss has purchased a lot, 92x155 feet, on the west side of Beverly Drive; price $1200. His intention is to build a home in the near future on this lot.

Mrs. Eva F. Ray bought a lot, 100x200 feet, on the west side of Cañon Drive; price $1500, and will improve later with a home.

Robert J. Brown has bought two lots, 75x160 feet each in size, on the west side of Rodeo Drive; price $1100 each.

George H. Peters buys a lot, 100x300 feet, on the west side of Cañon Drive; price $1750, and is now erecting a residence which will cost about $7000. The same party has also bought the lot adjacent, size 100x285 feet; price $1650.

Henry J. Stevens has purchased a triangular corner lot, about 106 feet on Crescent Drive, 200 feet on Elden Way, with an average depth of about 200 feet, and expects within a short time to erect a fine home. The same party also bought a lot on Laurel Way, 90x225 feet; price $1100.

Charles A. Poulson purchased a lot, 95x210 feet, on the west side of Cañon Drive; price $1400, and will immediately begin work on the erection of a fine home.

Hattie E. Hanna buys a lot, 100x165 feet, on the west side of Beverly Drive; price $1750, and expects within a short time to build a home.

SALE ON MAIN STREET.

Property, South of Seventh, Brings Ninety Thousand—Nearly Two Thousand Per Foot.

Main street realty has been active this week, with one sale of frontage south of Seventh street bringing in the big total of $90,000. The property in question is located at No. 721 South Main street, immediately opposite the great four-story building occupied by the Brent furniture establishment. The property consists of a lot 47x150 feet, improved with an old brick and frame building. It was sold by A. R. Maines to W. L. Donohugh and associates for the above quoted consideration. At the above consideration, the rate per front foot is about $1915, and when it is remembered that the property is only within a block of the rapidly-growing business section at Sixth and Main streets, at which point two ten-story buildings, each costing a quarter of a million dollars, are in course of construction, the price paid seems to be remarkably small.

The last sale to be reported from that immediate vicinity was of the Brent property, consisting of a lot 80.6x179 feet in size, improved with a four-story brick building, which was sold about the middle of last March for the reported consideration of $178,500.

FOURTH AND HILL SKYSCRAPER.

Plans Under Way for Seven-story Structure for Northwest Corner.

The news of the proposed construction of a modern seven-story steel-frame office building on the northwest corner of Hill and Fourth streets, on a lot owned by Mrs. R. S. Saunders, stirred up considerable comment last week among the local realty men. It is understood that a lease for fifty years has been obtained from Mrs. Saunders, and that work will be begun within four months. The lot is 60x128 feet in size. Local investors are represented by Oscar B. Smith, and arrangements are said to have been so far completed that plans are being considered by the syndicate. The estimated cost of the new structure is about $250,000.

LARGE CORNER PURCHASED.

Lee A. McConnel & Co. report the sale for Dr. D. W. Edwards of the Bimini Baths to C. T. Crowell, the southeast corner of Beacon and Ninth streets, lot 135 feet frontage on Beacon street by 170 feet on Ninth street, for the reported consideration of $21,000. The lot is improved with a two-story ten-room residence. With this purchase Mr. Crowell now owns the entire frontage on Ninth street between Union avenue and Beacon street.

The same company also reports the sale of a lot on the east side of Catalina street, 50x150 feet in size, for C. T. Crowell to James Reed, for the consideration of $2250. Mr. Reed is planning to improve with a handsome home in the near future.

EIGHTEEN PER CENT. INCREASE.

Sharp Rise Recorded by Sale of Corner at Seventh and Coronado Streets.

Quite a rapid rise in value is recorded by the recent sale of the northwest corner of Seventh and Coronado streets by Mary J. Turner for the reported consideration of $13,000.

Slightly less than ten months ago Althouse Bros. sold the corner to Mrs. Turner for slightly less than $11,000, an advance of fully $2000 being recorded, or 18.8 per cent. on the original investment, not bad for Los Angeles realty, even.

The property consists of a vacant lot 62½ feet in size. The longer frontage is on the former thoroughfare making the valuation for property twenty-three blocks west on Seventh street figure at the rate of $100 a foot. The corner was purchased by Arnold and Dodge for the reported purpose of erecting a modern apartment house, which the new owners are said to be planning at a cost of $65,000. The sale was made through the agency of Althouse Bros.

BUYS BACK HIS OWN.

Retransfer of a Los Angeles Street Business Property at an Advance.

R. A. Rowan & Co. reports the sale of No. 256 South Los Angeles street, 40x135 feet, to alley. The purchaser, Roy Livingston, sold this property to the grantor, Octavius Morgan, a few months ago, for $40,000, and buys it back again for $45,000. The present building is to be greatly improved, and will be leased to a wholesale clothing-house for a term of years.

TWO BY ALTHOUSE BROS.

The following are reported by Althouse Bros.: Jessie F. Rorick has sold to a local investor the southwest corner of Hobart and Washington streets, 75 feet on Hobart, by 168 feet on Washington street. The owner will build a very handsome residence of ten rooms, to cost about $7000; consideration $8000. Althouse Bros. and Arnold & Dodge have sold to Lawrence G. Hagg, two unimproved lots on the east side of Grammercy Place, 200 feet south of Linden avenue; lots 50x135 feet. Mr. Hagg will improve these lots with two two-story modern houses, to cost about $5000 each; consideration $3200.

COVINA ORANGE GROVE.

H. G. Hagerty reports the sale of a 40-acre orange grove at Irwindale, 2½ miles west of Covina. The land was owned by F. J. Walker, this city, and was sold to ex-Mayor Waterhouse of Pasadena, buying it for a home. The new electric line to Covina passes through this property. On this 40 acres were 22 acres in navels, 10 acres in sweets, 5½ acres in Valencias, all 14 years old, improved with a modern six-room bungalow, large barn and two deep wells. Price of the above was $41,000.

LARGE TRACT PURCHASED.

Judge Silent of Glendora Buys Land Near Foothill Town—Other Sales.

Charles Silent has purchased [illegible] P. Shorey 110 acres of land adjoining his foothill ranch back of Glendora. The purchase price is reported to have been $16,000. Sixty acres of the tract are mountain land with perennial [illegible] The remaining fifty acres are [illegible] land at an elevation of 1500 feet, commanding a splendid view of the valley below, and the expanse of orange and lemon groves. The tract will be improved.

H. M. Nichols has sold his cottage [illegible] Vermont avenue, Glendora, to C. Pierce of San Pedro, consideration $1650. The sale was negotiated by Weaver & Miller.

E. K. Metzley of Dakota has purchased a cottage of U. S. Miller [illegible] Vista Bonita avenue, Glendora, [illegible] $1700, and will occupy it as a home.

MONROVIA MOVEMENTS.

A prominent real estate dealer of Monrovia one day last week said: "There has been more prospective buyers looking over property in [illegible] city than any time before this year. Few of them are closing, however, as all seem to be a little fearful of a stringency in money matters." Many residences are reported to be in course of construction at the present time. A conservative estimate places the number at about 100 new homes. Among the larger deals of the week was the purchase of the F. S. [illegible] ranch of five acres by Dr. [illegible] Canfield for the reported consideration of $8000. The ranch is purchased for a home site. Dr. Canfield immediately will begin the erection of a commodious residence. Bigelow and Anderson are building a cottage at the corner of [illegible]ive and California streets. George [illegible]nette is building a cottage at the corner of Lemon and California avenues. C. F. Guthrie has commenced work on his residence on Orange and [illegible] avenues. Mrs. A. Calvin has commenced work on a large apartment house on the corner of Lime and Charlotte streets.

It is with pleasure that I state that I have had several teeth filled by Dr. Schiffman, and that he removed the nerve and filled the root of one of my teeth, and put on a porcelain crown which cannot be distinguished from a natural tooth, all of which was done without pain. JUDSON R. RUSH, of Davis & Rush, Attorneys, 217 New High street.

I have had porcelain crown work and some filling done, and also had ten teeth and roots extracted by Dr. Schiffman, and take great pleasure in recommending his method to any one wishing dental work done without pain.
MRS. C. W. F. SCHRAMM,
Mother of Paloma Schramm, corner of Austin and Wadsworth.

I had my upper and lower teeth extracted by Dr. Schiffman without any pain. I have since had an upper and lower set made and they fit fine. They fit so tight that it is with difficulty that I can remove them. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Schiffman and his work, and advise every one needing work done to patronize him.
MRS. F. J. KELLOGG,
146 West 14th St.

Dr. Schiffman has done bridge work and made crowns and extracted teeth for me and without any pain, and in the very best manner I am pleased to recommend him.
C. H. PENROSE,

Emma Calvé sailed on Thursday last week by the Cunard liner Pannonia for Gibraltar, whence she will travel in a leisurely way to Paris and then proceed to her chateau in the Pyrenees, where she will spend the summer. "They say I came here just for the money," said Mme. Calvé on the eve of her departure, "but the truth is that I spent most of what I got at the Manhattan on American dresses and the rest of it on American furniture, which I am taking with me." As she made nine appearances, in all, and Mr. Hammerstein paid her $2000 a night, her statement means that she placed $18,000 in circulation in the country where she earned it. She is coming back in the fall for a concert tour which will take her all over the United States and parts of South America. She said that Mr. Hammerstein had a contract with her whereby he could call on her for a certain number of performances next season if he so desired. Accompanying her was Marguerite Claire of Atlanta, Ga., who, according to Mme. Calvé, possesses a soprano voice of exceptional possibilities. As one of two protegés of the great Carmen, she will spend the summer studying under Calvé's personal supervision preparatory to making her début in New York next season.

The testimonial concert given for Charles Santley, the veteran English baritone, in the Albert Hall, London, on May 1, realized the sum of $10,000. There was a brilliant audience, including the Princess of Wales and other members of the royal family, and the programme was supplied by a notable array of artists. It is fifty years since Mr. Santley made his début. Congratulations from all parts of the world poured in on him, and from Pope Pius came a missive extending his blessing. The singer became a Roman Catholic twenty-seven years ago. Masses were said for him in churches all over England, Ireland and Scotland.

A Palace Hotel.

Achilleion, the beautiful palace built for the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria at Corfu, at a cost of $5,000,000, has been purchased by a Swiss-German syndicate, which will convert it into a hotel and sanatorium.

The palace, which is of pure white marble, was designed by the famous Italian architect, S. Carito. It contains 128 rooms and a chapel, situated in fine grounds planted with 25,000 rare rose trees.

In 1896, when the Empress left her palace for the last time, it is said that she burst into tears, and said to one of the ladies of her suite, "Something in my heart tells me that I shall never return here again." She was murdered at Geneva soon after.—[Philadelphia Record.

The Drama---Players, Playhouses, Gossip of the Stage.

TOPICS OF THE STAGE.

Robert A. Brunton, the best-known scenic artist who ever set foot on a Los Angeles paint bridge, frankly confesses that he prefers idyllic climate and a cosy obscurity to coveted but uncomfortable fame.

Brunton has painted his way from London to Los Angeles. Some of his productions of recent years have been among the finest ever made. Henry Irving's famous settings were very largely the product of his facile brushes.

And now he is creating the accessories at the Belasco. He is doing more than any scenic artist has ever attempted in this city. As far as "the looks of the thing" is concerned, Mr. Brunton is totally responsible. He makes his scenes—builds up his stage from footlights to the back drop—and then picks furniture, costuming and properties. He is the dictator of the whole material side of every play.

His pilgrimage to Southern California was brought about by the determination of his wife, who is known to thousands of people as "Jane Holly." Mrs. Brunton's mother was in very feeble health, and totally unable to withstand the rigors of variable eastern weather.

As far as Brunton himself is concerned, he might be in town a year, working scenic wonders every week, and yet even his next-door neighbors would fail to comprehend the manner of man in the adjacent house.

He has a fault of excessive modesty. He is a typical Englishman, just minus that almost inevitable self-proclamation sense of assertiveness which, transplanted to another shore and recultivated for a couple of centuries, is hailed as "Yankee nerve."

Brunton's training was gained in that excessively rigorous school which either makes constructive geniuses of men or sends them back to fence painting and sign drawing. Brunton is shocked when anybody calls him a genius—but he is neither painting fences nor writing signs.

Today he works with the most astonishing speed that any local scenic artist ever exhibited. He builds up a whole play in a day and a half. He has Blackwood's stuff hung up to dry from now till June 1—and as Mr. Blackwood hadn't decided on any plays after that date, he was forced to a brief respite.

His speed was gained in the despairing curriculum of prodigious detail. Building a new production for "Sir Henry" was a labor for Hercules, and frequently concluded with results that were diabolically disheartening.

Once, in the magnificent scenic production of "Henry VIII," Mr. Brunton labored for three weeks over two intricately rich tapestries, wall length, and aggregating only a few feet in width. The design was a combination of the rose and the pomegranate. At the conclusion of his task—in which he had consumed every available hour of daylight—they sent a committee of antiquarians around to inspect the finished product. To these spectacled cranks accuracy a la the British Museum was greater than the divine spark of inspiration. So, with their glasses, they peered and pried and grumbled, until they received the anticipated shock; each pomegranate had one too many seeds!

The seeds could not be distinguished from the front row of the orchestra as individual entities at all, and at any rate there were not a dozen men in the world who knew how many seeds this pomegranate ought to have. But the tapestries were destroyed, and Brunton made them all over.

"Sir Henry was a delightful man to work with," said Mr. Brunton the other day, "but he had a little way of final comment that would simply paralyze any stage artist who designed for him.

"In a new production he would send me the manuscript, outline hazily a few general ideas, and give me permission to go ahead. The setting—we will say—was an outdoor one. According to my custom, I would get the general scheme of the act firmly fixed in my mind, draw a mental picture of the principal situations, and make my basis on that. I would draw a tree 'way over left. On the right I would have a house, at the back a wood—and so on and on, until the whole picture was filled up. No comments yet from the front; all very well pleased apparently.

"At last, when everything was finished, Sir Henry would come formally down for a final inspection. His approval shone in his face.

"'Splendid! Splendid!' he would ejaculate, tapping the floor. And then a puzzled frown would flicker over his brow.

"'By the way, Brunton'—he would continue—'I've a new idea for a splendid piece of business; it will just require that tree moved over in the center—just a moment's touching up there.'

"And there was my whole scheme—interminably tangled, with a whole new plot practically necessitated."

Once lured away from his natural reticence, Mr. Brunton is an easy and entertaining talker.

"Speaking of working out original plots, a fellow who is thrown into new productions at all gets some funny ones. The excitement of writing melodrama seems to send some men beyond the sense of proportion into the utterly ridiculous.

"I once had a thrilling scene hurled at me for preparation, with the author's voluminous annotations carefully describing the setting-to-be. He had the hero flee into a cellar, which he described shudderingly as 'a hole in the ceiling.' The plot was oriental, and the leader would be pursued here by a horde of Moslems. Then, water was to commence pouring into the cellar—actual water, mind you, climbing away above the heads of the audience. As a climax to this awfully funny thing, the hero would be rescued in a boat, which would outsail the Saracen pursuers.

"Now the incongruity of a cellar in the ceiling, the rise of actual water, and the boat rescue did not seem to touch that author at all. I don't suppose he ever stopped to consider how a boat got into that cellar—even if it was a cellar on the ceiling. And the final 'sailing away,' with the spanking breeze of the open sea, did not seem to bother him a bit."

Very naturally, the question of stage lighting is an especially interesting one to Mr. Brunton, as it is to every advanced student of stage art.

"I do not think we shall be able to dispense with footlights," said Mr. Brunton, "even though in a strict sense they are absolutely wrong. We must have some light on the faces of the actors; we must have an even, sustained light, and I see no other way to get it.

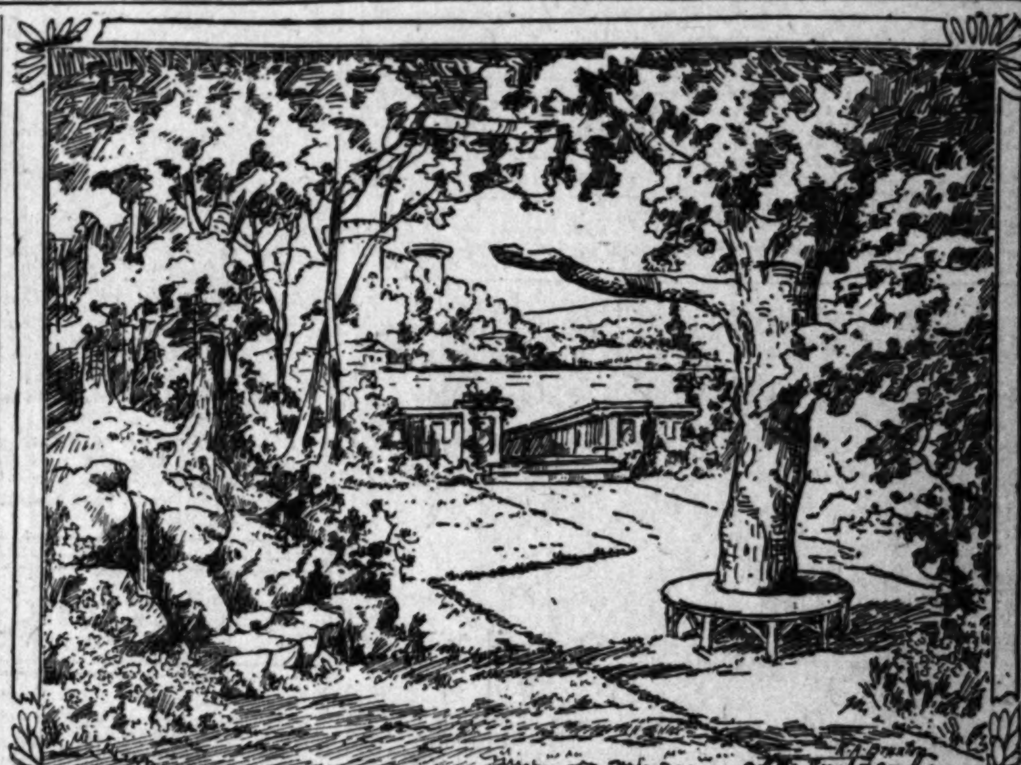
"The question of abandoning the border lights, and the borders themselves, is being seriously agitated in many of the large theaters in England, and in a few of the American playhouses. I had a long talk over it with the proprietors of the Hippodrome before I came West." To the man in the audience it may be explained that "border lights" depend in rows above the stage, hidden by like rows of foliage, wood or "sky," and concealing the top of the stage from the front seats in the theater. "The feasible idea," continued Mr. Brunton, "seems to be to turn up the back drop in a sort of quarter circle, rising above the stage, and almost meeting the proscenium, eventually. In places where the stage is of great height—so high that the top of it could not be seen by any one, notwithstanding his or her relative position, the back drop has been continued far up, and as long as the eye goes upward, it still rests upon it.

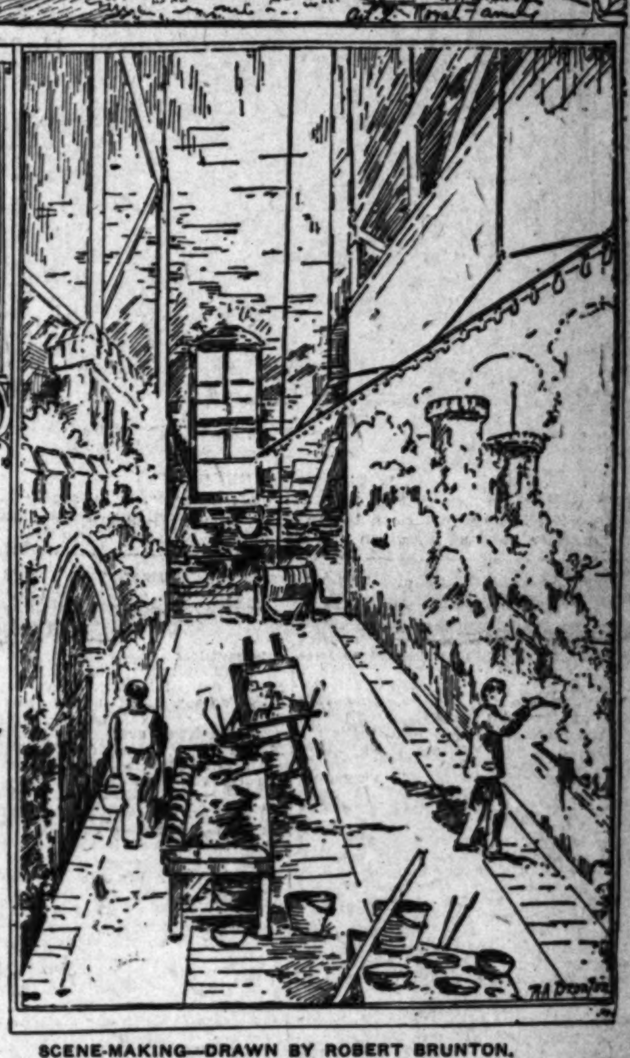
"Some new experiments of lighting from the front, with powerful calciums situated in spaces under the boxes, have been tried.

"In places there is a great distaste to the stronger electric lights. Mr. Irving's calciums, for instance, were not the electric calciums commonly known in America, but the old original calcium, with the oxy-hydrogen blowpipe attachment.

"In fact, England has never become fully accustomed to electricity in her theaters, and with many great companies the electrician is still on the pay roll as the 'gas man.'"

OTIS SKINNER.
Mr. Skinner is seen in the principal role of his powerful new play, "The Duel," which he will present in Los Angeles this week.





SCENE-MAKING—DRAWN BY ROBERT BRUNTON.
The designer of the Belasco productions here illustrates with his own pen a scene which he has prepared for a coming offering at that theater, and his own work upon it, in the "paint-bridge," swung in sky-lighted stillness forty feet above the stage.

THE LOCAL WEEK.

Interest will center tomorrow night in Otis Skinner's new piece, "The Duel," in which he will be seen at the Mason Operahouse. The play is by Henri Lavedan, translated into English by Louis N. Parker. Mr. Skinner is one of the most finished actors on the American stage. Critical comment from the East on the play and production have been of the first order.

"The Duel," briefly told, centers in the conflict between two brothers, one the incarnation of piety and spiritual devotion, the other a scientist and an agnostic. Between the two rises the figure of the Duchesse de Chailles, a descendant of French aristocracy. Her love for Dr. Morey, the scientist, is thwarted by the fact that her husband, a depraved libertine, still lives, and is under treatment at the scientist's sanitarium. She seeks consolation in the church, where at the home of the Abbe Daniel the two brothers meet face to face in a life struggle for the woman's heart. As might be inferred, the power of the soul is really stronger than gross materialism, and after a series of intense situations, Abbe Daniel triumphs.

Three remarkably good people are named as Mr. Skinner's leading support. They are Keith Wakeman, Walter Hitchcock and E. M. Holland.

The Californians will play in San Diego and around the Southern California circuit this week, the Dunkard convention—contracted for many months ago—driving them from the Auditorium stage. On their return they will be seen in a revival of "The Bohemian Girl."

"Lover's Lane," pretty pastoral play that remains a favorite, will be seen at the Burbank today, with a cast that will require the services of the entire company.

Especial attention has been paid to the scenic detail, according to the advance announcement, and two "real" apple trees have been transplanted, foliage and all, to the Burbank stage.

"A Royal Family," announced last Sunday as the current Belasco attraction, but postponed at the final moment to allow a continuation of "Before and After," will be seen tomorrow night. Lewis Stone and Lillian Albertson have leading parts, and an important role will be entrusted to Eleanor Carey, who has been absent from the Belasco plays for some time.

Foy and Clark—Harry and Florence—are headlined at the Orpheum this week in a novel act called "Under the Sea," in which Mr. Clark appears as an Irish sailor, overboard in several ways, and Miss Clark as an unsophisticated mermaid.

Charles Leonard Fletcher will be seen in a series of clever character impersonations. Among other things he presents Charles Warner's strongest scenes from "Drink," the play based on Zola's "L'Assomoir."

The Durand trio, Italian character vocalists, with a French name, will offer a programme of popular and operatic selections in costume.

"Princess" Yolanthe will bring a flock of trained cockatoos and parrots.

The holdovers are the Fadette Orchestra in a new feature, Elizabeth Murray, Kremka Brothers, and the Tourbillon bicyclists.

"Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," will entrance the Grand audiences during the week commencing today. The subject and story may be guessed from the melodramatically eloquent title. Special scenery and spectacular effects are promised by the management.

Dramagraphs.

Geraldine Farrar, the American girl who is hailed by the Paris papers as the greatest singer since Mme. Patti first thrilled the world, will make her first appearance at the opera on Friday next as Juliet, with M. Alvarez as Romeo.

Elza Szamosy, the Hungarian prima donna of Henry W. Savage's "Madam Butterfly" company, who sailed last week for her home in Europe, will be one of the principal artists at a celebration of the fortieth anniversary of Franz Josef's accession to the Hungarian throne, to be held in Budapest, beginning June 8. She will sing Carmen, Aida and Mignon once and Madam Butterfly five times.

One of the features of the bill at the Chestnut Street Operahouse, Philadelphia, this week will be a condensed version of George M. Cohan's "The Governor's Son." A large company has been engaged to present the piece, and Cohan himself will direct the orchestra at several of the performances.

The annual meeting of the directors of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company took place at No. 150 West Fortieth street, New York, on Wednesday, when officers were elected for the coming year. W. Bayard Cutting, who presided over the meeting, is authority for the statement that the question of Heinrich Conried's return as director of the operahouse was not discussed on this occasion.

Arthur Roberts tells an amusing story of an unsuccessful comedy. When the curtain rose at a matinée performance there were fifteen people in the house. In the front of the house there was only a young girl in the second row. In the first row of the balcony sat one young man. As the leading man spoke his first line, "The sea is purple; have you, too, noticed it?" the voice of the young man in the balcony responded: "I don't know about the young lady downstairs, but I can see it very nicely up here."

In Chicago a battle royal among the advance representatives and press agents is in progress just now, and each one is racking his brains to devise some new method of drawing attention to his attractions. Eddie Dunn, who represents "Fifty Miles From Boston," seems to be in the lead just now, for following the prevailing Paris craze he has engaged a woman cab driver to take him around to the newspaper offices. He rides in an open-faced, seaworthy vehicle, drawn by a pair of white horses. The cabby is a deliberate blonde, who knows all there is to know about guiding horses.

London's dramatic critics have taken kindly to "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," which was given there for the first time last week. With one accord the reviewers treat the piece, not as a play, but as a picture of life, and, though none of them is able to say of his own knowledge that it is true, they all seem convinced that just such persons as appear in it really exist. Even A. B. Walkley, the brilliant critic of the Times, says: "If there are no such people, and no such manners, we feel that there ought to be." The work of Mrs. Madge Carr Cook has been highly commended on all sides, and the American success of the piece bids fair to be duplicated in London.

All the way across the ocean, according to the news brought in by the Campania, Ellen Terry, the English actress, bound homeward on the slow-sailing Minnetonka, has been the recipient of wireless messages of congratulations from passing steamships, sent by those who had learned of her marriage in Pittsburgh last March to James Carew, her leading man. As soon as the Campania passengers heard of her presence on the Minnetonka last Wednesday morning they began to shower congratulations upon her by wireless, she responded graciously and other messages announced that a chain of ships almost all the way across the ocean, one after the other, had picked up the Minnetonka by wireless and had offered a telegraphic ovation to the bride.

Sir Henry Irving was at one time a witness in a case of street robbery. He had seen a sneak thief make off with a girl's pocketbook, and he consented to appear as a witness for the girl. The thief's lawyer was of the type that roars and rants at witnesses and attempts to break them down. He tried this method on the distinguished actor. "And at what hour, sir, did this happen?" asked the lawyer. "I think ——," began Sir Henry, when the lawyer interrupted with: "It isn't what you think, sir; it's what you know that we want!" "Don't you want to know what I think?" mildly asked the actor. "I do not," the lawyer snapped out. "Well, then," said Henry Irving, "I might as well leave the witness box. I can't talk without thinking. I'm not a lawyer."

Lillian Russell got her season's disappointment in "Barbara's Millions," to which one hard-hearted person alluded as "Barbara's Thirty Cents." She failed in it in Chicago and in New York, and then went starring in "The Butterfly." One of the reasons that she will hardly fail in that is that she is now taking rose petal baths, which are an improvement over Anna Held's milk baths. One of the keenest disappointments was the financial failure of the American tour of H. B. Irving and his wife, Dorothea Baird. They played to small business, and this under the management of Charles Frohman. Yet E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, who had done comparatively little under the Frohman management last season, got all the money this year when they enlisted with the Schuberts. James K. Hackett has had his falls of fortune in the last twelve months. Chicago saw one of them in "The Alcayde," which he produced at the Grand operahouse. "The Girl in White," with Pauline Frederick as the girl, was another, and Henry Miller, who, like Hackett, is an independent manager, drew his in "On Parole."

The Musical World.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

Why is it that Los Angeles has not one military band of the first order?

The consensus of directorial opinion is that the town will not support it—a statement which is not exact cause for proud reflection.

Monologue cracksters at the Orpheum sometimes throw their shafts of Reuben-ridicule at Long Beach—but when it comes to municipal pride for first class music, Long Beach has Los Angeles backed down to the status of a tank town.

Our lack of at least one stirring, martial band was sadly demonstrated in the long lines of the Fiesta parades, where the best music was furnished by the visitors. Some of the leaders say that the Fiesta promoters refused to pay for a big organization; but the probability remains, that had we possessed one good, rousing aggregation, renowned for its vigorous productions, that company would have gone into line whatever its price.

Such an organization used to be referred to as a "brass band;" nowadays the only "brass bands" are in Podunk and Swampville, and in the very poor Salvation Army posts.

The military band of the present day is the outgrowth of a hundred years' experience, principally in the armies of Europe and America. The military band is less than half brass. It is only metallic enough to reinforce its tone for outdoor use. The band of strings plays within an enclosed chamber; the military band, with its mellifluous woods backed by the strength and resonance of a judicious number of brass instruments, is the orchestra of the open air.

A great many people are wondering why we can't have a band of citizen musicians, speaking the English language, yet giving a proper and ample interpretation of really good music.

And thinking of local band men, one naturally turns to "Billy" Arend, who made a success of the only really big band Los Angeles ever produced. Arend's summer at Venice, two years ago, was one of the supreme hits of our musical history.

But this band passed away, and it has never been reorganized. There is no prospect in sight whereby it may come to life again.

Arend says there is no demand for good band music in the town; that we will never support a first class organization, one to be proud of on the street and admired in the concert hall, until there is a realization, on the part of band audiences generally, as to what good band music really is.

"Poor old lame 'Frisco," says Arend, "puts up a band of forty of fifty men, every Sunday, in one of her parks. And the people flock in crowds.

"In Los Angeles, it apparently makes no difference as to whether the band has fifteen men or fifty. That's the secret of the small band and its continued existence here. Resort men, beach men and park men feel that a band is not a drawing card, and until the experiment is tried, and proven successful, they will be chary of taking up the proposition.

"There's nothing so desperately discouraging as the endeavor to build up a big band in the face of indifference. In the first place, big bands do not grow in a day. It takes months to smooth them into perfect tone, and here, just when you've completed your band, it's time to dismiss it. It's heartbreaking, that's all."

This plaint is re-echoed by Director Moore, one of the few who has cast off completely the shackles of unionism. Moore, with the Eastlake Park contract, has been hammering away at his small company, and has been getting good results out of really unusual programmes.

The two extremes of foreign invasion here are represented by Vessella, at Long Beach, and a poor benighted clown in a monkey suit, who tried to storm the oft-hammered Venice strongholds last winter with a "Ladies' Orchestra," acrobatically handled.

Vessella, a man of refinement, education and great musical instinct, has made the Long Beach concerts famous throughout the county. The other, not only a joke but an excuse for the villification of all foreign instrumentalists, has merely dragged down the standard of music.

One interested citizen, who feels with The Times that a local military band of some size and consequence should be started, writes encouragingly, but says finally, "the majority are tired of foreigners and want a first-class American band that will play something that appeals to ordinary people."

This has a suspicious sound. If our American band is to squeak plaintively on "Dearie," Remick's hits and coon songs, as its principal provender, may it never come into existence. As in literature, there is little of national restraint in music. We want real music—music that touches heart and mind, whether written by Nevin, Strauss, Wagner, Tschaikowsky or Puccini. No great band, not even Sousa's popular organization, ever attained celebrity on trash.

Two small bands quite outside the Los Angeles pale have done unusually good work in the past three or four years. These are at Catalina and the Tent City of Coronado.

Musical Events.

Fred D. Hawkins of Salt Lake and Clark A. Shaw of Portland have been in Los Angeles the past week, consulting with L. E. Behymer concerning concert tours on the Pacific Coast next season.

Lillian A. Smith, a talented young Los Angeles pianist who has just returned from three years' study in Vienna with Leschetitzky, will be heard in concert at Gamut Hall on Friday evening. She will play the Weber concerto in F minor, the opus 26 Beethoven sonato, two compositions by her master, and several minor masterworks.

A new local organization, known as the Philharmonic Quintette, will give concerts this month in Pomona, Riverside, Venice, Long Beach and San Diego.

The members are Louise Nixon Hill, Miss Miriam Eskridge, Miss May Orcutt, Mrs. Nuncia Bittman and Mrs. Carolyn von Benzon.

Benjamin Rosenthal, a well-known young Chicago pianist, will make his home in Southern California.

Next Friday evening W. F. Skeele will open the new three-manual organ in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Redlands. Mrs. Catherine Collette will be the vocal soloist.

The closing exercises of the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music and Arts, under the direction of Mrs. Emily J. Valentine, indicate a year that is eminently satisfactory from an artistic standpoint.

Last Saturday afternoon the complimentary juvenile concert was held, the entire programme being contributed by students under 10 years of age. On Friday night the graduating recital of Ina M. Penwarden took place. Miss Penwarden, pianist, was assisted by Miss Mabel Collins, vocalist, and George Pierson, reader.

Nordica at Home.

Feeling slightly fatigued and happy that her vacation is at hand, Mme. Lillian Nordica has just returned to New York, says the New York Herald, after completing a five months' tour with Henry Russell's San Carlo Opera Company, which traveled more than 12,000 miles from the time of the opening performance in New Orleans, last winter, and played in almost every city of any consequence in the South and West and up through the Northwest and British Columbia.

Her repertoire of operas included not only those in which she has been heard during recent reasons in the Metropolitan, but Italian operas in which she had not sung for seven years.

Arriving from Montreal a few days ago, where her final performance of the tour was given, Mme. Nordica lost no time in getting to her country home in Ardsley on the Hudson. When seen there a few days ago, she talked interestingly of her tour. She was delighted with the welcome accorded her on the trip. Another fact which especially delighted her was to find that after seven years of singing Wagnerian roles, she was able to go back to "La Traviata" and win a success in the Italian opera.

"I was delighted with the tour of the San Carlo Opera Company," said Mme. Nordica, "and I wish to emphasize the fact that Mr. Russell is deserving of congratulation for his management of a company which, starting out almost an unknown quantity, in many instances broke all operatic records in the cities visited.

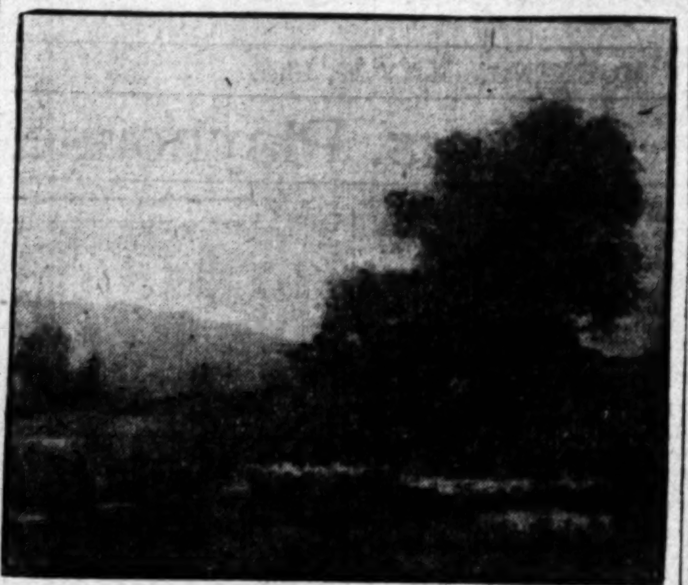
"It was through the far West that I most enjoyed our tour. That is indeed a glorious country, and were I a man my first impulse would be to turn my face toward the setting sun and travel as far as I could. For there in that wonderful country are the boundless opportunities for enterprise that most men welcome."

Mme. Nordica will rest at her beautiful home in Ardsley Park until perhaps the end of next month, when she will go abroad to obtain a complete set of costumes for the roles she is to sing next season with the Manhattan Opera Company. "I have promised Mr. Hammerstein to sing at least twelve operas next season," said the prima donna, "and for all of these roles I feel that new costumes will be necessary.

"I shall open the season at the Manhattan on November 4 in 'Tristan und Isolde,' when Charles Dalmores will be the Tristan. Besides all the other Wagnerian operas in my repertoire, all of which I expect to sing during my first season at the Manhattan, I will likely be heard in such operas as 'La Traviata,' 'Aida,' 'The Huguenots,' 'La Gioconda' and at least two new works."

WILLIAM F. AREND.

This well-known bandmaster says that Los Angeles, with nearly 300,000 people, has not yet risen to the point of supporting one first-class, full military band of American musicians.



THE NEW MOON, BY HOBART BOSWORTH.

This is one of the thirty-one landscapes that Hobart Bosworth, the famous actor and stage director, is now showing at the Steckel gallery. The most of them are Arizona subjects, though a few from California and Canada are also shown.

Work of an Actor-Artist.

Forced to live on the desert for a time last year, Hobart Bosworth, now stage director of the Belasco Theater, turned his fine talent in a new direction—that of painting—and he now offers the Los Angeles public the result of his happy labor, thirty-one canvases in oils, mostly of that picturesque part of Arizona which the actor-artist could see from the porch of his home in Tempe. The remaining pictures, to the number of six, are from California and Canada.

Mr. Bosworth's alertness and versatility have ceased to surprise us. We know, both from observation and hearsay, that he is a man of unusual intelligence and culture, and we have gotten into the way of expecting him to "do things." And he is certainly doing them. He acts and directs, he writes fiction and gives lectures on dramatic art, and it is even said that he is now writing a romantic play dealing with times and persons that have so far evaded the limelight. He also paints pictures.

The first impression one receives, on entering Steckel's gallery, where Hobart Bosworth's latest pictures of Arizona are hung, is that of the painter's absolute sincerity. He has painted these scenes because they appealed to him, and his eye has been single; therefore he has seen the truth, and therefore his pictures are without trickery. They are simple and direct studies of nature, painted by a man who loves both art and nature too well not to be superbly—and perhaps recklessly—honest in his declaration.

I fear me that nature has occasionally betrayed her devotee's simple honesty, for she has smilingly lured him on to try to paint the unpaintable. The result, now and again, is a canvas of some crudity of color—glaring and grandiose, and without either atmospheric or decorative charm. Yet, despite these lapses, or rather because of them, Mr. Bosworth succeeds in winning our respect and admiration. He has dared "do all that may become a man," and even a little more. He has handled his brushes like weapons of warfare—and his occasional defeats have only proclaimed him a bigger hero. "They fail, and they alone, who have not striven."

Arizona is so scenic that it offers appalling difficulties to the painter of easel pictures. How is one to get the so-called "atmosphere"—that is, the refined nuances that rising vapors give to a landscape—when he may not see the cloud "no bigger than a man's hand" for over a year? Where local color is so very local that, though it may be in a mountain fifty miles away, it still seems to shriek out at one from a distance of twenty feet?

Of course, not being a professional painter and having had no technical training whatsoever, Mr. Bosworth has not always been able to express all that he has felt; his hand has not always followed his inspiration. The result, as he is a man of delicate perception and refined sensibility, is work that has much poetry but not a great deal of strength. It is lyric often, epic never. It has good and agreeable color, for the most part, but, being sketches made directly from nature, its composition is not always according to the cut and dried rules of the purists. Many people will like it all the bettter for this fault—if it is a fault, and not a virtue.

We may expect, I think, ever better and better work from Mr. Bosworth's brush. Time and experience will give him the freedom and strength that he needs. He is already the fortunate possessor of invaluable artistic assets—noble sincerity, poetic sensibility, and much temperament. I should add courage, for his exhibition proves that he is afraid of nothing; and he has certainly thrown down the gauntlet to the critics.

A review of some of Mr. Bosworth's pictures makes me wonder why I found fault with any of them, for he has painted not a few that are delightful in every way. Take, for instance, his "Desert Starlight," with its true foreground and its rich, vibrant night sky; or his "Afterglow," ripe in color, lovely in feeling, and painted with a swing that is masterly. In "The Four Peaks," the peaks themselves are especially well done. "Autumn Haze," shows a good sky, and mountains delicately pink, that are as haunting and elusive as the shadow of a dream.

Other pictures that one will remember long after leaving the gallery are "Willows and Furze," with a very tender color scheme; "Hoar Frost," showing a phase of Canadian springtime; "The New Moon;" "Mirage on the Desert," etc.

This interesting exhibition will remain open to the public for one week longer. No one interested in the progress of art in Los Angeles should miss seeing it.

Pictures by Mr. Conner.

Another non-professional painter is having an exhibition this week. This is Albert Clinton Conner, whose pleasure is painting, but whose everyday work lies within the gamut of music. Mr. Conner is showing forty-one oils at his home studio on Griffin avenue. The most of these are California landscapes, though there are also a few marines. Among the latter, indeed, is perhaps the best picture of the exhibition, "Fishing Boat in a Fog," showing that the artist might become "a very successful marine painter if he would.

Albert Clinton Conner is the president of the Painters' Club of Los Angeles, a group of artists whose influence is already being felt in our art life, though it is hardly yet a year old; he was also one of the founders of the club, which is modeled on the plan of a similar club in Richmond, Ind. The Richmond club, started many years ago by Mr. Conner and a few kindred spirits, has grown to be a power in the land; some of the best painters in America are proud and glad to send their work to its annual exhibitions.

Like Hobart Bosworth, Albert Clinton Conner shows the clear, pure note of sincerity to a remarkable degree. He is a painter because he loves nature, and for no other reason whatsoever. He has painted very few pictures in the studio sense; his work is composed almost entirely of sketches, done from start to finish out of doors. This, he believes, has been the better way for him, whatever his brother painters may thing of it. There can be no doubt, at any rate, that Mr. Conner's method has given his work spontaneity and freshness, though it has also produced some compositions that are lacking in grace of line and balance. Then, too, it has tended to make him say, too, much at times—to use many words where a few would have expressed more. A too close leaning on nature is apt to paralyze the faculty of selection, impelling one, almost against his own will, to lay undue stress on the obvious and unessential. Mr. Conner has fallen into this danger more than once. He also suffers somewhat from overconscientiousness, and the result very often is hardness of definition where loose suggestion would have been truer and better.

Yet Mr. Conner's good qualities as a painter are as patent as his defects, and they are so many that they quite overbalance the latter. His color is delightful, full of the most subtle and delicate grays; his feeling is for the truth in nature that makes for poetry; his technique is direct and unaffected, naive and agreeable, the handling of a man contentedly in love with his work. His aim as a painter is to let others feel and know the pleasure nature's beauties give him every day of his life, and he succeeds most admirably in his modest and kindly ambition. What more have we the presumption to ask from any artist?

The subjects of Mr. Conner's pictures are everywhere in our immediate neighborhood, lovely bits from the Arroyo Seco, the San Gabriel wash, the shores at Long Beach and San Pedro. He has never found it necessary to go far afield, for he has the soul that sees.

Among the pictures that linger in the memory are his "Fishing Boat in a Fog," big and simple in its treatment, and showing a genuine love and understanding of the sea: "Foggy Morning—a Study," with pearly grays in beach and sky; "A Cloudy Day," another beach study; "Early Spring in the Arroyo," full of delicate greens; "A Fair Wind," "Oak Strewn Mountain Side," "A Glimpse of Lake Elsinore," etc.

Sincerity is the noblest attribute of any man be he layman or artist. The two painters whose work it has been my privilege to review this week have it in a marked degree, and therefore their canvases are worthy of sincere consideration from all of us. This I have tried to give them. Not careless praise, not thoughtless blame, but the earnest study that their work deserves.

The exhibition of the pictures of Albert Clinton Conner will remain on view for one week longer. If we neglect them, we ourselves will be the losers. The artist has a message for us. Let us receive it.

Mrs. Wendt in Chicago.

Julia Bracken Wendt, the sculptor, who left recently for a summer of hard work in Chicago, has already found plenty to do. She has just finished a huge bronze memorial of the late Gurdon S. Hubbard, one of the oldest and best known of Chicago's residents. This was placed in the Chicago Historical Society the other day. Mrs. Wendt is also modelling a memorial tablet to Mrs. Hubbard.

Other important work before her are a bronze memorial tablet in honor of the late Marshall Field, to be placed in the Field Museum, as well as a life-size bust, to be done in marble, of Dr. Sarah Hackett Stevenson. Mrs. Wendt will probably not return to Los Angeles till the summer is over.

ART NOTES.

The second annual exhibition of Arts and Crafts, to be held in conjunction with the Architectural Association's first annual exhibition, will open to the public on May 21 at Associated Arts Hall, No. 718 South Spring street. The 20th will be devoted to the private view for members. There will be no charge for admission.

Gertrude Estabrooks, the well-known painter of flowers from Chicago, has taken a studio in Blanchard Hall, with the intention of remaining there for some time.

William Swift Daniell gave a reception at his studio last Tuesday in honor of his cousin, Percy Atherton, the famous musical composer of Boston. About thirty guests, painters and musicians were present.

Forty paintings have been presented to the National Gallery of Art, Washington, by William T. Evans of Montclair, N. J., and will be known as the Evans collection. The value of the collection is estimated at $100,000, and it includes work by George Inness, Homer Martin, Alexander H. Wyant and John H. Twachtman, and by these living painters: Winslow Homer, Ralph Albert Blakelock, Louis Paul Dassar, Henry W. Ranger, J. Francis Murphy and John La Farge.

The prize cover competition held by the Woman's Home Companion, in which cash prizes aggregating $3500 were offered for five cover designs, is concluded. The jury, consisting of Sir Casper Purdon Clarke, Robert J. Collier, Will H. Lowe, Alexander W. Drake of the Century Magazine, and I. H. Chapin of Scribner's Magazine, awarded the prizes as follows: First prize, $1500, E. Stetson Crawford; second prize, $1000, Louise Cox; third prize, 500, H. C. Wall; fourth prize, $250, Blanche Greer, and fifth prize, $250, Herman Pfeifer. More than 4000 designs were submitted during the competition, a number coming from England, France, Japan, Canada and the West Indies.

The second public competitive art exhibition is being held at Watertown, N. Y., under the direction of the Municipal Improvement League of that city. The collection of twenty-two pictures has been gathered by the New York painter, Charles Frederick Naegele, who in a note in the catalogue states that "primarily it is an educational proposition in which the people take an active part to build their own public collection with a small outlay," and further that "the aim is also to create a broad interest in art." The plan followed is that of an admission fee of 10 cents entitling the visitor to a vote, and this money is used to purchase one or more paintings according to this popular choice for the municipal art gallery. Los Angeles ought to sit up and take notice. What is being done in the East might be done in the West.

KNIFE UNNEEDED IN APPENDICITIS.

NO SURGEON PERMITS OPERATION ON HIMSELF.

Recent Deaths of Bishop Delaney and Archbishop Montgomery Have Called Attention to the Unnecessary Work Done by Surgeons That They May Charge Big Fees.

The recent death of Archbishop Montgomery of California from appendicitis, close following that of Bishop Delany of Manchester, N. H., from the same cause, has stimulated physicians who believe in operations in these cases to be unnecessary to renewed efforts, says the Chicago Chronicle.

Eminent surgeons disagree as to whether or not the knife should ever be used in cases of appendicitis and there are many who insist that if either of these clergymen had sought medical aid before appendicitis had reached the critical stage the lives of both Bishop Delany and Archbishop Montgomery might have been saved.

The two men were close friends. In fact, when Bishop Delany died one of the most sympathetic letters received by his relatives was from Archbishop Montgomery, then in the full flush of health.

Many surgeons have insisted for some time that operations for appendicitis were all nonsense; that recovery was much more certain when the knife was not resorted to and have quoted statistics to prove their figures.

It has even been claimed that operating for this disease has become a mania among surgeons, who, in some instances at least, are moved by the large fee which attaches to an operation, a much larger amount than could be charged for prescribing a simple but perhaps more effective remedy.

It was only the other day that a surgeon was granted a verdict of $2000 against the estate of a woman who had died after an operation for appendicitis. Experts testified that the operation was a success in every way, the trifling fact that the patient died not seeming to count at all.

When appendicitis first came to be much discussed the appendix was declared to be a worn-out organ, a relic of some primeval ancestor, but that view is no longer assented to by all surgeons. Scientists of repute now declare that the appendix is a very necessary part of the body and performs a certain function of digestion. They assert that few people after it has been removed live a great number of years. Ten years, they say, is a long time for a man or woman to live after the appendix has been removed.

A leading physician said recently: "It is nonsense to say that the appendix causes abscesses, for they can be found in any part of the intestines. The operation is absolutely illogical. It only complicates the case and greatly increases the risk of life and recovery.

"When Sir Thomas Lipton was in New York just before the yacht race he was taken down with the scourge. A consultation was arranged, at which a distinguished surgeon made a most extraordinary proposition.

"He must not lose the race," he said. "There is no time to operate, and we must cure him in another way.'

"And there was no operation, and Sir Thomas got well. A warm concoction of equal parts of milk and molasses, three pints in quantity, injected by means of a syringe and long rubber tube, was the treatment. It originated with Sir Albert Clarke, a leading London physician, and in nine cases out of ten will obviate the need of an operation.

"This treatment is much better than an operation, but it is not so effective as the simple treatment of making frequent injections of tepid water into the bowels, hot cloths on the abdomen, frequently changed, and a tablespoonful of olive oil every half hour until there is an improvement.

"To make it palatable, the oil may be mixed with a little tomato juice or lemon juice. There should be an absolute abstinence from food, the only thing taken besides the oil being just enough water to quench the thirst."

A physician whose practice is confined exclusively to the treatment of patients in the French army, one Dr. Chauvel, has recently published instructive statistics upon this point.

He sets up the contention that in 90 per cent. of the cases treated by this nursing process the patients have recovered. In 1902 he observed the treatment of 668 patients suffering from appendicitis in the hospitals of Paris.

Of this number, 188 were subjected to a surgical operation, and 480 were treated in the other way. Twenty-three of those subjected to surgery died, and in the other cases there resulted but three deaths.

These facts have aroused intense interest among American physicians, whose general belief seems to be that surgery as a cure for appendicitis will be much less used in the near future.

The death of Mrs. Selwyn, widow of famous bishop of New Zealand, recalls one of Sydney Smith's grimmest witticisms. He was seeing the newly consecrated bishop off on his departure for the distant diocese.

"Good-bye, my dear Selwyn," he said, shaking the episcopal hand affectionately. "Good-bye. I hope you'll agree with the fellow that eats you."

Mrs. Matthews has lived in Los Angeles a large part of her life and is popular in social circles of the city. Since her marriage numerous delightful functions have honored her. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews are planning to leave the beginning of the warm weather for Venice, where they expect to summer.

Mrs. Bresee's Luncheon.

Mrs. Paul Bresee entertained Wednesday with a 1 o'clock luncheon at her home, No. 1126 Santee street. There were seven courses, and all were served in the lavender color scheme. Place cards were hand-painted with violets. The dining-room was lighted by brass and silver candelabra. Those present were Mmes. J. Tyler Parker, A. S. Glidden, Van Nuys, C. H. Gage, and Miss Unthank of Pasadena, Mrs. J. G. McLean of Venice, Mrs. Seth Glidden of Avalon, and Mmes. P. W. Bresee, E. W. Bresee, M. A. Bresee, E. Ayres, J. Lowe, and Misses Bresee and M. Young.

Miss Bailey Engaged.

At a jolly whist party given for the Delta Pi Sigma sorority, whose members had been invited to meet Miss Lena Watson of San Diego by Miss Albertina Boyer, the guests were apprised of the engagement of Miss Edith Bailey and Harry B. Isaacs, Jr. The young people were students at high school together, and there the romance began which consummates in this engagement announcement. The bride-to-be is a daughter of Mrs. Agnes B. Bailey of No. 616 Bixel street, and the groom is a mining man of Cananea, Mexico. The wedding will take place in the near future in Denver, where Mrs. Bailey and her daughter expect to go soon to make their home.

Miss Boyer's party was a prettily appointed one, and the home was decorated in the sorority colors, lavender and purple. After the games, the guests were invited into the dining-room, which was gayly festooned with red hearts and decorated with scarlet flowers. Here they were seated about a table decked with red sweet peas and ferns, and here at each place were walnuts, in whose depths were inserted pictures of the engaged couple, and the announcement, which came as a decided surprise to all the friends.

Those who enjoyed the afternoon were: Misses Florence Allen, Enid Behymer, Elsie Behymer, Ruth Morris, Mildred Neiswiender, Jennie Heartt, Georgia Sparks, Marie Wakeman, Lucille Johnson, Edna Auger, Eva Danziger, Milfred Adams, Estelle Summers, Mabel Bradt, Lena Watson and Albertina Boyer.

Mrs. Wilson's Luncheon.

Mrs. Erasmus Wilson of No. 7 Chester Place entertained Friday with a handsome luncheon as a compliment to Mrs. John A. Logan, who for many years has been an intimate friend of hers.

Pink sweet peas and airy pink tulle decorated the table charmingly and at each place were ivory fans bearing the autograph of Mrs. Logan, and the guest's name in gold lettering. The drawing-room was ornamented with huge clusters of American Beauty roses and ferns and later in the afternoon Mrs. J. M. Jones gave a delightful programme of harp music, while Miss Carroll McComas whistled several numbers.

Those who enjoyed the affair were: Mmes. Logan, G. Wiley Wells, J. T. Fitzgerad, Samuel J. Whitmore, John T. Bigelow, Henry Caldwell, Frank Burnett, Caroline M. Severance, Matthew S. Robertson, John H. Norton and John T. Jones.

Twelve Five Hundred.

The Jolly Twelve Five Hundred Club was entertained most delightfully on Wednesday evening by Miss Lucy Hauerwaas at her home, No. 2703 South Hoover street. Guests were: Misses Edna Pfilig, Rosa Huebsch, Annie Matthiae, Pauline Matthiae and Gertrude Hauerwaas, and Henry Wolfrom, J. A. Schwarz, L. Sweet, Robert Killian, George Friese and Albert Schaefer.

Lamda's Dance.

One of the enjoyable functions of the summer will be the dancing party which the Beta chapter of Lambda Theta Phi Sorority is planning to give, and which is to take place on Tuesday evening, June 11, at Kramer's Hall. Invitations for the affair are to be issued this week.

Mrs. King Returns.

Mrs. George W. King of St. James Park has just returned from New York, where she went to attend the wedding of her grand-daughter, Miss Fargo of that city, which was one of the brilliant nuptials of the season of that city.

At Church of Angels.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Siegel of Westlake avenue have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Hazel Siegel, to Albert A. Peters. It is to take place on Wednesday noon, June 5, at the Church of the Angels, Garvanza.

Miss Moore Winning.

Miss Isabelle Moore, niece of Dr. H. E. Vreeland, a bright young girl of this city, is winning in dramatics, having recently taken part in the different plays presented here. She has had several good parts and displays talent, being especially suited for ingenue parts. Her fluffy brown hair and eyes make her daintily pretty.

Many to Participate.

Among prominent people, who are to assist Mrs. John H. Norton in the lawn fete for the benefit of St. James's choir, which she is planning for Wednesday afternoon and evening are Bishop and Mrs. Joseph H. Johnson, Rev. and Mrs. Gouverneur Morris, Mmes. Walter B. Cline, Josiah E. Cowles, Albert Crutcher, Charles Praeger, Sumner P. Hunt, E. F. Huntley, Hugh L. MacNeil, Kate Vosburgh, Margaret Hobbs, O. E. Coles, Emma Cheatham, Willoughby Rodman and T. J. Fleming.

The musicale is to be a feature, but there are also to be many pretty booths and other attractions, and one of the picturesque ones will be that presided over by Miss Pearl Seeley, a cigar booth it is, and here, beneath the palm trees on the lawn, Miss Seeley, in Egyptian costume, with her fair attendants, will sell their wares. Mrs. Walter B. Cline is in charge of the ice cream booth, which is to be also on the lawn. Another attractive booth will be the Indian booth, where three pretty fortune tellers, in costume, will preside, and they are Misses Maizie Mather, Barnetta Norton and Juana Creighton. Dainty little Mrs. Tom Lee is to be assisted at the punch bowl by Misses Amy M. Norton, Lucille Gay, Marguerite Drake and Sarah McFarland. Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt is to have the tea room, which is to be Japanese, and the following bright little maids, in Japanese kimonos, will serve: Misses Margaret Fleming, Louise Fleming, Genevieve Wilcox, Louise Hunt, Amy Busch and Marjory Tufts.

News of Society—Gossip of Men and Women—Weddings, Parties, Dinners.

MISS ANNA M. NELLIS of Topeka, standing, and her sister, Mrs. Harmon D. Ryus, whom she is visiting, and who will entertain soon with a dancing party for her.

The star performers at the affair will be Miss Gertrude Cohen, one of the favorite pianists of this city, who will play both afternoon and evening. Madame Bishop is to sing, also, and Miss Mollie Adelia Brown has promised some numbers. Mme. Bishop's number is to be "The Garden of Karma," an Indian love song. Miss Louise Hill will give her delightful ballad series in costume.

Miss Blanche Hall and William Desmond are to appear in a selection from "Mizpah." Mr. Russo is to sing among other numbers, an aria from "Rigoletto."

—o—

Stantons Entertain.

"Owl's Nest," P. A. Stanton's beautiful home at Bay City, will be the scene this week end of a large house party. Guests will be largely visitors from the North. On Saturday Miss Adeline Stanton entertained fifteen of her friends with a luncheon and boat ride in honor of Miss Mooser and Mrs. Charles Niles, both of San Francisco.

—o—

San Gabriel Party.

Mrs. Florence Thompson of Sioux City, Iowa, invited friends to join her in a ride on Thursday to the San Gabriel mission, where a Spanish lunch was served to twelve ladies, after which all returned to the city at 6 o'clock. The ladies presented Mrs. Thompson with a souvenir of Southern California.

—o—

Lindley Luncheon.

Mrs. Walter Lindley and Miss Haynes entertained with a charming luncheon yesterday at their residence at No. 2007 South Figueroa street. Handsome decorations and appointments characterized the affair.

—o—

For Miss Nettleston.

In honor of Miss Rose Nettleton, who is soon to leave for a tour of Europe, members of the Sigma Delta Club entertained with a theater party at the Auditorium, followed by a luncheon at Christopher's. The table here was decorated with pink carnations, and greenery and place cards were adorned with hand-painted sketches of the ship upon which Miss Nettleton is to sail.

Guests for the afternoon were Mmes. Leroy Daniels, Burwell Homes, Jr., Robert K. Wilson and Misses Flora Wallafe, Friede Ludeman, Juanita Lane, Madge McGraw, Emmie Luentzel, Elizabeth Lindenfeldt and Grace Van Alstyne.

—o—

Miss Taylor to Leave.

Miss Lovell Taylor, the sparkling blonde beauty who has been a visitor here for several weks, expects to leave soon for New York City to continue her stage work. Miss Taylor has been entertained cordially here by numerous friends, who have arranged gay little outings for her. Miss Taylor is on her vacation, being a bright young actress of the metropolis, where she has played leading parts with Raymond Hitchcock, Louis Mann and Annie Russell, and was at the opening of the new Astor Theater, one of the much-admired women on the stage. She, with her sister, Grace Hull, will leave soon for New York. They have been spending the time as guests of their sister, Miss Jean Craib, at Hotel Percival.

—o—

May Festival.

Mrs. Corella Phipp and Miss Lottila Corella have issued invitations for a May festival, to be given by pupils of their school, assisted by the students of Spanish in the Marlborough School, in Cumnock Hall next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The language department will be represented by one act from the Spanish classical play, "El Si de las Miñas," by the advanced Spanish class in the Marlborough School; a series of Spanish proverb charades, written and dramatized by the first-year girls in the same school, and by French and Spanish dialogues, songs and games by children in the Ocean Park and Los Angeles classes. In the dancing class a May Queen will be crowned by a tiny court maid, with appropriate songs and dances. Seated on her throne, Her Majesty will review a May-basket dance by twelve flower girls, a scarf drill by her six maids of honor and a series of Spanish tamboureen and castanet dances, with accompanying songs, ending with a ribbon drill. The May-pole dance and song given by two groups of children in distinct figures will follow, and the festival will close with a grand march and general dancing by the pupils and guests.

Miss Miner Engaged.

An interesting engagement has been whispered about for some time, and today it is formally announced that Miss Pansy Miner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Miner, of No. 158 West Thirty-fifth street, will become the bride of Earle Slaughter, June 19.

Miss Miner is a charming, vivacious girl, and through her sunny disposition and gracious manners has won a host of friends. She is a talented violinist and pianist, and deserves much praise for her skillful and artistic work on both instruments.

Miss Miner will, no doubt, be the recipient of much pleasant entertaining, owing to her popularity among a large number of young people here.

—o—

Poppy Whist.

Mrs. H. McBee, No. 1357 East Walnut street, entertained the Poppy Whist Club. The home was beautifully decorated with callas, roses and pink carnations. The score cards were dainty and pretty. Mrs. M. Holman won first prize, a fancy vase. Miss C. E. Webster received second prize, a Japanese salad bowl. The consolation prize, a pin tray, went to Mrs. J. W. Lytton. Refreshments were served after the afternoon's pleasure. The next meeting will be held Wednesday of next week at the home of Mrs. E. Todd, No. 1245 East Twentieth street.

—o—

For Mrs. Yerxa.

Misses Kate McKechnie and Irene Cummins were hostesses at a charming little affair on Wednesday evening given in compliment to Miss Yrtle Yerxa and Hugh Duff, whose engagement has been recently announced. The affair was given at the home of Miss McKechnie at No. 218 West Fifteenth street.

Progressive games were played, in which Miss Lucy Lindsley won the first, a silver cream jar, and Glenn Huntsberger won the boy's, a silver pencil holder. Miss Leithold was given the consolation. Those who enjoyed the evening were: Misses Myrtle Yerxa, Irene Cummins, June Leithold, Lucy Lindsley, Beatrice Duff, Ella Ludwig, Mildred McKechnie and Mrs. McKechnie, Mrs. Cheney and Messrs. Hugh Duff, Emerson Duff, Tom Murchison, Clevshelt, Glenn Huntsberger, Louis La Rose and B. Morgan Jones. Emerson Duff was toastmaster at the supper and a number of spirited toasts to the future bride and groom were delivered.

Magnolia Five Hundred.

The Magnolia Five Hundred Club were entertained on Thursday by Mrs. A. G. Hicks at her home, No. 1200 Magnolia avenue, at their last meeting of the season. The home was effectively decorated with pink roses and carnations. The first honors were won by the hostess herself, while second fell to Mrs. Cribb. Those who enjoyed the afternoon were: Mmes. R. B. Wilson, B. L. Lewis, R. S. Lanterman, Frank Lanterman, L. M. Booth, J. C. Cribb, J. C. Clutter, Allison Wallace, J. Spence, Elizabeth Arnold and J. H. Francis.

—o—

Shower for Miss McLaughlin.

Mrs. Addison Lysle of Arapahoe street was hostess at a handkerchief shower given by the Neighborhood Club on Wednesday for Miss Lillian McLaughlin, one of the young bride-elects of the spring. The home was decorated in flowers and ferns and those present were: Mmes. Charles G. Stivers, Watson, Lysle, C. A. Westbrook, A. M. Squires, J. Spence, Harry Booth, James and Misses Marion Crandall, Bess Arnold and Tedford.

—o—

For Kingsburys.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace N. Taylor of No. 922 Blaine street entertained at dinner the past week, in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kingsbury, who were here for the Fiesta. Mr. Kingsbury is the State Surveyor-General and was on his way home from Washington. The dining-room, which is in Dutch blue, was decorated with pink sweet peas and ribbons, and pink-shaded candelabra. Covers were laid for ten.

—o—

Miss Pearne to Be Bride.

Miss Harriett Pearne, who is to become the bride of Walter Bryson the middle of June, was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower given at Hotel Guirnaldo, Pasadena, by Miss Glazebrook. The afternoon was spent in playing whist, the prizes being won by Mrs. Oscar Geoffrion and Mrs. Cabon. Later a lovely luncheon was served in the banquet hall, where the decorations were in pink sweet peas. The parlors were beautifully decorated in red carnations. Recently Mrs. Woodson of Thirty-fifth street gave a plate shower for Miss Pearne and on the evening of May 1 Mrs. Frank Yates Pearne tendered her sister a kitchen shower, when over fifty guests enjoyed an evening in dancing. Several other social functions are planned for the near future in honor of Miss Pearne. Mrs. Charles Mason of No. 4356 South Flower will entertain Monday afternoon with a linen shower in honor of Miss Pearne.

—o—

Davidson-Straus Function.

Mrs. Anstruther Davidson and Mrs. Arthur Straus of Hollywood entertained delightfully on Tuesday and Thursday at Mrs. Davidson's home.

On Tuesday a dainty luncheon was served followed by bridge whist and "Five Hundred." About fifty ladies were present. Prizes were won at bridge by Mrs. Bogardus, first; Miss Jane Campbell, second; Mrs. Whitley, third.

At "Five Hundred," the first prize was won by Mrs. Hoag; second, Miss Winstanley; third, Mrs. Waldron.

On Thursday Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. Straus entertained at cards from two o'clock until four. The reception was from four until six o'clock.

The house was beautifully decorated, with each room in a separate color scheme. The living-room and sun-room were in yellow; the reception hall in red; the dining-room in pink, white and green, the blue-room in marguerites and sweet peas and the green-room in white and green.

Assisting the hostesses were Mesdames Hoff, Hoag, Douglas, Holland, Toberman, Hammond, Churchill, Jepson and the Misses Hoag, Douglas, Higgins and Davidson.

Prizes at "Five Hundred" were won by Miss Shrader, first; Mrs. Brada, second; Mrs. Jepson, third, and Mrs. Somers, fourth.

About 150 guests were present.

—o—

Miss North Returns.

Miss Helen North has returned after a delightful visit of some six months with her brother and sister-in-law in Tonopah, coming home by way of Berkeley and Stanford.

—o—

Mrs. Daly Here.

Mrs. Marcus Daly is expected to arrive here this evening to be the guest of her sisters, Mrs. J. Ross Clark of No. 710 West Adams street, and also of Mrs. Joseph A. Lewis of No. 2311 Juliet street, for several weeks. In honor of Mrs. Daly, Mrs. Clark is planning to entertain next week. Mrs. Daly is the wife of the late Marcus Daly, the copper king, of Montana, who was the first president of the Amalgamated Copper Company.

—o—

Miss Nellis Here.

Many friends of Miss Anna M. Nellis of Topeka, Kan., will be interested to learn that she is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Harmon D. Ryus of No. 703 Valencia street, for a short time. Miss Nellis is on her way to Manila and Japan, and expects to sail from San Francisco on June 5, with some eastern friends.

Miss Nellis, like her sister, Mrs. Ryus, is unusually interesting and talented, and has spent much time abroad, having written, while there, several interesting books of travel. Mrs. Ryus is planning to entertain with a dance for her sister and also a theater party, the date having not been set.

Mrs. Ryus, whose artistic work on the piano has not been heard in public here, is to play before the Ebell Club tomorrow afternoon. She is a musician of much discrimination and has received honors abroad seldom given American girls. In addition, she is possessed of an unusually sunny and attractive personality.

—o—

For Miss Holson.

Harriet Holson was honored on Thursday with a pretty luncheon at the Jonathan Club, given by Miss Marjory Burbank, followed by a box party at the Belasco. Miss Holson expects to leave on Monday for the East. She will go directly to Chicago to visit relatives, and from there will travel through the East. Other guests were: Misses Marguerite Winston, Carolina Winston, Gertrude Mullard, Burbank, and Mrs. Hall, who was chaperon.

—o—

Mrs. Paul's Party.

Mrs. Roland Paul of No. 1066 West Washington street was hostess yesterday at a prettily-appointed tea given in compliment to her cousin, Mrs. Churchill Taylor of Oakland, who is her house guest for several weeks. The home was attractively decorated with clusters of fresh roses and ferns, and in the dining-room the table was spread with lace doilies, and pink roses decorated the table, while pink bows and pink-shaded candelabra heightened the artistic effect.

Miss Joanna Kinsinger played harp music throughout the afternoon, and about one hundred guests were entertained.

Assisting the hostess in entertaining were: Mmes. W. W. Shrader, Edward E. McDowell, Robert Hosea, B. D. Wright, J. N. O. Rech, Metzger and Misses Helen Wachter and Louise Hahan.

MRS ADELAIDE MACGREGOR, hostess at a musicale.

—o—

Mrs. McGregor's Party.

One of the delightful functions of the week was a musicale and whist party given on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Adelaide McGregor of No. 1315 West Seventh street, in compliment to Mrs. E. W. Caldwell.

The home was decorated with sprays and garlands of asparagus plumosa, and pink and white sweet peas, and later a dainty collation was served. Mrs. Belle Hacker sang "Life's Lullaby" and other numbers most delightfully. Miss Alice Close Brown gave some interesting readings, and piano solos were given by Misses Hazel Ralphs and Edna McCabe.

Attractive prizes were given, Mrs. McCabe winning the first, a handsome cut-glass olive dish, while the second, a Eutopian vase, was won by Miss Louise Kellogg, and the third, a Dutch picture, fell to Mrs. J. B. Kellogg.

Those who enjoyed the function were Mrs. C. H. Kellogg, George A. Ralphs, J. Edward Brown, J. E. Storms, J. W. Kellogg, J. B. Ralphs, Belle S. Haecker of Long Beach, T. L. Goldsborough, H. H. Francisco, C. E. Wilbur, R. A. Todd, W. S. Gilbert, Will MacKnider of San Francisco, and Misses Hazel Ralphs, Louise Kellogg, Mabel Watkins, Gladys Goldsborough, Alice Clare Brown, Anna Belle Ralphs and Edna McCabe of Long Beach.

—o—

For Miss McLaughlin.

Mrs. A. G. Hicks and Mrs. L. M. Booth of No. 1200 Magnolia avenue entertained on Friday afternoon with a matinee party at the Auditorium, followed by a luncheon at Christopher's Broadway, in compliment to Miss Lillian McLaughlin, whose engagement to Royal Booth was recently announced. The table decorations at Christopher's were in pink sweet peas and ferns, with pink satin ribbons and shaded candelabra to complete the effect.

Besides Miss McLaughlin and the hostesses, those who enjoyed the afternoon were: Miss Ethel Shrader, Miss Marian Crandall, Miss Elizabeth Arnold of Galesburg, Miss Jess Houston, Mrs. Weston Clark, Mrs. George A. Crandall, Mrs. Robert P. Sherman, Mrs. E. R. Shrader and Miss Ethel West.

—o—

Salyers Leave.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Salyer and Miss McGaughey will leave tomorrow evening for an extended pleasure trip. Their itinerary will include all of the large eastern cities; then, after visiting in Virginia and attending the Jamestown Exposition, they will go to Montreal and Quebec and return by way of the Canadian Pacific. They are expected to be home by August 1.

MISS ISABELLE MOORE,

Smart New Linen
Suits, Coats, Dusters

ADVICES from the East acquaint us with the fact that among discriminating women linens in the natural shades of tan will be quite the smartest material in wash wear this summer. We have just received a very complete assortment of Women's Suits in these natural linens. They are tailored models, with semi-fitted and tight-fitting backs—and for the most part with three-quarter length coats. These suits are beautifully finished, and have a smartness and style that bespeaks their exclusiveness.

We also have in these natural linens—light shades of tan—separate coats and dusters, the latter made especially large and full in the skirts.

These linens are now on display in our Women's Department. We suggest that you see them early in the week as our supply is limited.

BASEMENT.

Out-of-Town Society

organization of a literary society that is to hold weekly meetings.

The Venice Literary Society is a new beach organization that promises to enliven affairs along the strand. Its organization was effected Wednesday afternoon and meetings are to be held regularly every Friday evening in the European section of the exposition building. The officers are: Mrs. G. G. Watt, president; Ernest Searelle, secretary; Miss Ella Slauson, treasurer; Mrs. Abbot Kinney, vice-president. The society plans to give entertainments for charitable purposes, the first one being a woman's minstrel performance at the auditorium. The funds arising from this will be used in assisting in the purchase of a lifeboat for the surf. Later a performance of "Pinafore" will be given from a ship's deck on the lake in front of the amphitheater. The money thus raised will be used in endowing a ward in the new Santa Monica Bay Hospital.

Commodore Lawton on Thursday evening tendered a banquet at the Cabrillo to the members of the beach police force. Brief talks were made by Mr. Lawton and C. L. Foster, who is at the head of the force. Those present were Walter Mills, F. F. Rice, John Hosick, Henry Ivey, Louis Jacobs, F. J. Barton, A. Avela and Ray Conly.

A Form Sublime to Those Who Take Willard White Co.'s

Vaucaire Galega Tablets

Bust Developer, Flesh Food and Tonic

They are far better than any liquid preparation. One box tablets more than equals 2 bottles of liquid. They fill out shrunken parts, develop the bust, create a natural appetite, produce restful sleep and clear the complexion. If you are careworn, nervous and run down, try a box of VAUCAIRE GALEGA TABLETS, and note their wonderful effect. They contain no injurious ingredients.

Willard White Co., Chicago, Ill.:

Dear Sirs: I have spent a small fortune on Beauty Creams. One box of your Melorose has done more for me than all the rest combined. It is simply wonderful. I am recommending it to my friends. Sincerely yours, MRS. J. W. McCARTHY. 926 N. 12th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Another expression, one of thousands:

Willard White Co., Chicago, Ill.:

Dear Sirs: After using your Vaucaire Galega Tablets and Melorose Beauty Cream I find they are wonderful for the complexion and sunken places, and inclose you $1.50 for another box of Vaucaire Galega Tablets and a box of Melorose Cream. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, yours respectfully, Feb. 17, 1906. MRS. M. E. BATES, Palestine, Tex.

ENDORSED by physicians, noted authorities on beauty culture, editors of beauty columns of leading publications and the New York Health Journal, the great medical authority. Three weeks' treatment $1.00. Six bottles $5.00. SENT BY MAIL, IF DESIRED.

Society.

their last monthly all-day meeting for this season Wednesday in the church parlors. During the morning the ladies sewed and at noon a luncheon was served by the ladies of sections 1 and 4, of which Mrs. C. F. Rohrer and Mrs. J. W. England had charge. Thirty-five ladies partook of the luncheon. In the afternoon a business session of the society was held. Next Wednesday the annual meeting will be held, with annual reports and the election of officers.

The ladies of Mrs. Hathaway's Sunday-school class of the First Methodist Episcopal Church were pleasantly entertained by Miss Mary Henderson at her home on Delmar street Tuesday evening. Games, music and refreshments constituted the evening's pleasure. Miss Henderson will leave soon for her home in England.

Charming was the tea given Tuesday afternoon between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock by Mrs. W. R. Cheney for her cousin, Miss Malone of Louisville, Ky., who is a guest in the Cheney home. Those pouring tea were: Mrs. Mary C. Curtis, Mrs. H. D. Moore, Mrs. J. E. Brookings, Mrs. Frank Mudge. The unbonneted women were: Mrs. E. S. Graham, Mrs. Harmon R. Scott, Miss Annie Kitching and Miss Georgia Brookings.

Mrs. R. Noman Palmer gave a five hundred party Monday afternoon for Mrs. Donald C. Scott of Toledo, O., who is a guest of her father, E. M. Lyon, for several weeks. The first honors in the animated game of five hundred were carried off by Miss Ruth Lyon and Miss Grace Gill. Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon. The rooms were decorated in pink and white blossoms.

The Shakespeare class of the Women's Contemporary Club held its final meeting for the season Tuesday morning and closed the study of "Hamlet" by sketching the characters of Hamlet, the King, the Queen, Ophelia and others of the prominent characters in this tragedy. The club will continue its work next season under the leadership of W. K. Dare, when the study of "Macbeth" will be taken up.

Miss Mabel Patty, whose marriage to Thomas A. Ogden next Wednesday evening will be one of the most notable and beautiful affairs taking place in Redlands, was the honoree at a linen shower given at the home of the Misses McClelland on West Palm avenue Saturday afternoon by the young ladies of the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Society. The various bits of linen were tied in packages and secreted about the rooms, and Miss Patty was elected the "hunter" of the afternoon. After the hunt refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

The juvenile vocal and piano pupils of Harry R. Patty and Miss Mabel Patty gave a recital at the Patty home Saturday afternoon. The youthful performers were: Catherine Holt, Walter Haskell, Lucy Levering and Pauline Pitts. They were assisted by Mr. Kendall, tenor; Miss Patty, soprano, and Mr. Eckles, violinist. About thirty-five parents and friends listened to the recital and afterward enjoyed refreshments.

A social was given at the home of Miss Bessie B. Cheesman Friday evening, when the "Whites" of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist Church entertained the "Blues." Games and refreshments were enjoyed. The house was tastefully decorated in roses and callas.

The Women's Branch Alliance of the Unitarian Church on Wednesday afternoon elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Daniel Shepard; vice-president, Mrs. J. E. Fairchild; recording secretary, Mrs. A. J. Hendrickson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. S. Devol. The work of the year was outlined, after which tea was served.

The Standard Bearers of the First Methodist Episcopal Church held their monthly business meeting Monday evening in the church parlor. A number of business matters were taken up, after which musical selections were given by Miss Fackler and Miss Higby.

The Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church met in the church parlors Monday afternoon. Miss Merwin of Pasadena spoke of the missionary work among the Spanish. Mrs. J. O. Ford told of hte progress being made in the orphanage work, and Mrs. Skinner gave an interesting account of the work being done in San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

Mrs. I. L. Lyon and granddaughter, Miss Ruth Lyon, entertained with a large tea Thursday afternoon, from 4 until 6 o'clock, to meet Mrs. Donald C. Scott of Toledo, O., who is a guest of E. M. Lyon. The house was elaborately decorated in sweet peas and ferns, and during the afternoon orchestral music was discoursed. Those assisting at the refreshment tables were: Mmes. Lelan Lyon, J. W. England, Edwin A. Landell, Jr., E. S. Graham, E. A. MacDonald, A. C. Cameron, Harmon R. Scott, Misses Cornwall, Partridge, Hornby, Burrell, Kitching, Brookings and Hale.

The Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Society to the number of about twenty-five gave a tallyho ride to Urbita Springs Wednesday evening for Miss Mabel Patty and Thomas A. Ogden, who are soon to be married. A picnic supper and an hour's swim were enjoyed.

The Dorothy Club is meeting this afternoon with Mrs. Charles Nelson at her home on Sylvan Boulevard. Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Garstin read articles from current magazines, after which there was a discussion and the serving of refreshments.

Long Beach.

THE terminating social event of the year for Long Beach Ebell will be on Monday evening, June 3. It is planned to have the event a fitting social close to a delightful and profitable year. The programme for the evening will be under the direction of Miss Laurelle Chase.

A pleasant affair Sunday was the family reunion at the home of R. L. Snodgrass, the first in forty years. The old family home was in Ohio, but one by one the brothers and sisters came West until only a brother and sister are left in Ohio, and they, too, were present Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Robinson gave a 6 o'clock dinner, Monday evening, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Ward and Miss Claypool, who left Friday evening for their home in Springfield, Mo.

Mrs. Lelia Brown entertained the Women of Woodcraft, Monday, at an attractive luncheon at Stewart's Hall.

Mrs. John Ena gave a farewell luncheon Friday, at her home on East Ocean avenue, in honor of Misses Malone and Marriott, who were leaving for their northern homes.

Rev. and Mrs. Frank E. Edwards and daughter, Opal, will leave Monday for a two months' visit with relatives and friends in Iowa and Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Aylsworth left for Boston Saturday and will sail for Europe June 8. They expect to be absent until October.

The Happy Times Club met Thursday night with Mrs. W. H. Chamberlain and entertained their husbands with a mock initiation.

Miss Josephine Browne was hostess Thursday at an informal "at home," to meet Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond of Chicago. The affair turned into an impromptu musicale. A number of guests were present from Los Angeles.

The ladies of the Friendly Fifteen were entertained Tuesday at the home of Miss Callie West, on Chestnut avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Day entertained informally Wednesday evening at dinner, in honor of Miss Grace Hortense Tower of Pasadena.

At the Catholic Church, at noon Wednesday, Father Geary united in marriage Miss Mogiorio Oroseo and Reginald Bustamente.

Mrs. Nellie Loomis entertained a number of ladies of Ebell at her home on Locust avenue, Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Herbert L. Smith and daughter, of Pismo, are the guests of Mrs. E. H. Jackson.

Mrs. Jotham Bixby, Jr., was hostess, Wednesday afternoon, at an elegantly appointed luncheon in honor of her house guest and schoolgirl chum, Miss Ethel Decker of Palo Alto.

Mrs. D. M. Cate entertained at her home on East Ocean avenue, Wednesday, in honor of Mrs. J. J. Penny. The morning was spent with fancy work, and following noon luncheon the afternoon was devoted to sociability.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. R. D. Tinklepaugh entertained the members of the Alamitos Library Association.

The members of the Oak Leaf Club were guests, Tuesday, of Mrs. W. J. Speers at a chafing-dish party which took place in the parsonage. The affair was a farewell to the hostess, who, with Dr. Speers, will move north next week.

Mrs. F. C. Foote entertained former members of the Clover Club, Saturday afternoon, in a delightfully informal way, in celebration of the birthday of Mrs. H. M. Seeley of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Harry Palmer had as luncheon guests on Saturday, Mrs. George Porter of Salt Lake City and Mrs. A. P. McGinnis of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sprunger were pleasantly surprised Thursday evening by members of the Y.M.C.A., of which Mr. Sprunger is secretary.

Santa Monica.

THE women of the Afternoon Club were entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. W. T. Gibbon at her home in Topango Cañon. The party left the beach by private conveyance at 9 o'clock in the morning, and the entire day was spent in the rustic shades of the wild retreat.

Mrs. Lewis Kohl of Ventura is a guest of relatives on the beach, where she formerly made her home.

Henry Holcomb of Detroit, who came West with the Shriners, spent a few days with beach relatives.

Mrs. T. H. James and Mrs. F. H. Taft are at Palo Alto, visiting and attending the graduation exercises of Stanford University.

Miss Edith Abels of Third street is entertaining her mother, Mrs. H. E. Abels, of San Fernando.

Mrs. Howard Watkins is visiting here from Kingman, Ariz.

Mrs. H. A. Warner has gone to West Virginia, where she will visit during the summer.

Mrs. C. A. Tegner of Second street is entertaining Mrs. A. R. Hodgkins of Denver.

Mrs. Rose Keyser of Kansas City is the summer guest of her sister, Mrs. L. A. Ingersoll.

W. B. Womer was a visitor here for several days. His home is in Pillsbury, Kan.

The engagement of Miss Margaret Hanses to Edward Leavitt of Los Angeles is announced. The marriage is to take place early in June.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Symington have returned to their home by the sea, after a visit with relatives at Redlands.

N. T. Curran is at Arrowhead for a brief vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles are at Norwalk, where they are the guests of friends.

C. B. Folsom has arrived at the beach from Tekamah, Neb., and will make his home here. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Folsom.

Mrs. E. H. Rose has been spending a few days at Riverside among the orange groves.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Guidinger have left on a camping tour through the Yosemite Valley and the big trees. They go overland, being thoroughly equipped for a happy season of six months in the open air.

Mrs. L. E. Hubbell is spending a couple of weeks with friends at Garvanza.

Mrs. J. J. Rowe is spending some time at San Diego, visiting with acquaintances.

Miss Essie M. Roberts was married Wednesday evening to George T. Carter, the ceremony being performed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bach on Irwin Heights. The young couple are to make this beach their permanent home, residing at Ninth and Marine streets.

STREAKS OF HUMOR.

Made Him Tired.

"Well," growled Mrs. Nugget, inspecting the new house he had found, "there are disagreeable features about this place that you didnt' mention before."

"They weren't here before," snapped Nagget.

"What features are you referring to?"

"Yours."—[Philadelphia Press.

No Love Lost.

"Yes," said Miss Kreech, after her solo, "I expect to go abroad to finish my musical education."

"Indeed?" remarked Miss Knox. "Why not finish it right now, and save the expense?"—[Philadelphia Press.

Figuratively Speaking.

Statesmen in Washington, over their black coffee and cigars, are telling a little story about Chief Justice Fuller of the United States Supreme Court. The Chief Justice, so the story runs, met an old-time friend, and after a hearty hand clasp, Mr. Fuller remarked:

"You are looking exceedingly well. Aren't you filling out a little?"

"No, indeed," replied the friend. "You probably think so because I'm looking Fuller in the face."—[Judge.

Her Answer.

"Now, children," said the kindergarten teacher, "I have explained to you how many trees give us food, in the way of fruit, and in other ways. You remember that I said man taps the maple trees to get maple syrup. Where does tapioca come from, then?"

"I guess," said Olive, after a pause, "that you tap the oaks, don't you?"—[Judge.

The Doctor's Value.

Mother (to doctor:) Sir, can you come and see the baby? It is very ill. It has cried for four days, and I fear will be dead before I get home again.

Doctor: Then there isn't much use my coming to see it.

Mother: Well, sir, we thought it would be better if you were in the house when it died on account of the police.—[Simplicimus.

The Honest Office Boy.

"Did you tell that awful bore who called that I had gone to New York?"

"Yes, sir," said the new office boy. "I told him you had started this morning."

"Good boy! What did he say?"

"He wished to know when you'd return, sir, and I told him I did not think you would be back until after lunch."—[Tit-Bits.

A Slight Joke.

It was 11:30 p. m. according to the gyrations of the cuckoo clock.

"There is something the matter with my watch," remarked young DeBorem. "It doesn't go."

"Perhaps," rejoined Miss Wearyun, as she vainly tried to strangle a yawn, "it is due to the unconscious power of personal association."—[Chicago News.

Took the Hint.

"Do you think a game of kissing is a comedy?" asked the bashful young man.

"No, indeed," replied the pretty girl; "I think it is an opera."

"An opera? And why?"

"Because it is always grand."

And then he got busy.—[Chicago News.

Drilling Chinese Soldiers.

The Chinese army is being put upon a nearer equality with the armies of other nations than has ever been the case in the past. Among the methods adopted for hardening the recruits is the requiring each to carry sand in his knapsack. For the first day he carried two ounces; on each succeeding day he increased this amount by two ounces, until at last he was carrying sixteen pounds. On this particular day the recruits were carrying twelve ounces. The general also informed us that these men could run in the way we saw them running for ten consecutive hours, and arrive at the end of that time in a fit condition for fighting. Their "double time" is less in time and length of step than our own; it is like a running walk, though somewhat faster. It is said that the Italian troops practice a similar gait and can run great distances.

Money Saving Is Increasing

People are gradually learning its enormous value.

Never in the history of this country has the saving habit been so popular as it is today.

The "fever" has attacked both young and old, and the savings banks are overflowing with deposits.

The savings banks are safe but the interest paid is only about 3 per cent., which is hardly a fair profit.

In contrast to this, the Continental Building & Loan Association which is known as a co-operative bank, pays interest on deposits.

Monday Is to be the Great Silk Day of the Year at Los Angeles' Greatest Silk Store

A great part of the selling space in aisles 10 and 11 will be given over to silks. Extra salespeople will be on hand. There's to be a spread of values superlative in its unusualness.

The raw silk market keeps climbing higher and higher, and putting manufacturer after manufacturer into difficulty. We helped one of them to get on his feet. He wanted to sell all his stock in one big lot at a ridiculously low price, so that he could buy raw silk again, and keep his mills going and everyone happy.

The Broadway's buyer happened to be on hand.

And Monday this great lot of silks will be out with hundreds of yards of our own good regular stocks at under prices, we've made in sympathy. Read the values we quote here. Come to aisles 10 and 11 and buy silks as you haven't had the opportunity to buy them before this year. Come early for crowds gather quickly when prices like these are quoted.

Pre-Inventory Sale of Furniture

Starts Tomorrow, Monday, May 20th

We will soon begin to take stock. Most everybody knows what a task that is and everyone with any knowledge of business knows how everybody in a concern likes to make a showing. "Lots of cash and little stock" is the story in a nutshell. That's why we are holding this sale. That's the reason for these big reductions.

We Must Reduce Our Stock at Once

This sale will be conducted --- just as all Barker Bros.' sales are---on strictly honorable lines--no deception--nothing but honest advertising--absolutely true reductions. The need for the sale is all the more urgent on account of the arrival of 30 cars of furniture that should have been here months ago. We have got to hustle to reduce our stock.

Barker Bros

$12.75 Oak Dresser $9.15

It scarcely seems reasonable, but every stick in this dresser is solid oak, not scrub oak, either. The design is just as you see it in the picture herewith.

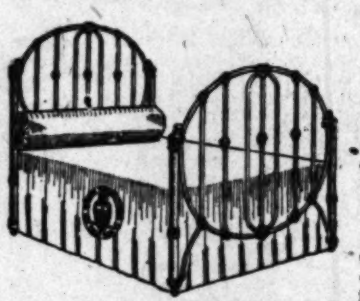
Chiffoniers

Chiffoniers are reduced on the same basis as dressers. We never do things half way. When we cut prices we go the limit.

Matchless Bargains in Iron Beds

During this Sale, at least nine-tenths of the iron bed business of the town will be done in our store. We show scores of beds—all prices from $3.75 up. We're reducing all of them and some prices are cut square in two.

We show here two sample bargains which demonstrate our system of price cutting. Our stock comes principally from the Simmons factory.

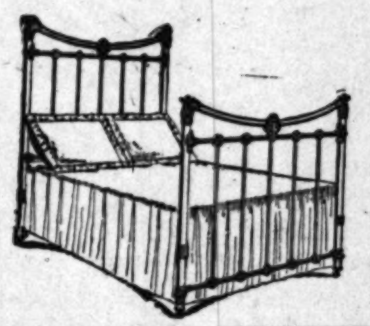


The One On The Left $5.75

The regular price is $7.50 and some stores ask $10 for one not so good. We have it in green and gold and cream and gold.

The One On The Right $6.35

Our regular price is $8.50. This one you can have in cream, plain green or green and gold. The same bed in Vernis Martin costs $1.00 more.

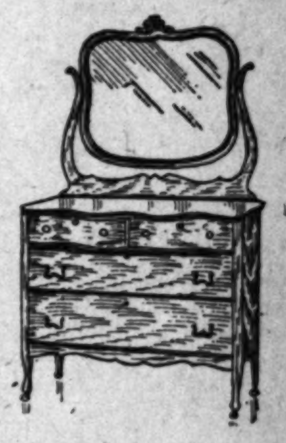


$32.50 Oak Dresser $20.50

This dresser is made of selected quarter-sawed oak. The finish is golden and it is hand polished. The cabinet work is perfect. The mirror is heavy beveled French plate.

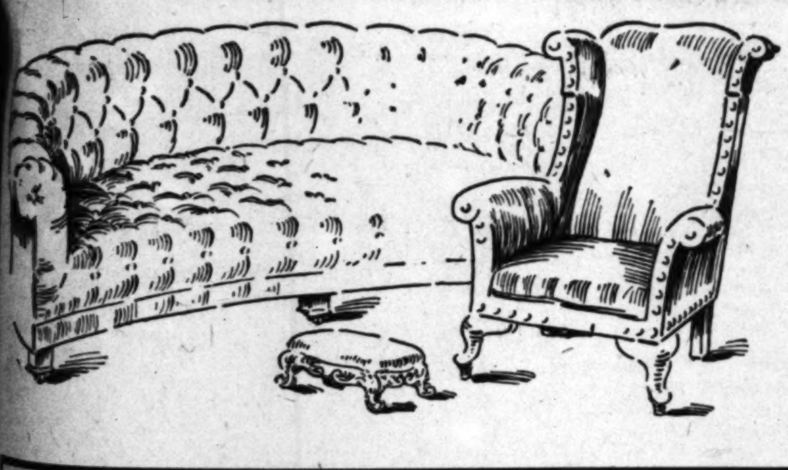
Plenty More

You'll be astonished at the number of odd dressers on our floors. No other store in the country carries such a variety. Every price is cut.



Nearly 5000 Samples on Our Floors--Not One Piece Excepted

The Finest of Parlor Furniture Greatly Reduced

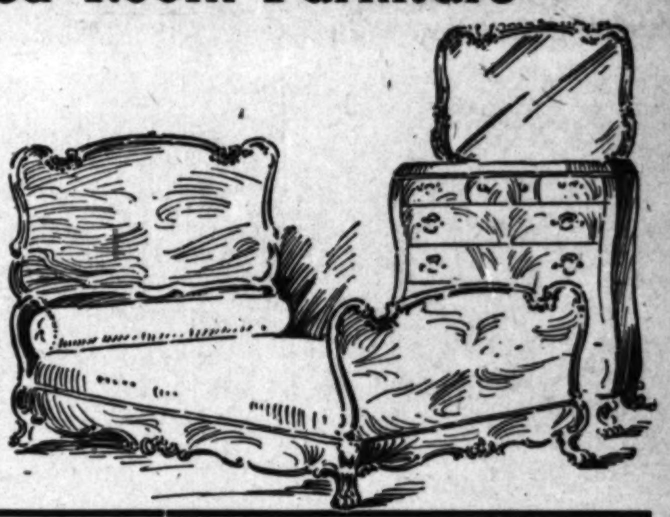


The need for stock reduction is great in this department. Our stock is entirely too heavy. We have marked many odd pieces at less than cost to make sure of closing them out. We have a big stock of correct period designs in solid mahogany, in many cases hand carved. Practically everything is in the muslin so that you may select your own coverings—something in harmony with the color scheme of your room.

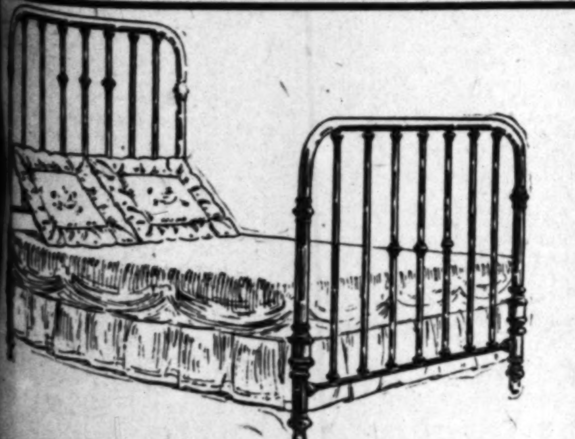
Mahogany Bed Room Furniture Sacrificed

We carry the biggest and unquestionably the best stock of high-grade bedroom furniture in the West, and we sell it : notably fair prices. When reductions of from 15 to 50 per cent. are in effect, it is time for those who appreciate quality to investigate.

Our stock comes from the best factories in Grand Rapids, such as Berkey & Gay, Sligh Furniture Co., Widdicomb & Co., in fact, we control all the best lines. This sale is not scheduled to last long, so if you are interested, we advise you to come at once.



Price Reductions on Furniture Range from 20 to 50 Per Cent



$50 Brass Bed $37.50

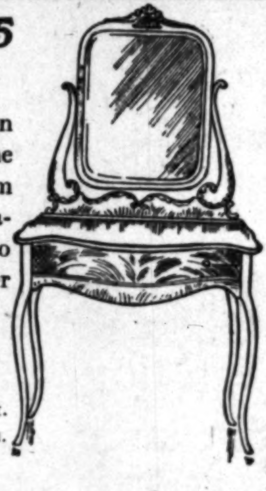
A great bargain. The design is shown in the picture above. The [illegible] are two inches in diameter and the fills extra heavy. You have your choice of the bright or satin finish. This is a bargain YOU ought to investigate.

Dressing Tables at 25 Per Cent Reduction

There will be a 25 per cent. reduction tag on every odd dressing table in the house. This includes everything from $15.50 up to the fine pieces in solid mahogany. There are some exceptions to this rule—some prices are cut nearer one-third.

Chairs and Rockers

for the bedroom are reduced 25 per cent. at least. We have too big a stock of them. The assortment is extra good.

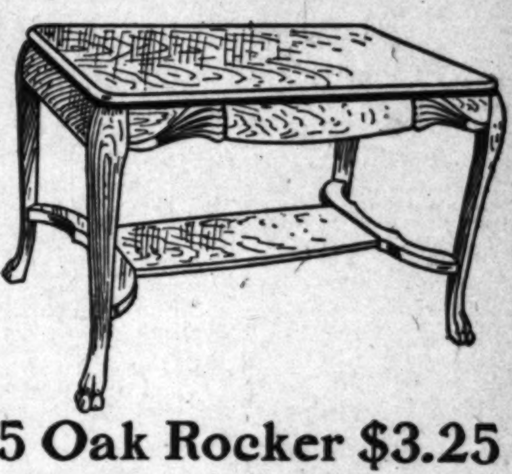


This $25 Library Table $17.25

Exactly like the picture on the right. We have it in both quarter-sawed oak and mahogany finish. This table comes from the celebrated Bailey factory, where quality comes first in all things. You won't be able to find a flaw in the cabinet work, for there are none to find.

Plenty More of Them

You won't have a bit of trouble in selecting a library table during this sale. Our stock is extra large—much larger than we want it to be when the stock sheets go in. Prices range from $15 up.



Sample Brass Beds $2.25

We have several sample brass beds which we are closing out at 25 per cent. reduction. See them sure.

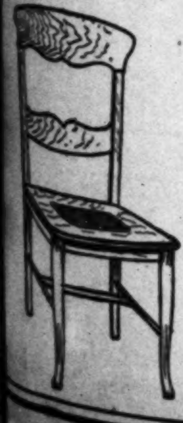
They are exceptional bargains.

Costumers $1.50

Made of weathered ash, and made right. Plenty of hooks and very little space required. You can't buy the lumber for $1.50.

$5 Oak Rocker $3.25

And the oak is quarter-sawed. The back is carved. This is the way we are reducing rockers during this pre-inventory sale.



Box Seat Dining Chair . . . $2.15

Regular price $3.00. The design is shown in the picture on the left. It has the full box cane seat. The wood is solid oak, golden finish. The arm chair is reduced to $5.75.

$35 Dining Table $25.25

It is a beauty in quarter-sawed golden oak. Six-foot extension size. We are cutting dining table prices to the quick.

We have them at all prices, and every one is a bargain.

FRESH LITERATURE.

NEW BOOKS REVIEWED.

BY A TIMES REVIEWER.]

A Bi-lingual Mystery.

NINEVAH AND OTHER POEMS. By George Sylvester Viereck. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York. (Price $1.20.)

In this slender book of poems there is introduced to the English world a personality which has aroused most remarkable criticism in Germany, a boy who has shot across the literary firmament with the blaze of a comet, a Pre-Raphaelite just old enough to vote, who looks on Manhattan's skyscrapers and puts them into apocalyptic symbols to the amazement of German critics.

To form a just appreciation of this phenomenon, some account of the poet's life is a necessity. He was born in Munich on the last day of 1884. His father is Louis Viereck, long a member of the German Reichstag, now settled in New York as publisher of Der Deutsche Vorkampfer. His mother, Laura Viereck, was born in California. Young Viereck says in the preface to his book: "The splendid heritage of two languages has fallen to me from a German father and an American mother—my ears have listened to the music of two worlds."

GEORGE SYLVESTER VIERECK.

The family came to America when the boy was 12 years old, and he went to the public schools of New York. One year ago he graduated from the College of the City of New York, and immediately joined the staff of Current Literature. He is now associate editor of that journal, and conducts the dramatic department.

When Viereck was 13 he began to write for newspapers in German, and has contributed a large amount of prose, verse and fiction to Berlin papers. Up to three years ago he wrote mainly in German, but since then he has definitely adopted English.

When less than 20 years old he collected his German poems and published them in Germany under the title of "Gedichte." His genius was recognized in his native country, and within a few months the celebrated publishing house of Cotta at Stuttgart, which first gave to the world the poems of Goethe and Schiller, expressed an interest in him. Ludwig Fulda took the work of Viereck to them, and a little less than a year ago they published a fuller volume, under the title "Ninives und Andere Gedichte." At the same time the present English volume was put under way. It contains the same poems, but they cannot be called translations. The poet is truly bi-lingual, and has produced his thoughts in the forms of two languages.

The comparison of a New York schoolboy to Goethe, Heine, Byron and Swinburne and even to Keats must at once strike one as appalling, but German critics have not hesitated to do so, and many in America who could appreciate his work in the German language have not been far behind. J. Fastenrath in the Cologne Tageblatt said: "If Tannhauser should again raise his voice, or if Heinrich of Ofterdingen could arise to take his part once more in the minstrel strife at the Wartburg, he might sing as Viereck. He is the German-American Catullus." Prof. Ernst Henrici in the Leipziger Tageblatt said: "Viereck's poems are masterpieces, masterpieces evincing bewitching powers of presentation, products of a Titanic inner fermentation, a world-encircling flight of thought." In America James Huneker declared that his work was "shot through with the splendors of Heine, Swinburne and Keats." Dr. W. E. Leonard said: "I know not where to find his parallel in English letters, unless in the Rowley poems of the marvelous boy who perished in his stride."

It is under these circumstances that Viereck's poems appear in English. A few of them have been seen before. One at least was published in Century. But as a whole they are unknown, and come to the English-speaking world with their German prestige behind them and the uncanny fact of their author's youth to add mystery to their power.

There can be no doubt that Viereck has been given the singing mouth. With whatever amount of favor the thought of his poems be regarded, their form must be acclaimed. His genius is absolutely lyric. He has a splendor of language and feeling of rhythm that are astonishing. In the introduction which he has written to his poems, he sets forth his ideas concerning poetry, the chief of which is that the metric coat must fit perfectly the content to achieve finality of expression. This leads him to point where he says that "existing conventional forms, like ready-made garments, may at times fulfill the requirements; frequently they will not. It then behooves a poet to modify them, or better still, to create new forms intimately adapted to the exigencies of the occasion." This he has done, with great success. It is a precarious field of endeavor for anyone, but this newcomer to Parnassus seems to have achieved what others have failed to do.

As to the thought, it is here that estimates of Viereck's work will differ most widely. In Germany he was set down as a member of the English Neo-Romantic school who used the German language. As such he displays an ecstatic delight in life, ranging from the complete fleshly instincts to remorse and despair, higher expressions of the sense of beauty, and the exaltation of paganism.

His strength is erotic, but the strength is so great that it holds promise of power over soul when the orgy of sense has been modified. It is here that whatever criticism may be made on his work has its say. He presses hard on neurotic mania in some flights. The deeply morbid tendencies that some Germans see sweeping over the Aryan race hold sway over Viereck to a great degree. He has color, passion, music and imagination, but they are devoted to the paganistic spirit. There is little sweetness, little constructive outlook on life. Originality of conception is everywhere, but it leads to no particular end.

At first he gives the impression of being a decadent, but noble thought, strength and pathos forbid this conclusion. His symbolism admits great width of interpretation, and it is only fair to assume the better part.

Whatever the conclusion the individual reader reaches as to the purpose of Viereck's work, it is not too much to say that here has been given to English letters a powerful lyrist, who sings with melodic beauty that measures well with the best work of the little group of great lyrists.

Diluted Bible.

GETHSEMANE AND AFTER. By Cyrus Townsend Brady. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York. (Price $1.20.)

In his preface Dr. Brady says: "I have written this book with the prayer that it may be read by many to whom the Gospel narratives are as sealed books. The Bible is a volume which everybody respects, which few people read, and which fewer study. I cherish the hope that some into whose hands this little book falls may be inspired by it to examine the Sacred Story to see whether these things be true or not." In the dedication the book is referred to as an "attempt to bring home to humanity the realities of Our Lord's Passion."

The indicates that Dr. Brady regards as the justification for his book.

There has been recently an outburst of work on Biblical subjects, and at least three Biblical plays have been put upon the stage. There it has been a canon of art not to place in actual presence the great central figure of the world's greatest drama. Unconsciously every one must feel the tawdriness of human thought when brought into contrast with that figure. Dr. Brady has chosen to disregard that canon. Reference to the Savior of the World is certainly permissible in many circumstances of literary endeavor, but it seems unfortunate that even a clergyman, with the best motives in the world, should have made Him the chief actor in a book which is frankly cast in the form of a play.

As to the result, it is perhaps sufficient commentary to say that Dr. Brady has made a book of something over 200 pages, using only the material which one can find in far less space and more noble language in the source to which Dr. Brady had to go. This is hardly just criticism, for no one expects to surpass the Gospels, but as Dr. Brady has ventured into a field where there is one great standard, his work must be measured by that standard. The value of the book must be judged by its results. If it does what Dr. Brady hopes it may do, that is lead some one to read the Bible, it certainly has value. But otherwise, there can be little merit in such a production. The case seems to be in doubt.

A Rattling Tale.

THE CASTLE OF DOUBT. By John H. Whitson. Little, Brown & Co., Boston. (Price $1.50.)

This is an expeditious tale, which moves with considerable velocity to an unexpected end. It would be unfair to the reader to give a hint of the plot, except to say that a young man of tolerably good instincts and some idea of chivalry, is suddenly claimed as husband by a radiantly beautiful and excessively wealthy young woman, when the young man is quite sure that he is liege lord to no woman, as the Sheriff of Nottingham so feelingly exclaims in similar circumstances. His efforts to convince her that she is mistaken and the entanglements in which he becomes involved when he finds that liege lord or no he is hopelessly in love with her, form the thread of the story.

Besides the story, which is swift and readable, there are two or three other merits in the book. The sister of the lady who will be wife whether or no, and the sister's fiancé, are lightly but pleasureably drawn, and there is a very likeable valet. In addition there is a touch of what is popularly supposed to be modern newspaper methods, a very good description of a Harvard-Yale baseball game, and a running representation of home life in a rich New York family which impresses one as being rather more accurate than in nine-tenths of current fiction.

Emphatically a book to read for recreation, it must be said that of its kind "The Castle of Doubt" is an excellent specimen. Anyone who wishes for a rapid story well written, will do well to choose it. But a word of warning to the dabbler who reads the last chapter first. He will have Dead Sea fruit, and it will be a reward well earned for tampering with the order of things.

For the European Tour.

THE TRAVELER'S HANDBOOK. By Josephine Tozier. Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York and London.

The revised edition of this book is simply an amplified form of the original work and preserves the same characteristics. It is intended primarily for those who have had little experience in ocean travel. It has nothing to do with churches, art galleries, famous battlefields, museums, or any of the sights of European cities. It is confined to travel and the art of travel.

In this respect it is almost unique, and correspondingly valuable. Nearly half of the book is given to the trip across the ocean, including useful observations on the customs of the ocean life, suggestions about dress and baggage, instructions in the art of being comfortable, and hints from one who has learned by experience concerning stewards, their functions, and the tips which insure their best services. The remaining portion of the book gives information not usually found in a guide book on the idiosyncracies of European trains, the manners of the people, the food that one may find, etc.

It is a book that should be especially valuable to women, as it has much about proper dress and the little tricks of travel that the inexperienced often learn too late.

PEOPLE AND THINGS LITERARY.

The latest story to be published in Unwin's "First Novel Library" is called "From One Man's Hand to Another." The book is written by G. H. Breda and is dedicated to Olive Schreiner because the writer greatly admires her work.

The love letters written by Henry VIII. to Anne Boleyn have been edited by Ladbrooke Black and will be published in a book which will be of literary as well as historical interest. The volume will have an introduction on the "royal lover."

Two new books to be issued shortly by D. Appleton & Co. are "The Race Question in Canada," by André Siegfried, a study of the French and English differences of religion and politics; and "A Twice-Crowned Queen," by the Countess de la Warr, the picturesque story of Anne of Brittany, who married two successive kings of France.

Much interest is manifested in the forthcoming volumes of Queen Victoria's letters. On the continent, because they have much to say of European affairs between 1837 and 1861, there are to be translations in French, German and other languages. On no previous occasion has the correspondence of a British sovereign been published officially.

George Dyre Eldridge, the father of William Tillinghast Eldridge, whose "Hilma" is one of the six "best sellers," is himself a story-teller of no mean attainment, and his detective story, "The Millbank Case," published here by Henry Holt & Co., has just been republished in England by Eveleigh Nash.

Oscar Wilde's "Happy Prince and Other Tales" are being republished in a new and handsome edition. These stories have been likened to the work of Hans Christian Andersen. Oscar Wilde seems to be coming into favor again in the country where he suffered so many years in prison. A complete edition of his work is being brought out and this special volume as well.

Ellis Parker Butler's "The Confessions of a Daddy," to be issued by the Century Company in May, is the story of a couple who tried to believe themselves happier without children than their neighbors were with little ones. Their theories and lives are revolutionized by the coming of a little daughter. The illustrations will be Fanny Y. Cory's.

W. S. Harwood, the author of "New Creation in Plant Life," has received a letter from the King of Italy through the Minister of the Royal Household in acknowledgment of a presentation copy to King Victor Emmanuel III. The book is about to appear in Italian under the auspices of the Societa Degli Agriculturi Italiani, the leading society of its kind in Italy.

Myra Kelly, whose stories made such immediate success, has written her first novelette. It is called "The Isle of Dreams," that being the title of a painting by the heroine, who thinks she is succeeding because her lover is unconsciously buying all her canvases. Of course, she is furious when she finds it out, but the romance ends happily after many vicissitudes.

After running serially in Appleton's Magazine, where it made an impression as a work of an intensity and reality, Gorky's latest novel, "Mother," is now published as a book by D. Appleton & Co. It carries the same illustrations by De Ivanowski that were used in the magazine. Gorky's novel was written in America.

"Charles James Fox, a Commentary on His Life and Character," by Walter Savage Landor, though written in 1811, will now for the first time see the light in the centennial year of the Whig statesman's death. It will be published in the "Memoir Series," a series of books each of which presents a study of character in the environment of its time, together with an analysis of the influence exerted by each character upon the men and women of future generations.

A young author from Chicago, Miss Charlotte Teller, a graduate of the university, and for some time a settlement worker, makes her first appearance as a novelist in "The Cage," which D. Appleton & Co. publish. The scene is Chicago at the time of the Haymarket riots, and the plot is daringly realistic.

The Harpers have just published a volume entitled "Strange Stories of Colonial Days," which is made up of tales of war and treasure hunting of the Dutch on Long Island, of King Philip's War, of the mighty Pontiac, of the blacksmith's boy who became a knight, of the famous scouts of Rogers, and of other characters of colonial days. These stories, which are founded on history, are by various authors, including Francis Sterne Palmer, Hezekiah Butterworth, Francis S. Drake, G. T. Ferris and others.

Alfred Operti, whose painting "Planting the Flag Nearest the Pole" forms the frontispiece to Commander Peary's new book, although from the sunny land of Italy, is an enthusiast in the interests of the frozen zone. He possesses one of the largest and most valuable arctic libraries in the country, and is said to have painted more arctic pictures than any other artist. Mr. Operti's father was Italian court pianist during the time of Victor Emmanuel II, and later became the conductor of Booth's Theater.

An interesting novelty is the publication of Hall Caine's new story, "Drink," in paper at 10 cents a copy. It was issued in London at sixpence, and has sold 200,000 copies. In America D. Appleton & Co. are the publishers. "Drink" is a dramatic story dealing with hypnotism as a cure for the liquor habit. The book is having a tremendous sale in Germany. It was at the author's own insistence that the low price was put on the book in order that it might reach the greatest possible public.

The "Memoir Series" will soon be enriched by the publication of "Lady Mary Wortley Montague and Her Times," by George Paston, and "Tasso and His Times," by W. Boulting. Lady Mary is an interesting and entertaining personage with whom we are all more or less acquainted, but her eccentricity, her quick and sharp wit, her social and literary place, furnish interesting material for the biographical account which is just now the favorite form of literature. Mr. Boulting's "Tasso," on the other hand, gives a circumstantial and just account of the character and life of the Italian poet.

Matthew Arnold is quoted in a lady's book of recollections as saying that all the talent of the Arnold family had gone to the children of his brother Tom. This was, of course, before the day of Mrs. Humphry Ward's best sellers. But there is a sequel which is quoted as authentic and which may be of joyous interest to the few readers who dare to admit a disinclination for the stories of Mrs. Humphry Ward. When Tom's daughter did write a book and Uncle Matt read it he remarked, "No Arnold ever could write a novel; if any Arnold could I should have written one myself."

TO HONOR MRS. CRAIGIE.

American Committee Added to Group of English People Who Propose to Erect Memorial.

An American committee, consisting of ex-Ambassador Choate, W. W. Appleton and Richard Watson Gilder, has been added to the remarkable group of English people recently organized to erect a fitting memorial to the late Mrs. Craigie, better known by her pen name, John Oliver Hobbes. Among the members of the English committee are Lord Curzon, the Duchess of Sutherland, the Countess of Crewe, Mrs. Cornwallis West, Mrs. Humphry Ward, Ellen Terry, Sir Charles Wyndham, Arthur Bourchier, Anthony Hope, Max Beerbohm, etc.

It is proposed that, in the event of sufficient funds being collected, the memorial should include the following: A portrait plaque, in marble or bronze, to be placed in University College, London (where Mrs. Craigie studied;) a replica of the plaque to be placed in a suitable position in the United States; a scholarship for the study of modern English literature, to be given annually in England; and a similar scholarship to be given annually in the United States.

Mr. Choate (the late American Ambassador to England) has promised to further the scheme in America. It is unnecessary to dwell on the unique position Mrs. Craigie held in England and in the United States. It is sufficient to say of Mrs. Craigie, in the words used by Mr. Choate in his preface to her last book, "The Dream and the Business:" "That in her brief day and generation she contributed much by her charming intellectual productions to the entertainment and enjoyment of hosts of English and American readers, who deeply lament her early death, and in whose affections she will hold a permanent place, and that had she lived longer she would have achieved a still greater name and fame."

Novels to Cost More.

In view of the agitation regarding the price of books, which has reached an acute stage in England and is constantly recurring elsewhere, it is interesting to note that Henry Holt & Co. announce that the list price of the new novel, "Alice-for-Short," by the author of "Joseph Vance," will be $1.75 instead of the usual $1.50. The new novel, like "Joseph Vance," contains some 280,000 words, and this fact at the present high prices of labor and materials, in the minds of the publishers, justifies the increased price. Another edition of "Joseph Vance" is in press, and when ready its price will also be $1.75.

A San Francisco Novel.

"Travers" is the title of a new novel to be brought out shortly by Frederick A. Stokes Company. It is a story dealing with the San Francisco earthquake and fire. The author, Sara Dean, is one of those who passed through this calamity and felt the impression of it stamped upon her mind. The theme of the novel is the overturning of the conventional characters of men in the catastrophe. The hero becomes a thief, and the thief becomes a hero. The action of the story is rapid, taking place in a single week, and the incidents are unusual and striking.

LOW IDEALS OF JAPANESE.

REASONS FOR AMERICAN ANTIPATHY OF BROWN PEOPLE.

Trial Marriage Allowed and Peculiar Ideas of Modesty and Purity. Standard of Living of Japanese Coolies so Low They Cannot Afford to Eat Even Rice for Food.

The demand for the exclusion of the Japanese coolie from admission as an immigrant to the United States is deep seated in racial antagonism that is deaf to argument, says the Chicago Chronicle. The instinct of race preservation is one of the most powerful factors in history for the reason that it has been the unwritten law of progress and evolution since the time when loosely knit tribes and clans made their first feeble, halting steps in the direction of civilization. And it is this instinctive clash of races that has given the modern world the desperately difficult problems of the negro, the Jew and the emigrating hordes from the Orient.

Particularly is this true in the case of the antagonism between the American laborer and the Japanese and Chinese coolies. The instinctive ethnic antagonism is embittered by the clash of economic standards and methods and by the radical difference of moral, religious and social ideals. It creates that gulf of misunderstanding so frequently referred to by writers and investigators of oriental civilization.

The standard of living of a Japanese coolie is so low that to find an Anglo-Saxon parallel one must go back to the days of villanage and slavery under Alfred and Canute, in the early days of English history. Until quite recently two large classes of laborers, the eta and hinin, were considered below the level of respectability, and the laws declared them unclean, forbidding intermarriage with any higher classes. The rest of the peasantry and artisans were sharply divided from the samurai, or class of fighting men, and hedged about with restrictions, most of which have only been recently removed.

THE CURSE OF CASTE.

The curse of caste had had the same result in Japan as in India and Egypt. The division of the military and peasant classes occurred in the eighth century and the passing years have emphasized the sharp differences of caste. To the soldier class have fallen learning, skill in arms and horsemanship, opportunities to rise to places of honor and power, lives free from sordid care in regard to the daily rice and in which noble ideas of duty and loyalty can arise and bear fruit. To the peasant tilling the little rice field year after year have come the heavy burdens of taxation, the grinding toil for a mere pittance of food for himself and his family, the patient bearing of all things imposed by his superiors, with little hope of gain for himself, whatever change the fortunes of war may bring to those above him in social station. Under this system of hopeless labor the peasant has remained ignorant and dull witted, ambitionless and submissive, satisfied with just enough to keep the spark of life flickering for the allotted span. And it is mainly from this class and the riff-raff of the cities that the coolie immigration to the United States is recruited, according to the authority of recent investigators.

The peasant's life of daily drudgery and its degrading effects are vividly described by W. W. Knox in his "Imperial Japan." The average size of a peasant's farm is one and a fourth acres and four-tenths of the product of this pocket handkerchief ranch must be paid in rent, which means that the peasant's family must be supported on six-tenths of the product of an acre and a fourth. Knox says that the average income from a farm of this size as the result of a year's work is about $20, out of which must be paid all of the expenses. The arduous toil, the debasing drudgery in which practically the entire family must partake in order to make both ends meet gives a gross income of less than $2 a month.

THEY CANNOT AFFORD RICE.

So abject is the poverty of the peasant that he cannot even eat the rice which is his principal crop. He is forced to sell it and buy cheaper food, such as rye and millet. Only on the occasion of high festivals can he and his family indulge in the luxury of rice, which, to the Anglo-Saxon laborer, is synonymous with poverty. The houses of the peasant, his clothing, furniture, etc., are of necessity of the same low standard, and with such an environment, under such conditions of existence, it is no wonder that debased standards should be reflected in the moral life of the peasant. It is the effect of monotonous toil and scanty remuneration.

Knox states that the morality of the peasant class is of a very low standard. The rate of infanticide is very high and many of the infant daughters are sold into lives of infamy. Women are made a drudge of the fields like horses and mules in America and the men have none of that respect for them that occidental civilization demands. The men themselves, out of the poverty of their lives, have no time to cultivate high ideals for themselves. But it is probably this very lack of high ideals and ambitions that makes the submissive peasant content in his poverty and toil that keeps him happy in his ignorance.

But it is the position of women in the civilization of Japan that brings the sharpest clash with occidental ideas. According to Knox and a host of other writers the two great evils of Japan are commercial dishonesty and the degraded position of Japanese women. A girl is viewed as the property of her father and with her he can do as he pleases. When she marries, which is scarcely or never for love as understood in America, the property right passes to the husband. Until recently, at least, she had no property rights in herself and could be killed for permitting the attentions of other men without her husband's consent. Marriage, however, puts no bar upon the husband's pleasures and if he adds a concubine to his family the wife must look pleased and be politely submissive. The wife becomes little better than a servant and is always under the tender mercies of her mother-in-law.

TRIAL MARRIAGES ALLOWED.

The only act required to make a marriage legal is the withdrawal of the bride's name from the list of her father's family and its registry among those of her husband's family. But the marriage relation is by no means of a necessity permanent. The husband's right of divorce is only slightly limited and it is not unusual for a man to send two or three wives back to their fathers before he finds the woman who suits him. And the wife is also permitted a similar freedom in trial matrimony, but in all cases the children remain in the husband's family.

The American idea of chastity is unknown, particularly among the lower classes. The ideal of obedience and submission takes its place. Instead of being considered a disgrace as among western nations the girl or wife who sells herself to relieve the financial or other difficulties of father, brother or husband is considered a heroine, a theme which is idealized in several Japanese dramas.

The problem of the geisha and her fascination is a deep one for Japan. The wives of many of the leaders of Japan have come from this class of girls and the fact of a previously gay butterfly life leaves no stain on the reputation of the wife. Much has been written upon this institution, which resembles the hetaira of the ancient Greeks and occupies a similar position of quasi distinction in the society. It has been the theme of western visiting poets and writers and a glamour of beauty has been thrown about the geisha which has veiled the significance of the institution in its degradation of woman. While the geishas are fascinating little beauties, elaborately trained in all the arts of pleasing entertainment, they are both fair and frail and in their system of education manners takes a far precedence over morals.

QUEER IDEAS OF MODESTY.

The Japanese idea of modesty is in striking contrast to the prevailing notion in the United States, and yet upon analysis it frequently shows more common sense and real delicacy of feeling than the American article. It is the Japanese belief that the exposure of the body is immodest only when it occurs for the coquettish purpose of attracting the attention of the opposite sex. The tight-fitting gowns of American women, the decollete creations that set off an expanse of gleaming shoulders, inexpressibly shock the modesty of the Japanese. But the commingling of the sexes nude in the bath brings never a blush. Men and women, guiltless of sartorial protection, pay their devotion to cleanliness in an utter and absolute unconsciousness of impropriety that amazes the sophisticated Caucasian. Amusing tales are told of American missionaries, who, while taking baths in the open courtyards of inns, as is the custom, have been horrified by the invasion of women who failed to grasp the occidental idea of modesty. The embarrassment reaches a climax when the little housemaid, in obedience to established traditions of hospitality, insists upon aiding the blushing and protesting bather to dry himself with little toy towels. Modesty, however, is much a question of longitude and custom. The South Sea Island girl, whose only clothing is a tiny string about her waist, feels the keenest shame when discovered without its protection.

SERUM FOR TUBERCULOSIS.

TREATMENT THAT MAY HALT THE WHITE PLAGUE.

Its Success Apparently Demonstrated by the Cure of the Wife of Gov. Guild of Massachusetts—Tufts Medical School Professors Working Out the Discovery.

A Boston dispatch says Tuft's Medical school professors are working out experiments with vaccine inoculation as a remedy for tuberculosis cases, and have been able to cure Gov. Guild's wife by this treatment. The work at Tuft's is being conducted under the direction of Dr. Timothy Leary, professor of pathology, and his assistant, Dr. Leon L. Medalis.

At the Massachusetts general hospital the pathological department has the experiments in charge under Dr. James Homer Wright. What they have achieved so far is so remarkable and so far reaching in its effects that it is well worth a page article in a newspaper. Dr. Wright terms the method, for want of a better term, the "opsonic" method—for this reason, the treatment stimulates the opsonins in the human blood. The opsonins enfold the deadly bacteria and immediately set to work and digest them.

The thicker the bacteria or the more dangerous the disease, the quicker and more numerous hasten the phagocytes, the eating cells, the white corpuscles to the relief of the part attacked. What the experimenters and others working along the same line are trying to do is to evolve a specific which will so strengthen the protective powers in the human blood that resistance to disease will not only be increased but prolonged and make one immune to bacteria.

The success of the vaccine inoculation against typhoid has been proven. It is to demonstrate the feasibility of similar treatment in tuberculosis lupus infections with pus producing factors and diseases of a kindred nature, that the Bostonians are striving.

During the serious illness of Mrs. Curtis Guild this winter her case was treated with marked success. Originally operated on for appendicitis, other complications arose, the toxic conditions proving that her life was in great danger. At this crucial point she was inoculated with a vaccine prepared by Prof. Ross, of Toronto University, and immediate improvement ensued with subsequent recovery. It is expected that the proportion of permanent cures from this vaccine treatment will be much larger than from any other method.

The Retort Courteous.

"We haven't any deviled crabs, sir," said the waiter. "I can offer you some very nice deviled eggs."

"Umph! I presume if you were out of mock-turtle soup you'd suggest some very nice mock oranges?" retorted the diner.

"Yes, sir," answered the waiter, calmly. "At least I would suggest that you give them a mock trial."—[Harper's Weekly.

ITS HISTORY IS REVEALED.

Government Engineer Tells of Salton Sea.

Once a Portion of the Gulf of California.

Flood's Gravity Increased by Man's Hand.

[The following description of Salton Sea and the record of the rise of water in this basin, which was caused by the break in the Colorado River, is furnished by W. B. Clapp, engineer United States Geological Survey, who has charge of the hydrographic branch of the Geological Survey in California.]

"What is now generally known as Salton Sea was until recently an old dry lake or playa, marked on maps as Salton Sink. There is some uncertainty as to the elevation of the lowest point of this sink, and it is now believed that the depth below sea-level has been overestimated in the past. From the record of the depth of the water as it filled the lowest portion of the basin, as kept by the New Liverpool Salt Company, it appears that the maximum depth of water was 17 feet on October 4, 1905 (according to the gage and as checked by soundings later) when on the same date the water surface just covered the United States Geological Survey bench mark, a few feet from the old Salton Railway station. This bench mark is 256.5 feet below mean sea-level so that it would appear that the lowest point of the sink is 273.5 feet below mean sea-level, instead of 287 feet, which has been accepted heretofore.

"Salton Sink is the name given to the lowest portion of the large basin below sea level in Southern California, originally forming a part of the Colorado desert. This basin has an area of nearly 2000 square miles and extends in a northwesterly direction almost 100 miles from the California-Mexico boundary line. It comprises two fertile valleys, that to the northwest of the sink, in Riverside county, being known as Coachella Valley, and the one to the southeast of the sink, in San Diego county, being called Imperial Valley. Salton Sea, which now partially fills the sink, separates the two valleys and is partly in Riverside county and partly in San Diego county. The sea lies in a northwest-southeast direction and on December 31, 1906 its surface was 201 feet below mean sea level and it had a length of nearly fifty miles, a maximum width of about sixteen miles, a minimum width of ten miles, a maximum depth of 72.5 feet, and a superficial area of about 462 square miles. It is about 140 miles southeast of Los Angeles, ninety miles northwest of Yuma and fifty miles north of Calexico.

EARLIEST HISTORY.

"A few thousand years ago, according to geological evidence, what is now Salton Sea was a part of the Gulf of California, which then extended about 200 miles further northwest than at present, reaching possibly to the base of Mountains San Jacinto and San Gorgonio, and certainly some distance beyond Indio. The Colorado River then emptied into the gulf about 125 miles below its head in the vicinity of Yuma seventy-five miles above the present mouth of the Colorado River. The river, then as now, was heavily laden with silt, which at present is estimated to be about 53 mile-feet annually, or sufficient to cover 53 square-mile one foot deep deep each year. The checking of the velocity near the river's mouth owing to the practically still water of the gulf, resulted in a deposition of this vast volume of silt which, in a course of hundreds of years built up a broad delta that extended westward as a wide bar or dam until it eventually reached the Cocopa Mountains in Mexico, the western wall of the valley, forming an inland salt, or brackish sea.

"During the next few hundred years the Colorado delivered all, or a part of its silt-laden waters into this newly-formed sea, raising the level of its waters coincidently with elevating, broadening, and strengthening by the silt-depositing process the barrier dam which effected its complete and permanent isolation. In the course of many years the dam and the level of the inland sea reached a height of about thirty feet above mean sea level, whereupon the river took a course of less resistance and found an outlet to the gulf below the recently-completed dam.

RIVER CAPRICIOUS.

"Whether the river maintained its outlet to the gulf continuously until the inland sea was completely dissipated through the medium of evaporation is not known. The probability is that the river followed the course of all rivers with growing deltas, and changed its channel from time to time with more or less caprice, alternately discharging into the gulf and the inland sea. At any rate it is definitely known from the shells found on the desert that the water which ultimately filled the inland sea was fresh, while the originally isolated gulf water was salt. The conversion from salt to fresh water may have come about through the alternate partial evaporation of the salt water and the refilling with fresh water from the river, or it may have been effected gradually by means of dilution and substitution from a continuous fresh-water inflow covering a long period of time.

"As to the date when this inland sea finally disappeared there is no definite information. The Indians now living in the desert are said to have a tradition that the sea was full as late as 400 or 500 years ago at most, and that the water disappeared "poco a' poco"—little by little—until the sea became dry. The geological evidence at hand neither confirms nor disproves the Indian legend, but simply indicates that the dissipation of the sea occurred at a time which, if not historical, is at least one of the most recent of geologic dates. With climatic conditions as they are at present the sea [illegible] would have probably [illegible] fifty years without inflow.

"It is highly probable that the [illegible] has been partially refilled [illegible] in the recent past, the water evaporating. During the [illegible] 1891 the high water in the Colorado overflowed into the sink to such extent as to endanger the Southern Pacific's railway at its lowest [illegible]. In the summer of 1905, after a succession of winter and spring floods in the Gila River, followed by an exceptional heavy summer flow in the Colorado, there was a repetition of flood conditions in the sink but on a [illegible] scale.

MAN'S INTERFERENCE.

"The gravity of the situation at this latter date, however, was greatly augmented by the interference of man. For several years previous a large quantity of water had been diverted from the Colorado below Yuma, to be used by the settlers of Imperial Valley for irrigation and domestic purposes. The first water was diverted in the United States and conveyed to Imperial Valley, after passing through Mexican territory, by means of an old river channel which in years past had been one of the Colorado's distributaries during the formation of its delta, and is now known as the Alamo River.

"The increased demand for water and the silting up of the original heading above the boundary necessitated the cutting of an additional channel from the river below the boundary to connect with the canal. It likewise silted up, so that in order to supply the urgent need, a canal was cut four miles below the original heading to connect the Colorado and Alamo Rivers. This heading was not provided with protective works and had a gradient steeper than that of the river, so that under unusual and prolonged [illegible] in 1905, it began cutting until in [illegible] it was carrying 97 per cent of the total flow of the river. This quantity of water flooded several hundred square miles about the sink in the southern part of Imperial Valley and caused serious loss to both the United States and Mexico. These waters ultimately reached the Salton Sea but in doing so, they deepened and widened the Alamo River into a [illegible] gorge and developed another flood channel to the west into a second [illegible] through Imperial Valley, which is called New River.

"Notwithstanding all attempts to control it the Colorado continued to pour its waters through Alamo and New Rivers into Salton Sea until the early fall of 1906, when it was finally shut off by the Southern Pacific Company. It broke again, however, on December 7, but was closed again two months later.

DAMAGE REVIEWED.

"The rise of Salton Sea began in November, 1904, and continued throughout 1905 and 1906. In the summer of 1905, it endangered the Southern Pacific tracks to such an extent as to require frequent shifting to higher ground by means of 'shoo-fly,' or spur tracks, which served temporarily until the latter part of the year when a new line about forty miles in length was completed on the 200 foot contour below sea level. This line is still in use, though during the latter part of 1906 the lowest portion of it was [illegible] damaged by the action of waves [illegible] use in the future it [illegible] line has been located [illegible] the 150 foot contour below [illegible] addition to the damage [illegible] railroad the sea has [illegible] merged the plant of the New Liverpool Salt Company, [illegible] also a few ranches in the vicinity of Mecca.

"The gauge record [illegible] 1904 to February 26, [illegible] the New Liverpool [illegible] datum is the lowest [illegible] sink, or at least that [illegible] first filled with water. [illegible] gauge record shows [illegible] of the water from [illegible] February 22, 1906 the [illegible] in a gauge on the [illegible] one-half mile west of [illegible] station, which is [illegible] east of the old [illegible]. This gauge consisted of five posts, [illegible] ground about three [illegible] placed that when the [illegible] it would just reach [illegible] their back. It was [illegible] however, until the [illegible] destroyed this gauge.

"In the meantime [illegible] Pacific Company had [illegible] the trestle bridge [illegible] about two and one-half [illegible] Salton, and the record [illegible] tinued from this gauge. [illegible] the gauge is 273.5 feet below [illegible] level, as determined [illegible] States Geological Survey [illegible]

YOUNG WOMAN A BLACKSMITH.

SHOES HORSES THOUGH SHE IS ONLY SIXTEEN YEARS OLD.

She Also Builds Wagons and Keeps the Books of Her Father's Shop. Has Not Considered the Question of Matrimony as She Likes Work. and Is Well and Happy.

Miss Minnie Hagmann, 16 years old, daughter of a blacksmith of St. Louis, is a blacksmith herself.

This young girl has been in her father's shop for three years and, as he expresses it, "knows all about everything." She can shoe a horse as quickly and as neatly as the best of them. She can make a wagon, too.

In fact, there is nothing about the shop that she does not understand; no kind of work that she is unable to perform. Her father knows no man he could employ who could do half the work this daughter does, he says.

"She understands the business," he remarked, "and takes an interest in her work. I couldn't do without her."

When asked whether she intended remaining in her present work, Miss Hagmann replied that she did. She said that it was her ambition to become "the best blacksmith in all the country."

In addition to her general shop work, Miss Hagmann is her father's bookkeeper. She collects all the bills. With all this she is not too "tired and worn out" to be a regular attendant at Sunday-school and church.

Knowing that many of the young men of St. Louis and its suburbs would be anxious to win the hand of a young woman who runs successfully a blacksmith shop and who could, if necessary, perhaps be president of a railroad, Miss Hagmann was asked if she had given the subject of matrimony any thought. The girl smiled significantly, but only replied: "Not yet."

Miss Hagmann, in answer to a question as to the number of hours she devoted to her work, replied that she had no special hours. "I get up early," she said, "and am busy usually by sun-up. I spend most of the day in the shop. The books are posted at night. I do not lose much time in collecting bills, as nearly all the patrons come in and pay up."

The girl showed much pride in pointing out the good points of a new wagon.

"This is more of my work," she said. "Look how strong it is. Don't you think the trimmings are all right? I will finish painting it today."

Asked whether she did not consider blacksmith work rather hard for a woman, Miss Hagmann replied that she did not. "A woman can work if she will," the fair mistress of the anvil and forge replied. "I am well and happy and not at all finicky."

MONEY TO BE MADE IN DATES.

STATELY PALMS TO BE MADE TO YIELD A PROFIT.

Government Experiments With Imported Varieties Give Every Promise of Success—Desert Wastes May Be Converted Into Paying Groves at a Small Cost.

In answer to a letter of inquiry, B. [illegible] Johnson, superintendent of the government plant industry station at Mecca, Cal., has written to The Times some interesting information as to the effort to cultivate trees and make them commercially profitable. He says that at this station there are planted twelve acres of date palm trees from six importations, from several date-growing countries. The largest number of trees planted are from Algeria, Tunis, Egypt and the Persian Gulf region. There have been all degrees of success, depending upon the vigor of the varieties, the distance transported, the care given on the trip and after having been planted. While not bearing commercial quantities of fruit until about five years old, quite a number of trees have borne fruit when two years old. This year there are a number of both two and three year-old trees in bearing.

Three men are now employed at the station. When the orchard was established three years ago, May, 1904, only one man was employed. In addition to the dates, those in charge are trying grapes and a large collection of figs and ornamental plants suitable to a desert soil and climate. Seventy varieties of grapes are under cultivation.

There are many sections of California where the date palm flourishes, especially in the southern part of the State, where the rainfall is light. It will flourish in the Mojave Desert, Death Valley, in the San Joaquin Valley and in the Sacramento Valley. But humid sections in these valleys should not be selected, as the fruit will not ripen in a humid climate, especially such as that of Florida, though it is warm enough there for the tree. It will also flourish at Keeler and at Barstow. Ordinarily, the trees are planted thirty feet distant from each other; though some are planted at twenty-five or even twenty feet apart. Its yield depends upon the soil and the climate. Under ordinary conditions it bears within four years after the seed is planted and in a year or two more it produces dates in paying quantities—from 300 to 400 pounds or more a year. This will last a century or two centuries, and even longer. About 40 to 50 per cent. is sugar. The Arab sweet date is about 60 per cent. sugar.

The date plant differs from an ordinary fruit tree as to the water supply and the climate. There is no other tree like it. Heat is necessary, yet it will stand cold, as low as 20 deg., and much better than the orange will. Heat is necessary from May to November, the time of fruiting. The mean temperature should be about 75 degs., and in June, July and August, it should be 80 deg. Where late varieties are desired, the temperature should be at least 90 deg. during these three months. This is found in Death Valley, the Mojave Desert, the Colorado Desert, the Volcanic Springs, and the Salton Sea section. There is a thermal belt, along the foothills of the Sierra Nevada, adjoining the interior valley region, where the date could be profitably grown, and for commercial purposes. The date is not strictly a desert plant, as is shown by its being cultivated at Berkeley, Fresno, Pomona, and other sections of semi-arid California. While its leaves are adapted to stand the driest of climates, its roots must have water, but not as much water as ordinary plants, however. It grows more profusely on the desert, of course, provided it be well watered. The plant is cultivated with very little trouble, and the returns are very profitable, considering the little time employed.

IS FAIR WOMAN MASCULINE

PHYSICIANS AND PHYSIOLOGIST SAY SHE IS BECOMING SO.

Modern Conditions Cause Her to Seek Office Work and Other Industries Than Housekeeping With the Result That She Is Changing in Character.

Are women gradually losing the sof ness of their sex? Are they becomin more masculine as the years go by

To this question many physiciar and students of sociology answer ye

Sad to relate, many critical observ ers of the gentler sex assert that it members are writing a new history c woman; that she is becoming mascu line in demeanor masterful and in dependent in manner; assertive i maintaining her so-called rights. N lo ger the dependent, is she to sacri fice that intangible charm of sweet, de mure womanliness in this era of th new woman, the working woman, th scholarly woman?

Woman was once an angel, but sh became dissatisfied; so now she is i the clouds.—[Ludwig Fulda.

Most of us have read of the lasse and laddies of colonial times—of th dainty, demure maidens "trippin light," "speaking softly," "blushin radiantly" and coquetting with "bash ful, downcast eyes."

The voice of one of these was like whisper, her coming as gentle an beautiful as a southern zephyr. Sh looked up to her lover, the robust man with trustful dependence and love, los ing nothing by her submissiveness t his will, her sweet, childish simplicit of manner, her willing confidence an clinging ways. Instead, she became greater idol in the strong man's eyes like a rose she wound herself abou his heart more securely.

Yet does one meet the simple littl colonial maiden nowadays? In th Southern States, so it is said, many o the women retain the old-fashione charm. The young women are modes and meek and refined; the older wom en cultured, dignified and graciously womanly. In the country districts o the Northern States, too, one also find her as described by Rossetti, "a soft sweet woman."

But in the cities—the hurly-burly cities with their thousands of working and professional women—does one find woman of the meek and gentle type?

"Alas, no," said a physician who has spent much time in observation and study. "The women of the great cities of the country are changing in manner; the melodious softness is departing from their voice, they are becoming ungainly and masculine in carriage, loud, self-assertive, domineering.

"To one who travels in Europe and returns to Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, or any large American city, the change is apparent. One becomes convinced that the pace of modern life tends to coarsen women. It destroys the essentialy feminine nature. Why? There are probably many causes.

"American women once held the highest place, probably, in the regard of men of many nations—the grace and sweetness of the young women of the period of the Civil War and before were proverbial. And with her gentleness and sweetness the American girl was independent; unhedged by the conventionalities of Europe. But a change has come. Ask any person who has lived abroad and he will tell you this is true.

"Walk the streets of any big city—you will see lofty, frigid-looking women, walking with the gait of an athlete. You will see Juno-like figures with faces as hard and unsympathetic as a bronze statue. You will see women jostling by one another, pushing people before them, talking in a loud, brazen manner.

"In stores you will see the utter selfishness manifest. In the street cars you rarely see men get up any more—it is a sad, ungallant spetacle to see men sitting and women standing, but the fact is obvious that a man who works at bookkeeping doesn't regard a woman bookkeeper any more than a fellow-employé, and deems her worthy of no more consideration.

"There are many reasons for the change in women and the changed attitude of the men. How can one account for the change in voice? It was low and whispering once; it is loud and uncultured now.

"The trolley car and telephone, no doubt, have much to do with this. While riding in trolley cars, women have got accustomed to speaking in a higher pitch of voice. Talking over the telephone requires extra exertion; besides, troubles with the operator make one irritable and there is naturally a change in tone.

"The puffing of engines, the noise of trolley cars and street traffic certainly affect the voice when one tries to carry on a conversation in the street. One can attribute a change in the voice of women to the noise of a modern city.

"Formerly women, as a rule, did not work. The young girl was wooed by her lover and made the mistress of a home. She passed from her mother's care to that of a loving husband. She depended upon her helpmeet, looked up to him and loved him.

"Now, see the reversed face of the medal. See the army of women stenographers, book-keepers, saleswomen, doctors, teachers, lawyers. What profession is there in which statistics will not show women? Very few.

"Nowadays, instead of staying at home and learning the art of housekeeping the young girl works in an office. The modern girl does not want to wash dishes and darn socks. She prefers to type at a machine or keep books—as a result she becomes independent, she feels that she is not dependent upon man, and, unconsciously, her manner becomes masterful.

"Take the women doctors, lawyers, the women who win prizes in athletics—you will find them intellectual, noble, estimable women, but are they gentle, soft-voiced women that we idealize? I fear not.

"Women doctors regard men of their profession as rivals; so in every other walk of life, where both sexes compete. In many cases women are willing to work for less money than man—naturally men lose respect for their successful rivals.

"Take families where both the man and woman work. Naturally, the wife feels that she earns her share of the living and is entitled to seek recreation where she pleases.

"There is no doubt to my mind that many modern conveniences have their disadvantages. I believe you will find a woman who rides in a subway and talk continually will develop a louder voice than the woman who does not.

"I believe that the woman wage-earner must sacrifice much of the attractive reticence and timidity which constitute a peculiar charm of woman. I am convinced that many of the women who enter into competition with men lose all love of home and naturally when this occurs a nation must suffer.

"Woman's place is in the home and not in the workshop. One would not like to see our women becoming Amazons, domineering and aggressive.

"Of course, women of this kind still are exceptions, but one has only to read the works of a man like Schiller, who idealized women—the soft, sweet, clinging women—and the works of some modern writers to see the change that is taking place."

FAIR MARGARET CASTELL

BY H. RIDER HAGGARD. FOR READERS of the SUNDAY TIMES.

Castell answered that he had, since but a few minutes before a letter had come from him announcing his safe arrival, tidings at which Margaret looked up, then, remembering her promise, said that she was glad to hear of it, as the roads were none too safe, and spoke indifferently of something else. D'Aguilar added that he too was glad, then, rising, took his leave "till seven on the morrow."

When he had gone, Castell gave Margaret a letter, addressed to her in Peter's stiff, upright hand, which she read eagerly. It began and ended with sweet words, but, like his speech, was brief and to the point, saying only that he had accomplished the journey without adventure, and was very glad to find himself again in the old house where he was born, and amongst familiar fields and faces. On the morrow he was to see the tradesmen as to alterations and repairs which were much needed, even the moat being choked with mud and weeds. His last sentence was: "I much mistrust me of that fine Spaniard, and I am jealous to think that he should be near to you while I am far away. Beware of him, I say—beware of him. May the Mother of God and all the saints have you in their keepings! Your most true affianced lover."

This letter Margaret answered before she slept, for the messenger was to return at dawn, telling Peter, amongst other things, of the gift which d'Aguilar had brought her, and how she and her father were forced to accept it, but bidding him not be jealous, since, although that gift was welcome, she liked the giver little, who did but count the hours till her true love should come back again and take her to himself.

Next morning she was up early, clothed in her riding dress, for the day was very fine, and by 7 o'clock d'Aguilar appeared, mounted on a great horse. Then the Spanish jennet was brought out, and deftly he lifted her to the saddle, showing her how she must pull but lightly on the reins, and urge or check her steed with her voice alone, using no whip or spur.

A perfect beast it proved to be, indeed, gentle as a lamb, and easy, yet very spirited and swift.

D'Aguilar was a pleasant cavalier also, talking of many things grave and gay, until at length even Castell forgot his thoughts, and grew cheerful as they cantered forward through the fresh spring morning, by heath and hill and woodland, listening to the singing of the birds and watching the husbandmen at their labor.

This ride was but the first that they took, since d'Aguilar knew their hours of exercise, even when they changed them, and whether they asked him or not, joined or met them in such a natural fashion that they could not refuse his company. Indeed, they were much puzzled to know how he came to be so well acquainted with their movements, and even with the direction in which they proposed to ride, but supposed that he must have it from the grooms, although these were commanded to say nothing, and always denied having spoken with him. That Betty should speak of such matters, or even find opportunity of doing so, never chanced to cross their minds, who did not guess that if they rode with d'Aguilar in the morning, Betty often walked with him in the evening when she was supposed to be at church, or sewing, or visiting her aunt upon the wharf at Westminster. But of these walks the foolish girl said nothing, for her own reasons.

Now, as they rode together, although he remained very courteous and respectful, the manner of d'Aguilar towards Margaret grew ever more close and intimate. Thus he began to tell her stories, true or false, of his past life, which seemed to have been strange and eventful enough; to hint, too, of a certain hidden greatness that pertained to him which he did not dare to show, and of high ambitions which he had. He spoke also of his loneliness, and his desire to lose it in the companionship of a kindred heart, if he could find one to share his wealth, his station, and his hopes; while all the time his dark eyes fixed on Margaret seemed to say: "The heart I seek is such a one as yours."

At length, at some murmured word or touch, she took affright, and, since she could not avoid him abroad, determined to stay at home, and, much as she loved the sport, to ride no more till Peter should return. So she gave out that she had hurt her knee, which made the saddle painful to her, and the beautiful Spanish mare was left idle in the stable, or mounted only by the groom.

Thus for some days she was rid of d'Aguilar, and employed herself in reading and working, or in writing long letters to Peter, who was busy enough at Dedham, and sent her thence many commissions to fulfill.

One afternoon Castell was seated in his office deciphering letters which had just reached him. The night before his best ship, of over two hundred tons burden, wich was named the Margaret, after his daughter, had come safely into the mouth of the Thames from Spain. That evening she was to reach her berth at Gravesend with the tide, when Castell proposed to go aboard of her to see to the unloading of her cargo. This was the last of his ships which remained unsold, and it was his plan to reload and victual her at once with goods that were waiting, and send her back to the port of Seville, where his Spanish partners, in whose name she was already registered, had agreed to take her over at a fixed price. This done, it was only left for him to hand over his business to the merchants who had purchased it in London, after which he would be free to depart, a very wealthy man, and spend the evening of his days at peace in Essex, with his daughter and her husband, as now he so greatly longed to do. So soon as they were within the river banks the captain of this ship, Smith by name, had landed the cargo-master with letters and a manifest of cargo, bidding him to hire a horse and bring them to Master Castell's house in Holborn. This the man had done safely, and it was these letters that Castell read.

One of them was from his partner, Bernaldez, in Seville; not in answer to that which he had written on the night of the opening of this history—for this there had been no time—yet dealing with matters whereof it treated. In it was this passage:

"You will remember what I wrote to you of a certain envoy who has been sent to the Court of London, who is called d'Aguilar, for as our cipher is so secret, and it is important that you should be warned, I take the risk of writing his name. Since that letter I have learned more concerning this grandee, for such he is. Although he calls himself plain Don d'Aguilar, in truth he is the Marquis of Morella, and on one side, it is said, of royal blood, if not on both, since he is reported to be the son born out of wedlock of Prince Carlos of Viana, the half-brother of the King. The tale runs that Carlos, the learned and gentle, fell in love with a Moorish lady of Aguilar of high birth and great wealth, for she had rich estates at Granada and elsewhere, and, as he might not marry her because of the difference of their rank and faiths, lived with her without marriage, of which union one son was born. Before Prince Carlos died, or was poisoned, and while he was still a prisoner at Morella, he gave to, or procured for, this boy the title of Marquis, choosing from some fancy the name of that place where he had suffered so much, Morella. Also he settled some private lands upon him. After the Prince died, the Moorish lady, his lover, who had secretly become a Christian, took her son to live at her palace in Granada, where she died also some ten years ago, leaving all her great wealth to him, for she never married. At this time it is said that his life was in danger, for the reason that, although he was half a Moor, too much of the blood-royal ran in his veins. But the marquis was clever, and persuaded the King and Queen that he had no ambition beyond his pleasures. Also the church interceded for him, since to it he proved himself a faithful son, persecuting all heretics, especially the Jews, and even Moors, although they are of his own blood. So in the end he was confirmed in his possessions and left alone, although he refused to become a priest.

"Since then he has been made an agent of the crown at Granada, and employed upon various embassies to London, Rome and elsewhere, on matters connected with the faith and the establishment of the Holy Inquisition. That is why he is again in England at this moment, being charged to obtain the names and particulars concerning all Maranos settled there, especially if they trade with this country. I have seen the names of those of whom he must inquire most closely, and that is why I write to you so fully, since yours is first upon the list. I think, therefore, that you do wisely to wind up your business with this country, and especially to sell your ships to us outright and quickly, since otherwise they might be seized—like yourself, if you came here. My counsel to you is—hide your wealth, which will be great when we have paid you all we owe, and go elsewhere where you will be forgotten for a while, since that bloodhound d'Aguilar, for so he calls himself, after his mother's birthplace, has not tracked you to London for nothing. As yet, thanks be to God, no suspicion has fallen on any of us; perhaps because we have many in our pay."

When Castell had finished transcribing all this passage he read it through carefully. Then he went into the hall, where a fire burned, for the day was cold, and threw the translation on to it, watching until it was consumed, after which he returned to his office and hid away the letter in a secret cupboard behind the panelling of the wall. This done, he sat himself in his chair to think.

"My good friend, Juan Bernaldes, is right," he said to himself; "d'Aguilar, or the Marquis Morella, does not nose me and the others out for nothing. Well, I shall not trust myself in Spain, and the money, most of it, except what is to come from Spain, is put out where it will never be found by him, at good interest, too. All seems safe enough—and yet I would to God that Peter and Margaret were fast married, and that we three sat together, out of sight and mind, in the old hall at Dedham. I have carried on this game too long. I should have closed my books a year ago; but the trade was so good that I could not. I was wise, also, who in this one lucky year have nearly doubled my fortune. And yet it would have been safer before they guessed that I was so rich. Greed—mere greed—for I do not heed this money which may destroy us all: Greed! The ancient pitfall of my race."

As he though thus there came a knock upon his door. Snatching up a pen he dipped it in the ink-horn and, calling "Enter," began to add a column of figures on a paper before him.

The door opened; bue he seemed to take no heed, so diligently did he count his figures. Yet, although his eyes were fixed upon the paper, in some way that he could not understand, he was well aware that d'Aguilar and no other stood in the room behind him, the truth being, no doubt, that unconsciously he had recognized his footstep. For a moment the knowledge turned him cold—he who had just been reading of the mission of this man—and feared what was to come. Yet he acted well.

"Why do you disturb me, daughter?" he said testily, and without looking round. "Have not things gone ill enough with half the cargo destroyed by sea-water, and the rest, that you must trouble me while I sum up my losses?" And, casting the pen down, he turned his chair round impatiently.

Yes! there sure enough stood d'Aguilar, very handsomely arrayed, and smiling and bowing, as was his custom.

VIII.

D'AGUILAR SPEAKS.

"Losses?" said d'Aguilar. "Do I hear the wealthy John Castell, who holds half the trade with Spain in the hollow of his hand, talk of losses?"

"Yes, Señor, you do. Things have gone ill with this ship of mine, that has barely lived through the spring gales. But be seated."

"Indeed, is that so?" said d'Aguilar, as he took a chair. "What a lying jade is rumor! For I was told that they had gone very well. Doubtless, however, what is loss to you would be priceless gain to one like me."

Castell made no answer, but waited, feeling that his visitor had not come to speak with him of his trading ventures.

"Señor Castell," said d'Aguilar, with a note of nervousness in his voice, "I am here to ask you for something."

"If it be a loan, Señor, I fear that the time is not opportune." And he nodded towards the sheet of figures.

"It is not a loan; it is a gift."

"Anything in my poor house is yours," answered Castell, courteously, and in oriental form.

"I rejoice to hear it, Señor, for I seek something from your house."

Castell looked a question at him with his quick, black eyes.

"I seek your daughter, the Señorita Margaret, in marriage."

Castell stared at him, then a single word broke from his lips.

"Impossible."

"Why impossible?" asked d'Aguilar, slowly, yet as one who expected some such answer. "In age we are not unsuited, nor perhaps in fortune, while of rank I have enough, more than you can guess, perhaps. I vaunt not myself, yet women have thought me not uncomely. I should be a good friend to the house whence I took a wife, where perchance a day will come when friends will be needed; and lastly, I desire her not for what she may bring with her, though wealth is always welcome, but—I pray you to believe it—because I love her."

"I have heard that the Señor d'Aguilar loves many women yonder in Granada."

"As I have heard that the Margaret had a prosperous voyage, Señor Castell. Rumor, as I said but now, is a lying jade. Yet I will not copy her. I have been no saint. Now I would become one, for Margaret's sake. I will be true to your daughter, Señor. What say you now?"

Castell only shook his head.

"Listen," went on d'Aguilar. "I am more than I seem to be; she who weds me will not lack for rank and titles."

"Yes, you are the Marquis de Morella, the reputed son of Prince Carlos of Viana by a Moorish mother, and therefore nephew to His Majesty of Spain."

D'Aguilar looked at him, then bowed and said:

"Your information is good—as good as mine, almost. Doubtless you do not like that bar in the blood. Well, if it were not there, I should be where Ferdinand is, should I not? So I do not like it either, though it is good blood and ancient—that of those high-bred Moors. Now, may not the nephew of a King and the son of a Princess of Granada be fit to mate with the daughter of—a Jew, yes, a Marano, and of a Christian English lady, of good family, but no more?"

Castell lifted his hands as though to speak; but d'Aguilar went on:

"Deny it not, friend; it is not worth while here in private. Was there not a certain Isaac of Toledo, who, hard on fifty years ago, left Spain, for his own reasons, with a little son, and in London became known as Joseph Castell, having, with his son, been baptized into the Holy Church? Ah! you see, you are not the only one who studies genealogies."

"Well, señor, if so, what of it?"

"What of it? Nothing at all, friend Castell. It is an old story, is it not, and, as that Isaac is long dead, his son has been a good Christian for nearly fifty years, and had a Christian wife and child, who will trouble himself about such a matter? If he were openly a Hebrew, now, or, worse still, if pretending to be a Christian, he in secret practiced the rites of the accursed Jews, why, then—"

"Then what?"

"Then, of course, he would be expelled this land, where no Jew may live, his wealth would be forfeit to its King, whose ward his daughter would become, to be given in marriage where he willed, while he himself, being Spanish born, might, perhaps, be handed over to the power of Spain, there to make answer to these charges. But we wander to strange matters. Is that alliance still impossible, señor?"

Castell looked him straight in the eyes and answered:

"Yes."

There was something so bold and direct in his utterance of the word that for a moment d'Aguilar seemed to be taken aback. He had not expected this sharp denial.

"It would be courteous to give a reason," he said, presently.

"The reason is simple, Marquis. My daughter is already betrothed, and will, ere long, be wedded."

D'Aguilar did not seem surprised at this intelligence.

"To that brawler, your kinsman, Peter Brome, I suppose?" he said, interrogatively. "I guessed as much, and by the saints, I am sorry for her, for he must be a dull lover to one so fair and bright; while, as a husband—" And he shrugged his shoulders. "Friend Castell, for her sake you will break off this match."

"And if I will not, Marquis?"

"Then I must break it off for you in the interest of all of us, including, of course, myself, who love her, and wish to lift her to a great place, and of yourself, whom I desire should pass your old age in peace and wealth, and not be hunted to your death like a mad dog."

"How will you break it, Marquis? by—"

"Oh, no, Señor!" answered d'Aguilar, "not by other men's swords—if that is what you mean. The worthy Peter is safe from them so far as I am concerned, though if he should come face to face with mine, then let the best man win. Have no fear, friend, I do not practice murder, who value my own soul too much to soak it in blood, nor would I marry a woman except of her own free will. Still, Peter may die, and the fair Margaret may still place her hand in mine and say: 'I choose you as my husband.'"

"All these things, and many others, may happen, Marquis; but I do not think it likely that they will happen, and for my part, whilst thanking you for it, I decline your honorable offer, believing that my daughter will be more happy in her present humble state with the man she has chosen. Have I your leave to return to my accounts?" And he rose.

"Yes, Señor," answered d'Aguilar, rising also; "but add an item to those losses of which you spoke, that of the friendship of Carlos, Marquis de Morella, and on the other side enter again that of his hate. Man!" he added, and his dark, handsome face turned very evil as he spoke, "are you mad? Think of the little tabernacle behind the altar in your chapel, and what it contains."

Castell stared at him, then said:

"Come, let us see. Nay, fear no trick; like you I remember my soul, and do not stain my hands with blood. Follow me, so you will be safe."

Curiosity, or some other reason, prompted d'Aguilar to obey, and presently they stood behind the altar.

"Now," said Castell, as they drew the tapestry and opened the secret door, "look!"

D'Aguilar peered into the place; but where should have been the table, the ark, the candlesticks, and the roll of the law of which Betty had told him, were only old dusty boxes filled with parchments and some broken furniture.

"What do you see?" asked Castell.

"I see, friend, that you are even a cleverer Jew than I thought. But this is a matter that you must explain to others in due season. Believe me, I am no inquisitor." Then without more words he turned and left him.

When Castell, having shut the secret door and drawn the tapestry, hurried from the chapel, it was to find that the Marquis had departed from the house.

He went back to his office much disturbed, and sat himself down there to think. Truly Fate, that had so long been his friend, was turning its face against him. Things could not have gone worse. D'Aguilar had discovered the secret of his faith through his spies, and having, by some accursed mischance fallen in love with his daughter's beauty, was become his bitter enemy because he must refuse her to him. Why must he refuse her? The man was of great position and noble blood; she would become the wife of one of the first grandees of Spain, one who stood nearest to the throne. Perhaps—such a thing was possible—she might live herself to be a queen, or the mother of kings. Moreover, that marriage meant safety for himself; it meant a quiet age, a peaceable death in his own bed—for, were he fifty times a Marano, who would touch the father-in-law of the Marquis de Morella? Why? Just because he had promised her in marriage to Peter Brome, and through all his life as a merchant he had never yet broken with a bargain because it went against himself. That was the answer. Yet almost he could find it in his heart to wish that he had never made that bargain; that he had kept Peter, who had waited so long, waiting for another month. Well, it was too late now. He had passed his word and he would keep it, whatever the cost might be. Rising, he called one of the servants, and bade her summon Margaret. Presently she returned, saying that her mistress had gone out walking with Betty, adding, also, that his horse was at the door for him to ride to the river, where he was to pass the night on board his ship.

Taking paper, he bethought him that he would write to Margaret, warning her against the Spaniard. Then, remembering that she had nothing to fear from him, at any rate, at present, and that it was not wise to set down such matters, he told her to take good care of herself, and that he would be back in the morning.

That evening, when Margaret was in her own little sitting chamber, which adjoined the great hall, the door opened, and she looked up from the work upon which she was engaged, to see d'Aguilar standing before her.

"Señor!" she said, amazed. "How came you here?"

"Señorita," he answered, closing the door and bowing, "my feet brought me. Had I any other means of coming I think I should not often be absent from your side."

"Spare me your fine words, I pray you, señor," answered Margaret, frowning. "It is not fitting that I should receive you thus alone at night, my father being absent from the house." And she made as though she would pass him and reach the door. D'Aguilar, who stood in front of it, did not move, so, perforce, she stopped half way.

"I found that he was absent," he said, courteously, "and that is why I venture to address you upon a matter of some importance. Give me a few moments of your time, therefore, I beseech you."

Now, at once, the thought entered Margaret's mind that he had some news of Peter to communicate to her—bad news, perhaps.

"Be seated, and speak on, señor," she said, sinking into a chair, while he, too, sat down, but still in front of the door.

"Señorita," he said, "my business in this country is finished, and in a few days I shall sail hence for Spain." And he hesitated for a moment.

"I trust your voyage will be pleasant," said Margaret, not knowing what else to answer.

"I trust also, Señorita, since I have come to ask if you will share it. Listen, before you refuse. Today I saw your father, and begged your hand of him. He would give me no answer, neither yea nor nay, saying that you were your own mistress, and that I must ask it from your lips."

"My father said that?" gasped Margaret, astonished, then bethought herself that he might have had reasons for speaking so, and went on, rapidly: "Well, it is short and simple. I thank you, señor, but I stay in England."

"Even that I would be willing to do for your sake, Señorita, though, in truth, I find it a cold and barbarous country."

"If so, Señor d'Aguilar, I think that I should go to Spain. I pray you, let me pass."

"Not till you have heard me out, señorita, when I trust, that your words will be more gentle. See, now, I am a great man in my own country. Although it suits me to pass here incognito as plain Señor d'Aguilar, I am the Marquis of Morella, the nephew of Ferdinand, the King, with some wealth and station, official and private. If you disbelieve me, I can prove it to you."

"I do not disbelieve," answered Margaret indifferently, "it may well be so; but what is that to me?"

"Then is it not something, lady, that I, who have the blood-royal in my veins, should seek the daughter of a merchant to be my wife?"

"Nothing at all—to me, who am satisfied with my humble lot."

"Is it nothing to you that I should love as I do, with all my heart and soul? Marry me, and I tell you that I will lift you high, yes, perhaps even to the throne."

She thought a moment, then asked:

"The bribe is great, but how would you do that? Many a maid has been deceived with false jewels, Señor."

"How has it been done before? Not every one loves Ferdinand. I have many friends who remember that my father was poisoned by his father and Ferdinand's, he being the elder son. Also, my mother was a Princess of the Moors, and if I, who dwell among them as the envoy of their Majesties, threw in my sword with theirs—or there are other ways. But I am speaking things that have never passed my lips before, which, were they known, would cost me my head—let it serve to show how much I trust you."

"I thank you, Señor for your trust; but this crown seems to me set upon a peak that it is dangerous to climb, and I had sooner sit in safety on the plain."

"You reject the pomp," went on d'Aguilar in his passionate, pleading voice, "then will not the love move you? Oh, you shall be worshiped as never woman was. I swear to you that in your eyes there is a light which has set my heart on fire, so that it burns night and day, and will not be quenched. Your voice is my sweetest music, your hair is a cord that binds me to you faster than the prisoner's chain, and, when you pass, for me Venus walks the earth. More, your mind is pure and noble as your beauty, and by the aid of it I shall be lifted up through the high places of the earth to some white throne in heaven. I love you, my lady, my fair Margaret; because of you, all other women are become coarse and hateful in my sight. See how much I love you, that I, one of the first grandees of Spain, do this for your sweet sake," and suddenly he cast himself upon his knees before her, and lifting the hem of her dress pressed it to his lips.

Nose Took Fire.

A man with an inflamable nose recently created excitement on the Boulevard Saint Michel, Paris. He was lighting a cigarette when his nose became suddenly ignited, and it and his beard were soon on fire. The man jumped about in great pain, and was carried through a horrified crowd to a druggist's shop, where the blaze was extinguished. It was then found that he had a celluloid noise. The real nasal organ had gone under in a street fight and he went to a flesh patcher for an artificial nose. He had been supplied with one of celluloid instead of horn, hence his mishap.—[New York Tribune.

BITS OF VERSE.

A Plea to Fate.

O Fate, I ask of thee but this,
From all thy varied store.
Give me to work with all my heart
Till I can work no more;
And when my task I must lay down,
At life's slow set of sun,
Grant me the sleep, serene and sweet,
That comes from work well done.

So many strive to scale fame's height,
To set the floods on fire,
That there is need of modest souls
More humbly to aspire.
So this the plea I make mine own;
Give me the spirit true,
That knows the work its own reward,
And asks but more to do!
—[John Coleman.

Absence.

Light of those eyes that made the light of mine,
Where shine you? On what happier fields of flowers?
Heaven's lamps renew their luster less divine,
But only serve to count my darkened hours.

If with your presence went your image, too;
That brain-born ghost my path would never cross
Which meets me now where'er I once met you,
Then vanishes, to multiply my loss.
—[Unidentified.

The World's Way.

One that was full of gladness sang
Only the measures that were sad,
And all his listeners pitied him
And wept to think what woes he had.

One that was full of sadness sang
Only the measures that were gay,
And all who harkened envied him,
And longed to share his joy lit way.
—[Charlotte Becker.

The Far Light.

There is a light that shines afar
For every earnest soul;
Though thine be not my guiding star
And mine be not thy goal.

Yet a like heavenly wonder lies —
A rapture unconfessed—
The primal glow of paradise
Secure in every breast.

When backward to the dawn we turn,
The same far splendors shine
Where morning's earliest torches burn
As where the fires decline.
—[Ada Foster Murray.

A Daily Thought.

I would be true, for there are those who trust me;
I would be pure, for there are those who care;
I would be strong, for there is much to suffer;
I would be brave, for there is much to dare.

I would be friend of all—the foe—the friendless;
I would be giving and forget the gift;
I would be humble, for I know my weakness;
I would look up—and laugh—and love—and lift.
—[Howard Arnold Walter.

At Eventide.

In our hearts celestial voices
Softly say:
"Day is passing, night is coming,
Kneel and pray!"

Father, we obey the summons;
Hear our cry;
Pity us and help our weakness,
Thou Most High.

For the joys that most we cherish
Praised be Thou.
Good and gentle art Thou ever,
Hear us now.

We are only little children
Kneeling here—
And we want our loving Father
Always near.

Take us in Thy arms and keep us
As Thine own.
Gather us like little sunbeams
'Round Thy throne.
—[Marie Corelli.

Last of the Convict Ships.

Readers of "The Convict Ship" will be interested to know thatu ntil recently one of these craft was in existence. The ship a few years ago was moored and exhibited in the Thames, between Blackfriars and Westminster bridge. It had taken to Australia in its time 127,000 poor wretches, exiled from England for various offences. The vessel sank in Sydney harbor, but was later raised and sailed to England. It had seventy-two cells, a black hole and a chapel. The ship began its voyages to Australia in 1787 and sailed eighty-one years, in which time it carried to imprisonment and exile 116,842 men and 20,319 women.—[New York Tribune.

ELIPH' HEWLITT HAS HIS NERVE.

Invades Chamber to Sell His Cyclopedia to a Dying Man. Poor Fellow's Last Chance.

BY ELLIS PARKER BUTLER,
Author of "Pigs Is Pigs."

OLD "By Jocks" Edmiston was in bed when Eliph' Hewlitt, the little book agent, called at the farmhouse, and his daughter was busy putting up strawberry jam. She was in no good temper for a kettle of strawberries had scorched while she had been up stairs for a minute to see "By Jocks" shuffle off the mortal coil, and she had just got another lot of strawberries in the stove, and "By Jocks" was yelling down the stairs for her to come up and hold his hand while he dropped off into the eternal. He was a chronic diseaser and got a dying spell ever so often, but they didn't usually work out. He generally began to die about the time his daughter got her hands so full of work that it was a nuisance to have him dying, and he would go ahead and keep up the deathbed scene until he got tired lying in bed, and then he would get up and do a good day's work and feel better.

"Now, I ain't got no time to buy books, nor yet to look at books," she said sharply. "I've got my hands full with these berries and pa upstairs with one of them fooling dyin' spells of his. Just you go right along and don't bother me."

She wiped her heated face with her apron and plunged a wooden spoon into the kettle of berries. "Oh, pa, you lie still for one minute, won't you?" she called. "You don't give me a minute's rest. I'll be up in plenty of time. You lie still and let me finish this job, and I'll come right up. Please do."

The quavering voice came down the stairs calling, "Mary, come up!" and she wrung her hands.

"Land sakes!" she moaned. "He won't be still 'till I go up. I never see such a man! I just can't leave these berries!" and then she saw the book agent still standing with his nose against the screen door. "Would you mind goin' up and keeping him engaged until I get these berries in the cans?" she asked. "Try to sell him a book, or do anything you want to, so you keep him busy. I'm so bothered to death, and every time he yells down I git more [illegible]."

She opened the screen door and the book agent stepped carefully into the kitchen.

"Right up them steps," she said, and he went as she directed.

"By Jocks" was lying in bed with the covers drawn up to his neck and he raised his head and looked at Eliph' Hewlitt as the book agent entered.

"Come up to see me die?" he asked. "Well, I guess it's about time somebody was comin'. I never seen such a family as I've got. They don't care a cent, by jocks, whether I die alone up here or not. Every time I get a dyin' spell they all go and get busy. A man can't die like he ought to in such a family. Every time I get ready to drop off, and feel like it, they go to puttin' up fruit, or something, by jocks! And they been doin' that way for the last thirty years. I'm getting tired of it."

Eliph' Hewlitt smoothed his whiskers with his neat little hand and took a chair that stood near the head of the bed. He laid his sample on the floor at his feet on one side, and his hat on the other.

"I'm a book agent," he said gently; "my name is Hewlitt—Eliph' Hewlitt. I am selling to the leading citizens of this section a work in one volume."

"By Jocks" popped up his head and stared at Eliph' Hewlitt with amazement, and then popped his head down again.

"By jocks!" he exclaimed. It beat him. He lay still for a minute and then stole another glance at the little book agent. Eliph' Hewlitt was unstrapping his sample copy. There was no doubt about it. He was going to try to sell a dying man a book!

"Others may claim they have a book like this," said Eliph' Hewlitt, "but they haven't. There ain't no other book like it in the world. If there was, I wouldn't come up here and try to sell you a copy. It wouldn't be worth my while, because you wouldn't buy it. But as soon as I heard you was dying, I came right up. I seen it was my duty. 'Here is this man,' I says to myself, 'up there dying, and all alone, maybe, and liable to drop off any minute, and he hasn't got a copy of this book to brighten his dying moments. It ain't right,' I says. 'I hate to go up and disturb him,' I says, 'but I will, for if I don't he may die in a few minutes and then he'll never have another chance to buy a copy of Jarby's Encyclopedia of Knowledge and Compendium of Literature, Science and Art, and the man that ain't owned a copy of this book can't die happy.'"

The old man in the bed lifted his head slowly and stared at Eliph' Hewlitt with open mouth. Then he laid his head on the pillow, but immediately lifted it again and took another look. The book agent beamed at him kindly through his spectacles. The old man dropped back on the pillow.

"By Jocks!" he said, dazedly.

"The price, complete," said Eliph' Hewlitt, "is $5 down, $1 down and $1 a month until paid. I sell most that way, but for them that don't expect to live long enough to pay up by the month I make a special price of four-fifty, cash. Some folks don't like to die off and leave debts for their folks to pay. You get the very same book for four-fifty cash that you get for $5, easy payments. And I'll do more than that for you. Generally, I just take the order and send it in to New York, causing a delay in delivery of from one to two weeks, but if you are in a hurry I'll make an exception for you and deliver a copy out of the few I have in my buggy. That will give time for you to look it over, and it will be right here to lay on the center table, where it will look nice, and help to amuse and instruct them that come to the funeral. There is nothing looks better at a funeral than a high-class book like this on the center table."

"By Jocks" raised his head slightly and stole a glance at the book agent. He was greatly interested. For thirty years he had been dying regularly about once a month, and people had begun to lose faith in his dyings, but here was a man who took him as he should be taken. There is nothing so pleasing to a man who makes a specialty of deathbeds as to be taken in earnest.

"I know this book," said Eliph' Hewlitt, opening it at the illuminated frontispiece and running his hand lovingly over the page, "and that's why I offer it to you. If I didn't know it so well, I wouldn't come up here and disturb your last moments this way. But I do know it, from cover to cover, including all the ten thousand and one subjects mentioned in the classified index, and I know there ain't any other book that is so creditable for a man to leave behind him for his dear ones to cherish after he is gone. If you ain't got any good book already laid away for your dear ones to cherish, I recommend this one. You can't get a book anything like as satisfactory to leave for an heirloom as this one is, for anything like the price. It fills all the requirements of a first-class, high-toned memento, and the price is only four-fifty, cash."

"By Jocks" sat up in bed and groaned. He sat up because he was interested, and he groaned to show that he was not able to sit up.

"Take the 'Five Hundred Noble Thoughts from the World's Great Authors, Including the Prose and Poetical Gems of All Ages,' page 564," said Eliph' Hewlitt, turning to that page. "What could comfort the dying man better than that could? No man should die without them five hundred noble thoughts, containing as they do all the grand and great things that have been written, from Homer to Mister Dooley. How many men have died without having a favorite poem picked out for his family to have a verse of it cut on his tombstone! And here in this one volume is plenty to select from, so that each and every man can pick out the kind he likes best, whether wit, humor, pathos, sentiment, religious, political or oratorical. All that is necessary for a man that is pressed for time, like you are, is to take a pencil and mark any one he wants to have treasured up as his favorite. A nice way to do it is to expire with his hand in the book right at the favorite poem. It gives the minister a good start for his sermon. Have you thought any about your dying words?"

"Hey?" asked "By Jocks," leaning forward.

"Dying words," said Eliph' Hewlitt. "Too many neglects that until it is too late, and then they don't have any. Every man should have a good saying or two to use as dying words. All the great men do it. There's a good collection to choose from in this book. Page 749, 'Lives of All the World's Great Men, from Adam to Roosevelt, with the Dying Words of Them That Is Dead,' gives all of them, with new ones added as fast as they die and say them. It saves a lot of worry to be able to pick out a set of dying words that have been tried and found satisfactory. It is worth the price of the book for that alone."

"I ain't long for this world," said "By Jocks," mournfully.

"I can see that," remarked Eliph' Hewlitt, cheerfully. "I can see that you are pretty near dead now and liable to go any minute, and that's why you ought to get a copy of this book just as soon as I will let you have it. After you are dead it's too late to study up what your dying words are going to be. Too many people put it off right along, and then when it comes time to say a few appropriate last words they can't think of anything, and everybody stands around waiting for them to say them words that shall be treasured up and repeated, and the man in the bed gets all flustered and worried and ends up by saying something foolish. It ain't the right way to treat folks. A man that ain't a specialist in dying words shouldn't take the risk of speaking extemporaneous that way. He ought to get a good book that has a lot of the world's best dying words and study them up and get familiar with them while he has time. And this book has them all."

"Well, I don't know," said "By Jocks," weakly. "The way folks treat me when I have one of my dyin' spells they don't deserve to have me say no dyin' words. I've got half a mind, by jocks! to just drop off without sayin' nothin' at all. It would serve 'em right."

"And then you would be sorry as long as you lived," said Eliph' Hewlitt. "You take my advice and don't do it that way. It ain't worth while when you can get this book for four fifty cash, including all the features I have mentioned, besides nine thousand other things every man, woman and child should know. It is a book that appeals alike to the living or the dying. Now, take this Appendix of the Russian war, with colored views of all the great battles, and a life of President Roosevelt brought right down to date, comprising a story as interesting as a novel, and entirely true in every particular. See this colored oleograph of the blowing up of Port Arthur." He handed the book to "By Jocks" and the old man looked at the gory picture with interest.

"No," said "By Jocks," sadly, "I guess not. I won't live long enough to read it." He turned over the pages and looked at the pictures with all the interest of a child. "You can't make that price no less than four fifty, can you?" he asked.

"That is the lowest," said Eliph' Hewlitt, promptly. "But," he added, "if you don't think you will die right off you could take it on the monthly payment plan, one dollar a month."

"I can't risk it," said "By Jocks." "I feel I won't live long enough to make the second payment." He looked at a few more pictures and his eyes brightened. "Mary!" he called, and when she did not answer he called again and again until he heard her coming up the stairs.

"Mary," he said, dolefully, "I'm a dyin' man, and as such I've got to be humored, and I've got my mind set on havin' a copy of this here book. Won't you humor me four dollars and fifty cents' worth, Mary?"

"No, I won't," she replied, sharply.

"I guess you'd better," he said. "It don't to to vex a dyin' man, Mary; it makes him worse. I can feel myself worse already, by jocks! If you keep on opposin' me this way I won't last 'til sundown. You don't want to have a funeral on your hands tomorrow, right in fruit-cannin' time, do you, all on account of four fifty?"

She turned to the door.

"You get that book off your mind, pa," she said, "and I guess you'll last awhile yet." And she went out.

"By Jocks" glared after her for a minute and then he slid his feet to the floor and walked to the closet in the corner of the room. He took down his trousers from the hook and plunged his hand into a pocket. When he drew it forth it held a dollar bill, which he handed to the little book agent. Then he slipped the trousers over his feet and proceeded to dress angrily.

"All right, by jocks!" he exclaimed. "I guess I can pay for my own dyin' words, if she won't. A man can't die quiet and peaceful in this house without havin' his daughter rile him all up and get his mind into a state where it ain't fit to die. I want that book on the dollar a month plan," he said to Eliph' Hewlitt. "One dollar down and $1 a month. That won't be but four months from now, and if Mary is goin' to act that way I ain't goin' to die. I'm goin' to hang round an' be a care on her hands."

"You can easily put in four months full reading this book," said Eliph' Hewlitt.

"So I figured," said "By Jocks," "and since I've got to pay for it myself I ain't goin' to drop off until I get my money's worth out of it. I'm a sick man, I am, but I don't have to die 'til I want to, I guess. But if you happen to be around here in four months drop in to my funeral. It's going to be good. I made all the arrangements myself."

"I'll be glad to," said Eliph' Hewlitt, politely, "if it comes off, but I guess it won't. I don't wonder you feel like dying now when you haven't had a copy of this book to instruct, cheer and amuse you, but once you get the copy you have bought, it will be different. A man can't take no satisfaction in dying when he feels he has got to leave his copy of Jarby's Encyclopedia of Knowledge and Compendium of Literature, Science and Art, behind him."

ELIPH HEWLITT SMILED AT THE DYING MAN

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN.

Solicitors for Business.

There are solicitors and solicitors, but an enterprising young woman out in West Philadelphia has sprung a new wrinkle on that peaceful and quiet-loving section, says The Philadelphia Record. She has had a number of business cards printed bearing her name, and under it is the announcement, "Solicitor for Dr. ——, dentist." She goes from house to house, and, once admitted, soon finds out how many in the family are afflicted at times with the pangs of toothache, or need some cavities filled. She presents the card, and after a little talking soon has clinched an engagement with the dentist. Three times out of four she succeeds in making the appointment, and her commissions amount to a snug little pile.

Likes Athletics.

Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of the West Virginia Senator and heiress to a goodly fortune, is one of the few athletic girls who refuse to acknowledge the passing of their type. Few persons outside her family circle have seen Miss Elkins when she was not astride a horse and clad in the most masculine-looking garments. She invariably wears a derby hat, a stiff linen collar, small black tie and cutaway coat. She has magnificent black hair, but she conceals it under her hat, and, it is said, in mischief, Miss Elkins takes a positive delight in being mistaken for her brother.

An Eminent Astronomer.

Lady Huggins, now that Miss Agnes Clerke is dead, says a London writer, may be regarded as our only lady astronomer of real eminence. When about 10 years old Miss Margaret Murray, as she then was, went to work at astronomy systematically, and by the time she married Dr. Huggins she knew enough to be of the greatest assistance to him. They established themselves at Tulse Hill, then a mere lane in the midst of fields, and carried out the "new" astronomy, the principle of which was to investigate not only the motions of the heavenly bodies, but also what they are made of. Lady Huggins is, indeed, a many-sided woman, for she has managed to find time to cultivate music, painting, wood carving and botany, and she is devoted to her beautiful garden. She is a great judge of bric-a-brac, and possesses some wonderful examples of medieval craftsmanship. She plays the piano, the organ and the concertina.

Is a Medical Adviser.

Fraulein Maier, daughter of a stonemason in Wurtemburg, Germany, after studying medicine for some time at home, went to England, where she obtained work as house maid in a wealthy family. In this position she saved enough money to pay for a course in Edinburgh University, where she passed all her examinations with distinction. Now, a full-fledged M.D., she has sailed for China, where she will act as medical adviser for a large mission.

An Artist and Philanthropist.

Queen Elizabeth of Roumania is famous as a dramatist, a poet, painter and musician, as an architect, a worker in tapestry and embroidery and a scientist. She is devoted to philanthropy in a practical and most poetic way. She gives all proceeds of her writing to the poor of her country and her greatest care is the development of its resources and the encouragement of its industries.

For Money Purely.

"Maurice Grau told me," said a composer, "that he owed his success to the fact that he produced opera solely from the business, never from the musical or artistic, standpoint.

"Frank, wasn't it? Most men in his line use his method, but hypocritically pretend to be artists.

"Poor Grau, in our discussion, said that he went at music as a certain perfumer went at perfumes—not with the primary idea of producing something excellent, but with the primary idea of producing something novel, bizarre, profitable.

"This perfumer, he explained, said, one day, gaily to a friend:

"'Hurrah! I'm doing a rushing business. I'll be rich in a year. I've invented a new perfume that smells just like gasoline.'

"'But—' said his friend, 'but—I don't—er—quite see the point.'

"'The stuff is selling like hot cakes,' said the perfumer. 'Men and women alike are buying it. You see, it tickles their vanity. They go about redolent of gasoline, and people think that they own automobiles.'"

The Three Reasons.

Woodrow Wilson, the president of Princeton, was deploring the promiscuous giving of honorary degrees.

"Our universities have learned of late," he said, "to distribute honorary degrees judiciously. But in the past—"

He smiled.

"Well, in the past, I met an uncouth person at a dinner, and being told by an acquaintance that he had three degrees, I asked why it was.

"'Well,' said my friend, 'the third was given him because he had two, the second because he had one, and the first because he had none.'"

ROYALTY WILL NOW BE SEEN AT WORK.

PRINCESS LOUISE AUGUSTA of Schleswig-Holstein.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, May 4.—To see a real, live, royal princess actually at work is something of a novelty. It is a spectacle which will be vouchsafed those who visit the exhibition of the Society of "Artists at Work" to be opened in London in a few days. Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein is a member of the society. One of its rules is that exhibitors must show how they make the things they exhibit. And so Princess Louise will be seen working at her pet craft with the rest.

She is one of the members of the Royal family fortunate enough to have a profession—or rather art—at her finger ends in case of need. She is a worker in enamel. It isn't likely she will ever have to earn a livelihood at it, but there is no doubt of her ability to do so should the necessity ever arise. At charity bazaars to which she contributes, her work invariably fetches high prices. Many of her friends and relatives treasure highly bits of jewelry, frames or boxes wrought by her. The finest piece of enameling she ever completed was a memorial cross for the grave of her brother, Prince Christian Victor, in South Africa.

Her art has been a great solace to her, for her life has been a rather sad and clouded one. In 1891, when only nineteen, she was married to Prince Aribert of Anhalt. To outsiders the union seemed a fairly happy one, but in 1900, without a word to any one, she suddenly left her husband and she has never seen him since. There was no issue of the marriage and it was dissolved according to the official explanation, "to suit a new family law of the Ducal house." Since then she has been leading as far as possible the life of a private person, occupying a modest house in Queensberry Place when not staying with her parents, Prince and Princess Christian, at Cumberland Lodge, Windsor.

The Princess was one of Queen Victoria's favorite grandchildren, and bears a strong resemblance to her aunt and god-mother, Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll after whom she is named. She has a great aversion to the fuss and ceremony which her birth involves and shirks it whenever possible. On one occasion this disposition resulted in her being treated with a degree of familiarity which she is far from courting. She was taking a sea voyage for the benefit of her health and the weather being boisterous she was advised to seek the shelter of her cabin. She found the confinement irksome and resolved to brave the storm and go on deck. Creeping from her saloon, she attired herself in a set of tarpaulins which a sailor had left handy, mounted to the deck, and, clinging to a handrail, stood enjoying the spectacle of the surging billows. Her pretty hair was tucked away beneath a great sou'-wester and the disguise was complete. Presently she received a thump between the shoulders which nearly took her breath away and a big voice bellowed in her ears, "What the devil are you doing here?" She turned round indignantly and faced—the captain! Then it was the captain's turn to gasp. He thought he had caught one of the crew loafing.

NATIVE WIT OF SCHOOL PUPILS.

EXAMPLES CULLED FROM BRITISH EXAMINATION PAPERS.

Some Remarkable Construction of Facts of Bible History as Well as English Local History and Mathematics—Readjusted by the Youngsters.

A correspondent of the London Leader writes as follows:

I have been reading with keen delight a collection of what are called "Howlers," quaint answers given by children to questions put to them in examination papers. This latest assortment of samples appears in "Past and Present," which is described as "a journal for scholars (old and young) of Friends' schools," and the answers quoted have been given by children in those schools. This fact adds considerably to the zest in some cases. For instance, the following statement, taken from a scripture paper, would be remarkable in any case, but it appears to be inspired by exceptional truculence when we remember that it was written by a budding Quaker:

"If you hit a man in the eye you may hit him in another; if he knock thy teeth out, thou shalt knock his out."

Here we have a free rendering of the doctrine, of the old dispensation, an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, and the young Friend clings to it tenaciously.

Among the Scripture answers the following are also worthy of note:

"Paul and Barnabus were kept in stock at Philippi."

Barnabas is spelt "Barnybuss" by another scholar. There is the right spirit shown in this also:

"The Samaritans who attacked Nehemiah and his followers found them prepared, and waiting with a sword in one hand and a brick in the other." Evidently Nehemiah had a well-considered scheme of national defense. There is evidence of research, too, in this:

"Rameses II is generally known as the Pharoah of the Compression; because he made the children of Israel into bricks without straw."

I am inclined to suspect the youngster who wrote that. He is probably a wag, and when his teacher's back is turned, very likely the small boy puts his thumb to his nose.

Let us turn to the history paper, which also has its gems—as, for instance:

The Temple of Zeus is built of columns that bulge out. This is called the Ironic style.

The following statement shows how patriotic the young Briton is, whether he be a Quaker or not:

The Parthenon was modelled on St. George's Hall, Liverpool.

And there is distinct originality in this:

The Spartans had two Kings to check one another.

The suggestion of a right royal slanging match is very pleasing. But, after all, I like some of the simplest answers best. I remember in a previous collection being delighted by the lad who, when asked, "If you stand facing the north, what have you on your left hand?" replied, with quiet confidence, "Fingers"; and the other boy who, when asked to state whose bones the children of Israel took with them when they left Egypt, answered, "Their own." There is finality about such answers.

And so in these answers before me I am much attracted by this:

Q. Correct the sentence, "It was me that broke the window."

A. It wasn't me that broke the window."

Here we have evidence of loyalty to truth—at least, I have no reason to doubt the correctness of the denial—and the answer also shows that the small scholar is not going to be trapped into an awkward admission in shownig acquaintance with correct grammatical construction. There is also nothing that can be added to this:

Q. What happens when sulphur is heated?

A. It gets warm.

If you were to roll all the leading scientists of the day into one, they could not call in question the accuracy of that simple statement. It ends the matter completely.

The boy who wrote the following ought to become a practical politician when he grows up:

"The easiest way to cross a range of mountains is to go round them.

I dare say the sensible little fellow would be called an "opportunist" by blundering cranks, but I accept his rational statement at once. It is possible, however, that some temperance advocate will frown at the suggestion contained in this:

"The potato is not only used for feeding peasants, but goes to more important things, such as whisky."

Another lad appears to be more sound on the temperance question, for, having been invited to give his views on tramps, he wrote the following little essay:

"Tramps. Some people threaten to call the police or turn the garden hose on them. But all these precautions are of very little avail, as at every street corner, public-house, or roadside, the tramp is always to be found; and until Chinese labor is abolished and a great many of the public-houses removed there will always be the same bountiful supply."

The writer of that essay evidently takes an interest in the course of current events.

Here is another specimen of the complete and final answer which leaves no room for further argument or trouble:

Q. Why did not Moses enter the Promised Land?

A. Because he was dead.

WHIMSIES OF ESTELLE KLAUDER.

Mrs. Phelps Stoke's Epigram.

A charming epigram adorned an address that Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes made on her last visit to Detroit.

The brilliant young lady was rejoicing over the fact that in the slums woman, no matter how wretched her case, kept her speech pure, as a rule, of profanity.

"An oath from a woman's lips," she ended, "is unnatural and incredible. I would as soon expect a bullet from a rosebud."

What If He Lived Today?

"When ex-Gov. Pennypacker was still a judge," said a Philadelphia reporter, "he showed me in his uptown house his superb collection of old newspapers.

"As we turned those faded pages, I said:

"'Do you think, sir, that our newspapers have improved?'

"He smiled, his shrewd and kindly eyes twinkled, and he answered:

"'They have grown larger.'

"Laughing, I asked him what he thought of our Sunday papers.

"'They are marvelous,' he replied. 'They are encyclopedic. Whenever I take one of them up I am reminded of the old Frenchman of the last century, who read his paper with great care and thoroughness, but whose progress was so slow and whose paper was so large that he was always eight months behind the current issue.'"

Race Suicide Again.

A Washington correspondent told, the other night, a story that he claimed to have heard from President Roosevelt at a Gridiron Club dinner.

"Two women," he said, "were discussing some new neighbors who had moved into one of the most sumptuous houses in their city.

"'They seem to be very rich,' said the first.

"'Oh, they are,' said the second.

"'Shall you call?'

"'Decidedly.'

"'You are sure, are you, that they are—er—quite correct, quite—er—good form?'

"'Oh, my dear, I'm positive,' said the second woman. 'They have thirty servants, thirteen horses, twelve dogs, eleven automobiles and one child.'"

True Politeness.

"Silent Smith," said a broker, "was a good, kind man, but a busy one, a foe to bores and time-wasters.

"He used to fish occasionally at Shawnee, and a Shawnee farmer, on a junket to the city, once made bold to visit him in his New York office.

"'Well, Josh, how'd Silent Smith use ye?' they asked the farmer at the general store on his return.

"'Fellers,' said the old man, warmly, 'Silent Smith is the perlitest cuss I ever see. I hadn't bin settin' chattin' with him more'n a quarter of an hour 'fore he'd told me six times, be gosh'lmighty, to come in an' see him ag'in.'"

What We May Come to.

Alexis Alladon, the leader of the Russian Douma's labor party, was marveling in New York at the strength of the labor unions of America.

"Now that I grasp the size and power of these unions," he said, smiling, "I see the point of a story that I failed to understand, coming over on the boat.

"An American woman told me this story. She said that a young bride was found, one afternoon, crying bitterly in the smoking-room of her club.

"'Why, my dear,' said an elderly matron, 'what is the matter with you?'

"'Oh,' sobbed the bride, 'I am going to leave George. Dear me, I am going straight back home to mother.'

"'What,' exclaimed the matron, 'has George already proved unkind? Well, they're all alike, my—'

"But the weeping bride interrupted her.

"'No,' she said, her shoulders shaking with grief, 'George is a dear. He's perfect. But that brute of a Henry Simmons has refused to buy Mrs. Simmons a new dinner gown, and District 4 of the Amalgamated Wives' Union has been ordered out on strike.'"

A Calumny on Anglers.

"We fishermen, said Havelock Morton, California's famous fly caster, are continually being accused of intemperance. The accusation is false. No intemperate man could ever cast a fly. Yet yesterday a friend of mine had the effrontery to say to me:

"'You fishermen! You fishermen!'

"'What's the matter now?' is asked, scornfully.

"With a chuckle, he declared that, out walking in the country, he had met an angler beside a brook, and had said to the man:

"'How can you tell the good places from the bad when you come to a stream?'

"'By the bottles,' the man answered. 'Wherever the most empty bottles are scattered is the best place.'"

BY H. RIDER HAG

Castell answered that he had, since ut a few minutes before a letter had ome from him announcing his safe arival, tidings at which Margaret ooked up, then, remembering her romise, said that she was glad to ear of it, as the roads were none too afe, and spoke indifferently of something else. D'Aguilar added that he o was glad, then, rising, took his ave "till seven on the morrow."

When he had gone, Castell gave Margaret a letter, addressed to her in Peter's stiff, upright hand, which she read eagerly. It began and ended with sweet words, but, like his speech, was brief and to the point, saying only that he had accomplished the journey without adventure, and was very glad to find himself again in the old house where he was born, and amongst familiar fields and faces. On the morrow he was to see the tradesmen as to alterations and repairs which were much needed, even the moat being choked with mud and weeds. His last sentence was: "I much mistrust me of that fine Spaniard, and I am jealous to think that he should be near to you while I am far away. Beware of him, I say—beware of him. May the Mother of God and all the saints have you in their keepings! Your most true affianced lover."

This letter Margaret answered before she slept, for the messenger was to return at dawn, telling Peter, amongst other things, of the gift which d'Aguilar had brought her, and how she and her father were forced to accept it, but bidding him not be jealous, since, although that gift was welcome, she liked the giver little, who did but count

Parent and Teacher.

A MOTHER WRITES OF THE DUTIES OF THE FORMER TO THE LATTER, AND TO THE CHILDREN.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

WE AMERICANS are filled with just pride when we think of the splendid school systems that are ours, for the benefit of our children; but it behooves us to hid our faces with shame when the moral conditions of our schools are brought to light. There is a responsibility of parenthood that parents in general do not appreciate. This responsibility is the absolute knowledge of the school life of our children. We should remember that our responsibilities do not lessen when we send our children to school; but to ever bear in mind that all responsibilities increase the moment they enter the chart class.

There has been much said and written of our educational advantages, and the writer would quarrel with none of it. But would it not be better to hear and read more that would help us to blot out this horrible immorality in our schools? I am not thinking as I write of some crowded city school in a downtown district, where the children come from immoral surroundings, but of the schools in the respectable communities in which you and I have to bring up our children.

I venture to say, not one parent in fifty is well acquainted with the teacher to whom he intrusts the most sacred part of him. Do we realize that our children spend more waking hours with their teachers than with us as parents? Is not this thought in itself enough to awaken us to the fact that we must know our teachers if we would know the larger life of our child, namely, the school life? It is a pitiable situation when we hear a parent say: "If Tommy's parents would only understand him!" If Tommy's parents would only understand him, his teacher could easily become informed of Tommy's peculiarities, and the mutual understanding would be worth more than one could estimate to poor Tommy.

Last year, while visiting a room, I had a teacher say to me: "I cannot give up trying with that child, for, as you know, his mother does not understand him." Is it not a pity for a teacher to work with such interest for a child and not have the parent appreciate it?

I wish I could tell how much more capable a parent is, who understands the school life of his child, than the parent who is unacquainted with his child's teacher, school and schoolmates.

"It is so hard," said a teacher to me a few days ago, "to go to some parents and tell them wherin their children are at fault. Often they become very much offended, and then it is so discouraging."

This casual remark gave me much food for thought, and I am glad it came to me.

Do I know my child's teacher so she can come to me without hesitancy and tell me the things I should know and could not know in any other way? Am I leaving to my child's teacher the very duties God has given me?

Now, I happen to have a very sensitive nature, and teachers have come to me and told me that which caused a lump to arise that I was some moments in swallowing. But was I not much stronger to battle with a known enemy, than to grope in the dark—for, I knew not what?

The parent who is perplexed because his boy is losing his love of home and willingness to obey, or perhaps is feeling that his influence over his daughter is not as strong as it was, is very apt to be the parent that is ignorant of his children's school life.

It is folly to presume that the mental training is all our children are absorbing at school. All these years they are growing mentally and physically; their moral development is hindered by the immoral conditions they are forced to meet.

The moral training is paramount. The physical training is not to be undervalued, but the mental training should be considered only in aiding the growth of the moral and physical man, if we would have a race of superior men and women.

It is easy to obtain mental training or an education, and develop as fast as time will permit; but it is hard to blot out and forget the immorality that has impressed the mind of youth. The pitfalls are many, and the feet slip easily. It is just as easy for my child and for yours as it is for children of less interested parents.

The teacher worthy the name knows all too well of these pitfalls, and she would be more than glad to work hand in hand with the parent. Indeed, it is this coöperation of teachers and parents that should be steadily sought for, if we would know our child's life from all points of view.

Some parents, when they are worried over a child, will fret and complain at home and abroad; maybe they will go to their pastor and tell him of their worries (poor man has none(?); many times they pray some, but still feel all at sea, simply because they have started wrong. If they would go to the child's teacher, learn of her the school life and habits of their child and the school children with whom he associates, they would be starting right; then, with prayer, vigilance, tact and patience, they would be making a splendid beginning.

It is not always possible for the "bread-winner" to spend any time at school during school hours, and many times the mother cannot spend the time at school that she wishes. But this we can all do: we can extend a cordial invitation to the teacher to see us in our homes for heart-to-heart talks which would meet with a ready response, I am sure. Let us not hesitate because our homes are humble; let us thank God that they are, and let us ever be ready to live so that they may be adorned with true beauty, such as clean morals, pure thoughts and kind words.

The teacher to a large class of people means "a thing apart" when she should mean a very part of us. Teachers as well as parents know that some teachers might be of more importance in another vocation, but this every parent knows, who is at all informed, that the teacher's life is not an easy one. True, it is pleasant, because there is an unlimited amount of progress; but pleasant things are not always easy. The hardest tasks are pleasantest sometimes because the fruit is abundant. It must come to us as parents that we are much to blame for the immoral conditions that exist in our schools, be they in city, village, or country.

It is only for us to know of these conditions for us to realize that our children must be taught by us the real meaning of life. What in our lives could so rob us of peace as to feel that we, through thoughtless years, have deprived our children of a happy childhood?

We hear on every hand from criminals, "I had no one to look after me, and I soon got into bad company;" or, worse still, "My father and mother sent me to school to get me out of the way, and they never knew where I was." It is not uncommon to know of just such criminals having parents who held the respect of the community in which they lived.

Let us not awake too late and find we, too, have made of maternity a crime and child-rearing a curse. We should know our teachers and know them well. Remember, they are quite human, often at fault; but we cannot ask of them more than we are willing to give in return. We enjoy a kind word, a look of approval; extend the same to the teacher, for her work is as vital as ours.

How happy the teacher when she can tell us of the progress of our children and how much she enjoys teaching them. How full the life of such a one; her influence will be felt throughout our lives and the lives of our children and our children's children. And how much she can do in helping us to help the children of indifferent parents.

All thoughtful teachers realize, as we do in our most serious moments, that the lives of our children must be to them a heaven or a hell. Which shall it be?

BUCKLES AND GIRDLES.

Brown and White Studies for Outing Costumes—Leathers to Match All Colors.

[New York Sun:] The belt is always an important item in the summer outfit. The simplest of shirt waist frocks takes on smartness when associated with an attractive belt and modish neckwear, and this season there is more opportunity for clever choice in such details than there has been in many a season.

The new collars, stocks, ties, rabats, frills, etc., are altogether charming and the designers and makers of belts have achieved great success in their line. The perfection to which the leather workers have brought the arts of dyeing and curing has much to do with the added beauty of the belts.

There is, apparently, no fashionable shade which cannot be matched in leather of the greatest softness and suppleness, and in the belt departments of certain shops noted for the scope and variety in their assortment of such goods one is likely to find a smart leather belt to harmonise with almost any street costume.

The number and beauty of the brown belts is a conspicuous feature of the showing. There have always been belts of tan and of brown leather, but never has there been so wide a range of brown shadings or so varied an assortment of designs.

Concerning the width of the belt there appears to be no fixed rule. One sees the severe narrow leather belt with harness buckles; but the wider crush belts are much in evidence, and these crush belts in the buckles in back and front are presented in amazing variety.

Tortoise shell buckles are attractive upon the brown leather but are liked even better in association with white leather belts. Either the light amber shell or the darker mottled brown is used and a large circle for the back, with one smaller for the front, is the favored design. Occasionally the shell is studded with cut steel, but the plain shell buckle is particularly effective.

The circle buckle in leather, plain or steel studded, is popular, the leather belt being drawn full through the buckle, giving a shirred effect. Plain burnished gold buckles, too, are good upon the brown leather.

The light biscuit, sand color, putty color and similar shades are prominent among the new leathers, harmonising well with these same popular shades in linen, pongee, cloth, etc.

All of the odd rose, raspberry and dull red tones are to be found in leather, and the apricot gray and green tones as well. The blues are not so good, but lovely shades of blue are offered in the elastic belts, which rival those of leather on fashion's list.

These elastic belts have been worn all during the last year, but the designers have developed many new ideas in the heavy silk elastic, and by combining elastic and leather have achieved excellent results. Tan or brown leather combined with white elastic is a favorite motif, and since the shoemakers have taken up the same color scheme and are offering very smart shoes in brown leather and white duck or white doeskin, the belts and shoes together suggest many good ideas for summer and outing toilets. A white linen frock, one of the fashionable brown hats, a brown and white belt and brown and white shoes would fit out the summer girl in admirable style.

One of these brown and white models has been sketched for this page. The body of the belt is of the heavy white elastic, while strapping, buckle and lacing are of brown leather.

Ribbed belts of elastic in plain colors, with severe buckles of dull or burnished gold, are practical things with the severe tailor costume and come in all of the accepted shades. The wide girdles of elastic decorated by handsome buckles at back and front, and often elaborately studded with cut steel, have been worn for two seasons, but appear in new guises this spring and fit the figure so snugly that many women prefer them to any other wide girdle.

In some of the handsomest models there is no trimming on the bottom, the idea being to match the skirt in the belt color and so avoid an abrupt line of demarcation. Around the top of the deep elastic girdle is a design embroidered in cut-steel beads, often relieved by touches of coral, turquoise or other colored stones.

The buckles, of course, echo the coloring of the embroidery. Some of these belts command very high prices and, indeed, a majority of the modish belts are by no means inexpensive.

Plaid leather and plaid elastic both figure among the new belts, and one sees both the gay tartan plaiding and the more quiet plaiding in white and brown, white and green, white and black, etc. Often the buckle as well as the belt is plaided, being either enameled to match the belt or covered with the belt material.

Striped leathers and elastic also are to be taken into account, and we have seen some effective dotted belts bound in plain leather.

Patent leather is used for some excellent models of the narrower types and is finished simply by good, though severe buckles, or, perhaps, is studded as was the patent leather belt of our sketch, with round brass knobs. Black patent leather is used, too, for the trimming of belts in white or light color.

A new belt material which really looks better than it sounds is found in straw. Some of the imported belt models in this material are as pretty as they are bizarre, both belt and buckle being made of finely plaited, flexible straw, held by lines of metal.

Another French idea is the combining of pongee and straw, in their natural shadings, but these, of course, are fashion fantasies and the average woman will prefer more conservative belts.

One very exclusive firm makes a specialty of very wide soft belts of leather, steel studded and finished with steel studded leather buckle, or plain and having a handsome monogram buckle of gold, silver or gunmetal. The chief beauty of these belts lies in the extreme suppleness of the leather and in the beauty of the coloring even the most subtle of the season's shade being furnished, if ordered.

Embroidered linen belts are to be worn more than ever and one may buy them in all grades of elaboration, from the simple belt with embroidered dot to the linen belt elaborately embroidered intricate design. Of course, cheap machine embroidered linen belts abound, but it is easy to distinguish the hand-embroidered article from that embroidered by machine. While pearl buckles are the best thing for such belts, and the linen so buttons to the buckle that it is an easy matter to remove it and launder it.

In ribbon belts and girdles the variety is limited only by the variety in handsome ribbons, and that seems endless. Then, too, the fancy buckles find fullest scope, but the art buckles must be seen to be appreciated. Description cannot do them justice.

All of the semi-precious stones are pressed into service for them and beautiful effects are obtained in art enamels. The exquisite flowered ribbons are often used for these handsome, wide crush belts and very handsome heavy ribbons are woven in width suitable for narrow belts, the plaid and stripe designs being conspicuous among these heavy silk bands.

NOTES OF THE KITCHEN.

Servants Should Have More Consideration from the Mistress of House.

[Chicago Chronicle.] The kitchen is almost invariably the domestic storm center. Either the master of the house is displeased with his meals or the mistress has just had some trouble with the presiding genius of that sacred place. The latter kind of storm is generally quite frequent, and then the household finds itself under the painful necessity of struggling along by itself and of getting its own meals, which latter procedure does not contribute to the sweet temper of anybody.

The cause of these storms the mistress always finds in some misdemeanor of the cook's, and if the master dares to insinuate that, for his part, he finds it in some misdemeanor of hers, there immediately follows a storm of another kind.

Very often, however, it happens that he is right. Some mistresses do not know how to keep a servant, because they look upon her not as a human being, but as a mere machine. She is never supposed to be tired nor to have any wishes or preferences apart from those of her mistress.

It is in the nature of everybody to be cross at times, but the maid is expected to have the patience of Job. The mistress could not possibly see of her own volition that the maid might be suffering either mentally or physically, nor realize that she perhaps needed a holiday. She considers that if she gets one afternoon a week and every other Sunday, she is getting all that she is entitled to.

If she likes her, she considers it below her dignity to tell her so. She does not in the least mind reprimanding her before company or before the children, and when she wants anything done, instead of asking her politely, she demands the service as a right for which she is paying and which she accepts in the same spirit when performed, without the courtesy of a "Thank you."

Politeness and consideration are things which no woman should consider herself above showing to her maid. Aside from this, they are the two best means of getting her to stay.

Children should be taught not to treat her with unnecessary disrespect nor to make extra work for her. The chances are that she has enough regular work to do without being obliged to tidy up after the children.

When giving orders to your maid you should not only do so politely, but should also state them clearly and concisely so that she will know exactly just what you mean and not be obliged to guess, with the chance of guessing wrongly and so of incurring your displeasure.

Do not be angry with your maid unnecessarily, and when you have just occasion to reprimand her, do so in as few words as possible and with no display of temper whatever.

Consult her sometimes and ask her advice about things connected with the house. Remember that she may very likely know better or more economical ways of doing things than you do.

You should give her just as good wages as you can afford. Do not put her off a week without giving her a good reason for doing so, and when you think she has been with you long enough to merit an increase or if her work has been such that she deserves it, see to it that she gets it.

If you have company and consequently are obliged to ask her to work late at night give her a little something extra for it. Anybody working overtime is entitled to be paid for the extra time, and there is no reason why a servant should be an exception to the rule.

Give her as comfortable and as pleasant a room as you can, together with sufficient time in which to take care of it. In fact, you should always see that she gets an hour or so to herself every day in order that she may have time to rest a little bit, to get off her feet and to get done any mending or letter writing of her own that she may have to do.

For the miserable stipend that you pay her you certainly cannot expect to buy all of her time, nor compel her to attend to her own concerns at night after a long, hard day's work.

Women and Work.

"A man's a man for a' that and a' that," said Burns, and so is a woman, for that matter. There seems to be a good deal of twaddle in this talk about not paying women as much as men. Of course, when we enter the business world, we must recognize that "business is business," whether we are dealing with men or women. Things have to be run on business principles to succeed; but whoever can do the work, man or woman, ought to receive commensurate recompense. Prof. Seligman of Columbia University says that "the remuneration of women is ordinarily lower than that of men, even when the work accomplished seems to be the same. The economic reasons for this are obvious and well understood." We fail to see how there can be any just reason in this, when the work accomplished is the same. A woman who does as much and as good a grade of work as a man is entitled to as much pay for it as the man gets, and it would take a very long and sinuous argument, it seems to us, to make a fair-minded person see it otherwise. The "economic reasons" involved and which are "obvious and well understood" seem to be nothing more nor less than innate stinginess of the worst sort, where for equal amount and quality of work a woman is denied as much pay as a man simply because she is a woman.—[The Pathfinder.

Women and Home.

BY CATHERINE ALLMAN.

"Don't work off 'Higher Education' effects on your lowly handmaiden, lest you come to grief," sighed a popular young woman to her most confidential friend. "I once lost an automobile beau that way, and think what that means to a girl with social aspirations. His auto was on honk wagon, but a real enough palace touring car.

"But let me tell you how it happened, for I can see you are wondering how he ever escaped. When a girl meets a man who owns a touring car, just an ordinary gleam of human intelligence tips her off to exert herself a wee bit to charm; you know what I mean, judicious jollying, sympathetic listening, best clothes, hair dressers, and all the rest. I don't even blush to acknowledge stooping to such allurements. Touring cars have their compensations, and the popular girl today has to be up and doing, hire a press agent, and all but run a bar to be a head liner on life's little stage. Slangy, but it's true.

"Deftly I led him up to the point of calling for me for a morning spin. Talk about the sport of inducing a trout to rise to the fly—well, the morning came, the auto did likewise, and with it the man. Picture me upstairs in my boudoir, struggling with one of those shoe-horn confections, (you gather my meaning, princess with Irish point), and with a bridey looking auto veil draped gracefully over my best bonnet. I was in the seventh heaven of anticipation when the dusky handmaiden put in an appearance and announced 'A gemmen to see Miss Do'thy.' Striking a Lady Macbeth attitude and adopting a tragic voice I said, 'Tell him I will be down anon.' 'What'd ju say, Miss Do'thy?' gasped the bewildered servant. I gave her a severe look. 'Tell him (do you note the stagey enunciation,) tell him I will be down a-anawn.' As she rumbled down the stairs I sprinkled a few drops of benzine on my mouchoir, just to be sure to have the true motoring atmosphere on straight, and sank gracefully down in a chair to keep him waiting for a polite length of time.

"But what was that that burst on my appalled ears? A none too courteous slam of the door, a fog-horn whistle, and the chug chug of a disappearing motor.

"'Twas too true, alas! He was gone. Kitchenward I sped me on direct vengeance bent. Voices halted me. Dusky handmaiden was explaining to dusky cook: 'Deed, I done tell 'im nuffin' 'ceptin' what she tol' me, and I could'n help it no ways, kase he mak' myrations aboot it. Miss Do'thy say she be down in an houah. I done tol' him Miss Do'thy be down in an houah. He look sprised, then safygrous, lef' his cyard, sayin' he guess dey's some mistake, and he call agin—a week fum some Tuesday.'"

There is a maid in this town whose devotion to her finance may have temporarily eclipsed her sense of humor, but her practicability, never. This gentle creature suffers from severe colds, and nothing but masculine handkerchiefs—and plenty of 'em—suffice. Does she use her father's or her her brother's, like most unprincipled—sisters and daughters? No, indeed. She purchases a dozen of men's handkerchiefs for her own use, and after the affliction is over she bestows them on her beloved. She even buys them with his initial, a glorified sort of an H. Now, isn't that devotion—of a sort, though?

It gave the writer a good bit of cheery comfort to discover that people in the rare old, fair old golden days, died quite as often from a complication of doctors, as well as a complication of diseases, as they do nowadays, and furthermore, that it was almost as expensive. Mister Henri de Mondeville, surgeon of Philippe de Bel of France (1306-1329) in his memoirs writes of a little incident that will appeal to present day readers surely. It seems that some royal lady was seriously indisposed and a consultation of all the wise doctors of the realms was called hurriedly. After much wrangling and heated discussion they arrived at a decision and had just formulated a prescription for a syrup for the suffering dame, when a belated colleague rushed in. He snatched up the diagnosis of the case and read it with wise waggings of the head, and then examined the prescription. Finally he added on to it a berry to which his brother practitioners demurred, saying it was unnecessary. "Muttonheads and oxen," exclaimed the doctor with true professional politeness, "how could I conscientiously receive my share of the fees if I added nothing to the prescription?" How, indeed?

"Oh, these housewives with the tidy mania," exclaimed a physician recently, "how many ills are consummated in thy name. Micro-organisms," he declared, "are innocent little molecules or atoms seeking only a resting place, and not rushing about looking for appendicitis victims, or even trying to spread the lowly measles. These micro-organisms," this doctor continues, "settle down in an obscure corner of the room, or mayhap on the newly acquired pianola, preparing to stay there and die there, if necessary. But no. A trim housemaid enters, and with a few airy passes of the hands pokes up every vestige of dust in the room, and as dust is the chief carrier of micro-organisms, of course they move, too, until in self-defense, they settle down on the breakfast cereal or lay in wait for the innocent passer-by on whom or in whom they will lodge and spread the latest discovered 'it is' of the profession."

Never dust the furniture at all, is the advice of this specialist, but if you must, use a damp dusting cloth so the particles will adhere to it, instead of floating in the air.

But the lady who possesses mahogany heirlooms or highly-polished furniture will wisely dampen her dust cloths, not with water, but with some oil. The street-cleaning department is also a public menace, runs on the good man, and its victims number thousands. Streets, he avers, should be cleaned by a thorough flushing every twelve hours.

Because of various typographical errors and other peculiarities, a number of editions of the Scriptures are known by curious nicknames. There is the Bishops' Bible, the Breeches Bible, the Bug Bible, Cranmers' Bible, Ears-to-ear Bible, Geneva Bible, He-and-she Bible, Knave Bible, Printer's Bible, Standing Fishes Bible, Thumb Bible, Murderer's Bible, To Remain Bible, Treacle Bible, Vinegar Bible, and the Wicked Bible.

It is not generally known to housewives, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that in foreign countries, in Germany and Holland especially, birds' eggs are prized as delicacies. Among the presents sent to Bismarck on his eighty-third birthday was 100 crows' eggs, of which the great statesman was inordinately fond. Plovers' eggs are considered by connoisseurs to be a choice edible, and are served in numerous ways. In the Holland markets all kinds of large birds' eggs are for sale, presumably for food, redshanks, greenshanks, and godwits being the most common, while the bright blue egg of the heron and those of wild ducks may be occasionally procured at a fancy price.

Rules of Good Form to Follow When Death Invades the Home.

[Chicago Chronicle:] There are various reasons why certain rules of good form have been laid down when death invades the home. They have been made almost necessary by the extravagance of undertakers when placed in charge and by the officiousness of friends or, more properly speaking, acquaintances who exhibit a morbid desire to invade the house of mourning. The family in affliction has certain rights and privileges of privacy upon which none should intrude and it has also the right to expect certain courtesies of real friends. The observance of the following suggestions will save regrets later on and often still the tongue of gossip:

Immediately after a death occurs in the family some cool-headed, entirely reliable friend or relative should be placed in charge of all arrangements and all instructions or offers of help should pass through his hands to and from the family. The entire front of the house should be closed and all shades drawn, while a maid or friend should be in attendance to receive callers, messages of sympathy, cards, etc. The bell should be muffled and the door opened without noise that would distract members of the family within doors. The maid or friend should dress in black.

Plain crepe, black or white, is seldom attached to the door now, flowers being used more generally. White flowers with white ribbon denote the death of a child or young girl, roses and violets with white or black ribbon the death of an adult.

Unless the funeral services are held immediately because the interment is to be in another city, a newspaper notice of the death and hour of the funeral is sufficient. If there is not time for this, friends may be notified by telephone or messenger. A brief notice with the words "Please omit flowers" or "Interment private" is all that is necessary.

No member of the family should be seen abroad. The family friend selected will arrange for the lot, notify the pallbearers, clergyman, choir, etc. Dressmakers or clerks from stores will be sent upon notification to supply the needs of the women in the family. It is the privilege of the family to make the services as private as they desire and to refuse to see all callers. This is not regarded as rude, but in better taste than noisy exhibitions of grief and the turning of so sad an occasion into a display of music, flowers and choir boys.

If for any reason the funeral is held in a church only the pallbearers and the nearest relatives assemble at the house to form an escort to the church.

Mourning gowns for women should be most simple, black cloth trimmed with bands of crepe, a crepe bonnet and matching veil, black suede gloves. When the family does not believe in mourning raiment, black clothing without jewelry and black chiffon veils shrouding black hats are sufficient. When the mourning is not to be worn after the funeral it is unnecessary to use it for the one day. Many families of standing do not believe in the use of crepe.

Letters of condolence need not be answered until an opportune moment after the funeral and generally a fortnight's time is allowed.

Secret of Good Manners.

Most mothers hold, consciously or unconsciously, one of two theories about the acquirement of manners by their children.

One mother says: "Manners are only the outward sign of the inner nature. If my daughter has a kind heart and a well-trained mind she will behave in a gentle, charming fashion. I will teach her compassion, respect for age, unselfish zeal for helping with the world's work. Her manners will take care of themselves."

Another mother says: "My girls will never get on without conventional manners. They shall be taught from babyhood to emulate the speech and bearing of ladies. They shall be instructed in the proper behavior for every occasion. They shall walk and dance and write and speak with graceful perfection."

Neither method, says the Youth's Companion, produces altogether satisfactory results.

Unselfishness is truly the foundation of good manners, but not the superstructure. Many conventional restrictions have grown about social relations. Some can be explained by the demand of kindness and some cannot. Could a child infer from his desire to help others that he should not eat with his knife? Many offences against good taste interfere in some way with the rights of others, but many others do not.

Still, no set of rules to produce a polished lady will achieve a result fit for the strain of life. The manners of the French boarding school may adorn the ballroom, but are too likely to fail at the breakfast table or in the crowded car. The woman of perfect manners must reinforce her unselfishness by social rules, and conventionality must be vitalized by the warm desire of others' pleasure. The best of life never "comes naturally," whether in manners or morals.

The secret of charming manners is the desire for them. When the mother wishes them for her daughter as much as she wishes the other goods of the world her daughter will have them.—[New York Sun.

Looking "Comfortable."

The lingerie model must be able to put on the long, slender-waisted corset with the high, stiff bust and look comfortable. This means that she must have a long, narrow waist line. It is the line demanded by the princess dresses, and all lingerie models must acquire it, for the princess gowns are all built with this long, low waist line and the high bust.

Then, besides this corset, the lingerie model must be able to wear the very low empire corset. This calls for a firm figure and a very nice round waist line. It is even more trying for the model than the long, low waist, for it means that one must stand well and carry one's figure perfectly.

The lingerie model is a girl who puts on the thin shirtwaists of summer. In the wholesale establishments she is hired by the day to put them on for retail buyers. If she is a very good model she is hired at so much a week and her hours are long and trying.

The model arrives at 9 in the morning and begins putting on the lingerie waists, for the buyers are there ahead of her, and her duties begin the minute she enters the shop. This means that she must arrive in good shape. Her hair must be nicely marcelled, so that the waists will be becoming to her, and her color and her expression must both be animated.

There is no time in a busy establishment to put on linings or slips of this color of that, and this calls for good flesh tints on the part of the model. She must be naturally high-tinted. A yellow throat will ruin the effect of the dressiest lingerie waist and a sunken throat will spoil the open-work effect of the finest lace waist that was ever built.—[Chicago Chronicle.

DENTISTRY FOR WOMEN.

ALREADY THERE ARE EIGHT HUNDRED IN THIS COUNTRY.

A Business Peculiarly Adapted to the Sex—Story of One Female Who Is Making a Success of the Profession in South America and Now Has Eight Offices.

Reverting to census figures, we find in comparison with the 5000 woman physicians we have only 800 dentists.

In explaining the great discrepancy in numbers between woman dentists and woman doctors, the difference is probably due to the fact that dentistry is yet in its infancy among the professions open to women.

Again, it may be explained by our habit of associating torture with the dental chair. It is true that it is often necessary to inflict pain, but at no time is the dentist's position more trying than is that of the trained nurse assisting the surgeon in the operating room.

However this may be, the fact remains that very few of the other professions offer brighter promises to the woman ambitious for a career than does that of dentistry.

One of the leading women in the profession has this to say concerning the adaptability of women to the work:

"Without a doubt the profession is one practically adapted to women. It is work that may be confined to regular hours. It is work that can often be done in her own home, and its field of operation largely devoted to women and children. Surely the peculiar graces of womanhood must be appreciated here, if anywhere; the sympathetic nature, the gentle touch, and with all, the kindly word of encouragement."

Coming from one who has devoted the best years of her life to the work, these words carry the weight of more than usual significance.

A year ago there came to this country from one of the South American republics a young woman of thirty-two who has the distinction of being the only woman dentist in the home of her adoption. The object of her visit was to study the improved methods in her profession, and to learn of what was new and up to date.

The story of her success is an inspiring one, and, frankly, not often duplicated. Speaking of her decision to enter the profession, she says: "I was born in a little town in Belgium. When I was a girl of twelve, at a boarding-school, I had a terrible toothache. The dentist in attendance decided that I must have my tooth extracted, but when he pulled he broke it in several pieces. Again and again he tried, causing me the most intense agony. As I sobbed and wailed over my lacerated jaw, I screamed: 'I'll show you that women make better dentists than men when I grow up.' I kept my word. I studied dentistry at the Free University of Brussels, completing what is now a six-years' course in two years. Receiving my diploma, I started in business in South America, where my family had already settled.

"My action in opening a dentist's office created a tremendous sensation. Being the first woman to engage in the business, people crowded about me, the newspapers wrote me up, but I soon had a good practice, and in the eight years since it has grown wonderfully."

Besides owning and managing eight dental offices, this busy and enterprising woman is official dentist to about 3000 boys and girls in various religious institutions, orphanages, schools and foundling asylums.

True it is not often that so much good business sense and professional skill are found in one and the same person, and while the success of this woman may be classed as somewhat out of the ordinary, yet there is nothing she has accomplished that cannot be duplicated by any of a hundred of ambitious women, where the determination to succeed has once been formed.—[Washington Post.

Trials of a Waist Model.

A creation of the summer of 1907 is the lingerie shirtwaist model. She is different from all other models. And her duties are much more arduous and her requirements much more difficult than that of any of her companion models.

The lingerie shirtwaist model can leave nothing to the imagination. She must have a figure that is absolutely perfect. In the lingerie waist there is no chance for padding. The texture is soft and the mesh is open. A model must, therefore, be absolutely perfect or she can not be a lingerie model.

A good lingerie model must be able to wear the very high new corset. This is cut with a long pointed waist and a high bust. It is a corset which gives the Elizabethan figure. And to say that it is a difficult corset for the average woman to wear is saying very little of its true difficulty. It is the most trying thing ever invented for the human figure. There are women who can wear it and feel comfortable. But the great majority are very uncomfortable in it.

The Mother Responsible.

Many mothers, after giving careful attention to the physical care of a child during the first two or three years of its life, are prone to consider their work along this line finished and to relax their vigilance. There seems to be an impression, unexpressed it may be, that the mother has been tied down long enough and that the child is able to shift for himself and to do as his elders do, or he is turned over to the care of a nursery governess. On the other hand, overindulgent parents from a mistaken sense of affection, are unable to deny the child any passing whim of appetite or temper. In either case the result is the spoiled, precocious American child, who, with his lack of consideration for others and his irritable nerves, is anything but a comfort to his parents and an able nuisance to every one else.—[Pictorial Review.

THE ORIGIN OF WOMAN.

A NEW STORY OF THE WORK OF CREATION.

A Brooklynite Reveals the Difficulty Eve Experienced in an Endeavor to Live With the First Man. New Woman Is a Delightful Inconvenience.

At the thirteenth annual banquet of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Bushwick Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., George Schubel, the guest of the evening, threw the meeting into confusion by taking as his subject, "The Ladies." Drifting into the subject, and pointing out the pleasant foibles, vagaries and inconsistencies that the average woman is guilty of, he told the following story, which has caused all the trouble and excitement among the women of the Bushwick section.

"To illustrate the point that I would make," the author is reported to have said, "let me tell you a story. Sometime ago, while in the library, I happened to come across some Hindoo Sanskrit, and I read a most remarkable account of the peculiar elements that the Creator used when he came to the making of woman.

"'In the beginning,' says this remarkable language. 'Twashtri,' that is, the Hindoo Creator, 'when he came to the making of woman, found that he had exhausted all his raw material in the manufacture of man and had no solid elements left. So he produced in this fashion: He took the graceful curves of the moon and the creepers, and the clinging of the tendrils and the slenderness of the reed and the trembling of the grass and the glory and brightness of all the flowers. And to this he added the tapering of the elephant's trunk and the shy glances of the woodland deer and the sly glances of the minx; the hypocrisy of the crane and the vanity of the peacock; the warmth of fire and the coldness of the snows; and the timidity of the hare and the boldness of the mountain cat. And mixing all of these strangely inconsistent elements together he made woman and he handed her over to man.'

"Now here is where the funny part of it all comes in. After having woman for a week, man came to Twashtri and said: 'Lord, this creature thou hast given me makes my life miserable. She chatters incessantly, is unsteady, teases me past endurance and cries about nothing and so I have come to give her back to thee again.'

"So Twashtri replied, 'Very well,' and he took woman back again.

"But after another week, man came back to the Creator and said: Lord, I find that my life is very lonely since I gave thee back that creature thou madest for me. I remember how she used to sing and dance for me and look out of the corner of her eyes at me and cling to me and her laughter was music and she was very beautiful to look at, so please give her back to me again.'

"So Twashtri replied, 'Very well,' and he gave woman back to man again.

"But after only three days man came back to the Creator and said: Lord, I know not how it is, but after all, I have come to the conclusion that this creature is more of a trouble than a pleasure to me, so please take her back.'

"But this time, of course, Twashtri was roaring angry and said: 'Out on you, I will have no more of this. You must manage her as well as you can.'

"Then man said: 'But I cannot live with her.'

"And Twashtri replied: 'Neither can you live without her. Put up with her as well as you can.'

"The novel part of it all is," concluded the author, "that man has come to sort of like and seek the inconveniences, until today, he couldn't possibly be happy without a woman's delightful company. I know that I couldn't."

Hot Cross Buns.

Sift together one quart flour, two dessertspoonfuls baking powder, and a pinch of salt. Rub in with the tips of the fingers butter the size of an egg. Beat two eggs light and add to them one cup sugar and a pint of milk and water mixed. Stir into the mixture; mix soft, roll out on a floured board, cut in cakes, mark with the cross and bake in a hot oven. Sift powdered sugar over them. Raisins, currants and shredded lemon peel may be added if desired. The story is told of a Brooklyn woman who makes 200 of these annually for her husband and two boys. They are cut very small, however.—[Pictorial Review.

The Dependent Class.

The London Times recently recounted the commitment to the workhouse of an aged couple who had twenty-four children, living, none of whom were able to contribute a farthing to the support of their imbecile parents. Another case was that of a blind black who had married a crippled woman. Even this select assortment of infirmities as a stock in trade did not suffice to provide funds after child No. 5 arrived, and they were committed to the workhouse to be supported by the authorities instead of by the soft-hearted tourists who are always easy marks.

HIGH SCHOOL BEATS POLY.

County Championship Goes With the Victory.

Pitcher Beamer Is the Hero of Great Game.

Great Crowd of Rooters See Two Teams Contest.

L. A. H. S., 5; Polytechnic, 1.

In the final baseball game of the season for the county baseball championship, Los Angeles High School triumphed over Polytechnic High School at Chutes Park yesterday afternoon.

"Poly" was beaten in every department of the game except "rooting." Although the wearers of the blue and gold were on the tail end of the score throughout the game, their supporters in the grand stand never lost hope. The noise increased as the game progressed, and when "Poly" went to the bat for the last time, the grand stand was trembling with the deafening roar of voices, clanging of bells, and stamping of feet. Never before had the old grand stand echoed with such a demonstration as that of yesterday, and two great bands of rival high school "rooters" form the only combination capable of making such a racket.

Nearly 2000 persons, mostly students of the big high schools, attended the game, and the grand stand was crowded. On one side the Polytechnic contingent held forth, and on the other the L.A.H.S. supporters were grouped. Every known instrument for making a racket seemed to be in the crowd. Tin cans, cow bells, trumpets, megaphones, wooden boxes, and numerous other things of noise-producing capacity were in the hands of the high schools' pupils, and the tumult was heard half a mile away.

Beamer was the hero of the game. The blue and white pitcher was an enigma to the "Poly" batsmen, and although they secured six hits they were scattered through the nine innings and yielded but one run. Thirteen times "Poly" boys walked to the plate only to be struck out. Salyer was the only batter who was able to solve Beamer's delivery, and although he secured three hits, he was unable to reach home.

RAGGED FIELDING.

Ragged fielding largely was responsible for "Poly's" downfall. Frampton was wild, and when men got on bases the blue and gold players invariably went up in the air and threw the ball all over the lot. All of the winning team's runs were made on errors, and had the "Poly" team given Frampton better support, there might have been another story to tell, as he allowed but two clean hits.

The throwing of Price to second base was one of the features of the game. Twice in the second inning he caught men stealing second base. A double play by Frampton and Strang lifted "Poly" out of a bad hole in the third inning, and brought forth a roar of applause from the grand stand that was deafening. Pretty catches in the outfield and fast playing by the infielders also kept interest at a high pitch, and gave numerous opportunities for thundering applause.

"Poly" was first at the bat, but Lee fouled out to Mitchell and the next two men struck out. Los Angeles opened up by getting a man across the plate. Bricker was passed to first. Cass bunted to Frampton, but Strang muffed the bad throw and the ball went out to right field. Bricker tried to make home on the play, but was caught at the plate. Cass landed on third base, and immediately after came home on Rickerhauser's fumble.

Los Angeles got another run in the third inning. Sefton reached first on Salyer's wild throw, and stole second. Wilson was passed to first. Frampton made a balk and both men advanced a base. Bricker hit a weak one to Frampton, and Sefton was thrown out at the plate. Wilson stole third, and scored on Price's wild throw to second to catch Bricker. Bricker was caught at third.

"Poly's" only run came in the fourth inning. Price flew out to Bricker and Frampton hit down the left field for two bases. Salyer followed with a single, scoring Frampton from second. The next two batsmen went out. During the remainder of the game only one "Poly" player reached third base.

In the seventh inning, Los Angeles High School added two runs to her score and cinched the game. Halbriter was thrown out at first by Salyer. Beamer was safe on Strang's fumble of his difficult grounder, stole second and reached first on a passed ball. Johnson was passed to first. Coleman made a scratch hit to Frampton and Beamer started for home. He was run down between the bases, but as Price interfered with him he was declared safe at home. Johnson reached third while Beamer was being run down, but he was caught at the plate. Coleman scored on Sefton's single.

"Poly" opened up the ninth in a manner that promised one or more tallies. Frampton struck out, but Salyer rapped out a single to left field. Pierce followed with a hit in the same direction and Salyer went to second. The blue and gold section of the grand stand went wild. The game was stopped for several minutes until the tumult subsided. Rickerhauser sacrificed, and there were men on second and third, with two out. A hit meant a fighting chance for the game. It was up to Strang to start things going, but he hit an easy one to Wilson and was thrown out at first, leaving both men on the bases.

The students of the winning school held "high jinks" on the field after the game. Beamer was carried about on the shoulders of his schoolmates before the admiring throng, and the other players were smothered with congratulations. A long lock-step procession was formed by the students and ran riot over the lot.

YACHT RACING BEGINS TODAY.

SOUTH COAST CLUB WILL SAIL ITS OPENING EVENT.

Eight or Ten Boats Are to Appear and Start Is to Be Made from Point Near Miner Bulkhead Over Seven-Mile Course, Which Will Be Sailed Over Twice.

This is sailing day for the amateur sailors along the south coast, for the first race of the season is scheduled for today off the shore between Long Beach and San Pedro.

The formal opening of the new house of the South Coast Yacht Club was the programme for last night and today comes the first race of the twelve on the card for this year. There will probably be eight or ten boats out, in the Yankee, Columbine, Skidoo, the two Mischiefs, the Monsoon, the Venus, Myth, Muriel, Valkyrie and possibly the Osborne.

The course today is fifteen miles in length, or rather seven miles to be sailed over twice, and ample opportunities will be given to show how each boat stands up. The start is to be made at 1:30 o'clock from a line between a stakeboat and the southwest corner of the Miner bulkhead; thence on the first leg east by south, half south, two and one-half miles; thence on the second leg north 14m. 30s., two and one-half miles; thence on the third leg southwest, two and one-half miles to the starting point, and over the same course again.

SAUCER TRACK IN PROSPECT.

BICYCLE MEN MAY HAVE SPORT THIS WINTER.

Eastern Promoter With a Track Near Boston Proposes to Bring Some of the Professionals Here for Six-Day Event About Christmas. Races Will Be Run Semi-weekly.

Los Angeles is to have another saucer bicycle track next winter, if the plans of the promoters do not miscarry, and as there is no suitable building here now for bike racing, one will have to be built.

The man back of the scheme is Alex McLean, formerly manager of Jack Johnson, the fighter, and owner of the Revere Beach bicycle track near Boston. McLean was in this city a few days ago and called on W. G. Furman, the ex-amateur champion rider of this end of the State, in regard to a site for a velodrome for an eight-lap track. Morley's Rink was suggested, but this was even too small for a ten-lap track, and a special building will have to be erected.

McLean's idea is to open his saucer track here next Christmas with a six-day race, such as they have in New York at Madison Square Garden, and after that is finished, have twenty-four-hour sprint races, with money prizes for the man first at the end of each mile. This should provide close races and there is little doubt but that the bicycle game would be a success, for it has been six years since anything like this was tried here, and then it was by Jack Prince, who has a bad reputation among the riders.

It is McLean's idea to have two or three races each week, one at least at night and the other on Sunday afternoon. The races will be finished in the East before the snow flies and all the professionals who follow the regular circuit could winter in the city.

The bicycle game here at present is very quiet, for while there is no decrease in the number of wheels ridden, there are no races of any kind to keep things moving. McLean intends to stir something.

POOLROOM FIGHT TAKES NEW PHASE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The never-ending poolroom fight has again cropped up at Belmont Park to the worriment of race goers. the Pinkertons have become especially active in the last two days in their efforts to prevent the news of scratches, starters, jockeys and odds being transmitted to the outside world for the use of poolrooms.

This afternoon two Pinkertons were stationed at the foot of the stairs leading to the bleachers and refused to allow any one to go to the roof during race hours on the plea that repairs were being made.

BALLOON RACING SEASON TO OPEN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With a great race tomorrow to celebrate the completion of the new and elaborate changes at the Aero Club's park, at Saint Cloud, the ballooning season begins with a rush.

Fifteen balloons are to take part, which is nearly as many as competed for the Coups international contest. Tomorrow's will be a long-distance race, open to two classes of balloons. First, balloons with a cubage of not more than 900 meters; second, balloons with a cubage of not more than 630 meters.

Another long-distance race for balloons, between 600 and 1200 cubic meters, is organized for June 13.

FRENCH SOCIETY TAKES TO GOLF.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Golf is rapidly becoming a favorite sport in French society. There has been a remarkable increase this spring in the membership of the club at Laboulie, near Versailles, the only full-sized links within reach of Paris. The staff has been doubled, and four instructors are barely sufficient to meet the demand for lessons.

The star performer is M. Arnaud Massy, a Frenchman, who proved himself equal to the best English and Scottish professional golfers. The Laboulie's membership roll now exceeds 420, nearly 100 more than a year ago.

MEMORIAL DAY ROWING REGATTA.

The rowing contingent of the Los Angeles Athletic Club is busy at Playa del Rey at every opportunity, and a few capable oarsmen are being turned out by Coach Franklin. A regatta is being arranged for Memorial Day, and all the cracks are to take part. Franklin has drawn a good heavyweight crew with such oarsmen as big Morrison, H. Conger Bowers, Lowe and Dick Dunnigan, and also has a good light bunch to work upon.

RACE DEPENDS UPON MILITIA.

Vanderbilt Cup Course Must Be Policed.

Island Motor Parkway Will Not Be Finished.

Proposed to Transfer Event to Florida Beach.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prospects of success for the holding of the Vanderbilt cup race this year now hinge upon the factor of obtaining the use of State militia to police the course. If this can be accomplished, said the racing board officials of the American Automobile Association yesterday, at the conclusion of the first meeting this year, and if a suitable course can be obtained over the public roads in Nassau or Suffolk county, then, with a grand hurrah, but under changed conditions which have in a measure eliminated some of the international features of the big contest, the Vanderbilt cup race for 1907 will be held again on Long Island.

Notwithstanding these strenuous efforts of the racing board to bolster up fallen hopes of the race since the disappointing statement of Tuesday by the directors of the Long Island Motor Parkway, that no portion of the private speedway would be in shape for the big event this year, the prevailing opinion in the automobile world yesterday was that, with the dubious chances of securing State militia aid, the Vanderbilt cup race prospects hang on extremely slender chances.

It is now planned to use the Ormond-Daytona Beach for the next Vanderbilt cup race, providing arrangements cannot be made for a course on Long Island. The idea is looked on with favor by many motorists who are familiar with Florida racing.

Senator W. J. Morgan, who is responsible for the sport that has already been held in the South, says:

"If the race is given in Florida in November, arrangements can be made to use one of the two Ormond-Daytona circuits. The beach course, with the proposed land loops at either end, will undoubtedly be gotten ready, giving a fast course of thirty-four miles. A half-beach and a half-road course is also possible, as follows: Cross the new Port Orange bridge from the beach and strike the Daytona and New Smyrna shell road, proceeding through Daytona, down the river road and across the Halifax River bridge at Ormond. This would give about a sixteen-mile loop, and as the river road has been much improved and could be widened in places so as to permit cars to pass each other, the running of the race in Florida would undoubtedly save the American Automobile Association $20,000, or more. The great expense of oiling the course, building fences, policing and the other numerous expenses that come with the race would be largely eliminated on the Florida course.

"Special permission is required to use the Florida course. The weather in Florida in October and November is always good, so the race could be conducted under the most favorable auspices and conditions."

ANNUAL REGATTA ON SCHUYLKILL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Philadelphia's oarsmen are now getting ready for the fifth annual regatta of the American Rowing Association to be held on the Schuylkill River, May 25. The feature event of the day will be the race for junior college eights. At the present writing there are four crews absolutely certain for this race, these being Yale, Harvard, Cornell and Pennsylvania.

The report that Yale had decided not to send a crew to the regatta is not a fact, according to the information of the stewards. Yale has contemplated sending her 'varsity eight down, but has been obliged to give up this project and substitute a second eight for the junior event.

There is still a possibility that Georgetown will send a second eight. The date for entries has closed, but the college race is a special event and entries for it may be accepted until the last few days.

Foreign Entries Barred.

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An important decision was reached at a special meeting of the Henley regatta stewards on May 4. It is to bar foreign entries, at next year's regatta, on account of the international regatta to be held after Henley in connection with the Olympic games.

A.A.U. BOXING IN LOS ANGELES.

The Pacific Coast amateur boxing tournament probably will be held in Los Angeles next fall. Al Lawton, secretary and treasurer of the local branch of the A.A.U., is trying to pull the big event to this city from San Francisco, where it usually is held, and he says that he has met with much encouragement from all concerned.

The tournament would bring to Los Angeles the best amateur boxers of Oregon, Washington, Nevada and California, and there would be contests in all classes.

Last year the national boxing championships were held in San Francisco and the tournament met with great success. The northerners are trying hard to keep the big boxing fete in the Bay City, but Lawton believes that the tournament can be secured for the south.

ENTRIES MADE FOR BIG RACE.

Adverse Conditions Do Not Daunt Makers.

Vanderbilt Race in Doubt, but Four Cars Sure.

Five More Already Promised for American Team.

While the future of the Vanderbilt cup race is in extreme doubt, and no one knows where it will be held if it is held, the sanguine people who keep the game alive are preparing to put their cars in. There are always, of course, a great many rumors of who will race and who will not, and there are always a great many speed monsters built on paper, but already there are some real tangible evidences of interest in the great American automobile classic.

Though no date has been set for the event and no rules formulated, at least four cars have been formally entered for the race. The first of these came from the three young amateurs who are known as the B. L. M. Motor Car Company. They are Sydney S. Breese, C. L. Lawrence and Arthur J. Moulton.

The car entered is practically the same machine that was built and entered for the 1906 contest, but which was not finished in time to compete in the American elimination trial. The engine is of the four-cylinder type, the cylinder dimensions being 6x6, and it develops between eighty and ninety horse power. The car was entered through the Automobile Club of America, and though no driver was named it may be that the machine will be driven by Pierry, a Frenchman who drove one of the French cars in the 1906 Grand Prix of the Automobile Club of France. It is possible that another B. L. M. racer may be entered for the race, but nothing definite on this point has been ascertained.

Immediately following the entry of the B. L. M. racer, E. R. Thomas of Buffalo made formal entry of three 115-horse-power racers for a place on the American team. These are practically the same cars that were entered last year, rebuilt and overhauled to a large extent. It is said that they are now practically ready for the road. Mr. Thomas was represented by three cars in the elimination trials to select the American team for the 1906 Vanderbilt cup contest, the cars being driven by Montague Roberts of New York and Hubert Le Blon and Gustave Caillois of France. In making his entry for this year's contest Mr. Thomas did not give the names of the drivers of the cars, but will announce the names later.

Although no formal entry has been made, the Dragon people have announced that they have three racers for the Vanderbilt cup well under way and will have them on the road by the end of this month if possible. To them must be added the entry of the Royal Tourist, which is said to be practically assured.

The latest firm to make definite announcement of intention to compete in the Vanderbilt cup race is the Pope Motor Car Company. It seems the Pope Motor Car Company have been sawing wood and saying nothing—or rather have been zealously guarding a deep secret, which it remained for an enterprising newspaper man to find out. They are building a big Pope-Toledo racer, constructed entirely of chrome nickel steel.

The next question is, who will drive this new Pope-Toledo racer? Rumor says Herbert Lytle, but the Pope Company says it's too early to make an announcement. The Pope Motor Car Company will also enter in the Vanderbilt race a fifty-horse power regular stock runabout. This car has made such a good record for speed and strength that it is expected to win over many specially-built racers. Rumor says Herbert Lytle will drive this car also, but he can't drive two cars at once.

Perhaps Bert Dingley, now up in San Francisco, can throw some light on this question.

Anyhow, here are four racers for the cup already guaranteed, and five more as nearly promised as they can be until the makers take the final steps and formally make entry. In the unsettled state of the Vanderbilt cup race, this willingness to spend money in making racing wagons goes far to prove that the road-racing game is not yet dead.

CLUBS COMBINE FOR EVENT.

Giants' Despair Hill Climb Will Be Greatest of Decoration Day Meets.

The Quaker-City Motor Club of Philadelphia has decided to abandon its hill-climb schedule for Decoration Day on Monk's Hill, near the Quaker metropolis, and instead will coöperate with the Wilkesbarre Automobile Club in the Giants' Despair hill climb, also scheduled for May 30. C. W. Matheson, representing the Wilkesbarre organization, had a conference with President Charles J. Swain and the board of governors of the Quaker City Club and succeeded so well in interesting the Philadelphians that the Quaker City Motor Club is to hold a club run to Wilkesbarre on May 29, returning to Philadelphia on May 31.

The Wilkesbarre club, in recognition of the courtesy of the Quaker city motorists, has arranged to have two events in the Decoration Day hill climbing programme reserved exclusively for members of the Philadelphia organization. There was so much enthusiasm over the prospect of having the Quaker City men at the Giants' Despair contests that the Mayor of Wilkesbarre and the Board of Trade sent an invitation to the Philadelphians to be present.

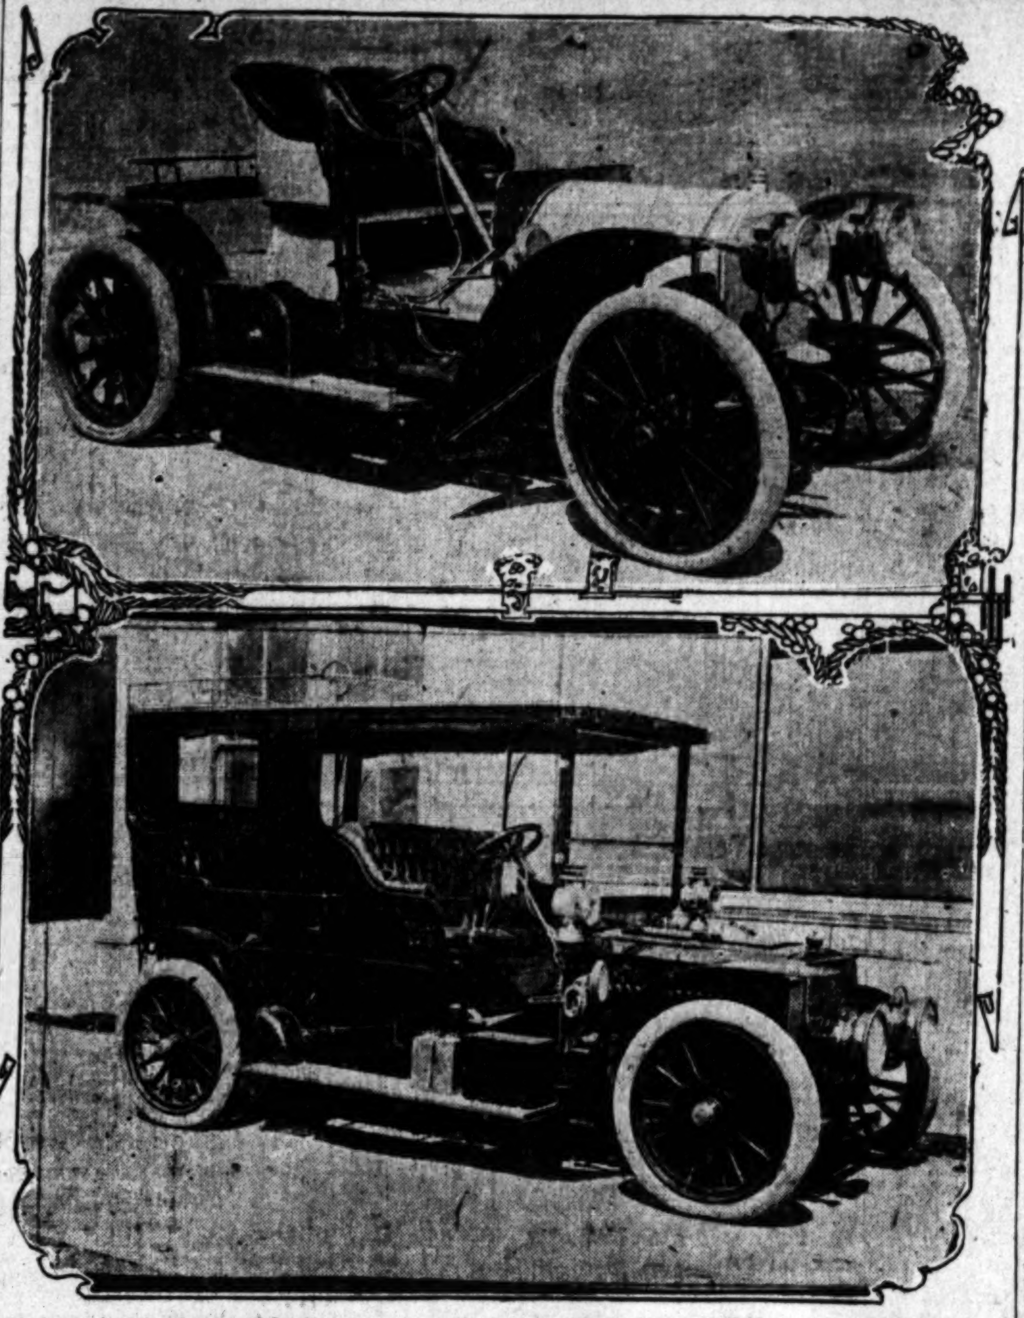
There were seventy-two entries for the Giants' Despair hill climb last Decoration Day and the promoters expect more than one hundred entries for this year's affair.

MOTOR BOOKS DESTROYED.

Blanchard "Press" Fire Consumes First Edition of Maxwell-Briscoe Pamphlets.

In the $200,000 blaze which wiped out the Blanchard Press on Canal street, New York, the other day, the first edition, numbering twenty-five hundred copies, of the "Correspondence School of Motor Practice," conducted by the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Company, was entirely destroyed. The volume contained eight papers on the proper practice and care of automobiles—papers already regarded as authorities on this interesting and vital subject.

The entire edition was in the bindery at the time of the fire, and will have to be entirely reset and reprinted. Under the circumstances, over two thousand subscriptions having been received, steps are being taken to have an extra edition printed and bound for distribution within the next fortnight. The original edition of 2500 copies was to have been delivered May 1.



Part of the biggest shipment of foreign cars ever received in the West—Above, a 28-32 horse-power Mercedes runabout with rumble body by Mac Brothers; below, a 24 horse-power Panhard with imported Kellner demi-limousine body.

QUARTETTE OF FOREIGN CARS.

LOCAL AGENCY PLACED FOR EUROPEAN FLYERS.

First Shipment, Said to Be Largest Ever Sent to Coast, Arrives in Los Angeles—Panhard, Mercedes and Smith & Mabley Simplex Cars Are Included.

What is said to be the largest shipment of foreign automobiles ever received on the Pacific Coast has just been unloaded by the Success Auto Company, and simultaneously they announce that they will be agents in Los Angeles for the entire line of Smith & Mabley of New York. L. J. Sackett of the New York firm is in Los Angeles attending to the placing of the agencies. In addition to the Smith & Mabley Simplex, which is American-made from foreign material, they import Panhards, Mercedes and Renaults, and have the exclusive agency for the Italian Isotta-Fraschini.

The cars which have arrived and are on exhibition at the Success Auto Company are Panhards, one Mercedes and several Simplexes. No Renaults have been shipped, but they will be ordered for any one who wishes one. The only Isotta-Fraschini which Mr. Sackett could bring West at the present has been sent to San Francisco, but it will be sent here in a few weeks.

The Panhards are three in number, fitted iwth different bodies. One is a 35-horse-power chassis, with a limousine body by Quimby of New York. The other two are 24-horse-power chassis, one fitted with a Quimby touring-car body, and the other a demi-limousine body by Kellner. This is one of the finest specimens of body work ever seen in Los Angeles.

The Mercedes is a 28-32-horse-power runabout. Mack Brothers of Brooklyn have built the body, which has a wide rumble seat, so that the car closely approaches the roadster surrey type, of which there have recently been placed on the market several examples.

The Simplex cars are newcomers to the West. Although there has never been in Los Angeles an agency for the Panhard or Mercedes, several cars of both makes are owned here, and they are somewhat familiar to the motor-wise. The present shipment of Simplex cars brings a new member to the local motoring family.

The Simplex is built in America, largely of imported material and largely on foreign lines. It resembles the Mercedes in many particulars, but in the vital parts of the engine and transmission it still more resembles the Panhard. Two of the cars on exhibition are 30-35-horse-power chassis with Quimby seven-passenger touring-car bodies, and one is the same chassis with a limousine body by Lampaugh. The remaining car is one that was finished for the New York show. It is practically the same chassis, with a specila convertible runabout body.

JOY-FEST IS COMING.

Rubber-Men Will Have Their Annual High Jinks This Week—Big Barbecue at Santa Monica.

The annual gathering of the men behind the puncture and the men who are punctured, when side-clips are forgotten and all is peace along Gasoline Row, will take place Thursday. On that auspicious day the men who spend the rest of the year in selling automobile tires and such will give a banquet to their friends, the automobile dealers.

Santa Monica has been chosen as the scene of the reunion. There will be a highly ornate and commodious parade of machines to the city by the sea, and after arrival, sports. The big event will be a barbecue, at which an ox will be roasted whole. It is hoped that there will be a return parade of machines in the evening.

TO ESTABLISH NEW AGENCIES.

Los Angeles Man on Western Trip in Interest of Berliet Car—Well-Known Here.

F. M. Hoblitt, hero of the hot-stove episode and a well-known Los Angeles automobile man, is now on a western trip to establish Berliet agencies for the American Locomotive Automobile Company. Mr. Hoblitt was last here as general western agent for the Aerocar people, but has changed his allegiance since going East.

He will stop at Chicago, Denver and Salt Lake City, but his main objective is Los Angeles, where he will place an agency for the Berliet. From here he will go to San Francisco, Seattle and Spokane.

RETURNS TO TRACK.

Fournier Will Drive in Emperor's Cup Race—Quarrel Between Darracq and Fiat Over Wagner.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One of the features of the automobile race for the Emperor's cup in Germany, on June 14, is the return to the race track of a famous driver, Henry Fournier, who has not raced for seven years. He will drive an Itala in the forthcoming event.

The question of drivers is an all-important one, as seen by the recent quarrel between the Darracq and Fiat houses regarding a driver, Wagner, resulting in the latter firm withdrawing all its entries from the Emperor's cup.

New Automobile Fuel.

The fact that gasoline is a foreign production and may some day be cut off from their markets is a fact that worries both the German and French economists. This is the main reason why the governments of both countries have so persistently tried to get alcohol introduced as a substitute, thus far with no very encouraging results. The latest fuel for motors is benzol, of which little is known beyond the fact that it can be used in motors suited for gasoline consumption without too great modifications in the working parts; also that it has a heating capacity of 1000 calories, and its price is just half that of ordinary gasoline. The new fuel has apparently something to back up its claims, for though it has not been officially tried, yet the German Motorcycle Association, which is organizing a three days' tour, has decided to admit it as a fuel in its contest. It is probable many of the motorcyclists will use it in the long endurance grind.

One Result of the Auto.

One of the striking results of the great progress of the automobile industry has been the tremendous development of the manufacture of aluminum, of which some idea may be had merely by quoting a few figures. In France no less than 35,000 horse power are continually employed in the making of aluminum; Germany utilizes some 21,000 for the same purpose, the United States a like amount and Scotland about 6000 horse power. This represents something like 82,000 horse power in round numbers—an amount that can easily be doubled in the works now in existence. As each horse power represents an annual output of 200 kilos of aluminum, it means that the total yearly production is something like 16,500 tons, of which 12,300 are produced in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe.

Unusual Club Event.

The Royal Automobile Club of Great Britain has announced its intention of holding a hillclimbing competition of a rather unusual sort, entry being limited to members of the organization. The announcement is in part as follows: "The entrants will be kept in a state of pleasing uncertainty as to the locality of the hill on which they will be requested to display the hill-climbing capabilities of their cars. The hill chosen is exceptionally steep and no one will be permitted to have a trial run. The maximum gradient will, however, be advertised, and the entry fee will be limited to one guinea. On the day fixed the competitors will be invited to meet at a certain spot and the cars will then travel in procession to their destination."

TAXIMETERS POPULAR.

Paris Cab Horse Seems Doomed and Autos Grow in Favor—Contract for Thousand Placed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Automobile cabs, or taximeters, are growing more popular every day in Paris. The principal company supplying these vehicles has its hands full and is placing very large orders with the makers of chassis.

A contract has been made with the Darracq firm for a thousand new cabs, ranging from ten to sixteen horse-power. Several other companies have contracted to supply the vehicles. Everything seems to indicate that the Paris cab horse will soon be eliminated.

Timers' Club Meets.

The annual meeting of the New York Timers' Club was recently held in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America. The following officers were elected: Honorary president, Samuel M. Butler; president, Charles J. Dieges; vice-president, J. P. Boyle; secretary, A. C. Harvey; treasurer, W. L. Jones. Plans were discussed for timing the next Vanderbilt cup race and other events to be held on the Long Island Motor Parkway, in addition to a method of timing the international balloon race at St. Louis on October 19.

Hard Luck Record.

Ralph Hamlin is out with a claim to the hard luck record in the matter of automobile shipments. It's all over now, and Hamlin is comparatively happy, but for a while he was very, very unhappy. Friday the clouds brightened, as he unloaded a shipment of Franklins that left the factory on February 27. Sixty days was formerly the record for bad business on the part of the railroads, but Hamlin now has the belt with a record of eighty days.

Move to Larger Quarters.

The Renton-Williams Motor Car Company will soon move to the new garage which has just been built on South Main street, near the corner of Twelfth street. The garage is large and exceptionally well fitted for their purpose. When they move in, on the east side of Main, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, there will be the agencies for fourteen cars, making this block the new center of Gasoline Row.

A.A.A. in Second Place.

The recent addition of several State organizations to the American Automobile Association has brought its membership up to over 16,000, making it the second strongest organization of the kind in the world. The Touring Club of France has more than 100,000 members, but it includes motorcyclists and bicyclists. The English Motor Union, which until recently held second place, has about 14,000 members.

Enjoyable Touring.

H. C. Carr of Porterville, who toured from there to Los Angeles in his Wayne for the Fiesta doings, has just returned from a trip to San Diego and started for his home. Mr. Carr and his wife spent five days in the trip to San Diego, and they report the roads good and the touring very enjoyable.

Over Berkshire Hills.

Providence, R. I., having won the annual convention of the National Federation of Motorcyclists, arrangements are under way for the national endurance contest, which will be run from New York to Providence via Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Lakeville, Ct., and Springfield and Worcester, Mass., crossing the Berkshire Hills.

Flying Trip East.

Earle Anthony of the Western Motor Car Company left Los Angeles the past week for a flying trip to the factories of the lines handled by the company. He will return in a week, after a very brief conference with the management of the Packard and Thomas plants.

Claims a Record.

H. O. Harrison thinks he has established a record for selling high-priced cars, as since the first of the present month he has taken orders for thirteen cars. He doesn't think that in this case thirteen is unlucky. Seven of the cars were sold the past week.

GOSSIP ALONG GASOLINE ROW.

George Ferris of Clarmont has purchased one of the air-controlled four-cylinder Northerns.

The Dragon Car Company has sold touring cars to Dr. C. A. Sanborn and Edward M. Cope of Redlands.

W. D. Wise has purchased from the National Auto Company the first of the Triumph self-starting runabouts received from the factory. George Innes of San Francisco has bought a touring car of the same make.

Ralph Hamlin reports the sales during the past week of a Franklin heavy touring car to J. B. Brokaw; a light touring car to J. B. Douglas and a runabout to Edward S. Crump of Pasadena.

Mitchell touring cars of the 35-horse-power type have been delivered during the past week to A. H. Kornblum and L. B. Esperance.

During the past week Oldsmobiles have been sold to W. R. Sebree, A. J. Crocker, J. Ross Clark, R. Fleisher, Frank Bement, W. G. Renwick and J. G. Darden.

The new Model "N" Wayne car is attracting much attention and during the past week cars have been sold to B. L. Reynolds of Covina, L. C. Routzahn of Arroyo Grande, and N. A. Cooper and L. P. Wrenly of Los Angeles. A Wayne cruiser has been sold to C. S. Fackenthal, a Model "K" to J. S. McDonald and a runabout to the Pixley Hardware Company of Orange.

One Paris firm of diamond merchants has failed and other failures are feared, directly attributable, the dealers say, to the increasing popularity of the automobile among women, who deny themselves gems in order to own cars.

Berlin firemen are experimenting with an electric combination fire engine, hook and ladder truck, life-saving machine with nets and searchlight wagon, powerful enough to carry a company of fire fighters at a speed of forty miles an hour.

Acrobatic Automobile.

It is not often that an automobile can turn a complete somersault, land right side up with the engine running and then get out of a hole fifteen feet deep with its own power, but such was the thrilling experience that Ed. Noble of Kokomo, Ind., had with a powerful touring car near Boston recently.

Going to Santa Barbara.

Dale Carleton and party in a Mitchell start today for a trip to Santa Barbara. They will spend a day or two there and return. Few parties from Los Angeles have been over the Casitas Pass, but it is reported in fair condition.

JEFF RETURNS FROM 'FRISCO.

Will Not Go Into Business in Strike City.

May Fight Squires If Bill Beats Burns.

If People Demand Match Jim Will Accede.

"No San Francisco for me, either ow or for a long time to come, for os Angeles is good enough for me." This is the terse way Jim Jeffries ke yesterday after his return from an Francisco early yesterday morning d his statement puts the finish to the ry that he would locate in the bay y as one of the proprietors of a big fe on Fillmore street near Geary et. Jeff went to the metropolis h this object in view, but after looking over the ground, decided that he not want to invest any money in t town at present, when everything torn up by strikes.

"Fillmore street is too quiet for me," ys Jeff, "for when a man goes into siness he must get where there is siness and there is not enough on llmore street to suit me. There was other location that looked very d and so I came back to Los Anles.

n't have any time to think about fighting game while there and n't go any place where I could see ires. I have heard a lot of people he is not much, and an equal mber say he is a good fighter, so can believe anything. Both he Burns are tough fellows and if y come together, there should be a d fight. If Squires beats Burns and people want me to fight Squires, do it all right, if there is enough ney put up.

"Of course, I've no fight in sight, but can't tell what might come up. me people seem to think Squires is dub and that Burns is too small to a real champion, but we can't tell l after they fight. After that tle, there may be something doing. What do you think of me starting ght club here? I've thought about a lot lately, but you haven't seen mother's chickens yet, have you?" th this, the big champ dismissed the ject of fighting from his thoughts went on to tell how he had twenty- young turkeys last year and lost one, which a dog stepped on.

KID SOLOMON.
who is to fight Attell for featherweight championship.

SOLOMON BELIEVES IN MANY SUPERSTITIONS.

KID SOLOMON is going to knock out Abe Attell in the eleventh round, if dreams count for anything. Solomon did not dream this, for he sleeps the peaceful sleep of a healthy, well cared-for person, as fighters should, but nevertheless, he thinks a dream is potent no matter who dreams it.

Solomon believes the dream will come true, for this same person—who is a woman, of course—dreamed that Benny would knock out Frank Sheek in the fifth round, and he did; so it must be that he is going to become the new featherweight champion in the eleventh round.

No man ever stepped through a pair of fighter's trunks who is more superstitious than Kid Solomon. He believes in every sign and has implicit faith in religious matters and the ability of the saints to protect him from harm.

Every one who knew of the dream and saw the way he sailed into Frank Sheek in that fifth round of his last battle in the local ring is convinced that he believes in the "signs." That terrific left swing to Sheek's right eye which put the optic out of commission at once, was driven by more than physical power—the spirit was behind it. That right hand punch to the body—a blow scarcely ever used by Solomon—was impelled by superstitious fervor, for did not Benny have a sacred cord tied about his knuckles?

Solomon chuckled with glee yesterday as he recalled the incident as Trainer Kelley was rubbing him down in the massage room.

"That right punch of mine did the business, all right, although I never used it before," he said. "My grandmother gave me that cord, which is a piece of a wick from a blessed candle sent to her from Lower California. A friend of mine is going to send me another candle and it will cost me six bits."

Kelley here suggested that Solomon tie a piece of the sacred cord about both hands to whip Attell, and that it might help him with his foot work if he put a bit in each shoe. Kelley is a good Catholic himself, but he is not affected by superstitions. All the trainer's banter, however, does not cause Solomon to change his notions.

SHIED TWO SPIDERS.

The Kid has a late case to prove his assertions. The other day two spiders swung down over Solomon's cheeks. Possibly it was only one which dropped down from a spider's thread over the front of his nose—thus causing Benny to see double. At any rate Solomon swears he saw two. He was wild with supersition and fear.

"Something is going to happen to me; I know it is," he wailed. He refused to go to work that afternoon, but his manager, Capt. Steve Queirolo, was entertaining some friends and insisted that Solomon spar a few rounds for their pleasure. Benny demurred, but the manager's orders went.

In a hot mix-up in a corner of the ring, Kid Webster's head smashed up against Solomon's nose with terrific force, almost breaking it and causing the proboscis to swell up nearly twice its natural size.

"I told you something would happen," Solomon cried immediately, and all the argument in the world has not changed his belief. That nose has been a sore point with Solomon ever since, and it will be all Kelley can do to get it in healthy condition by the night of the fight.

In order further to provide against harm, Solomon has imported a sacred miniature picture of St. Anthony from Lower California, whence the Spanish believe the most blessed articles come. Benny believes that this saint is watching over his destinies, and whenever he takes it from his pocket he kisses it reverently. He has arranged a cord to hang it on and may wear it on his person the night of the fight. He also wears a sacred scapular, as do most all Catholics, and he declares that no harm can come to him when he wears this emblem. In his wallet, bound in a worn bit of soft leather, is another fetish in the shape of a paper with a number of sentences written thereon which Benny repeats at times. There are a dozen other things sacred to Benny's belief, which he observes with religious fervor.

No doubt Attell or enemies of Solomon may attempt to arouse his superstitious fears on the night of the fight. Perhaps they may let loose a black cat in the ring, or do some other devilish thing. But Solomon has been prepared for that. He has charms galore to protect him against evil, and his belief in the saints is so great that in his mind they will guard him from all evil.

PHYSICALLY FEARLESS.

Despite his many superstitious beliefs, Solomon is fearless physically. He has faced every kind of punishment and never winced. It is the belief of his friends that he will be able to absorb all of Attell's punishment and finally wear the champion down. In his training, Solomon is not learning to take punishment. That quality is inherent in him. He follows the directions of his trainer and manager without question, and is having the time of his life. Not since Solomon reached the years of his majority and took on the cares of a husband and father has he had such a good time. With absolutely no work to do but follow the course of training, which takes but a small portion of the day, Solomon is enjoying himself with hunts and drives, plays with his young son, converses with visitors, and has a free and easy time generally; every moment, howeven, being under the watchful eye of Kelley.

With such a "vacation" Solomon is looking better than ever he did, for he worries not one whit about the outcome of the battle. He believes he will be the new featherweight champion, and is discussing plans for traveling through the East and exhibiting in various cities.

BOXING BRIEFS FROM THE EAST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Again Joe Bernstein pops up. Every so often Joe gets back into the ring just to see how much he may have lost of his old fighting form. Joe is now training hard for his bout with Jack Goodman, the clever local boxer, which is to take place at the Brown A.A. Tuesday evening. Bernstein thinks he can beat Goodman and expects to procure fights with better men.

Cyclone Johnnie Thompson has been matched against Peter Sullivan, a New England lightweight, for twenty rounds before a new fight club at Bingham, Utah. Thompson was regarded as a great lightweight until a few months ago, when he lost the decision in a twenty-round fight at Los Angeles to George Memsic.

Jim Donovan, a promising young fighter, will get a chance to show what he can do when he bumps up against Tommy Sullivan of Lawrence, Mass., at the boxing show to be brought off at Manchester, N. H., on the night of May 30. Donovan is the fellow who held both the light and welterweight championships of the English army. Donovan fought Mike Donovan of Rochester to a standstill for ten rounds at Portland a short time ago.

Harry Lewis, the Philadelphia welterweight, has been made favorite over Jimmy Gardner at odds of 10 to 7. They are to battle at the Coliseum A.C. of Denver May 25. Honey Melody, who recently met defeat in a twenty-round bout with Mike (Twin) Sullivan at Los Angeles, will be at the ringside to challenge the winner.

The local middleweight, Sailor Burke, is at Stratford, Ct., training for a bout, probably with Fred Bradley of Boston, which is to take place a week from Saturday.

"Sam" Langford, an American negro welterweight, who recently defeated "Tiger" Smith, has been matched to box "Jeff" Thorne, an English middleweight, twenty rounds before the National Sporting Club of London on June 12.

JIMMIE GARDNER MATCH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 18.—[Exclusivt Dispatch.] H. W. Melenbacher, financial backer of Harry Lewis, the pugilist, passed through Chicago today en route to Denver, where Lewis and Jimmie Gardner meet in a ten-round battle next Tuesday night.

"I have just drawn down my $5000 for a match between Lewis and Gans and will wager that on my boy," said Melenbacher. "I believe he will beat Gardner easily. I am anxious to have him meet Gans for the championship and the colored boy has promised him a chance if he wins from Gardner and Mike (Twin) Sullivan."

Siler as Referee.

TONOPAH (Nev.) May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After an argument lasting for days, George Siler of Chicago was agreed upon as referee in the Hart-Schreck fight. Hart and his party held out to the end for Siler, although the club had made Otto Floto of Denver the official referee and threatened to call off the batte unless Hart agreed to take him. The Schreck party was satisfied with either man.

The Elmore

Won the 50-mile Motor Derby Race at Agricultural Park, Sunday, May 12, 1907, winning a $100 cup, $600 in cash and beating one of the highest priced and one of the highest rated H. P. cars in America.

IF you had been out to the park, you would have seen the same ELMORE car go right out after winning the 50-mile Derby and win the 5-mile Cupid race, against the big Frayer Miller, a car selling for nearly double as much money as the ELMORE.

IF you were at Agricultural Park May 5th, you saw the same ELMORE car finish third in the 50-mile race, beating the Thomas Flyer, the $5000 Apperson and the 50-H. P. Haynes with ease.

IF the ELMORE had have lost its fan, it would have kept right on running and won just the same.

IF the ELMORE starts any time for any place, it always gets there and back and we don't have to apologize to the public and tell them why, that we lost part of our car or broke part of it or the fan belt blew through the radiator. We don't have to carry a lot of mechanics to keep tinkering with our engine in our car in order to keep it going, as we have no tinkering or troublesome parts in the self-starting 2-cycle ELMORE motors.

IF you want the most reliable car there is made in America today, regardless of price, the ELMORE is it.

IF you want an ELMORE, come in and place your order, because we have five carloads sold ahead of delivery at the present time.

IF you are going to buy an automobile that your wife can run or your daughter or yourself, the ELMORE is unquestionably the car that you should buy, easy to handle, starts 90 per cent. of the time without cranking and is always ready to go, and goes whenever you are ready.

IF you will come into my office, I can show you where I have sold more than 100 ELMORE cars in Southern California, all of which are giving the very best of satisfaction to the buyers.

IF you stop to think that every Sunday there are about 200 automobiles advertised for sale in Los Angeles in the for sale columns of The Times, and you stop to figure, you will find that there are more ELMORE cars in Los Angeles than any other two makes of high-priced cars, that you seldom see any offered for sale, and when you do, they want as much or nearly as much as when they bought them.

IF you have in mind any demonstration that you think impossible to make in an automobile, the ELMORE will go out and do it with ease, for they laugh at the mud holes and sand hills and we are always ready to show you. I used G. & J. tires in both 50-mile and 5-mile races and I am glad of it. You will make no mistake in using G. & J. tires.

DOUBLE-CROSS FOR JEFFRIES.

Corbett and Brady Said to Have Planned Ruin.

Jeff Was to Have Allowed Bank Clerk to Stay.

Jack O'Brien Tells Story to Herbert Forder.

BY HERBERT FORDER.

That James J. Jeffries faked with Jim Corbett in their battle at Coney Island, May 11, 1900, is the substance of a story told me by Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

In this narrative of the way that great matches are made and ended, the wily barrister stated that Manager Brady was tired of Jeffries, because of the bad showing he made on their theatrical tour, which not only resulted in much dissatisfaction for the big fellow, but also in Manager Brady being disappointed on the the financial side of the transaction.

After Jim Jeffries had put a sudden end to the championship aspirations of one Jack Finnegan at Detroit, in one round, he became something of a "white elephant." There were none of the big fellows left to take him on. He already had defeated Fitzsimmons once, and Tom Sharkey twice.

Jim Corbett was still lingering around the sides of the magic circle, with half a hope that there might turn up a chance to retrieve his lost laurels. This terrible conqueror at Carson City had met with a disastrous defeat at the hands of the athletic boilermaker. The redoubtable Sharkey also had been defeated by this champion of champions.

What if there were a weak spot in the mental and physical makeup of Jeffries? Then he could be "got at," and Pompadour Jim might still become the greatest champion of them all. That is the strange thought that entered the cunning mind of Manager Brady and he promptly undertook the task of trying it out. Views of theatrical world-tours with Corbett and a snug fortune therefrom helped to decide him.

When Brady approached the honest Burbanker and suggested with all the cunning he was capable of, that there was no one left to fight him but Jim Corbett, who would not enter the ring for a twenty-five round contest unless Jeffries would allow him to make a brilliant showing for twenty-three rounds, after which Jeff could sail in and put him out in the twenty-fourth or twenty-fifth.

JEFF IS ANGRY.

Jeffries became very angry and things nearly came to an end between him and Brady right there. But Brady persisted in his argument and asked the big fellow if he was ready to retire, to which Jeffries replied that he was not and needed quite a little sum of money before he could contemplate that step. Brady asked him who he was going to fight, which only caused the big boy to shake his head dismally.

Then Brady began his argument again by stating that it was possible for Corbett to keep away for twenty rounds or so in any case. Also that Jeff, must have somebody to fight and that Corbett would be able to give him as good a battle, with his unequaled science and ringcraft, as anybody in the world. Brady also stated that it would be a very great fight from the spectators' point of view.

At last, invincible Jeff, agreed, worried beyond further discussion. Away went Brady in high glee to Corbett. He told the actor-pug how sick he was of the big simple farmer, and how he could take the pompadoured one around the world and make more money that all the other fellows put together, once Corbett was champion again.

He unfolded his elaborate scheme of doublecross.

The plan was to be accomplished in this way—Jeffries would allow Corbett to put it all over him for twenty-three rounds. In the final two Jeff, would expect his opponent to stand ready to receive a "knockout." All Corbett had to do was to act exactly as arranged, which would give him the battle right up to the twenty-third; then run away for two rounds and get the decision easily.

Everything was fixed up accordingly. Arrangements ran as smoothly as a machine on oiled wheels. The anxious day came. Manager Brady was jubilant over his wonderful success; Corbett was confident of his power to double-cross the champion in the final two rounds by keeping away; Jeff. alone was supremely indifferent.

BATTLE BEGINS.

Once the gong had rung everything went to prove to Brady that he would be successful in remaking Corbett champion. The big fellow just followed his opponent around and around the ring, taking endless punishment and never making any real effort to put his scientific opponent in danger of the "opium draught" he carries in either hand.

The audience believed that the king of champions was worn out and that he of the pompadour was about to regain the title.

The mercury in the mind of Brady climbed to the boiling point. He was on the royal road to fortune.

Slowly the rounds unfolded their tale—Jeff bores in ceaselessly but does no damage; takes a world of punishment but only shakes his big shaggy head. He is saying to himself—"I'll keep to my bargain. I have not begun to fight yet."

Twenty rounds are past, and still Jeff has done nothing. "Only five to go, Jeff has lost," the crowd is murmuring with excitement. Brady's feet are inclined to break loose in a hilarious jig.

Twenty-two rounds, and Jim Corbett gets excited. He suddenly has a fit of real "swelled head." "Why this fellow is an overrated big dub; he can't fight me if he tried," he says, as he piles up the points. Then, as they stand in the middle of the ring, sparring for a moment, at the ten-second sign from the ringside, he speaks out: "Puk me, Jim; puk me, Jim. Why, you can't lay a glove on me, you big stiff."

Jeff merely nods, like a man who is dazed with some horrible surprise. The gong——

In their respective corners two widely-varied scenes are being enacted. Corbett is saying that the fight is already his; that the other fellow can't hit him in twenty more rounds—and there is but three more to go.

Jeff is pondering those words—"Puk me, Jim; puk me, Jim." So he has been double-crossed; there has been foul play somewhere; he has been cunningly fooled. The big brows of Jeff draw tight together; that frown is ominous.

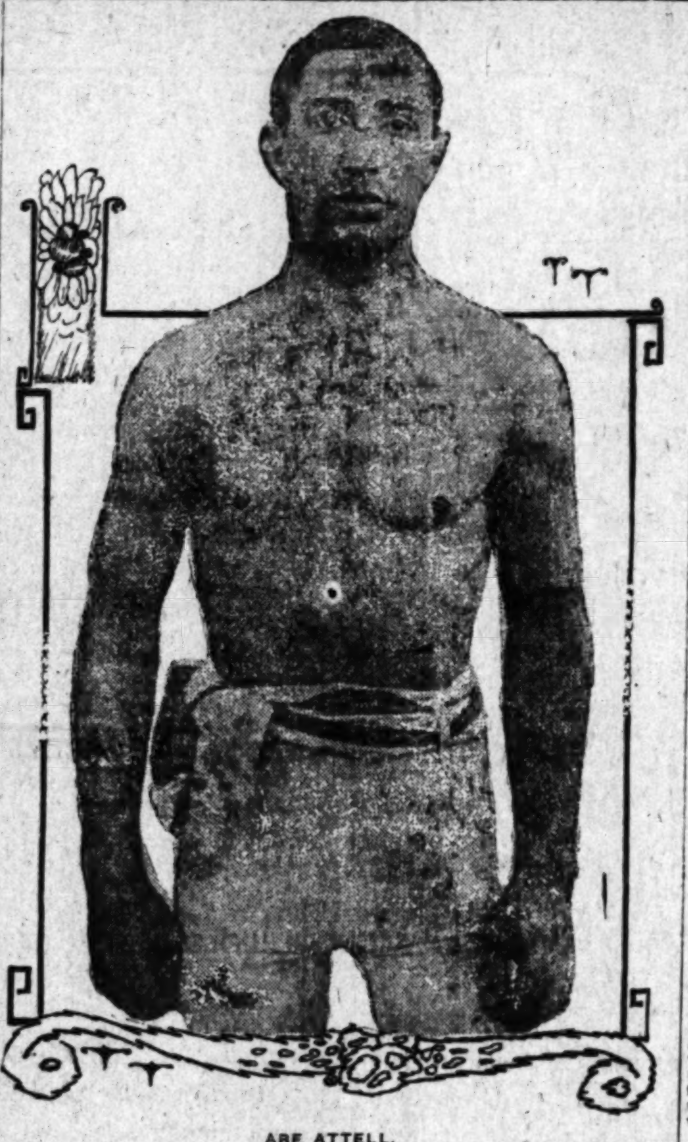
"What do you think of that fellow; he says I can't hit him," was all he said to his seconds.

Manager Brady had not heard those words.

The gong—the twenty-third is afoot. Corbett begins to run. But what is this? This is no hulking dub. Jeff has become a hurricane. There is no way of escape. That angry eye, like the red-inflamed pupil of a wild bull, is on Corbett. He quakes with fear. He blocks, runs, dodges, side steps—but all his ring craft is useless. Down he goes, literally battered to the boards. Jeff gives him one look of unutterable contempt and returns to his corner.

Manager Brady's mercury is down to zero.

Those who compare Jeff's work in the twenty-two rounds of the first fight and that of his second battle with Corbett in San Francisco may find food for thought in O'Brien's story. Jeffries actually outboxed Corbett in the last meeting, and thoroughly outclassed him.



ABE ATTELL,
who is to defend featherweight championship against Kid Solomon.

LOWES ADMITS FAKE CONTEST.

PALMER AND SULLIVAN SPLIT RECEIPTS OF FIGHT.

English Manager Confesses to Giving Out Untruthful Reports in Order to Draw Good House—Story of How He Rose from Coal Miner to Pugilistic Fame.

BY HERBERT FORDER.

The fight fans of Los Angeles were duped in the Sullivan-Palmer match in Los Angeles, judging from a signed statement made in a London paper by Jimmy Lowes, manager of Palmer. He said:

"As this match was pending I had to get to business, and make what the Americans call a bluff. I declared Palmer was in the pink of condition, which was not true; otherwise the gate receipts would have been seriously affected. We, however, had a very good house, the loser receiving quite as much as the winner. In the 5000 spectators not one failed to cheer Palmer on his leaving the ring, for, as they said, his game stand against nature."

One begins to understand after that confession how Canny Jimmy has made in a short twenty-five years some $200,000 since giving up the rather unprofitable employment of a coal miner in the mines of Northumberland.

Percy Cottage in the Haymarket, Newcastle-on-Tyne, was a humble beginning, where James sold very bad beer to thirsty pitmen in the saloon, and conducted a cheap boxing booth in the rear. How anxiously we saved up our pocekt money till we had the necessary shilling (one quarter) to gain admission with.

The first time I managed to steal into the booth at Percy Cottage that "Passive Resister," Jack Palmer, was being tried out. He was a young miner then and looked promising. He went six rounds with "Spider" Carr, an old-timer, who was ornamented with two "tin lugs" (the peculiar style of lumpy ear worn by some pugilists,) and a much outraged nose.

James Lowes eventually sold Percy Cottage to the brewers, and is said to have netted quite a tidy fortune. James now resides in "Lunnon," Hogarth Mansions, Langham Place—how's that for the Northumberland miner?

James was always very interested in the Philadelphian fight framer, Jack O'Brien. There can be no doubt but that they shared many a good house together at Ginnet's Circus, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

I heard an old one-eyed gypsy man declare, after O'Brien's first performance there, that he was the "maist wonnerful scrapper he had ever seen." He had followed the fight game in England religiously since Jem Mace was in his prime. An old miner standing near emitted a mouthful of strong language and replied: "Scroppor de ye saay? Why tha saame felor couldn't put won eat oot, an he's an aard old un."

That is how opinion was divided there till O'Brien bluffed the critics into silence.

James Lowes was anxious to get O'Brien over the water to meet "Gunner" Moir; in his letters he repeatedly states that the "Gunner" is a "soft snap" for Jack, and that if Jack doubted the drawing power of the match in London, he—James Lowes—will give O'Brien $2500 for his corner. Will he still give the Gen. De Wet of pugilism that amount for his services?

Lowes was bringing over Palmer for Jack, but, unfortunately, the telegram that announced his purpose was scanned by an over-inquisitive press man in Jack's room at the Angelus, and the deal was off. If Gunner Moir is no better than he was, Jack may still go to England and retrieve all by becoming champion of England once more. When there he should stay. There is nothing like a change of climate when one is "down and out." A man is never a prophet in his own country.

Jack's teaching of individual supremacy, via Wall-street methods, applied to Fistiania, has fallen flat. In England it would be a decided novelty —the teaching I mean; the practice, of course, is as old there as the ring itself. The great British public loves to be gulled. Let our champion exponent of the soft art sail for the shores of old Albion. James Lowes and Jack O'Brien will prove a combination hard to beat.

ATTELL BOXES TODAY.

LAST DAY'S HARD WORK.

Abe Attell, who will fight Kid Solomon here next Friday night, will do his last heavy work today at Arcadia, when he will box four rounds each with Leonard Lauder, Kid Dalton and Kid Ward, who hails from Pasadena. Attell is said to down to weight and in good condition, and from now until the night of the fight he will do practically nothing but a little road work to keep his wind in order. He is confident, of course, that he will be the victor, and Solomon is equally sure. Now, if they fight the way they say they feel, the fight bugs will probably get the worth of their money.

Princeton Wins Meet.

PRINCETON (N. J.) May 18.—Princeton defeated Columbia in a dual track meet, here, this afternoon, by the score of 63 to 34.

GREAT ATHLETE DEVELOPED.

Lee J. Talbot Promises to Be Best Man Discovered in Ten Years. Academy Student.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, May -9.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The greatest athlete developed in the past ten years is undoubtedly Lee J. Talbot, the young Mercersburg Academy weight thrower who, though only 19 years of age, has already shattered the world's twelve-pound hammer record with a toss of 193 feet, set new world's scholastic figures for the twelve-pound shot at 53 feet 3¾ inches, and defeated the best college men of the East and West in throwing the sixteen-pound hammer, the standard for college and amateur competition. His record in this event is 153 feet 5½ inches.

LEE J. TALBOT,
Interscholastic champion weight thrower.

Talbot stands 6 feet 3½ inches in height and weighs 210 pounds. Mercersburg will send a team to Chicago to compete in Coach Stagg's meet, June 8, and Talbot will meet the best in the West.

CHANCE FOR STANFORD MEN.

May Be Allowed to Compete in Big Regatta.

Can Only Enter Poughkeepsie Race by Invitation.

Agreement Bars Out All but Three Colleges.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] From the far Pacific Coast comes the call of the college oarsmen of Leland Stanford University for a chance to measure strength, and endurance with the pick of the eastern university eights in this year's regatta at Poughkeepsie, as Stanford won the championship two weeks ago. She is now desirous of trying her strength in faster company and is willing to send her crew and shell across the continent if she will be allowed to compete at Poughkeepsie. Whether or not her wish will be gratified, however, is a question. The board of trustees of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, which governs the regatta, has not yet considered the admittance of the far western crew, and if the matter is decided, several serious objections must be solved.

The annual regatta at Poughkeepsie is not an open event. In the Intercollegiate Rowing Association only three universities, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Columbia are incorporated. Originally it was intended that the regatta would be restricted to crews from these schools. But immediately after the first regatta there was such a demand for entrance from other universities that an additional regulation was adopted, providing for the admittance of any university crew upon a formal invitation from the board of trustees. There is absolutely no other way of entrance to the regatta.

Some time ago a letter from the captain of the Stanford crew was received, saying that Stanford would like to compete in this year's regatta and asking for information regarding the entrance requirements. The information was given. Stanford's rowing enthusiasts were informed that they must wait to be invited before they could enter their crew in the eastern regatta.

HARVARD DEFEATS YALE IN MEET.

DUAL RECORDS ARE BROKEN BY EASTERN ATHLETES.

Dray of Yale Vaults Twelve Feet. Marshall Jumps Over Six Feet. High Hurdles Negotiated in Fast Time—Western Marks of Year in Some Cases Are Better.

High jump: Won by Captain J. T. Marshall (Yale,) height 5ft. 10in.; R. G. Harwood (Harvard,) and G. L. Roosevelt (Harvard) tied at 5ft. 9in.

In an exhibition jump, Captain Marshall broke the dual record of 6ft 5-8in., by half an inch, with a jump of 6ft. 1⅛in.

Billy Smith Returns.

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mysterious Billy Smith, once welterweight champion of the world, is about to return to the ring as a heavyweight. Smith now tips the scales at 185 pounds. The "mysterious one" is in excellent condition and taking good care of himself. He thinks he can give any of the heavyweights a good fight.

The Cadillac

The above is a photo of the car that won the 50-mile race at Agricultural Park, May 5th, the last four miles without a front tire and establishing a track record of 66 minutes and onds for the Pacific Coast. In spite of the fact that four miles were done without a tire, came three minutes behind the world's record, which was made without any passengers, carried four.

Some of our competitors say our engine was adjusted while running. We will $1000 that our engine wasn't touched from start to finish, and hasn't been touched since the Others of our competitors say we had tire trouble. So did every car on the track, ing one or two of our rivals who couldn't go fast enough to have tire trouble. We didn't tise the fact that we were going out to beat the world's record as one of our big competitors who had to be pushed off the track after the fortieth mile. Most of our rivals did their miles before the twenty-fifth mile, while ours were done after the fortieth—our forty-first 1 minute and 11 seconds. W didn't try for a world's record, but we won our race and proved the satisfaction of the 6000 people present that the Cadillac had the most consistent engine on the track.

If you want a car to go, and keep going, get a Cadillac. We are taking orders now for models, for delivery in July and August. We can deliver smaller models now.

TEAM CAPTAINS FROM THE SOUTH.

TULLER AND STANTON TO LEAD THE BLUE AND GOLD.

Athletes Made Good Records on Prep Teams Here Before Entering College—University Showing Has Been Brilliant—Witter and Jordan From Bay Counties.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, May 18.—Two of the four captains of the 'varsity teams here for next year are from Southern California, Walter E. Tuller, captain-elect of the 'varsity football team, registers from Pomona, and Forest O. Stanton, captain-elect of the track team, came to college from Los Angeles. Of the other two important captains, Dean Witter, who will lead the 'varsity crew next spring, is a resident of Berkeley, while Robert H. Jordan, the baseball captain is an Oakland boy.

All the men who are to lead their respective teams in the big contests of next year have good records as athletes during their preparatory days and since they have been participating in 'varsity contests. Tuller prepared for college at Pomona High School. There he played three years on the school football team, which won the championship of the Southern League. For his first two years he played center and in his senior year he was shifted to tackle and fullback. He also participated in track athletics, representing his school in the various events, the shot put, hammer throw, broad jump and 440-yard dash. In college he has played on his freshman football team and rowed on the freshman crew, has been captain of his class crew for the last two years, and rowed No. 2 on the 1906 'varsity four, and No. 7 on the 1907 'varsity eight. He played wing forward on the 'varsity Rugby team last year, and probably will play there or at the five-eights position next year.

Forest O. Stanton, who will lead the track team, is also a football player and has a splendid athletic record. He spent his preparatory days at Harvard School in Los Angeles, where all his athletic performances were of high order. He was a star player on the Harvard School football team, even though he was quite light, his speedy running giving him great scoring ability. He also was a star in track athletics and in baseball during his school days, holding the Southern California interscholastic record in the mile.

On coming to college Stanton made good on his freshman football team and played a star game, doing good work and being especially strong in open field running with the ball. During the second term of his freshman year he made the class track team which defeated the Stanford babies by a big margin. During his sophomore year Stanton played wing three quarter on the Rugby team, and his speed in the open game made him an especially valuable man. This year he ran the sprints in the big track meet and was elected to captain next year's 'varsity team, when he will be a senior. This is the first junior captain which the university has had in a number of years.

Dean Witter, who will lead the 'varsity crew next year, also will be a senior. Rowing is the only branch of athletics in which he has entered. In his freshman year he was stroke of his class crew, but on account of the earthquake the crew did not get to try conclusions with the freshman oarsmen of Stanford. This year his work in the boat showed such consistent form that he was chosen to stroke the 'varsity eight. Although only a junior, he has shown sincerity and earnestness in his work that bids fair to make him an excellent captain.

Robert H. Jordan, who will be the leader of the athletes who made baseball their specialty, is a graduate of Oakland High School with the class of '01. While there he played on the school teams both in baseball and football, and was one of the best athletes in the school. In his freshman year at the University he made his class football team, playing against Stanford. In his freshman year, also, his abilities as a pitcher won him the position of left field on the 'varsity team. In his sophomore year, Jordan played substitute end for the 'varsity football team, and again made the position of left field on the 'varsity baseball team. This year he was moved in from the outfield to the pitcher's position and bids fair to become one of the best twirlers the Blue and Gold has ever had.

New Swimming Record.

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The three-quarters of a mile swimming championship of New South Wales took place at the Drummoyne baths, Sydney, March 23, and the result was a new world's record for Peg Healy, a brother of Cecil Healy, who, it will be remembered, gave Daniels a hard chase last year both at America and England. Healy swam the distance in the grand time of 18 minutes [illegible] seconds, and this wipes out all former world's records.

LONG BEACH WINS FROM POLYTECHNIC

In the game between the Long Beach and "Poly" girls, yesterday morning, the noble art of basketball was dragged in the dust. The game was a series of fouls, and of the 12 points that Long Beach made against "Poly's" 6, only two were field goals.

"Poly" started out with a foul, giving Long Beach a chance to score. This was the beginning of a succession of free throws for Long Beach, "Poly" failing to score until about the middle of the half. All this time the forwards of both sides made heroic efforts to break the spell and throw a field goal, but in each case they had unusually good guards to contend with, the unison of the Long Beach guards being enough to break up almost any combination play going.

Near the end of the first fifteen minutes, Long Beach made a basket, after a particularly good display of team work, and the half was saved from utter disgrace. The second half was a repetition of the first except that "Poly" put up a great deal better game and made its one field goal.

The "Poly" guards worked like Trojans, as the end of the game drew near, and it largely was due to them that Long Beach was confined to one basket during the half. This was a sensational goal managed by Miss Dawes on the run.

"Poly" was rather down on her luck in this game, as Miss Gilbraith, their greatest mainstay, had barely recovered from a severe illness, and although she made a plucky stand for her side, she could not play as well as usual. Long Beach showed up her famed team work, and even if, in this case, it seemed to avail little in the way of baskets, it gave rise to some pretty bits of playing, occasionally.

The line-ups were as follows:

Long Beach.		"Poly."
Dawes	forward	Boss
Van Ransallear	forward	Breedlove
Browne	center	Gilbraith
Musetter	guard	Judd
Dingman	guard	Buisserett

Referee, Miss Bates; umpire, Miss Comstock.

L. A. GIRLS WIN.

MARLBOROUGH SURPRISES.

L.A. High School was given a decided jolt for a time when the basketball girls met the team from Marlborough, yesterday morning, on the U.S.C. grounds. L.A. came out on top, 14 to 4. For a brief spell Marlborough was ahead and the end of the first half saw L.A. with an advantage of only two points.

Marlborough started the ball rolling by scoring with a free throw and followed that up with another soon after. The five showed some good team work in contrast with L.A.'s somewhat ragged play. The blue and whiteers then got a field goal which the other team overtopped by another free throw, making the score 3 to 2 in favor of Marlborough.

In the second half L.A. braced up and did some good playing, but Marlborough guards were never caught napping and the Marlborough center did some strenuous work. The losing team scored one basket in the second half—a free throw. The noon heat worked with disastrous effect on some of the girls. Marlborough, in some respect, put up a cleaner game than their opponents, their guarding particularly being characterized by a great deal less roughness than the L.A. guards sometimes applied.

Miss Shepard of L.A. played a very good game, holding her own against her speedy opponents. The Marlborough guards showed good combination playing and some ingenuity. The forwards still were a little nervous in their play.

The line-up follows:

L.A.		Marlborough.
Shortridge	Forward	Poole
Kendrick	Forward	Ryan
Shepard	Center	Grant
Ford	Guard	Asher
Winstanley	Guard	Anderson

Referee—Miss Wilshire.
Umpire—Miss Bates.

RACING AT OAKLAND.

Good Horses Show Peculiar Form Reversals and Run in First at Long Price.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Today was Fabiola day at Oakland and the new California Jockey Club donated the receipts to the Fabiola Hospital, as is the custom. There was a large attendance and the sport proved very interesting. Favorites fared badly. The big surprise of the day was the victory of Martinmas at 30 to 1 in the fifth race. Fire Ball beat Ocean Shore a head in the sprint race. Results:

Seven furlongs, selling: Atkins, 110 (R. Davis,) 4 to 1, won; Santa Ray, 107 (Alarie,) 16 to 1, second; Peggy O'Neil, 109 (Goodchild,) 10 to 1, third; time 1:27 2-5. Little Myrthful, Desmages, Salable, Willie Gregg, Head Dance, Anvil, Foncasta, Toller and Hersian finished as named.

Seven furlongs, selling: Nothing, 108 (Keogh,) 6 to 1, won; Daruma, 106 (Borel,) 15 to 1, second; Andrew Mack, 112 (Fischer,) 16 to 5, third; time 1:26 2-5. Kirkfield Belle, Silver Sue, Galvestonian, Paddy Lynch, Piquet, Prince Magnet and The Reprobate finished as named.

One mile and three-quarters, selling: Little Joker, 107 (C. Williams,) 6 to 1, won; Odonis, 107 (Graham) 18 to 5, second; Ray, 105 (R. Davis,) 6 to 5, third; time 3:04 1-5. Benvolio and Mendon finished as named.

Five and a half furlongs: Fireball, 107 (A. Williams,) 11 to 5, won; Ocean Shore, 97 (Sandy,) 11 to 5, second; Native Son, 97 (E. Lynch,) 18 to 5, third; time 1:06 1-5. Grasscutter, Como, Otto Price and Smithy Kane finished as named.

One mile and fifty yards, selling: Martinmas, 103 (R. Davis,) 30 to 1, won; Reservation, 105 (A. Williams,) 16 to 5, second; Cabin, 103 (Sandy,) 23 to 5, third; time 1:43. Joe Coyne, Christine A., Silverskin and Bragg also ran.

TENNIS RESULTS AT UNIVERSITY.

During the last week, tennis tryouts have been pulled off at the University courts, with the following results. Semi-finals:

THEODORE ROOSEVELT PELL, who played in doubles with May Sutton.

Men's singles—Crippen beat Love, 6-3, 6-4; Buckmaster beat Butler, 6-2, 6-1. Finals are to be played Monday.

Ladies' singles—Mrs. Allan beat Miss Pratt, 6-0, 6-0; Miss Franklin beat Miss Bye, 6-2, 7-5. In the finals, Miss Allan won out, 6-1, 6-0.

Men's doubles—Buckmaster and Lawrence beat Moore and Cherington, 6-0, 6-2; Love and Hummel beat Butler and Crippen, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3. In the finals, Buckmaster and Lawrence won, 6-3, 6-4.

SWIMMING TOURNAMENT.

Great Water Carnival Planned for Some Beach Resort July 4—To Be State Event.

The greatest swimming tournament ever held in the south is scheduled to be pulled off at one of the beach resorts, July 4, under the auspices of the Southern California Swimming Association.

Swimmers from all parts of the State will be attracted to the water carnival as the races are to be for the championships of California. In former years the local swimming association has held an annual regatta, but this will be the first time the State championships have been held in the south.

It has not been decided as yet where the tournament will be held. Naples, Venice, and Playa del Rey are being considered, and the contests will be at one of these places.

L. A. Henry, secretary of the Southern California Swimming Association, has been in communication with the Olympic Athletic Club, and the northern organization has signified its willingness to send a northern representative team, composed of five men, to the tournament. Some of the best swimmers about San Francisco Bay are students at Lick School, and several pupils of this institution will undoubtedly participate in the championship meet.

William Kyle of San Diego, and Ben Watlington of the Los Angeles High School, are considered the best swimmers in the south at the present time. In the tournament last year, Kyle won first place in the 50 and 100-yard races, and Watlington took first honors in the 440 and 880-yard events.

The tournament will include 50, 100, 440, and 880-yard races. In addition there will be diving exhibitions of various kinds, and boat races. Gold and silver medals will be awarded to the winners in the principal events.

The Southern California Swimming Association is planning extensive work next year, when the new Y.M.C.A. building is completed and the big tank is ready for use. Some of the best swimmers in the State are located in Los Angeles, and with a large indoor swimming pool that is satisfactory to the swimmers, the sport should become very popular in the south.

TENNIS GAME TO THE FRONT.

OCEAN PARK COUNTRY CLUB IS OUT OF COMMISSION.

Sportsmen of the Beach Towns Organize New Institution to Be Known as the "Country Club." Plenty of Tennis Scheduled for Summer—Two Tournaments Ahead.

Although the old Ocean Park Country Club is no more, there will be no lack of tennis play about the metropolis of the Crescent Bay, this summer. In fact a rather more extensive programme of court sport than any which featured previous seasons is being planned, arrangements for the tournaments being in charge of an expert in such matters, B. Orlando Bruce.

Not long since the Ocean Park Country Club disbanded. Conducted as it was, the organization was not a success. A number of leading and influential beach sportsmen came together and decided to reorganize the club upon somewhat different and broader lines so as to comprise all the beaches. To this end the name of "Crescent Bay Country Club" was suggested, but inasmuch as there were other claims upon that name it finally was decided to compromise on "The Country Club" which is the official title of the institution henceforth.

A large membership of Santa Monica, Ocean Park, and Venice people already is enrolled, and the conduct of the club has been put upon a substantial business basis which will stop the running up of large accounts by irresponsible parties, and the incidental loss to the club. The privileges are restricted to members, and cards must be exhibited. The old club enforced this rule, if at all, very laxly, and many stayed away in consequence.

T. H. Dudley of Santa Monica is president, C. E. Meskimen of Ocean Park, vice-president, and James V. Lawrence of Ocean Park, secretary-treasurer. B. O. Bruce is chairman of the Tennis Committee and has full charge of all arrangements for that sport.

The first sporting event to be given by the club will be the regular July tournament which generally occurs just at a time when the players are anxious for a little tournament practice preliminary to the championships of "tennis week" in August. The July tourney will be a three or four days' affair, probably beginning the first week in the month; and the usual prize list doubtless will be supplemented by some neat offerings that will appeal to the players.

Mr. Bruce also has practically assured the playing off of the Southern California Tennis Association's championships at the Country Club courts in August. This fixture, which formerly was held at the Casino courts in Santa Monica, is the headliner of the tennis season, and always attracts a big entry.

The clubhouse formerly occupied by the Ocean Park Country Club has been improved greatly and refinished upstairs with a number of new conveniences added. The institution has been running one month under the new management, and thus far has been very successful. The charter membership list will close May 30.

May Sutton, who is a sister-in-law of B. O. Bruce, sailed Friday for England to play for the international championship. Mr. Bruce, who is very familiar with May's style of play said yesterday:

"I have been watching May's game closely for several years, and am satisfied that she is playing a 25 per cent. stronger game of tennis than she ever did before. Mark my words, she will astonish 'em across the water! She is in better condition to play, and will certainly make a mark. She has shown wonderfully improved form in her eastern matches, this summer, and the fact has been commented upon generally that clever as she was last year, she seems able to improve steadily."

The Southern California championships were held one year at Central Courts, but it is not believed there will be any objection made to Ocean Park this summer.

Mr. William Ruess,

Los Angeles, California.

Dear Mr. Ruess:

Yours of recent date, relative to my touring trip with the Pope-Hartford, model "L" 1907, is at hand. I beg to state that I toured through California and Oregon, 1500 miles in thirteen days, carrying five people in it. That the total cost for repairs for that trip was $1.40. During this trip we crossed seven or eight ranges of mountains and went over roads considered heretofore impossible for any car. There is no word of commendation too strong in my opinion of this car.

Yours very truly,
C. P. THOMAS, M.D.

IS CERTAINLY
Holding Its Own

Few people who investigate the automobile now-a-days fail to learn that the MITCHELL is a mighty popular car, and a great many are sufficiently interested in the good reports to investigate thoroughly—and it is to this class of buyers that we make our sales. If a buyer will investigate he will find that for power, speed, general reliability and roadability the Mitchell is not excelled even in the very high-priced cars. We court the closest investigation, and if a buyer is not prejudiced we can show him that the Mitchell is the cheapest car to own, to operate, and will give perfect satisfaction.

SMITHY KANES BEAT BURNS.

Jim Smith Captures Game by Lucky Hitting.

Brashear Appears in Contest After Long Rest.

Cates Surprises Fans by His Good Pitching.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With bunched hits, a walk and a couple of stolen bases, Oakland led from the start over the Angels this afternoon with two runs in the first inning, and never was headed. Eli Cates had one of his good days and, although the visitors collected one run off three doubtful hits, they were lucky to escape a shutout by a 3 to 1 score.

With the sensational long distance hits of the previous game eliminated, there was good ball playing, with the pitchers both in fine form. Burns was hit in three innings for two each and Jim Smith got one to the outfield in the ninth. The initial inning for Oakland told the story fairly. Jim Smith walked and was sacrificed by Van Haltren. Heitmuller singled to right and the two Oakland outfielders executed the double steal, Smith getting home just ahead of the ball. Eagan struck out, but Bliss' long single, on which he was finally caught at second, scored the German Commuter.

Jim Smith scored once more for the Van Haltrenites in the sixth inning on his own double just inside the third base line and a sharp single in the same territory by Heitmuller. Cates had a narrow escape in the same inning.

Carlisle and Ellis opened the inning with a hit each and matters looked bad for a bombardment. Carlisle tried to steal third and was caught between the bases and Brashear forced Ellis at the same station. That eased the situation, which was terminated when Jud Smith flew to Eagan at short.

Frank Dillon scored the only run for the southern team in the seventh inning. He put the ball down to Cates. The leather took a bad bound and Dillon was safe. Cravath followed that up by putting the ball to center. Dillon made two bases and when Hosp flew to Jim Smith on a long foul near the left field bleachers, the Los Angeles captain scooted down the line and was safe, although he didn't have anything to spare.

An errorless game was played by the teams, one of the first on the local grounds, and it was in the presence of a larger crowd than has been in attendance during the week.

VENTURA BEATEN.

SANTA ANA TURNS TRICK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA ANA, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ventura High School lost its game with the Santa Ana High School today. The score was 11 to 2. Ventura's team got off its feet in the second inning. Santa Ana bunched hits at that time and from the mess Santa Ana got six runs. The consternation in Ventura's ranks continued over two more innings.

In the third, Santa Ana got three runs and in the fourth two.

The bean producers got a run in the fourth and stopped Santa Ana's scoring, and added another in the eighth. This game was between the champions of the Channel League and the champions of the Orange County League. The line-up follows:

Santa Ana—Dubois, pitcher; Tedford, catcher; Whitson, first base; Enderle, second base; Whitney, third base; Vanderlip, shortstop; Robinson, left field; Peters, center field; Eaton, right field.

Umpire—George Peters.

BASEBALL TEAM IS DISBANDED.

The baseball team at the Los Angeles Athletic Club has been abandoned. Plenty of material is at hand, and when the club is settled in its own quarters the team is to be reorganized.

It is planned to have facilities for all manner of outdoor sports, eventually, as well as the complete indoor equipment. Outdoor handball courts will be a feature of the new clubhouse, and ample facilities for the game will be provided.

Physical Director Al Treloar has installed a stout punching bag, of the style used by professional fighters, for those who wish to harden their hands and develop some punching muscle. It is a heavy canvas affair, loaded, and swung from the ceiling.

More attention is to be paid to fencing in the near future. The facilities for this excellent form of exercise are fully up to date. Some capable fencers are already members and another is planning to join the club. Occasionally good bouts can be seen in the gymnasium, most of the fencers preferring the foil rather than the saber, apparently.

GARLAND ROSS, captain Occidental baseball team.

"Corney" Returns.

"Corney" Pendleton, president of the Angel City ball club, came back yesterday from San Francisco, but had nothing new to tell about the baseball situation, except that the strike of the street car men was hurting the ball games very much. Every one is very much pleased with the playing of the Los Angeles team and the San Francisco fans predict that the team that beats the locals will win the pennant. Delmas is out of the game from catching a ball on the end of the thumb on his right hand.

SEVEN PLAYERS ARE TO RETURN.

CAPT. SWEESEY AND CAUSELEY LOST TO CALIFORNIA.

Prospects for Blue and Gold Team for Next Season Are Bright—Bob Jordan May Prove Best Pitcher Ever Developed in Schools of State. Plan Fall Practice.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, May 17.—The prospects for a very strong 'varsity baseball team for the coming year were never so good at this season. Out of the nine men who played against Stanford in this year's series, seven are almost sure to return to college and will be out for the team next year. Capt. Sweesey, who played the center field position, will not return. His loss will be felt keenly for he is one of the surest fielders who ever wore the Blue and Gold, and is a very strong hitter. "Punk" Causeley, who has held down the shortstop position for the last four years will be missing from the line-up. With the exception of these two men, the whole 'varsity team is expected to be in harness again next spring.

Capt. "Bob" Jordan will be in the box and lead the team. With another year's experience in the position, Jordan promises to be one of the most remarkable pitchers ever developed in the western colleges. Brought in from the outfield this spring because there was no pitcher, he at once got into twirling form in a way that surprised the whole college. His speed and control were great, and he has had practically all the opposing college batsmen at his mercy. In the game he pitched against the St. Vincent's College team, the crack southern players were unable to get a single hit off his delivery, and in the second game of the intercollegiate series he held Stanford to one scratch hit. In another year he promises to be almost invincible to college batsmen.

"Jimmy" Schaeffer is almost sure to do the receiving behind the bat. He is one of the surest and headiest catchers who ever played on the 'varsity, and is good, exceptionally in holding a pitcher to his best work.

For the first base position Dick Wulzen has first call, as at present there is no one able to compare with him. His hitting and fielding have been top notch, and have attracted several promising offers from league managers.

Roy Reed, who held down second base position this year and Heister, who covered third, seem to have their positions cinched. Myers, who played left field and Miller who covered the right garden, will also be in their suits next spring and it will take an excellent player to beat either of them for his position.

A new feature in college baseball training is to be introduced next year in regular fall practice. Walter Christie, the veteran trainer, is to have charge of fall work on both the track and diamond, while the football men are working under the direction of Prof. Walter E. Magee. It is expected by those in charge of the movement that the change will result in very much stronger teams both in track and baseball, as the longer season of practice will make the baseball men surer in the fielding and develop their batting eye, and will enable the track men to get into much better form.

Minor Baseball.

Among the ball games played yesterday by local amateur teams, the following scores have been received: Pacific Mutuals beat the Y.M.C.A. by a score of 5 to 2 at Thirty-eighth and Santa Fé; the T.G. & T. team beat the Santa Fés at St. Vincent grounds, 12 to 5; the Edison Electric team beat the Los Angeles County team at the Occidental grounds 8 to 7. The Hoegees and Pasadenas will play at Chutes Park this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Playgrounds Win.

The second baseball game in the Saturday Afternoon League was pulled off, yesterday, and the Violet street playground nine administered defeat to the team from Harper and Reynolds, with a score of 11 to 4.

SAINTS HEAD PERCENTAGE.

Three Years' Record Shows St. Vincent's Best.

Occidental Leads One Year, But Drops Back.

Notable Events in Southern College Athletics.

According to statistics compiled by Frank Haggerty, director of athletics at St. Vincent's College, the athletes of the Catholic institution have won a higher percentage of events than any of the four big schools in this end of the State. For the three years ending with this school year, Haggerty's figures show that St. Vincent's won a grand average of two-thirds of the events in which she entered, the percentage being based on the supposition that St. Vincent's will win from Occidental in the final baseball game, and that Occidental wins from Pomona in the last contest.

THREE YEARS' RECORD.

Name—	Events.	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	P.c.
St. Vincent's	36	22	11	3	.667
Occidental	43	20	22	1	.465
U. of So. Cal	35	16	17	2	.457
Pomona	38	12	25	1	.316

During the last year St. Vincent's lost but one event, the football game to Occidental. However, St. Vincent's dropped track and did not play a full football schedule, while Occidental, U.S.C. and Pomona took on basketball and played schedules in football, baseball and track. During the year 1907 the record was:

Name—	Events.	Won.	Lost.	P.c.
St. Vincent's	10	9	1	.900
U. of So. Cal	14	8	6	.571
Occidental	16	5	11	.312
Pomona	16	5	11	.312

In the school year closing in 1906, Occidental took the lead, winning three-fourths of her events. St. Vincent's was second, winning half. The number of teams was the same as in 1905.

Name—	Events.	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	P.c.
Occidental	13	9	3	1	.750
St. Vincent's	12	5	5	2	.500
U. of So. Cal	12	4	6	2	.400
Pomona	11	3	7	1	.300

In 1905, St. Vincent's played football, baseball, basketball, supported a boat crew, and took part in track events; while the other schools played football and baseball and conducted track athletics.

Name—	Events.	Won.	Lost.	P.c.
St. Vincent's	14	8	6	.571
U. of So. Cal	9	4	5	.444
Occidental	14	6	8	.428
Pomona	11	4	7	.363

NOTABLE EVENTS.

Notable events during the last three years of Southern California athletics are:

1904-5.

University of California defeated Pomona in football, 6 to 0.

Los Angeles champion Coast League baseball team defeated St. Vincent's, 5 to 1.

Parsons of U.S.C. won the 100 and 220-yard dashes at the P.A.A. meet on the Berkeley oval, doing the 100 in 9 4-5 seconds.

Murrietta of St. Vincent's, in the same meet, won the quarter-mile, defeating Glarner; he also took third in the 100 and 200-yard dashes.

Wilhoit of St. Vincent's set a new mark of 11 ft. 4 in. in the pole vault for the year and took the event from the California men.

Pomona lost to Stanford in the track meet, 83 to 36.

1905-6.

Stanford defeated St. Vincent's in football, 10 to 0, and beat U.S.C., 17 to 0.

St. Vincent's defeated Arizona in football, 54 to 0, by electric light.

All-Southern college team defeated Stanford and lost to Berkeley in track meet.

The Los Angeles Coast League baseball team defeated St. Vincent's—3 to 1, 4 to 1, 5 to 1.

St. Vincent's defeated the Meteors, champions of the Basketball League, 26 to 16.

St. Vincent's defeated the Sherman Indians in the rowing regatta at Playa del Rey.

1906-7.

In Rugby football, Pomona lost to Berkeley, 6 to 0, and to Stanford, 26 to 0.

The New York Giants defeated St. Vincent's, 7 to 1, 8 to 1 and 9 to 2. Hits for the three games totaled: New York 27, St. Vincent's 23.

St. Mary's Phoenix team, with Hal Chase and five other professionals, defeated St. Vincent's in thirteen-inning game, 5 to 2.

Stanford defeated U.S.C. in track, 64 to 58, U.S.C. winning four firsts.

St. Vincent's won baseball game from California at Berkeley, being the first southern college to defeat either of the big northern universities.

GOSSIP ABOUT BALL PLAYERS.

Manager Berry of the Los Angeles club has sent his contracts to Secretary Farrell of the National Commission, and his men have been posted as being the property of the Los Angeles club. The names are as follows: George Ellis, Curtis Bernard, Norman Brashear, Walter Nagle, Franz Hosp, Walter Carlisle, Frank Dillon, Bert Delmas, W. L. Hogan, Judson Smith, William Gray, C. C. Cravath, C. C. Carnes.

Doyle, McLaughlin and McGregor have been suspended by the Des Moines club.

Al Bresino has been purchased by Tacoma from Butte.

The Los Angeles players and many of those that came here in the three other teams, are very sore against Derrick as an umpire and are making guesses that he won't last half the season. He is certainly bad at times, but is probably as good as any of them.

Manager Frank Chance of the Chicago Nationals is credited with saying that he will vote no more in California and that hereafter Chicago will be his summer and winter home. Any one who wants to live in Chicago at any time of the year should certainly be allowed to. If Frank can stand those blizzards and sunstrokes, we can.

Frank Selee, who built up the Chicago Cubs to what they are now, has commenced his twenty-third year as a manager in taking the Pueblo team this year.

Pitcher Warren Hall, who went from here to play with the Denver club, has returned and declares that he was the real hard luck kid in every game he played in. Every time he would pitch the fielders behind him would juggle the ball in a scandalous manner, and he had no chance to win.

Local fans can feel very proud of Left-fielder Carlisle, who has done such good work in the Oakland games the past week. Chief among his great things were two home runs. It would be interesting to know whether by this time the San Francisco fans think he is almost as good as poor Jim Smith of the Oakland team.

A Cleveland newspaper writer is trying to knock the squeeze play as being "dangerous, clumsy and not good baseball." It seems strange that any man would allow himself to become daffy on the neatest wrinkle in the game.

The Brooklyn team of the National League consists of a fine bunch of morning glories. In the practice games before the season opened, the Trolleys were right there in fine spring practice work, but since they have gotten down to real business, they win about one game every week. They are apparently not ball players yet, but expect to be soon.

Rube Vickers is more than holding his own with the Philadelphia Athletics, for he is just as good as Waddell, Dygert and Bender.

In a recent game Elberfeld and Chase almost worked a double squeeze play, something that is a rarity. Chase was on third and Elberfeld on second, and both men started for the plate on the pitch. The ball was safely bunted by the batsman, and Chase easily scored. Elberfeld would have scored easily also, but stumbled and was touched out before he could get to either third base or the plate.

The St. Louis National League club has sold First Basemen Moose Baxter to the Montgomery club of the Southern League for the sum of $800. My! my! What is some one thinking about? What do you know about old Moose Baxter being worth $800, unless some one died and left the money to him?

Four bases on balls, five stolen bases, not a runner forced in and still but one run scores. Can you figure that out? It is not a manufactured puzzle, but actually occurred on the Polo Grounds the other afternoon and the play was made by the Giants. The play looks impossible, as four bases on balls seemingly would have forced in a runner and the stolen bases would have made it more. When the players were shown the figures they could not believe it until the enigma was explained. It happened thus: Shanron out on a grounder. Strang walked, but Devlin, who was next, flied to third. Strang stole second and on a bad throw went to third. Seymour walked, and on a double steal Strang scored and Seymour took second. Bresnahan walked and he and Seymour again worked a double steal, making five stolen bases. McGann walked, making the fourth base on balls, and that is how they were left when Dahlen struck out. Every play was perfect, the base stealing was wonderful and still but one run scored. Can you beat it?

Why...

Complicate your machine and increase its weight with six cylinders, when you can get the same results with four? The only real advantage of a six-cylinder car is that it will run a trifle smoother at low speed than the ordinary four-cylinder car. The CLEVELAND car will run as smooth and quiet at any speed as any six-cylinder car, has ample power and can not be equaled for all round service, reliability and freedom from trouble and repairs.

We simply ask the privilege of proving this to you by a demonstration and by the testimony of those who are now using them.

Auto Cape Tops

Gentlemen: This top, being "made in Los Angeles," is a commendable feature in itself. I do not claim that my top is the FAMOUS TOP, neither is it made in bronze, as that belongs to the past ages. Today is the age of steel. I am making my tops with a nickel steel slat iron and treble plated in brass, which has proven itself to be the best top in California today. I am anxious for you to know all about the "Maxwell" not merely because I am President of the Maxwell-Briscoe Company, makers of the "Maxwell," but as a motorist talking to motorists or prospective automobile purchasers.

I know what differences there are in cars, and I know what trouble, expense and permanent regrets are possible when you don't happen to pick the best car for sureness of service, and low cost of up-keep.

That is why I want to urge upon you, as motorist talking to motorist, that you have the Maxwell-Briscoe-Willcox Company, 1211 S. Main Street, demonstrate thoroughly to you every principle and detail of

The "Maxwell"

This remarkable car has a record which more than warrants all my enthusiasm, and the enthusiasm of the thousands of "Maxwell" owners throughout America.

Year after year it has won endurance contest after contest; and mountain climb after climb—just the sort of tests which prove a car's intrinsic worth. In 1906 it won the Deming Trophy in the Glidden Tour, and holds the world's 3,000 mile non-stop record.

The Maxwell-Briscoe-Willcox Company will gladly send you the complete Maxwell catalog upon request, but by all means have their expert demonstrators explain the "Maxwell" thoroughly to you and show you the "Maxwell" in actual operation. Then I know you will not make a mistake in selecting your car.

COACH HAGGERTY HAS HAD MUCH SUCCESS.

FRANK HAGGERTY,
who retires as coach of St. Vincent's College, with a good record.

FRANK HAGGERTY, director of physical training at St. Vincent's College and coach of the teams which have represented the institution during the last three years, is the [illegible] of three coaches of big Southern California colleges to sever connections with athletics.

Coach Harvey R. Holmes, of the University of Southern California, will be the only old coach left, in all probability. Haggerty expects to take up his law practice. Edward S. Merrill, of Occidental, expects to give all his time to the completion of preparation for the profession of osteopathy; [illegible] Nesse will not have charge of [illegible] athletics and will probably [illegible] business.

In his three years at St. Vincent's Coach Haggerty has built up [illegible] of the Catholic institution [illegible] from nothing to an important factor in Southern California. When he began his work the school was represented only by a baseball team in which the Saints were the pioneers, for the other colleges have only organized baseball for two years. [illegible] had no gymnasium; now it [illegible] the best equipped college plant in [illegible]. Of other sports there were [illegible].

[illegible] immediately organized a [illegible] team and each year since has [illegible] out an eleven. The first year [illegible] defeated Occidental and was [illegible] by Pomona, but did not play [illegible] second year. In the fall of 1905, [illegible] Vincent's had the best team in its [illegible]. The most serious defeat was [illegible] hands of California, 21 to 0, by [illegible] score the State boys beat [illegible] Indians. Stanford de[illegible] the Southerners, 10 to 9. Nothing games were played with [illegible] and U.S.C. Los Angeles High was beaten, 12 to 0. The season [illegible] off by defeating the University of Arizona, 54 to 0.

ENTIRE NEW TEAM.

[illegible] the school had a poor team. [illegible] by graduation all but four of [illegible] and second teams' members, [illegible] remainder were made up of [illegible] students of the institution. [illegible], the team played the [illegible] High School aggregation a [illegible] to nothing game, but was defeated by Occidental. In the three [illegible] the Saints met all southern [illegible] in one season or another.

[illegible] first year, the spring of 1905, [illegible] organized a track team and [illegible] men contested against Occidental and U.S.C., with 21 to 25 men [illegible] of their teams, according to [illegible]. The Saints were beaten by [illegible] like 80 to 40 on both occasions. St. Vincent's won about as [illegible] first places, but the other teams [illegible] by winning many more second and third places.

[illegible] was the best pole vaulter on [illegible] that year, winning in the [illegible] meet at 11 ft., 4 in. Murietta [illegible] to Parsons in the south [illegible] in the P.A.A. meet, where [illegible] beat Glarner in the quarter.

[illegible] Vincent's was the first college to [illegible] basketball. In the first year [illegible] the championship by defeating [illegible]. The second year the team [illegible] Meteors, champions of the [illegible] California league, 26 to 16. [illegible] the Saints were the only [illegible] to take a game from Whittier, [illegible] even in the two contests [illegible] and beating all others.

[illegible] first year of Haggerty's regime the baseball team won the championship, defeating all teams. [illegible] year the team lost the [illegible] to Occidental by one run [illegible] game, after going four[illegible]. In the spring practice [illegible] scored in each of three games, [illegible] scores of three, four, and five respectively.

[illegible] the contest with the Giants [illegible] Manager McGraw remarked [illegible] St. Vincent's boys stood up [illegible] better than any college team [illegible] ever seen. The Giants won, [illegible] to 1 and 7 to 1, but the hits [illegible] fairly evenly distributed.

PLAY PROFESSIONALS.

[illegible] this year the team was beaten [illegible] St. Mary's in thirteen innings. In [illegible] were seven professionals, including Hal Chase, who were playing [illegible] and Sunday ball at San José [illegible] the winter, in an organized [illegible]. Brady, the first baseman, is [illegible] in the School of Law at Cal[illegible]. Penney, the second baseman, [illegible] in the Coast League. Other professionals were Krouse, pitcher; Ham[illegible] third base; Duggan, shortstop; [illegible] center field, and Burke, [illegible].

[illegible] team played a series of games [illegible] North and lost all but one contest, [illegible] being beaten, 8 to 6. [illegible] undoubtedly will win the [illegible] California college championship. It has beaten Pomona twice, 7 [illegible] and 2 to 1; Occidental, 3 to 1; [illegible] High School, 6 to 0, and [illegible] High, 10 to 0.

[illegible] are but four St. Vincent's College [illegible] taking athletics at present. [illegible] remainder of the baseball team [illegible] of prep students. The four [illegible] are Winne, Brannon, La[illegible] and Carl McCann.

[illegible] as the baseball season is [illegible] Mr. Haggerty, barrister, expects [illegible] for Salem, Mass., where he is [illegible] before the Probate Court in [illegible] case. He expects to be [illegible] weeks, after which he will [illegible] his entire time to the law [illegible] in a suite of offices in the [illegible] building.

[illegible] was admitted to the bar in North Dakota, and on motion was admitted to practice in Southern California in October, 1904. He graduated from Phillips-Exeter Academy and Colby College. He played football in both institutions, and was a general all-around star.

TROPHY WINNERS ARE OUTPOINTED.

SANTA MONICA FALLS BEFORE CITY CRICKETERS.

Mitchell Gains Top Score With Sixty, While Barwell and Morris Also Play Fine Innings—Beach Town Players Helped Out by Visitors as Team Is Short.

The Los Angeles Cricket Club sent an eleven down to play Santa Monica at Venice, yesterday afternoon, scoring 190 runs to their opponents' meager 55, inflicting a drubbing to the Trophy Winners.

C. E. Le Bas, the captain of the beach town team, sent a challenge to Pat Higgins, the captain of the Los Angeles eleven, with the result that a strong team was sent down to show them how cricket is really played.

The Los Angelenos not only outpointed Santa Monica with the bat, but with the ball and in the field, and gave their opponents such a leather hunting as has seldom been seen or heard of on this broad continent.

Santa Monica was short two men, but if they had had a dozen extra men on their side they would have fared just as badly, and their wickets would have fallen just as easily to the splendid bowling of Mitchell and Bhumgara, the latter being almost unplayable. When the time came for Santa Monica to take the field, Pat Higgins not only fielded himself as a substitute, but also sent out Mitchell. These two men are amongst the best fielders Los Angeles has, but the Angel City captain put his best services at the disposal of his opponents.

For Santa Monica, P. Hunt played a good game, as did Bannister and Le Bas, but the rest of the team displayed such poor form with the bat that it was a regular procession of men to and from the pavilion. Hunt and Bannister, the two best bowlers for Santa Monica, were hit all over the ground, apparently at will, and the whole team will have to do a considerable amount of practice at the nets, if they hope to hold in check Los Angeles, which has a particularly fine team this year.

For Los Angeles, Bhumgara not only batted and fielded well, but sent down such good balls that the batsmen who faced him were completely nonplussed with his deliveries. When the time came for Los Angeles to bat, Morris and Kitchin passed their opponents' score off their own bats, the former playing a fine inning for his 42, amongst which were some good drives to the off side. Barwell, an old Essex second-eleven man, knocked up 46 by hard hitting, and when he was partnered with Mitchell, who made top score of 60 for his side, such a leather-hunting was meted out to Santa Monica that it appears as though Los Angeles will take every trophy that may be played for this season. Crouch and Kitchin played well for 12 and 14, respectively, while the extras, which only totaled 7, points to the fact that the fielding was keen.

Following are the scores by innings of each team:

CRICKET NOTES.

W. Kirk won his colors at Malvern College, Worcestershire, and also played with the Leeds Club and Ground, Yorks. He has won several prize balls and one bat for successes in the field.

C. G. Montague, who knocked out a score of 20 in the late interleague match at Venice, was a member of Lillywhite's second eleven of Sydney, Australia. He also has played with the San Francisco Club at Alameda.

John Alton, the president of the club, played for the Sedgeley Park College eleven, Staffordshire, and exhibits with much pride a belt for bowling in the Oxford Cricket Club near Manchester, won as far back as 1869.

C. Ramsden was with the Guide Bridge team, Manchester, also with the Rapid City, Manitoba, Canada, eleven. He is a medium, right-arm bowler.

Even Dorsetshire has a representative in Southern California, in W. R. Wright, who was with the Athelempton School eleven. He has been a member of the L.A.C.C. for the past three years, and it is the wish of every member to see him high up in the averages this season.

Cricket, like most outdoor sports, requires the services of umpires. When two teams are playing a match, it behooves the captains of the opposing elevens to appoint these before the game commences, so that the same men may officiate throughout the match.

If an umpire is appealed to, his decision should be clear and to the point, and his verdict must be accepted as final. There should be no wrangling at the wicket, it being decidedly bad form to do so.

A consignment of cricket goods has arrived at Bakersfield en route to Los Angeles, ordered by the local club. This consists of autograph bats by the famous makers, Shaw & Shrewsbury of Nottingham, England. In addition to these, there are ordinary practice bats, pads, balls, bails, stumps, gloves and bat bags, to the value of over $400. These will be of invaluable service to the club, especially as the membership roll is increasing rapidly and cricketing gear is needed badly.

Practice games are to be played at Agricultural Park on Thursday at 3 o'clock, and on Saturday at 1 o'clock. Visitors are invited to attend, and any one so wishing may hand his name in to Secretary G. F. Gadsdon, when the applicant will be voted a member.

TO VISIT ENGLAND.

QUAKER CRICKET ELEVEN.

Arrangements have been made whereby the University of Pennsylvania cricket eleven is to visit England and play a series of matches with most of the prominent public schools.

Some of the members of the Los Angeles Cricket Club were public-school players who won their colors in the field, and they will be keen to follow these games and see how their alma mater fares against the strong Pennsylvania aggregation.

Following is the present schedule of matches:

June 27 at Harrow.
July 2 at Clifton.
July 3 at Shrewsbury.
July 5-6 at Cheltenham.
July 10 at Haileybur
July 18 at Marlborough.
July 23 at Rugby.
July 26 at Charterhouse.
July 29 at Repton.

In the interim between July 10 and 23, matches will be arranged with Winchester and Malvern, and also with the universities of Durham and Edinburgh, Scotland.

ENGLISH RUNNER AFTER LONGBOAT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 18.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Alfred Schrabb, the English professional champion runner, who came to this country expecting to get on a match race with Longboat, the Canadian Indian runner, has made a match with Frank Kannaley of Cambridgeport, Mass. Longboat still being classed as an amateur. Schrabb has begun training at Celtic Park, New York, and his style impresses the critics.

Schrabb is only 26 years old. He has been running for ten years. He is only 5 feet 6 inches tall, a great contrast to the lengthy Longboat, and weighs but 125 pounds in running togs.

COMPETITIONS IN CASTING TACKLE.

ROD AND REEL CLUB PROPOSES TO HOLD CONTESTS.

New Running Device for Equipment—Eligibility Qualifications Clearly Defined—List of Prizes of Practical Value Put Up—Ordinary Trophies Tabooed.

The Southern California Rod and Reel Club expects to complete arrangements for a casting tournament soon. The angling tourney now in progress will continue until October, and the winter season which follows is an admirable time for holding of casting competitions which will tend to keep up the interest in angling through what are called, by courtesy, the "off" months.

No definite records covering the class of bait casting done on the local coast exist. Such records as are known have been exceeded in regular fishing without effort to attain extra distance with special equipment. There are several local casters who can do two hundred feet any time without difficulty and unaided by wind, without using the heaviest of casting tackle either. Given a ten-foot cane pole, a six-ounce sinker and a free-running brass "amateur" type reel, and an expert can get the better part of a hundred yards of line out with regularity.

The refinement of tackle that has been going on steadily has created a great deal of interest in the casting part of the sport. Anglers are beginning to realize the remarkable distance that can be made with light rods of the prevailing type properly adjusted and agate-guided for the work. The light nine-thread linen lines fly to phenomenal distance.

William F. Weber, Sherman Baker, Will Stearns, among others who have adopted the light rod, have attained remarkable distance in their casting. Baker, who is an unusually powerful man, casts with the one hand exclusively, and frequently makes better than sixty yards in regular fishing.

NEW RUNNING DEVICE.

Ed Gerson and Charles B. Aumock, both of whom are jewelers and enthusiastic anglers, are working upon a free-running device in the shape of a wheel to be applied to end guides for rods. The principle is an agate or german-silver pulley wheel over which the line passes, thus relieving the line of a great deal of friction and wear, prolonging its life and efficiency, and making of fishing smoother and more pleasant work. Something of the sort has been needed for a long time.

Owing to the general misunderstanding of the eligibility qualifications for the light tackle tournament, the Rod and Reel Club, at its last meeting, decided to define the matter plainly so that no misunderstandings could arise. In order to prevent parties making a prospective prize winning catch and becoming members of the club simply in order to score it, a rule covering the point was made.

Bona fide members in good standing as shown by the books can register catches at any time, and such catches are entitled to entry in the tournament, but those whose application blanks do not bear a date at least one day prior to the making of their catch cannot score the same. In the event of application blank, accompanied by the initiatory fee being mailed a day before the catch is made, as shown by the postmark on the letter, the catch will be considered

There is every prospect that when the Prize Committe makes its report, a number of prizes will be added to the list already given out. With the opening of the trolling season, some big game is due to come to the gaff of the local anlers any time now.

A fine list of merchandise prizes already is assured. The committee has decided against any trophies of the accepted order for this year; the houses offering same can for the same amount of expenditure put up prizes of practical value to fishermen which are bound to be more keenly contested for than the usual assortment of mugs "to remain in the custody of the club until won three successive years by one person," with the largest fish of any particular kind. Inasmuch as catching the largest fish is largely a matter of luck in happening to hook him, such conditions absolutely prevent the title to the trophy changing hands.

STREAMS HIGH; TROUT SCARCE.

BEST SPORT REPORTED FROM VENTURA COUNTY.

Nice Fish Taken Above Santa Paula Around Sulphur Mountain Springs—Snow Water Spoiling Local Conditions—Preparations for Trips to Remote Points.

The present spell of summer, enthusiastic as it has made the marine anglers, seems to have missed striking a responsive chord in the trout fishermen. Indeed, a sorely disgruntled lot of fly-shiers have been condoling with one another during the week over the prospect of high, roily water indefinitely continued by the volume of snow now melting on the heights, as a consequence of the heat.

When the trout season opened, it was agreed that the best sport would be a matter of waiting until about June 1, but the present conditions have put a sorry crimp in the calculations. At the present gait the streams will be as bad then as they are now. Unusual volumes of snow fell last winter and the upper mountain cañons have been contributing liberally toward the maintenance of the high level started by the heavy rains, until fishing in this county at least seems likely to be a thing of the remote future.

Very few local fishermen have wasted any time on the San Gabriel, this week. In its upper reaches no doubt some fish can be found in spite of the snow water, but the trip is made so extremely difficult by the high water in the cañon that it takes all the pleasure out of the journey, for the roads are washed out and in most places the trail is only to be passed in a boat or by swimming.

There has been some fishing in the Hondo and a few small catches of good-sized fish have been made by Whittier parties, recently, but the angler who must have trout and cannot wait had better decide upon a Ventura trip. He will stand a fair chance of getting some trout in Ventura county because many of the streams there rise in the higher mountains where they are not so responsive to warming weather.

Several local anglers have put in good days on the Sespe, and some of the Santa Paula streams. George E. Franklin, formerly weather forecaster here, and an enthusiastic all-around sportsman as well, had some fine sport early in the season at Sulphur Mountain Springs, and writes as follows:

"I have just time for a few lines to tell the boys what a fine time they are missing by not getting in on the trout-fishing here.

"I have been out but a few hours only in the last few days, and have not worked the streams, the Santa Paula and the Sesar, systematically, but have caught seventeen speckled trout up to twelve inches and weighing three-quarters of a pound, besides plenty of smaller ones.

"Three gentlemen from Oxnard, Frank and Jesse Pettit, and Edward Borchard, in a few hours captured forty-five. Mr. Lippencott and L. C. Fadely of Los Angeles, during the same day, brought in forty. Dr. App Lynne of Santa Paula got the limit, fifty, before noon, Wednesday. The water is clear and the conditions just about right. A few days of this kind of work is fine, but a month will suit me better.

"This is a fine mountain camp with the Sesar Creek running through it, and joining the Santa Paula a little ways down."

The Ventura streams in great measure will suffer from the same conditions as the San Gabriel and San Antonio in this country. The fishing, as a rule, is better in them both as to size and numbers, and they usually clear quickly. On some of the larger pools fly-fishing can be practiced very satisfactorily. A few trips to this section have been called off on account of the warmth, but the jaunts will be taken later on in the summer.

Bear Valley bids fair to be very popular this summer. There is no end of trout, and big ones, too, to be had both in the lake and in the creeks. Some bass have been planted in the lake, and they have done very well, it is said. A generous stocking of this body of water in a systematic way ought to show some substantial results in a few years and greatly enhance the attractiveness of the lake and its surroundings as a vacation spot.

With the coming of summer many trouting trips to points remote are being planned. The Kern River country will command the attention of many local sportsmen, and prospects will be somewhat better for sport than they were last year. The law forbidding the capture of the famous Volcano Creek golden trout doubtless will have considerable effect upon the plans of many who otherwise would go up to the headwaters. Plenty of fish can be caught lower down, and without the attraction of this variety there is little excuse for the trip. The Kern Lakes are a beautiful spot and will afford all the sport any campers can ask as well as more fish than they can possibly dispose of.

Using a landing net and fishing with the fly, these trout can be returned to the water without any material injury, thus giving one all the sport he could get by keeping the fish, and at the same time conserving the future supply. The fly hook is seldom swallowed and almost invariably nabs the trout in the angle of the jaw, or else the lower mandible, owing to the manner in which the lure swims in the water. A trout's jaws are horny, and the injury is so trivial that the fish will be feeding again as soon as he rests from his struggle.

Some big fish have been caught by Palmdale anglers in Big Rock Creek, which runs down into Antelope Valley. Charles French caught eleven and a friend, seven, all of which weighed around a pound each, Wednesday.

SOUTHERNER AS COMMISSIONER.

ROD AND REEL CLUB INDORSES PROF. C. F. HOLDER.

Increased Fishing Facilities and Proper Introduction and Protection of Game Fish Means Much to This Section Through Attraction of Easterners.

Resolutions indorsing Prof. Charles F. Holder of Pasadena for appointment on the State Board of Fish Commissioners were adopted unanimously by the Southern California Rod and Reel Club at its business session Thursday night, a good-sized and enthusiastic attendance of anglers being on hand.

Gov. Gillett soon is to appoint a new board to take the place of the incumbents, who are men of large interests, and from business reasons incapable of giving the office the time it merits. The local angling interests have centered on Prof. Holder for a number of reasons, chief among which is his knowledge of Pacific fishing, his works upon the matter being accepted as authority.

Prof. Holder was the first man to bring the tuna fishing of Catalina before the American sportsmen, and in so doing accomplished a work of great benefit to Southern California. Hundreds, if not thousands, of wealthy men make pilgrimages to the island every year, and most of them leave behind them substantial proof of the interest they have taken in this country. Many on their retirement from active business in the East have come to this end of the Coast to pass their declining years amid the magnificent sporting possibilities of this section, which have been set forth so convincingly by the class of writers of which Prof. Holder was the pioneer.

Being an all-around sportsman as well as a scientific angler of inquiring turn of mind, Prof. Holder is conceded to be qualified admirably for the appointment, and has signified his willingness to serve, if the sportsmen believe the situation demands his efforts, although no salary is attached. One of the greatest difficulties in securing capable commissioners is the fact that none but a wealthy man can take the office, and any such is very likely to have so many interests that he cannot devote the time to the commissionership that it demands. There is a great deal of work connected with the office, and much of it is not of a pleasant character, as lawbreakers are many, and they must be dealt with summarily, according to the belief of those interested.

Given such a champion of Southern California as Holder on the board, the fond hopes of local sportsmen that foreign fish and game might be introduced and propagated here should become a reality, as Prof. Holder has made a study of the subject for years. He comes of a family noted in such lines of work, his father having been the first curator of the Smithsonian Institute, and the son having followed in his footsteps along the paths of scientific research. He already has established himself as the greatest living authority upon the large game fishes of the Pacific.

Prof. Holder is an officer and leading member in the Light Tackle and Tuna clubs of Avalon, as well as of the Southern California Rod and Reel Club, and therefore understands the peculiar needs of the game fish in this section. It is thought he will stand a good chance of securing the appointment at Gov. Gillett's hands, as his personal friendship with Dr. David Starr Jordan assures him of a splendid recommendation from one whose familiarity with the subject is attested by his commission from the government to write national reports upon the subject for the Fisheries Bureau.

It may be that the local anglers will find they have acted too late in the Fish Commission matter. Gov. Gillett is said to have looked very favorably upon a commission composed of Messrs. Van Arsdale, one of the incumbents; Col. George Stone, and another political light, Vansickle, also a Northern man. He may make a selection at any time; indeed, may already have done so, but the campaign started in behalf of a local man will bear fruit another time, if not this.

PLANTING OF BASS.

Shipments of the Striped and Black Varieties Are Sought by Sportsmen.

A vigorous campaign to scure shipments of striped bass to be planted in southern bay waters has been started by the Southern California Rod and Reel Club's committee chosen to work along that line. It is contemplated to plant the fish in Newport and other of the large bays into which considerable fresh water is emptying.

The presence of striped bass along the coast is being reported with more regularity this year than ever before, and this has redoubled the efforts of the anglers to secure plantings of them. It is thought there is no reason to doubt that they will succeed splendidly if planted intelligently.

It also is planned to plant black bass in the fresh-water reservoirs extensively. In many instances these fish have done well, and given the proper conditions, which it is believed by experts can be had here, they should duplicate their record in Florida and the Southern States. For many years it was believed the bass would not thrive in the warm and more sluggish waters of the Gulf States, but their introduction resulted in a number of surprises. The fish attained an average growth considerably in excess of that reached by the same varieties in what was supposed to be their natural habitat, the Florida specimens in some cases exceeding a dozen pounds weight.

Plenty of food in the bayous and lakes generally is charged with this increase of average size. Quite a number of local anglers have been paying special attention to the black bass matter and have been looking into local conditions closely with a view to satisfying themselves as to the prospects of the fish locally. They report a great increase in the natural food supply, particularly in the matter of small frogs which have for some reason been unusually plentiful this spring around the ponds and marshy places. The succession of favorable wet seasons has no doubt been a factor in this condition.

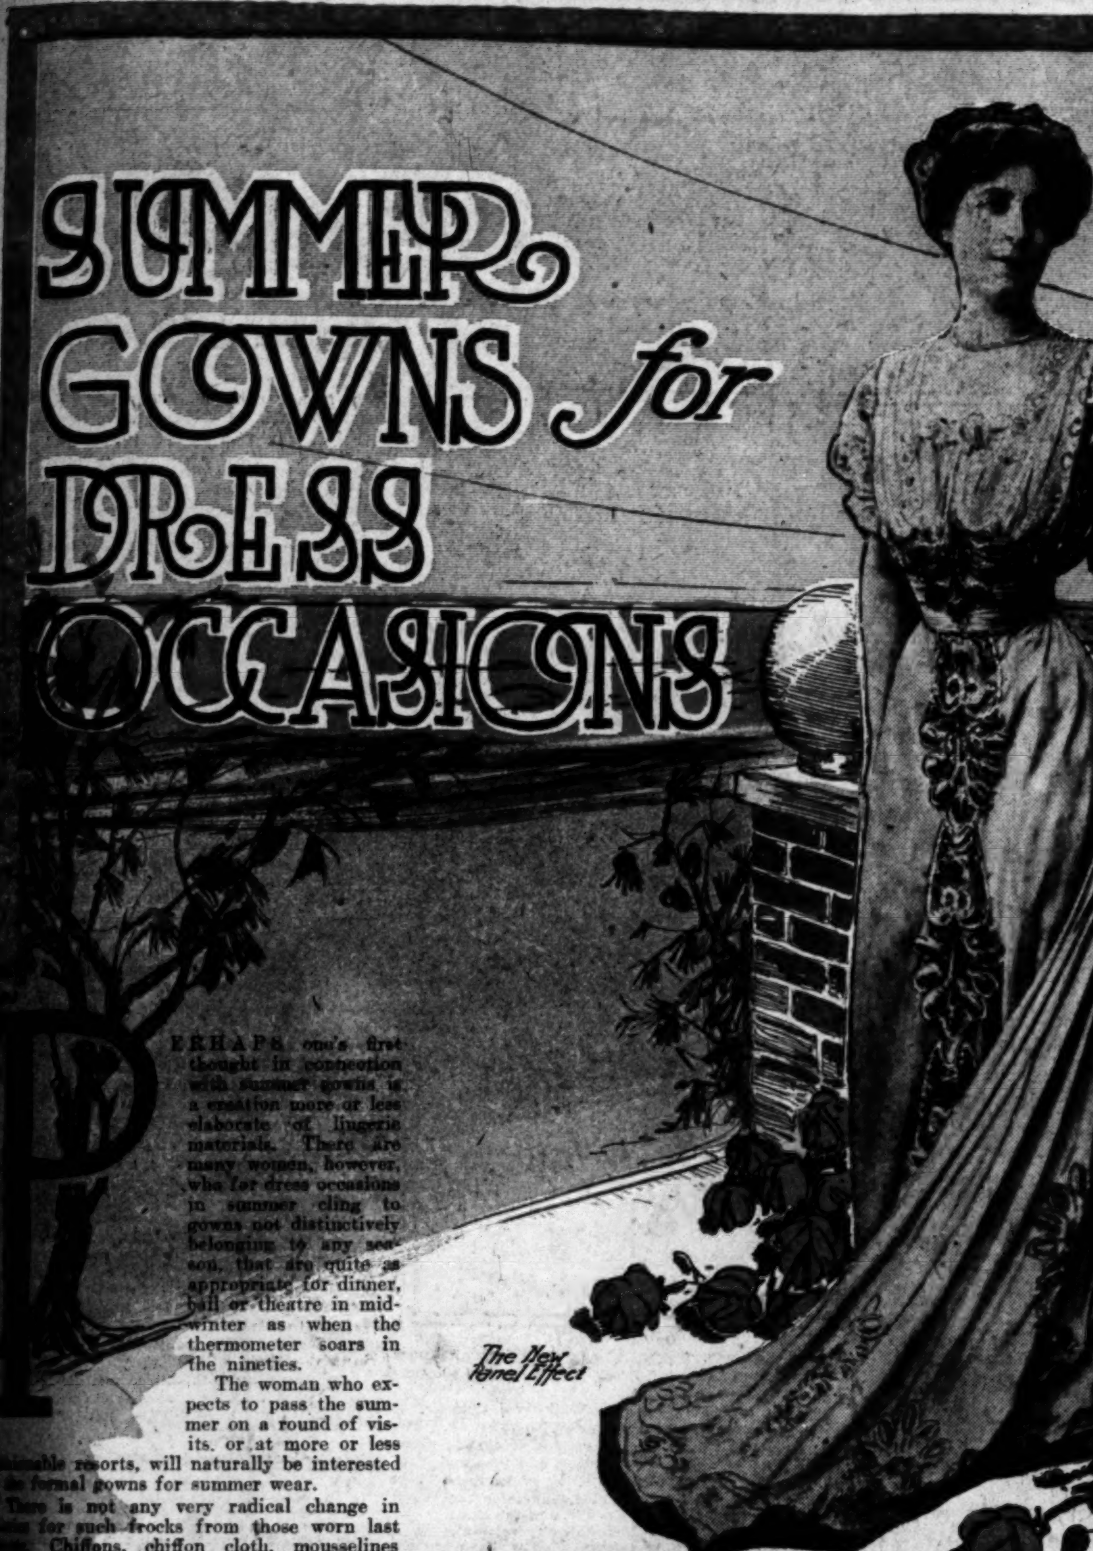
SUMMER GOWNS for DRESS OCCASIONS



The New Panel Effect

PERHAPS one's first thought in connection with summer gowns is a creation more or less elaborate of lingerie materials. There are many women, however, who for dress occasions in summer cling to gowns not distinctively belonging to any season, that are quite as appropriate for dinner, ball or theatre in midwinter as when the thermometer soars in the nineties.

The woman who expects to pass the summer on a round of visits, or at more or less fashionable resorts, will naturally be interested in the formal gowns for summer wear.

There is not any very radical change in styles for such frocks from those worn last season. Chiffons, chiffon cloth, mousselines (many of which have exquisite floral borders), voiles, soft silks, lace, net and an occasional crepe de chine may all be chosen with the happy consciousness of being absolutely correct.

Trimmings may be as lavish as the purse of the wearer permits: passementeries, appliques, beautiful floral borders, ribbon embroidery, jeweled buckles and buttons all play an important part in the summer gowns for dress occasions; but lace so largely outweighs in popularity all other forms of trimming that it is hard to find an elaborate frock without at least a little of it. Often several kinds, as a heavy and thin lace, are used on one gown.

The lines of the dressy gown are extremely graceful this season; for, as usual, Paris commands the wearing of long skirts, and while Americans may rebel when it comes to interfering with comfort in morning gowns, all reception and ball dresses are sure to have a trailing skirt.

Panel fronts are quite the newest thing. They fit perfectly flat, the gathers beginning at the sides, where there is an outlining of the trimming or of tucks, or perhaps a bias fold. The panel is often cut with a bias seam down the middle, and is occasionally continued around the sides of the skirt, flaring ever so slightly. Sometimes trimming is carried in a broad line up the front to simulate a panel.

Bodices are frequently draped, and most of them show the long shoulder line and the high Empire girdle. The decollete ball gowns have little or no sleeve, while even those intended for dinners and reception wear are anything but flamboyant. The latter frock, however, frequently has the true kimono sleeve, or at least the extended armhole effect.

It would be hard to find more graceful gowns for reception, dinner and dance than those shown today.

The new panel effect of the model at the left-hand top of the page is simulated by broad bands of net trimming, heavily embroidered in pastel shades, which are seen to special advantage on the soft, clinging folds of chiffon cloth in the new sauterne shade. Very graceful are the simple lines of the bodice, with its plainly draped strips of soft lace, one edge of which forms an extended shoulder. A motif of the panel trimming falls over the high girdle and is brought over the shoulders to be repeated at the waist line in the back.

An effective house gown, which is also appropriate for an informal dinner, has the Empire lines given by the arrangement of the pompadour ribbon girdle, with its fluffy bow under the shoulder blades and the long streamers falling to the end of the short train. This gown is of gentian blue crepe de chine, with short bolero effect in duchess lace. It would be a charming and easily copied model for any of the diaphanous summer materials.

Nothing quite takes the place of the black and white gown for evening wear. The model shown is of a very thin mousseline, trimmed with embroidered net and insertion and separate motifs of chantilly lace. The Empire lines are given by a broad band of shirring at the waistline. Gray, so pale as to be almost white, is used for the foundation, and gives a less glaring contrast than the regular black and white combination.

Though developed in a soft shade of almond green chiffon cloth, trimmed with a rather intricate arrangement of broad and narrow filet lace, the next model is adaptable for any soft material. The train, falling gracefully from between the shoulders, and the draped folds of the blouse is a particularly becoming style to a slender figure.

The sinuous lines of the black net model with large coin dots is broken by a graceful festooned trimming of black lace ruffles over white lace, with chains of jetted beads above it. The bottom of the skirt is cut in rounded points, edged with double ruffles to fall over a deep frill of white embroidered chiffon.

The simple gown of pale pink liberty silk would be attractive developed in silk mull. A thin silk lace is put on the skirt in a hollow square effect, with a chou of velvet in each one. The lace is brought around the top of the armhole to lengthen the shoulder line more than is done by the graceful bell shape of lace and tucks.

A dinner gown in straw-colored chiffon cloth shows the pleated skirt trimmed with festoons of ribbon embroidery and silk tassels. The bodice is gracefully draped in surplice lines, and is caught at the bust line with a chou of velvet and tassels.

CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK, PRESIDENT

WHERE EVERY GIRL MAY FIND THE OPPORTUNITY SHE DESIRES

HERE are two letters written to me with a brief interval of time between them. They make interesting and suggestive reading for our Each and All girls who "are anxious to work, but don't know just what to do." (I get many letters containing that statement.)

This is the first:

I am anxious to be doing something for Each and All, and I will gladly send the page to any one whom you may suggest. I have enjoyed the letters from the mothers, as I have two children of my own, a boy of 8 and a girl of 6. I do my housework, all my sewing, a good lot of reading and writing and some fancy work, so you see I am a very busy woman. Still, I am going to find time to help Each and All as soon as I can once get started. This is a small village and not much outside work to do.

The second letter came some days later and showed that the writer had not waited for my suggestions before going about her Each and All work:

Our school teacher has been talking lately of starting some kind of a club here. To use her own words, "Some kind of an improvement club, or to do something to help others." She asked me to suggest a name. I asked her if she thought they would like to start an Each and All chapter. She never had heard of it; in fact, I found no one in the village who knew of it. I gave them some papers, showed them my membership card, told them what little I know, and they are all anxious to start a chapter right off. They wanted me to write to you for all particulars.

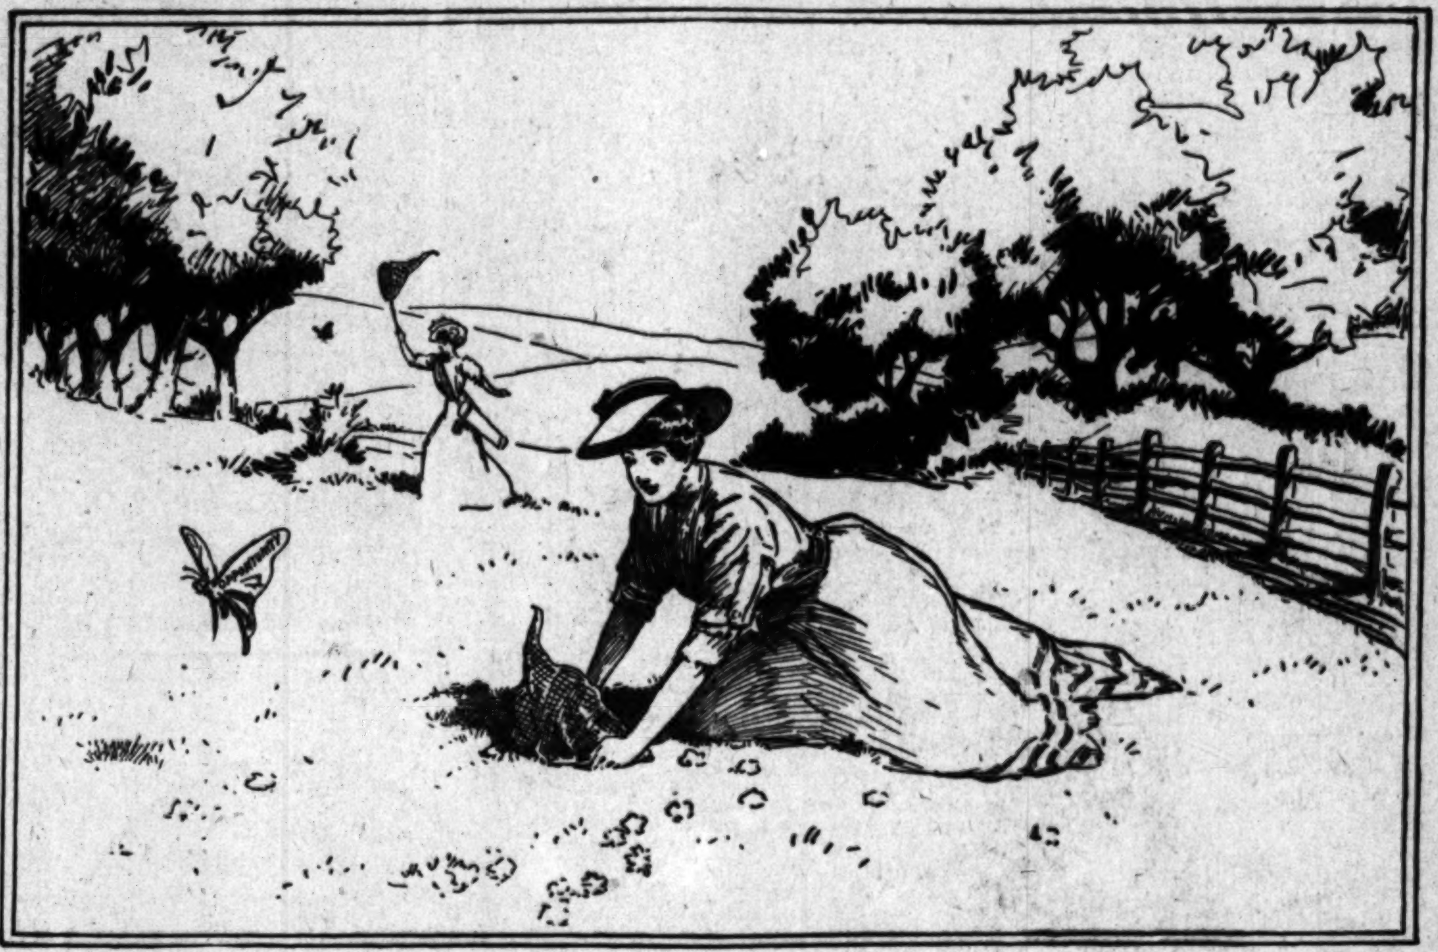
There would be twenty members to start with, or about that. I have seen that there is already a "Herrick Chapter." We would like a "Christine Chapter," if you are willing. I notice you say in the page that there is no "red tape" to become a member, but I wasn't sure about starting a chapter. I thought you might have some rules for that. MEEKE (North Turner, Me.).

Don't you know I am proud of my namesake? I was already, like little Marjorie Fleming, "primed up with majestick pride" over the Herrick Chapter in Boston, and the new honor uplifted me even more. Yet I do not believe that even the thought of having my Christian name yoked with a chapter that is to be for "some kind of improvement and to help others" gratified me as much as to know that the new member straightway set to work as soon as she was fairly in the club and began looking about her for ways in which she could be of service to the organization.

MANY WILLING BUT NOT ALERT

Why, there are hundreds of girls all over the country, both in the club and out, to whom it would never have seemed possible to do such a piece of work. They are willing enough, but they are not on the alert for chances to work. You know a wise man said once that there is no such thing as luck. The same kind of chance comes to every one alike; only some have the quickness to see and seize the opportunity, while others never recognize it until after it has passed. I am inclined to think there is a good deal of truth in the remark. I have seen it illustrated again and again in Each and All.

It is very interesting to me to watch the ways in which the club affects different girls. One is quite content to go on as she was, only doing the things that force themselves upon her attention. She never looks about her for chances to work, or if they are there, she does not see them. Even if she sees them, she either thinks they are not worth while or else that they are too much trouble. Another girl is on the alert for work, and if no opportunities come her way, she goes hunting for them.



I had a letter the other day from one such girl who is always doing something for Each and All members. She writes a note to one, she sends a card to another, she posts a package of flower seed to some one else and slips a little collar or some similar trifle into an envelope to brighten some one who is not often remembered. Always she is thinking what she can do to live up to her pledge.

Every one has not the time or the money to do this? I know that; but if you can't do this, you can do something else. Two cases come to my mind now. One is a young girl who is an invalid living in a small town. She regrets deeply that she can do little for Each and All. Yet rarely has there been a week for a long time when she has not sent me the name of at least one new member for Each and All. Again and again I have joyfully replenished her stock of membership applications, and as I wrote to her the other day, "If only my well girls would work as you do, Each and All would sweep the country within the year."

The other case is that of a girl who works for her living and works hard, too, at daily toil that must take her strength and vigor. She also is not strong, and she is handicapped by a trying physical infirmity. Yet, member after member does she send to me. I have lost count of them now; but she has turned in enough names to make a big chapter all of her own, if she had the time or the health to run it.

You all remember the big Walk-Over Chapter, of Brockton, which was born in a day, so to speak. The energetic young women who thought of it did not waste time in considering ways and means and pros and cons. They went to work and secured their members and sent to me between two and three score names at one time. I wish there were 100 more like them in the club!

Then there is our school chapter, organized in a boarding school down in Georgia. Why have we not more chapters like this? Why do not the thousands of school girls who are enrolled on our lists and who write to me of their desire to work for Each and All bring in their friends and companions and have their [illegible] chapters? The thing can be done, for some girls [illegible] done it. Why not more?

The other day a girl wrote to me—a very [illegible] she is, too—and said, "I have tried to interest the [illegible] in our village and bring them into the club, but they [illegible] seem to care for any of the things that Each and All [illegible] do for them."

When I answered that letter I thought I would try to correct the girl's impression as to the scope of Each and All, and I told her that I knew of nothing, from [illegible] tion and assistance to amusement, that Each and All [illegible] not ready to offer to its members. I wanted to say [illegible] but I didn't have time. I thought of our chapters [illegible] the invalids, for the mothers, for the housekeepers, [illegible] the trained nurses, for the teachers, for the music [illegible] for the art students, for the students of languages, [illegible] the stamp collectors, for the amateur photographers, [illegible] the quilt makers, for the lovers of fancy work, for the [illegible] ary workers, for athletic girls, for librarians, for [illegible] girls, for charitable purposes, for dramatic work [illegible] elocution, of our deaf girls' chapter, of our [illegible] to say nothing of the chapters all over the country [illegible] the purposes named and for others too numerous to [illegible] tion, including social enjoyments and recreation.

GOOD WORKERS EVERYWHERE

If the girls referred to "don't care for any of the things Each and All can do for them," they must [illegible] different from any girls I have ever known or heard of. The member who wrote the letters from which I have quoted came from New England, where, by the way, may be found some of our best workers. That they are not confined to the East may be seen from the following:

When we joined the club you asked us what we could do for Each and All. We think of forming a "[illegible] Trades Chapter," if one has not already been formed. In such a chapter we could exchange [illegible] pers, cooking recipes, patterns, music, [illegible] letters, remedies, beauty recipes, and [illegible] order, and could send to any one in the [illegible]. If there is no such chapter as this already [illegible], will you let us have the honor of organizing it? E. M. M., V. L. D. ([illegible]).

Of course, they shall have the honor of organizing, and I don't doubt that I shall be overwhelmed by requests for their names. I hope so—and don't forget your stamped and self-addressed envelope!

So, girls, you see what girls can do in [illegible] of this big country. Are there not more of you who [illegible] do the same thing?

Don't wait to meet others who are already [illegible] of Each and All before you begin your chapter. [illegible] in your own friends and send to me for membership [illegible] for them. I will gladly supply application [illegible] send the cards without them. Then go to work [illegible] make your chapter to suit yourself and see if you [illegible] do as good work as the other chapters are doing.

Christine Terhune Herrick

P. S.—Every mail brings a host of letters asking one or the other (or both) of these two questions: "How shall I address your letter?" or "How can I get a badge?" Address all letters to me, in care of the paper in which you see our page, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish a personal answer. For the badge—send 50 cents in stamps, postal note, letter or money order, made payable to me, addressed to me in care of this newspaper.

What the Workers Are Doing

Another Matrimonial Problem

I READ with a great deal of interest your solution of a matrimonial problem in a recent talk on the page, and I thought you would like to hear from the girls on the subject.

The girl in question was evidently thinking seriously of marrying a man who was her inferior socially and intellectually, but not spiritually or morally. He had no tastes for the things that she had and was not cultured, and, as far as you could judge, did not try to be, and therefore you said "no." I think almost every girl will agree with you there; but there is yet a more difficult side to the problem. Suppose that the young man was practically uneducated and unaccustomed to mingle with society, and yet was of unimpeachable character and was steadily working his way up in a profitable calling. Also, if he was fond of good reading and music, i. e., had tastes similar to the girl, and yet he would appear to disadvantage among her friends. What should be that girl's decision? Such a case is perfectly possible, and although I have not been called upon to make such a choice, I would certainly say "yes." I would very much like to hear your opinion and that of the girls on the subject. ALBERTA (Vancouver, B. C.).

This is a puzzling question, and I don't believe I will give my opinion in the matter quite yet. What do you girls think of it? Give your opinions fully and freely. Write on one side of the paper, please, and let us see how the general judgment inclines.

On Marrying a Man to Reform Him

I cannot help saying something on the marriage question that has arisen. Dear girls, I agree with one of you girls that if a man won't reform before marriage he very seldom does afterward. How much better it is to remain single and spend your life in trying to help and cheer others than to be married to a drinking man and bring innocent little children into this world to suffer with hunger and cold, as so many, many do. Better a good deal grieve with an aching heart before than after marriage. WILLING (Cochituate, Mass.).

I fancy most sensible women will hold this view.

Each and All Work

Some people have said to me when I have spoken of the Each and All work, "Oh, there is enough charity work to be found at home without writing to invalids on the other side of the country; it is just like missionaries going to the heathen countries when there are plenty of people at home for whom they might work," and such remarks.

I recently read of some noted man to whom such a remark was made on foreign missionaries, and who replied by quoting the command of the Saviour to his apostles: "Go preach the gospel to all men." Perhaps some of the girls might find this a useful defense. Not that I do not do any local work. I belong to a young women's charitable society, visit a little sick girl in the hospital (this latter since joining Each and All), send her postals each week, and made her a little remembrance for Christmas. I direct letters for an old lady and buy tobacco for an old gentleman in the neighborhood, wave my hand to the little folks that I see at the windows as I pass by, and try to be pleasant and cheerful to all who come my way.

I am receiving cards from some very pleasant girls, and they write a nice letter each time. I have a dear little correspondent in Pennsylvania—a little girl who had been a member six months, and I was the first one she had heard from. You may state my willingness to send the page to any girl who is unable to procure it, as I am saving the papers for this purpose. FABIOLA (Salem, Mass.).

I think "Fabiola" illustrates very well the possibility of interest at home and abroad. There are many others like her, and it is they who make Each and All the helpful organization it is.

Dramatics and Mathematics

I am very much interested in dramatics, and trust I may meet others here who are also. I am 15 years of age, and am a good mathematician, and will be glad to help in any way I can. ANNA S. R. (Los Angeles, Cal.).

We have other Los Angeles members with dramatic interests, and probably some who would like help in mathematics.

She Wishes to Do Sewing

As I am a shut-in most of the time, especially in the winter, I would like to do sewing for the members. I will make underclothing of all kinds, sheets and pillow cases, comforters, children's long and short clothes, and make fancy doilies, tidies and sofa pillows. I will make them for the members for a reasonable price. I thought perhaps there might be some of the members who did not have the time to do their own sewing. If so, I would like to do it for pay. L. M. E. (Westbrook, Maine).

Such work as this is always in demand, and I hope there may be many applications for this address.

Will Exchange Book-Plates

I shall be very glad to exchange book-plates with any of the members. ALONE (Boston, Mass.).

We have heard from only a few girls interested in book-plates. Are there not more who would like to exchange them?

For the Crippled Children

Let me tell you something I am doing to keep my pledge. A few months ago a letter appeared on the page signed "Bertha L. G.," Philadelphia, Pa., in which she suggested that some of the Each and All girls get the names of children in the Home for Crippled Children in Philadelphia and send them postals once or twice a week. My aunt sent you a letter requesting that "Bertha L. G." send her the names of a few of the children, and she did so. Since then my aunt and I, who shared the names that she received, have been sending cards to them occasionally. L. L. D. (Burlington, N. J.).

That is the sort of work that lies very near my heart. Are there not other sick and crippled children in other cities than Philadelphia whose sad, maimed lives might be cheered by some such tender thoughtfulness as this? Who can tell us about them?

Two Helpful Quotations

Here are two quotations that I like very much:

"The secret of life is not to do what one likes, but to try to like what one has to do; and one does come to like it in time." —D. M. Craik.

"One heart encircles all that live
And blesses great and small;
And meet it is that EACH shold give His little to the ALL.
—Lucy Larcom.

Mrs. W. L. F. (Dover, N. H.).

Both of these sound as if they might have been written expressly for Each and All.

A Friendly Offer

I keep house and work in a factory every day. I have lots of nice recipes, and have made a leather postcard pillow. If any of the members would like to know how to make a pillow or wish some recipes, I will be pleased to send them. M. A. B. (West Derry, N. H.).

The busy ones always find time to be of help.

Plants, Painting, Music and Much Besides

I am interested in and am a great lover of plants. Are there any others? If so, let me know. I will help any members with almost any kind of fancy work or any who are interested in oil paintings, and will state that I paint flowers on plates and platters. I would like to correspond with any who are painters. I will help any one with cookery. I am quite a singer, and will help in that way. I am a dressmaker and milliner; can make about seventy-five different sofa pillows and several quilts, and such things as lace, etc. FAITHFUL (Worcester, Mass.).

With so many ways of being of help to our members, I am only afraid that "Faithful" will be overrun by applications for assistance.

Chafing Dish Recipes Wanted

I am interested in embroidery and will exchange patterns. Will some one send me some chafing dish recipes? Do you ever cook in the pan directly over the blaze, not using the hot waterpan? J. P. M. (Lynchburg, Va.).

This last question I am glad to answer. Any quick cookery such as would be done in a frying pan may be practiced in the "blazer" or pan directly above the flame. Will some one send this member chafing dish recipes?

"All Kinds of Crocheting"

I can do all kinds of crocheting, such as children's caps and kimonos for babies, coach robes, scarfs, shawls and nubias. I have three skating caps made, two pink and one blue, which I will exchange for a small table cover or tidy in drawnwork or other fancy work. If any of our young skaters would like one of these little caps let me hear from her. I would also like orders for them. M. M. M. (Camden, N. J.).

It is rather late for skating caps this year, I am afraid. But there may be other work done by M. M. M. which will be timely.

Will Give Help in Music

I have been taking music lessons on the piano for about three years and a half, and would willingly help any one interested in the same. I belong to a club which was originated at my school. We are going to meet once a weeks to sew and to make over outgrown clothes for the poor and destitute. I have a sister that is to be married in the summer, and I would like to have some one give me some little ideas for making doilies and all kinds of dainty accessories for the house. CANOUCK (Los Angeles, Cal.).

Our fancy workers ought to be ready with suggestions, and the offer of help with music will doubtless be welcomed.

An Offer of Patches

I have a few calico and silk patches for quilts. If anybody wishes them she can have them by writing to me. Mrs. P. F. R. (Hampton, Va.).

This offer will meet with prompt acceptance.

Two Offers of Reading Matter

I have quite a number of Christian Heralds I will send to members of Each and All if they are unable to subscribe for it, and will send a few cents toward paying postage. The copies are as good as new, although they have been read. E. M. P. (Millerstown, Pa.).

I have a number of small magazines that I will be glad to pass on to some tired mother who loves reading and who has not leisure in which to read a long novel. These were "passed" to me, and, having appreciated them very much, I would like to help some other poor, tired mother. I will send them by express if receiver will accept them C. O. D. Mrs. W. O. C. (East Liverpool, Ohio).

Surely there are members who would be glad to pay transportation for the sake of receiving these magazines and papers.

From a Fancy Worker

I do a great deal of fancy work and have to sell it. I thought that some of the members might like to buy some handwork waists for summer wear. I make one shadow and eyelet waist which is a beautiful pattern, and for which I get $2. The front is embroidered on the best lawn. If any of the members would like me to embroider them a front, I would do it for $1.75. TOPAZ (Nantucket, Mass.).

This price sounds very reasonable to me, and I hope "Topaz" may receive a number of orders.

An Offer of Waist Patterns

I can embroider, and have some very pretty waist patterns which I will send to any one who would like to have them. H. J. E. (Reading, Pa.).

This offer comes in well at this time of the year.

OBJECTS AND AIMS OF EACH AND ALL

PERHAPS some of you, seeing this page for the first time, wonder just what the Each and All Society really is; what there is about its aims and objects to create so widespread an interest among "young girls of all ages."

The society was founded in February, 1905, with Christine Terhune Herrick for its president, and with an almost instant membership of girls in nearly every State in the Union and in Canada.

Its object is to help girls help themselves by developing their talents into something the world wants; to solve difficult problems—the sort a girl wants a calm, unbiased, out-of-the-family opinion upon—and to promote the exchange of general help.

Any girl may belong. There is no red tape about it. The sending of your name for membership gives you the range of every opportunity the society boasts. And Mrs. Herrick stands ready to welcome, to advise and to help.

Music and Child Training

Will the musical ones tell me how to use my hands? I used to play the piano, but for years have had no time, and only played hymns on an organ. Now that I have time I find I cannot play quick music. I find I can't rattle off even a simple exercise quickly. I read well and have no trouble with voluntaries or slow music on the organ.

I think many children are spoiled in babyhood by young parents who mean well, but start with the idea that their children are to be models of sweetness and good behavior. So, long before baby is big enough to understand the slapping of little dimpled hands, the loud "Ah-ing" and "If you do so again I'll hit you," begins. It is so cunning to see the earnestness of his entire tiny body in motion for some coveted object that they give him all manner of things. Then if he reaches out and gets the same things they punish him, for, of course, "my child will have to mind." I saw this exemplified the other day when a baby was allowed to play with a small but valuable clock. He was delighted, and cooed and laughed. Some one came in, the clock was set down and forgotten, and the baby reached out, got it, dropped it, and the mother said between slaps, "I won't have it so I can't put anything down." I do not think the baby had the slightest idea of anything wrong. He had played with it a few moments before, why was it bad to play then? But he had learned that at times mamma was to be feared. ANNIE (West Medway, Mass.).

This is the sort of punishment no self-respecting or sensible mother would ever inflict upon a child. When I see the parents who chastise their little ones in anger I don't wonder there are so many ill-behaved children in the world nor such a number of undisciplined men and women. If a punishment were never given except when the parent is calm and unheated, the world would be a better and happier place.

Stamps for an Invalid

I have been a shut-in for some time. I am much interested in collecting foreign and United States stamps, and I will be glad to exchange. It is about all I can do at present. A. M. S. R. (East Boston, Mass.).

Here is a chance for the many girls who wish to cheer shut-ins.

VERSES FOR "THE BLUES"

THESE verses are favorites of mine, especially when I feel "blue." I don't very often, I'm glad to say; but sometimes I do, being but human, and we all have our "ups and downs." I wonder if any of the girls would find them helpful, too? If you think so, I'm sure you'll print them on our page. "ESPERANCE" (Haney, B. C.).

Just being happy
Is a fine thing to do;
Looking on the bright side
Rather than the blue;
Sad or sunny musing
Is largely in the choosing,
And just being happy
Is brave work and true.

Just being happy
Helps other souls along;
Their burdens may be heavy
And they are not strong;
And your own sky will lighten
If other skies you brighten
By being just happy
With a heart full of song.

Correspondence and Postcards

ADDRESSES of correspondents and postcard collectors will be given only to other members of Each and All. In order to secure these, the signature and place of residence as given on the page should be sent to me, accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

The first time I read our Page I was away out in the "Gold Country" on the desert, in a little mining town. Oh, no! I am not a woman prospector; I was in search of something more precious than gold—my health. I have belonged to the Club about a year, and have collected a large number of cards; still I am not satisfied. I want to correspond with a girl about my age—I will be 19 in June—some one who loves her room with the walls covered with pictures and hung with Japanese lanterns, and who has just loads of treasures that no one but herself knows why she keeps. I like to draw, and sometimes I sing a little, when the door of my room is closed and I am thumping my guitar. I wonder if some one will write to me? R. F. G. (Los Angeles, Cal.).

I would like to exchange Philadelphia or New Jersey postcards for those from New England, the South, Colorado, California and Mexico. Historic buildings and beautiful scenery preferred. ETHEL S. O. (Philadelphia, Pa.).

Please put my name on the Correspondence and Postcard Exchange. I am very much interested in dramatic work, and would like to make the stage my profession. I would like to hear from girls also interested in this line, including good literature and Fun. I write Fun with a capital because it means so much to me, and because I can extract it from some very woeful things. I am just past 16, and am trying to live up to my Each and All pledge. A. M. F. (Philadelphia, Pa.).

If my name is not on the postcard list, kindly add it. I have received only two cards from Each and All girls since I have joined, and would be glad to receive quite a number. "PEGGY" (Reading, Pa.).

Will you kindly publish my desire to correspond with the kindergartners? I feel sure I shall enjoy knowing some of them. Mrs. H. R. (Galeton, Pa.).

I would like to correspond with some of the members. "NOD" (McKeesport, Pa.).

Will you kindly give my name to any one wanting to exchange postcards or patterns for embroidery? J. E. (Pittston, Pa.).

I would like to exchange postcards with girls from Western and Southern States, and also correspond with one or two girls of my age—33 years. I will answer all letters. I have some good recipes for toilet preparations, if any of the girls care to have them. MRS. E. M.B. (Lancaster, Pa.).

I am 14 years old, and would like to exchange postals with some girls near my own age. I will also gladly help the girls in Latin and music, if possible. "CLOVER" (Shamokin, Pa.).

Please put my name in the Exchange Column for Postcards from Maine, New Hampshire, California and Virginia. I will gladly exchange postals and letters with all, and in addition be glad to send any one patterns of pincushions. DAISY B. C. (Waynesboro, Pa.).

I am not particular in having postals of any one State, but would like to have them from all the States of our Union. I burn wood, and will willingly send a burnt-wood postal on request; or, if any member should like to buy burnt wood at a reasonable price, I would gladly burn and sell it. L. A. S. (Catasauqua, Pa.).

Will you kindly put my name on the Postcard List? I would also be pleased to receive addresses from some of the girls in the Western States, either from correspondence or postcard exchange. R. S. B. (Pottstown, Pa.).

If any of the girls would care to have black-and-white drawing in exchange for postals, I would willingly do my best for them.

We have some very nice scenes of our town, which I will gladly send to any girl who would care for them. I will send leather cards in exchange for scenes or greetings. MAY (Columbia, Pa.).

Is there a Chapter in San Diego? If there are any Each and All Girls there, I would like to correspond with some of them, as our Chapter expects to go down there this summer. F. M. L. (Los Angeles, Cal.).

Will you please put my name in the Postcard Exchange column? I would like the girls to send cards to me first, and I will send one in return for every one I receive. M. D. (York, Pa.).

I am 14 years of age, and would like to exchange postals with girls about that age. S. C. H. (Courtenay, N. D.).

Please put my name in the Postcard Exchange for both leather and colored postcards. L. C. J. (Atlantic City, N. J.).

I am very fond of reading, sewing of all kinds, music and pyrographic work. I want to try to be a "lifter"; also to help. I would like to exchange cards with a girl in each State. E. J. T. (Westmont, N. J.).

As I am not collecting postcards any longer, I would ask that you kindly take my name from the list. I. J. K. (Camden, N. J.).

I would like to exchange postcards, either leather or card, not comic. L. L. B. (Delaware City, Del.).

Please put my name back on the Postcard Exchange list. I have moved up here to Oakland, and find I would still like to keep up my postal exchange. I will be very prompt in sending to those who send to me. I would also like to be put on the corresponding list, as I am very lonely up here, and do so enjoy all the letters from Each and All girls. I lived in San Diego when I joined the club. Mrs. M. J. (Oakland, Cal.).

Please withdraw my name from the postcard list, as I have all the cards I wish. I am very sorry to say that I could not detect the addresses on six of the cards. ETTA (Pasadena, Cal.).

I would like to exchange with girls from Boston (Mass.), New Hampshire, the South, and especially from foreign countries. I would like leather postals with girls' names and addresses on, as I would like to make an Each and All cushion. I will return each postal. ROSALIE (Tacony, Philadelphia).

I am ready to exchange postals with any of the members, and will send a postal for every one [illegible] either leather or views. I am very much [illegible] camera photographs, monograms and fancy [illegible] a sophomore in High School, and will help [illegible] any way I can. LOUISE (Globe Villa[illegible]

I would like to exchange postcards with [illegible] Southern and Western States, except California. CHARLOTTE M. B. ([illegible] Kindly put my name on the Postcard [illegible] will return card for card, no matter where [illegible] from, as long as they are not from Baltimore [illegible] historical cards or scenery—no comics. Mrs. A. H. L. ([illegible]

Please put my name in the paper to [illegible] with girls in any of the Southern and Western [illegible] of any other State in the Union. BUNTY ([illegible]

I wish to exchange postals with girls in [illegible] States, and also in Massachusetts. I have a [illegible] postals, and wish to get more. I am 15 years of [illegible] am a freshman in the Danvers High School. R. M. H. (Middleton, [illegible]

I should like to correspond with some of the [illegible] girls. M. A. ([illegible]

I am very musical, and would like to correspond with musical girls. I attend high school and will graduate in June; afterward I am going to college. A. V. S. ([illegible]

Other correspondents and post-card collectors [illegible] following:

A. R. O., Winnipeg, Canada.
A. L. T., Edwardsville, Pa.
R. K., Dedham, Mass.

A Variety of Interests

I am a nurse, now studying medicine, and would be pleased to correspond with other trained [illegible] help any girl who is without training and [illegible] sick ones. I could also give help in the [illegible] physics, English or French literature and [illegible] am also interested in photography, [illegible] I would be pleased to exchange helpful [illegible] shool teachers, with those who have [illegible] manage and those doing fancy work or [illegible]

I wish all those girls who have the [illegible] ly would try getting interested in a variety of [illegible] ments. I never give myself time to indulge [illegible] and am always happy. I think my greatest [illegible] know everything, but of course no one's life is long [illegible] to make more than a beginning. MEDICA ([illegible]

I know no better road to happiness than [illegible] "Medica" has laid out for herself. A diversity [illegible] ests, constant employment, a big ambition [illegible] these and health, the world is a fine place!

"Never Discouragers"

One of the girls I write to is a cripple, [illegible] younger than I am, and I felt like crying when [illegible] she hoped I wouldn't stop writing to her [illegible] that she was crippled. Think of it! [illegible] girls had done so. I am sure they were [illegible] the name of our society. What difference [illegible] It seems to me that the clause in our [illegible] mutual encouragers, never discouragers [illegible] mighty fine rule for Each and All members [illegible] scores of ways to discourage people, and [illegible] lack of the least effort to be enthusiastic [illegible] a person, or anything that needs encouragement [illegible] of cruelty. Don't you think people are [illegible] show enthusiasm? I'd rather have any one [illegible] decidedly than show an apathetic indifference. CALIFORNIA POPPY (Los Angeles, [illegible]

I fully agree. The "wet-blanket" friend [illegible] written "fiend"—has a great deal of [illegible] swer for. Are there really any girls who would [illegible] writing to a cripple?

Interested in Physical Culture

I do a great deal of crocheting, and if any one [illegible] patterns I will gladly send them. I get some [illegible] monthly magazines, and if any one cares for them I [illegible] pass them along.

I am much interested in gymnasium work, and [illegible] family intends to move to Boston shortly [illegible] pleased to join one of the physical culture classes. G. E. B. ([illegible]

Wishes to Hear From Other Piano Tea[illegible]

I have become a music (piano) teacher, having [illegible] at the New England Conservatory of Music, and [illegible] be pleased to hear from your other piano [illegible] would like to correspond. TOOTSY (Jamaica Plain, [illegible]

There are musicians in and around Boston who [illegible] be glad to meet this member.

"The Best Mother I Can"

You ask me what I am going to do to live up to the spirit of my pledge. In the first place, I am going to be the very best mother I [illegible] to my little ones. After that I will do whatever [illegible] to do. Mrs. F. H. ([illegible]

Nothing Each and All can do is [illegible] help the one who prompt a resolution like this and [illegible] it to live up to it. Who agrees with me?

Embroidery, Shorthand and French

I would gladly help any one in sewing and [illegible] (I would like orders to embroider [illegible] sonable charges.) I can also give help [illegible] aid beginners in French. I will also [illegible] broidery silk and recipes. I would like to [illegible] postals. W. F. B. ([illegible]

This member offers a good deal and asks [illegible] return.

Polly Evans' Story Page For Boys and Girls

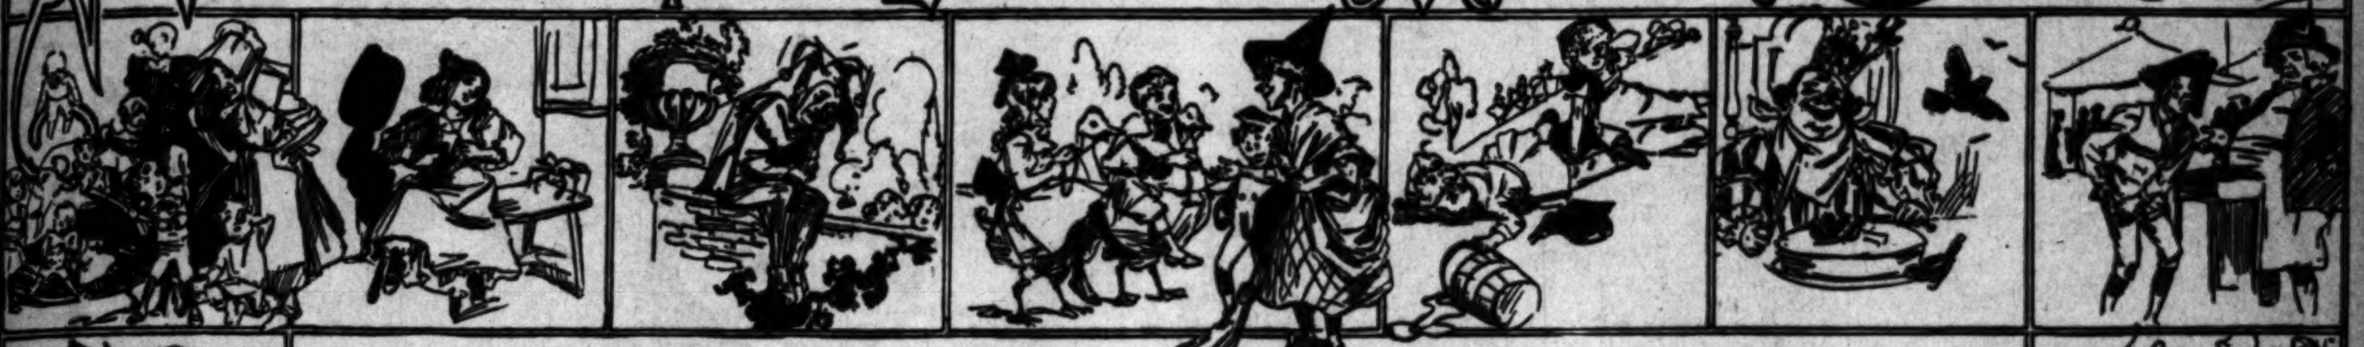
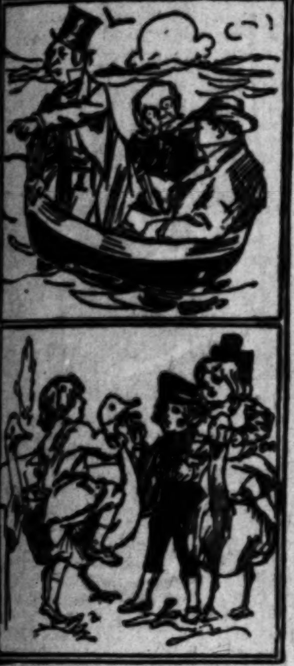
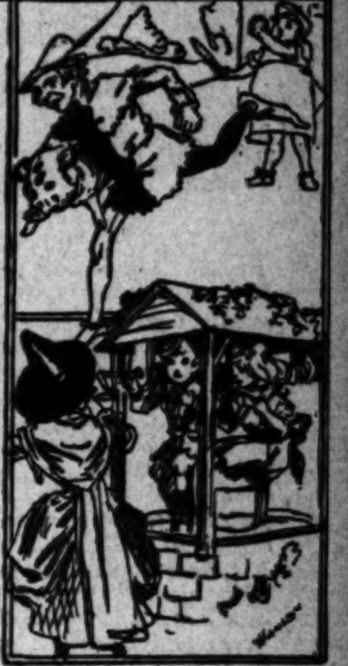
A VISIT TO THE LAND OF MOTHER GOOSE







YES, it was very, very kind of Mother Goose to invite them. Sammy and Ethel knew her well, to be sure, but so did lots of other boys and girls—and they were never given an invitation.

Little Boy Blue looked too funny for anything when he flew in through the nursery window astride of a big white goose, guiding two others by little bridles. You see he was so sleepy he could hardly keep his eyes open, and when the geese landed he just rolled on the floor, propped himself up against the wall and went fast asleep.

"Oh dear," sighed Tommy, "now we'll have to wake him, and if we do remember the verse says he'll be sure to cry. Well, here goes, anyway.

"Little Boy Blue, come blow your horn!"

Boy Blue rubbed his round eyes as hard as ever he could and looked real cross.

"Aw, can't anybody let me sleep? Most people have an idea that I'm lazy because they once found me asleep under a haystack. Fact is, I didn't have any sleep for two days—and haven't had any since. Wouldn't you be sleepy if you was me?" And he began to cry so loudly that Ethel was afraid Nursie would hear, so she said:

"Come, come, Boy Blue! You can sleep after awhile. Who sent you with the geese?"

"Oh, I forgot. Mother Goose says I'm to bring you back with me."

Both were wild with joy. "Let's go at once! How are we to get there?"

"Them's your geese," replied Boy Blue.

"Will mine bite?" asked Ethel, who, being quite little, and, as Sammy said, "just like a girl," was a wee bit afraid.

"Oh, no, he's the nicest and gentlest of all the geese. He's awful polite, too. He's the goose of whom the boy asked: 'Goosey goosey, gander, whither shall I wander?'

"But come. I'll never be able to find all my sheep again. They'll be lost worse than Little Bo-peep's were. And I have to get back before they take all the wool from Ba-a, ba-a, black sheep."

It didn't take them long to leave the nursery far behind. Soon they passed the old woman in her basket, sweeping cobwebs from the sky.

"Sky has to be dusted at least once in twenty-four hours," observed Boy Blue.

So close did they come to the moon that they could see the man in the moon making ready for his trip to Norwich. Luckily, the cow wasn't jumping over the moon just then, nor could they see the cat with the fiddle.

"The cow's got rheumatism," explained Boy Blue, "and can't jump as much as she used to.

"There are the three men of Gotham, who went to sea in a bowl. One of them is the man of our town who scratched out both his eyes and then scratched them in again. Every one thinks the wise men were drowned long ago, but you can see for yourselves that they are mistaken."

Having passed over the sea, the party alighted on the beach. They were now in the Land of Mother Goose.

All at once Boy Blue began to cry, harder than ever before.

"Why, what is the matter?" Sammy and Ethel asked.

"Boo-hoo! I've forgotten the way and I can't find my horn."

Sammy and Ethel tried to comfort him. "Never mind," said they; "we'll ask the old woman here who lives in the shoe."

But the old woman had so many children that she didn't know what to do, and was so busy that she couldn't find time to make an answer.

"Let's go on further," suggested Sammy; "I think I see Miss Muffet over there on her tuffet."

"Certainly, I can tell you where Mother Goose is," smilingly replied the little lady, but just then an enormous spider crawled toward her and she dropped her dish of curds and whey and ran so swiftly that they soon lost sight of her.

"If this isn't my luck!" bitterly complained Boy Blue. "See Humpty Dumpty sitting over yonder on the wall. Let's hurry up and ask him before he falls."

All three ran as fast as they could, but before they reached him, down he dropped with a crash. They tried to put him together, but didn't succeed very well, and so left him to the king's horses and king's men, who just then came along.

Sammy and Ethel and Boy Blue had almost given up hope of seeing Mother Goose, when, lo! she stood right before them.

They were overjoyed to meet her, and she spoke to them so kindly that they loved her right away—but then, they had always loved her, even if they hadn't seen her before.

"We will now go for a stroll, children, so that you may see some of your old friends," announced Mother Goose.

"Oh, my, my, my! how often have I told Jack not to run down that hill with a pail of water. There! I knew he would fall, and, as I live, Jill goes tumbling after!"

After a time they came upon a magnificent castle, round about which a great fair was being held.

Not far from them stood Simple Simon and the pieman. Simple Simon was ever so hungry for a pie, but, of course, without a penny he didn't stand the slightest show in the world of getting one.

Ethel pitied him so much, that she ran up to give him a penny, but Mother Goose drew her back, saying:

"No, dear, you couldn't do that; it would spoil the verse, you know."

Passing through the fair, they entered the great castle. In one room sat the king, before an enormous pie.

"The five and twenty blackbirds are baked in the pie. Just wait till it is opened, and they'll begin to sing." Sure enough, as Mother Goose had said, the birds flew out and sang so sweetly that Ethel wished she had one for her very own.

Mother Goose led the way out of the castle. No sooner did they reach the ground than they espied a boy run swiftly away with a pig under his arm.

"Tom, the piper's son, is again in trouble, I fear," sighed Mother Goose. "But he's not always bad. Sometimes he plays his pipe for the boys and girls hours at a time, though the only tune that he can play is 'Over the hills and far away.'

"I'm glad to tell you that Pussy wasn't really drowned in the well—we got her out just in time," she continued, as they came in sight of the well down which naughty Tommy Green had thrown poor Pussy.

"Hadn't we better be starting home, now?" suggested Ethel. "We've had the very best time we ever had, but I know Nursie will soon wonder where we are."

"I'll send for you again some time, children," said Mother Goose, as she bundled them both in the great well bucket, and turned the windlass so that they went down and down and down, until they reached the nursery.

And Nursie hadn't missed them at all.

"Run! it's a boy!" shrieked the grasshopper.

Harry never ran from a boy of anywhere near his size, but, then, this boy wasn't his size, so he ran as fast as his legs could carry him. To his horror, there opened in front of him a big hole, and before he could stop himself in he tumbled headlong.

Harry was still seated in the armchair. Where had all this happened about grasshoppers and ants and other insects? He certainly could not have been dreaming, yet his remembrance of every little thing was as plain as plain could be.

To the teacher's surprise, he answered every question correctly in the natural history examination on the morrow, but, with Mr. Grasshopper and the other bugs right before his mind's eye, Harry declared that he could not have done otherwise.

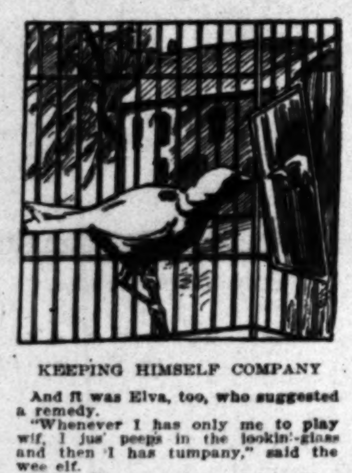
Company for Pee-Wee

"PEE-WEE" was such a merry little fellow that the man at the bird store was indeed sorry to part with him.

But no sooner did we take him home than his joyous notes and delightful trills ceased and the sweet little singer moped in his cage.

He didn't seem at all ill, and we couldn't think what the matter was. It was little Elva who gave us a hint of the troulbe. Looking up at the mournful canary, she thoughtfully said:

"Pee-Wee looks lonesome. Dess he wants some one to play wif him."



KEEPING HIMSELF COMPANY

And it was Elva, too, who suggested a remedy.

"Whenever I has only me to play wif, I jus' peeps in the lookin'-glass and then I has tumpany," said the wee elf.

So Pee-Wee was given a mirror. You would be surprised to see how cheerful he became all at once. Now he could sing all he wished without being interrupted, and he seemed to like this sort of company, which could be seen and not heard.

THE ENCHANTED KETTLE

THERE once lived in Japan a wise old man named Shohun-Shokan.

All day long Shohun-Shokan buried himself in ponderous volumes, so you can see that by virtue of so much reading he became very learned, indeed. One look at his bulging forehead and deep-set eyes and you became awed to think of the vast amount of knowledge such a head must contain.

Shohun-Shokan sat gazing meditatively at the walls of his little room, covered with the letterings of wise sayings innumerable. Before him boiled his little kettle.

In surprise, he rested his eyes on the kettle. Its musical murmur had changed to a growl, and, there before him, two pairs of legs appeared at the bottom, a tail at the handle and a peculiar snout at the mouth.

This strange creature capered about so merrily that the lid rattled and the water overflowed from the kettle part of it.

The fame of Shohun-Shokan's possession spread throughout the land, and he was induced to travel through the country exhibiting the enchanted kettle. It appeared to be very fond of its master and obeyed all his instructions. Many a crowd was highly amused at the sight of a kettle walking upon a tight-rope or doing other antics. Shohun-Shokan grew wealthy rapidly.

Finally, believing that he should not abuse the favor of the gods by accumulating too great riches, he announced his intention of spending the rest of his life in quiet study.

With this end in view, Shohun-Shokan purposed to bestow his enchanted kettle upon the nearest shrine. Hardly had the creature been placed on the altar, when, lo! it resumed its former shape—a mere kettle. It may be seen there to this day.

This is why all aged Japanese always examine a kettle carefully whenever they see one, in the hope that perhaps the gods may favor them as they did Shohun-Shokan.

China's Way.

In China people pay their doctors only when they are well. When an Emperor falls sick, for example, the salaries of the court physicians are cut off until he is well again. Needless to say, they work very hard to bring him back to health.

Some Puzzles to Solve

Beheadings.

1. Behead a particle of snow and leave a body of water.
2. Behead a mirror and leave a girl.
3. Behead a collection of sheep and leave a safety device.

Pied Type.

If the following letters are transposed properly there will be formed a sentence of five words.

When the Old Dam was Destroyed

SKINNY scratched his left ear with a slate pencil. This, accompanied by a careless scraping of his feet, caused all the "Bloody Robbers," who were always to be found in the rear of the schoolroom, to take particular notice.

When he felt the eyes of all the band riveted upon the back of his head, slowly and solemnly Skinny pulled his right ear thrice.

Their leader had spoken. Each "Bloody Robber" must report in the cave after school, or be denounced as a traitor.

Those versed in the bandit lore will understand why, an hour later, each member of the band glided away by himself and took a circuitous route that brought him to the grove of trees near the cave.

Skinny, of course, arrived first at the council chamber and was arrayed in the full regalia of a robber chieftain, when he heard the first peculiar whistle from the grove. Giving an answering signal, a form slid quietly down the bank, and the first of the band stood before him.

Scarcely had the leader haughtily returned the salute of his minion and received the mysterious password before a second whistle was heard.

Fifteen minutes afterward the "Bloody Robbers" were in session, seated upon boxes and planks brought thither with great care and labor.

"Comrades and fellow-brigands," Bill Kane was saying (he had just learned that new word, and was proud of it, too), "I heard that they're going to take away the old dam tomorrow. This will make the water go up over the mouth of our cave, so's we'll have to move. That's why Captain Dick Deadeye (indicating Skinny) has called our meeting. Now"—just then he stopped shortly, turned, and made a dive for the entrance of the cave.

Presently Bill returned clutching tightly in his grasp the struggling form of little Tommy Bowes, who had innocently wandered into the cave.

Dire threats were made against the unfortunate Tommy, and a council was at once established to decide his fate. The captive, bound and gagged, was thrust into a dark corner of the chamber and left there, wondering whether he was to be shot or hung.

"Sufferin' Jehosaphat!" exclaimed Ike Jones, stationed near the entrance, "if the water ain't comin' in here like sixty!"

"Take all belongings and git!" was the imperious command of Captain Skinny. "They've gone and busted the dam today without waitin'!"

All the band gained the outside in safety. Dolefully they stood on the bank watching the water steadily rising over the mouth of the cave, which opened in the bank close to the water's edge.

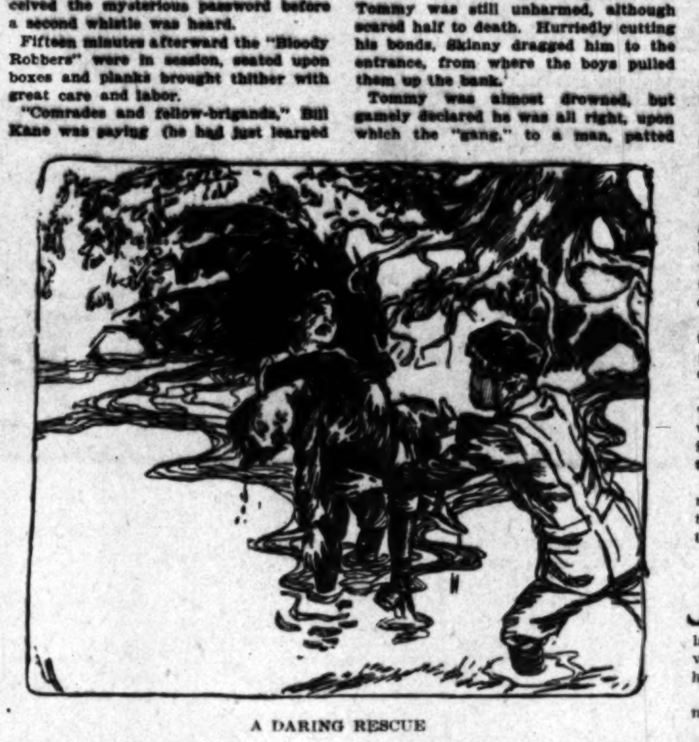
"We've fergot Tommy Bowes!" gasped Skinny. Seizing the rope which Bill had saved, Skinny tied one end around his waist, gave the other to Bill and dived down through the opening of the cave.

Inside the cave sloped steeply, so that Tommy was still unharmed, although scared half to death. Hurriedly cutting his bonds, Skinny dragged him to the entrance, from where the boys pulled them up the bank.

Tommy was almost drowned, but gamely declared he was all right, upon which the "gang," to a man, patted him on the back and muttered words of encouragement and admiration.

In order to "make up" to Tommy, he was then and there made a member of the "Bloody Robbers," which, he was given to understand, was the highest honor he could ever hope to attain in this world.

As Skinny bitterly remarked, however: "It wasn't much use bein' a robber if you didn't have a cave."



A DARING RESCUE

Aristocratic Hens.

A rather poor family unexpectedly came into possession of a fortune. They purchased a large farm, with hens, cows and pigs. One day the little daughter of the family was showing a visitor about the place.

"Do your hens lay many eggs?" he inquired interestedly.

"Oh, they can," was the haughty reply, "but in our new position they don't have to."

An Eastern Proverb.

The Brahmins have a proverb which has been translated thus:

Six little words lay claim to me
Each passing day—
I ought, I must, I can, I will,
I dare, I may.

East and West, men spend their lives deciding among the six—and the last is the one that makes the trouble.

THE LITTLE SISTER

I HEAR some fellows say they'd like
To have a little sister,
But if mine were a dog or "bike,"
I don't think I'd 'a' missed her.

On afternoons when chums call you
To go with them a-swimmin',
She's sure to sob, "Boo-hoo! boo-hoo!"
With tears her eyes a-dimmin'.

You never can go anywhere
But she comes toddlin' after;
And she can't even take a dare,
Or swing on the barn rafter.

Why do folks wonder that you're kind
Of cross and lots put out, when
You have her Saturday to mind,
And season's fine for troutin'?

How she's a single bit of use
To find I've not been able;
But still I guess I'd hate to lose
My little sister Mabel.

The Little Beggars

THEY were real big, too. One was eight and the other six, and they certainly should have known better.

It all came about through mother sending them to see grandma. You have to go quite a way to the old farmhouse, and mud-puddles are so nice to play in that you don't wonder, do you, that they stopped awhile before a fine, big one?

Now, somehow, mothers don't like mud-puddles, especially when you have your best clothes on, so, when the two saw before them a little beggar boy and girl of just their sizes, wasn't it natural they should ask them to change clothes for a few minutes? At least they thought so.

The one who was eight and the one who was six were having a delightful time when, happening to look up, they spied the two beggars running down the hill as fast as they could go.

Course, they couldn't go to grandma's now. Forlornly they trudged home to pour their tale of woe into mother's ear.

But perhaps you can understand why mother wasn't exactly pleased when the two little "beggars" burst into the room where she was entertaining her guests.

Yes, they s'posed they had been naughty; but, after all, wasn't it hard to be sent to bed after trying with all their might to do right?

Johnny's Excuse

JOHNNY'S excuses are really the funniest ever. Having been down late for breakfast several times lately, his mother told him that the very next time it occurred he would have nothing to eat.

"Johnny," said his mother, "you remember what I told you."

"Yes, mother, but really and truly I could not be down in time this morning."

"Why not?"

"You see, I was half asleep and half awake, and somehow I dreamed I was in church, and I knew you would not like me to get up during the sermon."

Johnny had his breakfast that morning.

Cut Rates

They were talking about a musical entertainment for charity. "We could never make it pay," said Fannie. "I heard father say only the other afternoon that these singers get as much as $300 for an evening!"

"Nonsense!" said Polly. "I know an organ-grinder that'll play an hour for 25 cents, and throw in a monkey."

Clever Catch

Johnny—Did I ever tell you the story of the two wells?

Tommy—No; let's hear it.

Johnny—Well, well.

"SEVEN-LEAGUE" BOOTS

HAVEN'T you often wished you had a pair of "seven-league" boots? With them you could walk miles and miles and see such a lot of things. Wouldn't it be fun?

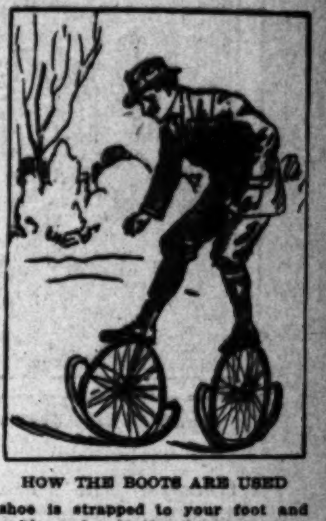
Over in Germany they have a queer kind of boots with which you can walk twice as fast as you do without them, and it's fine exercise, too.

As you will see by the picture, the shoe is like a big metal spring, with a support, and having a rest for your foot.

When putting them on, the first shoe is strapped to your foot and ankle, and a leather brace running up the leg fastened so that the foot is held firm, then you stand on the boot, and while in this position buckle on the other. Needless to say, it takes a little practice to keep your balance.

You walk as you do ordinarily. As you place your foot on the ground the metal spring is pressed down. Stepping forward releases the pressure, the spring flys up and you are pushed forward quite a distance.

It is really great fun. Perhaps you may have a pair of "seven-league" boots some time.



HOW THE BOOTS ARE USED

Getting Even

A MERRY little party had paid the customary five cents each to fish in the stream which ran through Farmer Jones' orchard. It was a very warm day, and soon one of the anglers announced his intention of taking a swim. Farmer Jones, who just then appeared on the scene, strongly objected.

With a wink to his companions, the wit drew the attention of the farmer to the sign-board, which read: "Admission to the river, five cents."

"So, having paid for it, here goes," said he, taking a header.

Farmer Jones then pounced on the bather's clothes.

"I reckon ye paid for your clothes and all," he chuckled, "an' they're going in, too!"

So they did—every stitch—amidst roars of laughter.

Musical Lady—Wouldn't you like to be able to sing and play, my boy?

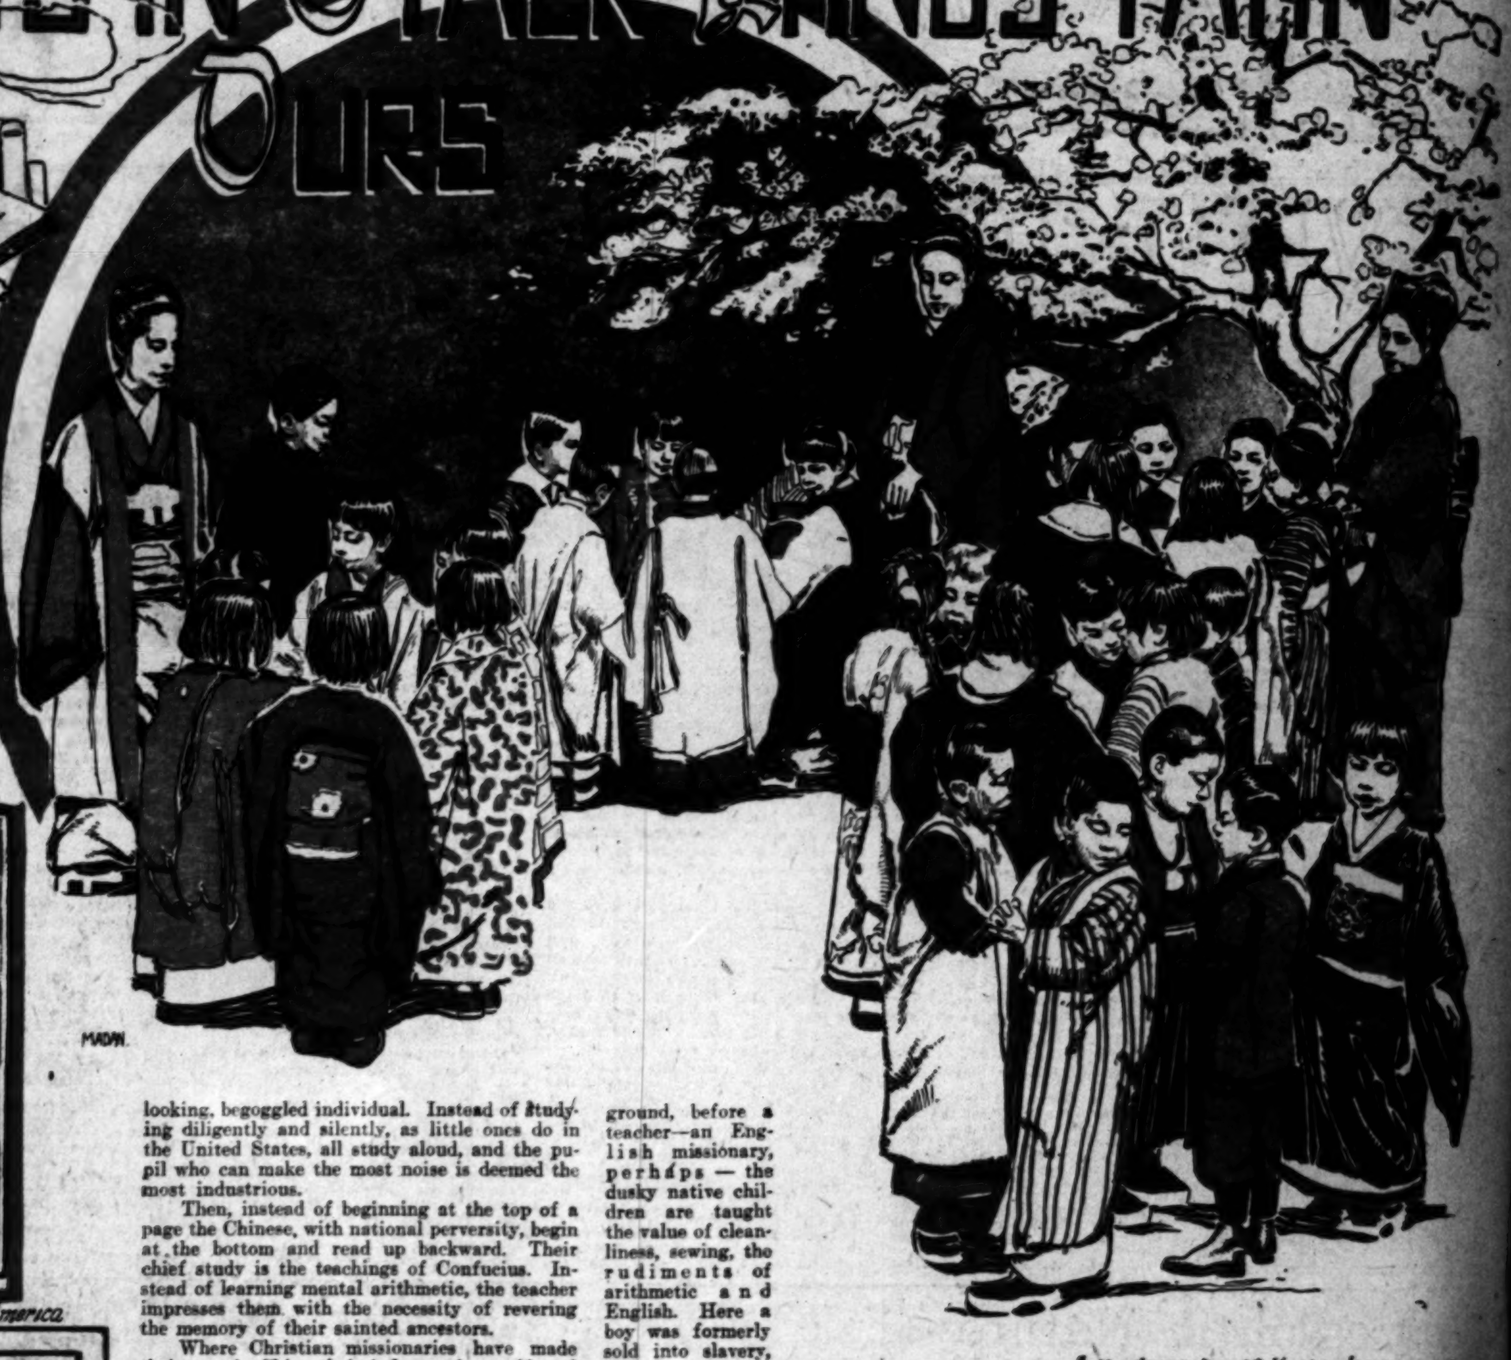
SCHOOL DAYS IN OTHER LANDS THAN OURS

Masters and Pupils in Faraway Countries

Boys' School in Persia.



MADAN.

A Kindergarten at Kyoto, Japan.

IF LITTLE boys and girls who are compelled to sit primly in rows of wooden seats while at school in this country were transported to a school in Persia or in Zululand, where the little ones squat and roll about on the floor, they would probably think they were having the jolliest time possible.

Could a little girl, in her spotless, stiff and starched white dress, become a member of a Japanese kindergarten, she would probably feel that she were among a lot of dolls—just the cutest little dolls imaginable.

No doubt if Willie or Charlie, by the whisk of a fairy's wand, were picked up, carried to a school on the Congo and there were set down among a lot of half-clad little Africans, he would probably be frightened badly at first. When he saw that there was no objection to his drawing faces or firing paper balls, and when he saw that instead of being confined inside four spick-and-span walls he was in a bamboo-covered shed, with tall palms outside, he would soon become reconciled, perhaps, to his fate.

In China, too, American and Canadian boys and girls would meet many surprises; there's where they do things backward, so they say. Like little bags of salt the pupils collapse on the floor, and the brightest pupil is the one who makes the most noise. Think of it!

PICTURE to yourself a Japanese kindergarten—one of the prettiest, most refreshing places one could imagine!

In Japan these schools for the little ones are made as beautiful as the thought and care of solicitous elders can make them. The little ones grow up in a veritable fairyland; their schooldays are as pleasant and as happy as they can be.

A large garden—grassy lawn, flower-specked. A little rivulet gurgling over white stones, a little stone bridge, a pillar, surmounted by a lantern. Beyond, a little hill, green with grass, scrubby pines, gnarled, twisted, grotesque little trees—the trees of the Japanese mountains. Nearby, along the whispering streamlet, almond trees, flaming pink, flushing with soft blossoms; cherry trees, their boughs white with the spring blooms; wistaria vines, with wondrous clusters of blossoms—white, lavender, delicately tinted.

Suddenly the door of the one-story house opens, and from the trellised portico comes a crowd of children—picture-book children turned to life! Among the flowers they rush, hiding behind shrubs, peeking about trees, running up the little hill.

One would think they'd have difficulty in running, for they wear the clumsiest clogs imaginable. These are fastened to the big toe. As they run, most of the chubby little legs are seen to be bare; some wear stockings, and these are made so the big toe has a separate compartment all to itself.

In Japan there are nearly 250 kindergartens, where about 22,000 little ones receive their play-instruction. When the last census was taken, in 1899, in these schools there were 11,764 boys and 10,097 girls.

The kindergarten system was adopted in 1879. Children from 3 to 6 years are admitted. At the age of 6 they are transferred to the elementary schools, where they study morals, reading, writing, arithmetic and other useful sciences. The ordinary school term is thirty-two weeks.

In China the pupils—serious-eyed little creatures, with straggling hair drawn back and tied in queues—sit before the teacher, a learned-looking, begoggled individual. Instead of studying diligently and silently, as little ones do in the United States, all study aloud, and the pupil who can make the most noise is deemed the most industrious.

Then, instead of beginning at the top of a page the Chinese, with national perversity, begin at the bottom and read up backward. Their chief study is the teachings of Confucius. Instead of learning mental arithmetic, the teacher impresses them with the necessity of revering the memory of their sainted ancestors.

Where Christian missionaries have made their way in China their influence is manifested in the schools. In most of the large cities missionaries conduct schools, and here the little Celestials are given the first rudiments of Western education. In most of the schools the little Chinese are taught gymnastics, and it is a rare sight to see the clumsy boys and girls going through the American system of calisthenics. As they get older they are taught arithmetic, algebra, geometry, physics and physiology. It is a revelation to many of them to find that their body is not made of fire, air and water.

Sometimes the American teachers have great difficulty with their charges. With inherited suspicion of foreigners, rumors often get afloat that the American teachers will harm them. A few years ago a number of Chinese pupils ran away from a Christian school; they had been told that they were being treated so well and fattened so as to make fit sacrifice to the Christian gods.

At Chefoo and Wyhu there are schools for deaf children. Here teachers instruct the little ones to read and write.

Throughout Korea, through the efforts of missionaries, schools have been opened. Korean parents are glad to send their children, and the majority pay for their education. Schools for little girls were new in Korea until a few years ago, but the advancement which the parents have noticed in their daughters has helped place the schools on a firm standing.

Now let us go to the wilds of Australia, where both government and missionary schools are doing their best to make the aborigines give up the wickedness of their ways and tame the wild spirit of the children.

Among the aborigines a child takes the class name of its mother. The little fellow's first lesson is from his father, and is with stone hatchets, knives and chisels. These are the instruments of labor, and a young man's success in the race for subsistence depends upon his use of the implements. Just as he is able to walk the father gives his son lessons in throwing the boomerang, wielding a club and sending a spear straight to the mark.

Can you imagine their school—a large space under a bamboo tent? Here, sitting on the ground, before a teacher—an English missionary, perhaps—the dusky native children are taught the value of cleanliness, sewing, the rudiments of arithmetic and English. Here a boy was formerly sold into slavery, to work in the pearl and beche-de-mer fisheries, for a sack of flour or a handful of tobacco. The government now enforces a law prohibiting a native from hiring out a child without the permission of a missionary. The children are said to be unusually bright, but they quickly reach their limit, and all efforts on part of teachers to advance them are in vain.

If little boys and girls in this country had to build their own schoolhouses, it is likely few would go to school; the houses would remain unbuilt. But in South Africa the enthusiasm of the Zulu youngsters not only takes them to the American and English schools, but they build brick schoolhouses themselves.

In many of these schools negroes conduct the classes, although most of the teachers are white. In Central Africa a traveler will quite often come across a school where half-nude children sit on the ground or on rough benches beneath a thatched roof. And it is interesting to observe that with reading and writing the boys are taught carpentry. Out of wood they make crude implements, blocks and clubs.

Five miles from Phoenix Station, in Natal, is an industrial school where the principal and entire faculty are black. It is a co-educational institution. The boys sit on one side of the room and the girls on the other. If a boy is seen "making faces" at a girl, he is given five lashes with a whip. After school boys and girls are led out into a garden, and their lessons of the day end with planting sweet potatoes, pumpkins and beans.

In Persia what do you suppose the little boys and girls learn, as they sit with crossed legs on the ground? Chiefly the Koran, or Mohammedan Bible.

Many of the native Persian schools are conducted in the open air, the pupils squatting on the ground about their teacher.

Could you take a peep into a girls' school in India, you would probably experience quite a surprise. The making of hats and dresses is one of the chief branches of study. Sitting on stools before the teachers you would see the native girls sewing and embroidering industriously.

Throughout the mysterious country are many orphan schools, mostly founded by the British Government and by missionary societies. And here, sitting by tables, in rooms where the sunshine pours through open windows, are little boys hewing out wooden toy cannon and little wooden balls.

In Mexico sewing constitutes an important part of the education of girls. Perhaps you have a rare bit of Mexican embroidery in your home. In the City of Mexico you can see this work done by a sewing class of girls, most of them Indians.

In the Girls' Normal School of the Mexican capital vocal and instrumental music and drawing are taught, besides regular courses in English, science, mathematics and history. Girls from the country, mostly Indians, arrive at the school with skirts trailing, wearing loose blouses, big clumsy shoes and big earrings. By the time they leave they have learned housekeeping, cooking, sewing, the making of beds, ironing and all household arts.

Since 1900 there have been great advancements in the schools in the Philippine Islands. In schools patterned after those in America Filipino girls and boys study much after the fashion of American children. Because most of the boys will depend for their living upon farming the school-day often ends with classes going out in the fields to take a lesson in agriculture. The students raise rice, sugar-cane and vegetables.

Down in Colombia, Argentina and other parts of South America useful arts are brought into the schools.
